Norman Duren HCCAA Regional Board President

Mr. Norman Duren, Goldthwaite Postmaster, was installed as President of the Hill Country Community Action Assn., Inc. Regional Board at their quarterly meeting in Lampasas, August 25. He follows Rev. Marvin Loenig as President of the organization. Rev. Koenig has accepted an appointment to a church in Angleton, Texas. The Board accepted his resignation with regrets and expressed appreciation for his excellent cooperation and service as President of the Board, and as a strong advocate for the participants of the program.

The Regional Board of Hill Country Community Action is made up of 33 members from nine counties. It is the governing and advisory board of HCCAA, and meets every ten weeks to discuss and act upon business pertaining to the organization.

Mr. Duren has been a member of this Regional Board, as well as the local twelve member Mills County Advisory Committee, since the beginning of Community Action in June, 1966. He has held the position of President of both of these groups. He is extremely interested and supportive of the programs sponsored by the HCCAA. These different programs provide services through the Head Start and day care centers; the Family Planning Program and Emergency Food; the Senior Opportunities and Services and the Retired Senior Volunteer Programs. In addition to working with their particular programs, the staff is trained to refer eligible participants to other agencies and organizations such as Social Security, Food Stamps, Vocational Rehabilitation, Farmer's Home Administration and Welfare.

Eagles Overpowered By Bulldogs 45-0

Something clicked in the efforts of the Goldthwaite Eagles last Friday night after the first series of downs.

Fighting a much larger and experienced Hamilton Bulldog eleven, the Eagles couldn't hold on to early game desire and fell to the Dogs by a 45-0 mark.

The only time all night the Bulldogs had to punt was on their first possession. The rest of the night it was the Hamilton running and passing attack that ruled the Eagles' roost.

The Eagles managed only five first downs against Hamilton, and the Bulldogs swept by with a total of 27.

The passing of quarterback David Miller, much needed to thwart the large Hamilton team, could not be effective because of lack of time to set up to pass. Many times receivers were wide open only to look around to see the pass already thrown or Miller dropped. Sometimes Miller would just have time to turn around before the Bulldogs converged around him.

RICHLAND SPRINGS
The Eagles will travel to Richland Springs Friday night for their third non-conference bout of the season. Game time is 8 p.m.

Richland won their first game of the season and tied with Cross Plains last week.

The Way It Was-

The Great Blizzard Of 1887

Written by Mrs. Sadie Owens Head

Submitted by Mrs. Sherwood Owens

Mr. J. T. Owens came to Mills County, Center City Community, in 1885, and purchased the John Kirkpatrick Ranch, and another ranch six miles to the south, called the Pigfoot Pasture. He was about twenty four years old at the time of the "Great Blizzard", the account of which is given in the story below, written by his daughter, Sadie.

Our father came to the Center City Community three years before he and our mother were married. The house on the place was a two room structure, with an upstairs. Papa lived here, with a teenage cousin who helped with the stock.

On this particular day, Papa and cousin Johnny started on the six mile ride to salt the cattle at Pigfoot Pasture. All went well until after they had eaten dinner at the springs, and were salting the cattle on the top of a high hill, known as the "Salt Lick".

Suddenly Johnny called out, pointing to the north, and said, "Look, Cousin Jimmie, at that big black object coming over the mountains at the home place. It seems to be rolling over and over, covering the trees and everything." One glance told our father that it was the dreaded Western Blizzard, preceded by black clouds, and it would be on them in a matter of minutes. Turning to the boy, he shouted above the noise of the cattle, "Ride, Johnny, ride as fast as your horse will run to Grandma Ford's house. I will be there as soon as I can." The boy was off like a flash, riding for his life that two-and-one-half miles to the Ford place. Papa was delayed a few minutes, because his horse was tied a short distance from where he was working.

In relating this experience to us years later he would always hesitate at this point and say, "That was my first blizzard in the West. I didn't know that range cattle were so conscious to the slightest change in the atmosphere. There was an old red cow, with the longest horns you have ever seen, that ran the herd. John had no sooner left than this old cow lifted her head, giving one sniff toward the north, then made a long, belting sound which was the danger signal for the herd. Before I could get to my horse, the cattle were sweeping down the south slope of the hill and into the density of the timber below which would partially protect them from the cruel, cutting winds and sleet that would soon be upon them."

These few moments almost cost my father his life. By the time he got to his horse, the animal was frightened and charging to get loose. In seconds, horse and rider were off like the wind; soon to be fighting for their life in that huge ball of darkness, which was filled with piercing sleet and wind that cut like a knife. Not being accustomed to such hardships, Papa soon lost all sense of directions, and had to depend entirely upon his faithful horse to take him to safety. He was in a semi-conscious condition when that ride, which seemed endless, suddenly came to a halt.

He heard friendly voices, and realized it was Grandma Ford and her three sons. They were struggling to get his frozen clothes loose from the saddle, and his icy boots and spurs out of the stirrups so that he could be carried into the house. Our father did not fully regain his faculties until seated in a big chair before a roaring fireplace, being wrapped in quilts and blankets, and Grandma Ford trying to get warm milk between his clenched teeth. She was such a motherly person; truly a perfect symbol of the mothers of the Old West. In her soft, low voice she was saying, "Jimmy, honey, drink this milk. It will make you feel better."

Sitting on the floor beside him was a very frightened boy, Johnny Owens. He had never before seen anyone so near death. Several hours passed before Papa was able to get out of his place by the fire. Despite the temptation to accept the invitation of his friends to spend the night, he knew he would have to face that next six miles and get home to take care of the cattle there. After eating a hot supper, and leaving young Johnny, our father again rode out into the freezing storm. It was long after dark when he reached home. When he came within sight of the house he could see a faint beam of light shining through the glass panel of the front door. He has said many times that the small ray of light piercing the darkness on that cold, wintery night was as precious to him as the Great Eastern Star was to the Wise Men. On this eventful night the beam of light was not the only surprise for this half frozen cowboy. A big backlog was in the fireplace and the room was nice and warm. An improvised fence had been built around the fireplace, hay had been carried in, and the floor was literally covered with little calves, all fast asleep. On the wood stove in the kitchen a hot supper was waiting, which Mother Parker, the nearest neighbor, had sent by her two sons when they went that afternoon to gather the baby calves, knowing that the Owens boys had gone, earlier in the day, to Pigfoot Pasture.

These acts of kindness and of friendship to J. T. Owens on this day were just another link in the chain that bound the early settlers together. Every man was your friend, until proven otherwise. It was people like the Fords, the Parkers, the Daltons, and the Millers that organized Mills County, and has kept it growing for almost a century.

Mills Museum Records 1000 Visitors

HAVE YOU BEEN TO THE MILLS COUNTY MUSEUM? 1000 people have -- the 1000th visitor was recorded on Sept. 10th, and the identity of that person will soon be announced and they will be awarded a silver dollar from Mr. Herbert Cook, Museum Director. Mr. Cook states he will give two silver dollars to the 2000th visitor.

If you have not been to the museum lately, or have never been there, you are missing a wonderful collection of old items and pictures depicting the struggles and triumphs of our ancestors as they paved the way for us.

There are artifacts used by every generation that has ever lived in this county, from the arrows of the earliest Indians, to the wood cook stoves used by our great-grandmothers. The museum has such unique items of interest as oxen yoke, brought to this county by the Hannans in 1856; a beautiful silk patchwork quilt made about 100 years ago; a doll wearing a dress 100 years old, and both would be a prize to any collector; a "one in a million" find - a plant setter that sets, waters and covers small plants with one twist of the wrist, patented in 1889; a collection of fifty walking canes, all hand whittled by one man over the years; and the key-stone that graced the front door of the old mill at Williams Ranch so many years ago, in 1878.

There are untold numbers of other items of olden days; you must see them. The museum is located in the first building south of the Mills County State Bank, and in the former building of the Cattleman's Production Credit Association, who so graciously loan their building for the housing of the museum.

Your museum is growing. The back of the building is now being made into a part of it, and a model of an early-day living room, bedroom and kitchen is being set up. If you have an article that is old, and you would like to either loan or donate it to any of these three rooms, please contact Mr. Cook, or any of the following museum committee: Mrs. Malcolm Jernigan, Mrs. Allan Campbell, Love Gatlin, Mrs. Delton Barnett and Mrs. Hollis Blackwell.

More pictures are being added, and anything you might have to add to your museum will be a great help in the struggle to begin it. Let us remember that a museum is a part of the past, and we must not do our future generations the injustice of not recording for them, in artifacts and pictures, the history of their forefathers.

Commissioners Court Gives; Ups Prices

The regular session of the Mills County Commissioners Court was held last week, with County Judge Herbert Faulkner presiding.

The court okayed $400 for the support of the Central Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation mobile unit. The unit makes regularly scheduled stops to Goldthwaite to work with Mills County citizens. Dr. Pat Newton of the unit and Brown County Judge James Bunnell were at the meeting, representing the agency.

Effective the fifteenth of September the court agreed to up charges for the use of county equipment and the hauling of dirt and gravel. Charges are now $10 per load of dirt, plus 25 cents per mile and $17.50 per hour for the use of county equipment.

The motion was made by Commissioner Hawley Jernigan and seconded by Burtel Roberts. Commissioners Ray Lindsey and Lewis Watson voted against the measure. Judge Faulkner voted for the proposition, thus ending the deadlocked vote.

Mr. Allison Joyce, representing the Central Texas Council On Alcoholism, came to the court, asking for funds to help his agency in counseling and education. The court unanimously voted to give $200 to the agency.

Truett Aldridge was the low bidder in the replacing of old courthouse windows with aluminum ones. The total price for the replacement of thirteen windows was $1330.75, including screens.

"What happens to old cars when they get too old to run?" asked the small boy.

"Someone sells them to your father," replied his mother.

In case you're interested in such things, the City of Goldthwaite will receive a tax check from the State for just over $3500.

That doesn't say much; we've received numerous such checks in the past two years. When you compare this to other Texas cities and towns, it can be noted.

Houston received only $102,163.06 for the same period. San Saba received $28,45.

Many people advocate more tax on this system. They say that property and income taxes are unfair, and maybe they are. The tax has often been called "the silent tax" by government officials, and perhaps it is the least felt form of taxation, because most of it is paid out in such small quantities that the money really isn't missed. Sit down and write a check for several hundred dollars in property taxes and see how your blood pressure fluctuates. It's a simple matter of personality. No one uses the pennies, even though they come regularly.

Maybe our schools should have the opportunity to get a few of these pennies, to help make up for some of the dollars needed to properly educate our children. Many people who have children in school in Texas don't pay property taxes. But they buy things that are taxable with sales and use tax. That is certainly unfair.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

I read the part on the front page about the building where the Goldthwaite Eagle is published. Whoever gave you that information had his dates all mixed up.

I was a resident of Goldthwaite for several years before and up to 1927, when I moved away. At that time the corner where the present Gulf Station is, there was a building known as the Marten Building.

On the south side of the old Marten Bldg. were two blacksmith shops, a vacant lot, then the old Goldthwaite Eagle Bldg. I think the owner was a man referred to as Doc Wilson who edited the paper. During the years of my absence the present building was built by P. K. Caraway who also built some of the frame homes here. He said the rock he used was a blue flint. He ended the life of a rock crusher that belonged to G'waite, the flint was so hard.

Mr. Caraway has been dead several years as of now, but there are plenty of things that bear his workmanship.

When Mr. Caraway did this, he said a good carpenter got $3 per hr. The one in charge got $3.50 per day. There were no coffee breaks and the men did not spend the last half-hour before 5 P.M. watching the second hand on the watch or clock.

Thank you.

Reader, subscriber John W. Hendrick

Editor, Goldthwaite has a lot of beautiful homes, and the people as a whole as fine as you will ever meet anywhere. But I look on G'waite as a cow town.

Brush And Wildlife- Both Manageable Natural Resources

By: Bud Saathoff

Wildlife, as well as the habitat that supports it, are manageable natural resources that can be abused or improved. Wildlife is an important and valuable product of the land and many landowners are managing both resources properly for sustained high production.

Good wildlife management is not achieved by chance. It takes planning and application of such practices as proper grazing use by livestock, deferred grazing or resting of pastures from grazing by livestock, selective control of brush to leave adequate amounts of the more desirable browse plants for wildlife food and cover, installation of wildlife watering facilities where needed, proper harvest of wildlife and others. Some landowners set aside small fenced plots or even entire pastures strictly for use by wildlife, while others limit the kind and numbers of livestock to those which are least competitive with wildlife for food. As an example, cattle compete much less with deer for food than do goats, which prefer almost the same type plants that deer require.

The old term "brush control" has often caused mixed feelings among ranchers, conservationists, and wildlife enthusiasts. Perhaps "Brush Management" would be a much better term and a clearer description of the practice often applied on rangeland. There are many types and species of brush or woody plants that grow on our native rangelands. Some are good, some bad. In many areas the good are becoming scarce and the bad are increasing. That's just part of nature's system when the land is continuously over-grazed.

Most wildlife has two basic requirements. These are food and cover. They can't survive long in the wild when only one is provided. The deer on the green oat field is a good example. They must have some type of cover nearby. A pasture with a dense stand of almost pure Mesquite or whitebrush may provide all the cover in the world, yet be severely lacking in food production and where wildlife will surely die of starvation during a hard winter. The important thing is a combination, food and cover. We are fortunate in our area of Central Texas in having many species of brush or browse plants that can provide both food and cover. These are plants such as hackberry, liveoak, shinoak, bumelia, sumacs, kidneywood, elbowbush and several others.

Under the practice of brush management, there are several alternative methods of controlling the undesirable types of brush such as mesquite or dense stands of shinoak or cedar and leaving adequate amounts of the more desirable species. When using heavy equipment to clear the brush from the land such as dozing or root-plowing, it can be done in strips or checker-board fashion which leaves sufficient brush cover alternated with clear strips or blocks. This method also provides the edge effect which many kinds of wildlife prefer. They feed in the cleared areas where palatable food plants such as forbs are produced and yet are close to the protection of the adjacent uncleared brush strips.

Where brush management is needed on areas supporting a mixed stand of brush consisting of both desirable and undesirable species, a selective method of control can be applied. Such methods include individual tree-doing and basal application of chemicals with ground equipment. In selective control, the undesirable plants are individually treated and killed, leaving the good plants to provide both food and cover on the same area. Other alternatives such as leaving the brush in natural patterns such as hillsides and along draws and creeks are also effective.

The practice of brush management properly applied and followed by good range management can be of great benefit to wildlife as well as livestock production. The local offices of the Soil Conservation Service are available to provide assistance to landowners in planning the "where", "what kind" and "how much" in the practice of brush management.

Seventy Attend Recent Senior Citizen Fellowship

If you missed the Senior Citizen meeting last Wednesday, Sept. 10, you missed a lot of fun, fellowship and lots of good things to eat. Some of our Senior Citizens began arriving at 9:30 A.M. and by the noon hour we had seventy people for lunch. Both Dumas even fried fish for all of us.

We appreciate Rev. Talk, Mrs. Talk and Andrew visiting with us. Rev. Talk gave us a most interesting sermonette and the invocation before lunch. Mrs. Clara Jarrett Kimbell played goodie fashioned music during the lunch hour. We are so glad to have Clara as one of us now. She has recently moved back home. We have had several new members and visitors recently: Mrs. Farol Neely brought Gertrude Neely, Mrs. Flowers, Charles and Ruth Dennard and Mrs. Mamie Palmer; Mrs. Alice McCasland brought her son, Dr. McCasland from Austin; Mrs. Annie Rose's daughter, Mrs. Trutt Hutto, has visited several times. New members include Mrs. McArthur, Mrs. Beard, Mrs. Jordan, Miss Laura Virden, Mrs. Jo Ann Schmidt, Mr. H. C. Schunk, Mr. Kemp and Mr. Z. Berry. Judge and Mrs. Faulkner had lunch with us.

During the summer, several teenagers came with their grandparents and seemed to thoroughly enjoy playing games with our Senior Citizens. Mrs. Black's grandson from Star even beat some of us playing dominoes. We welcome teenagers any time.

Because we appreciate the use of the Youth Center so much, we decided to give a shower of cup towels, dishrags and pot holders. A nice collection was left at the Center.

Brian Smith has donated a card table and dominoes to the Center. We are growing so fast that if you have tables or games that you are not using, please leave them at the Youth Center. Better still, come join us - get something good to eat and have fun playing games. A great big Thank You goes to Carrie Pburn, Mullin, for taking our blood pressure at the end of the day, which was four o'clock last Wednesday.

Everyone is invited to the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Personal-

Mrs. Cecil Parker of Glen Rose visited in Goldthwaite last weekend with her mother, Mrs. Blanche Featherston.

Mrs. Parker and her aunt, Mrs. Virginia Bailey of Arlington, recently returned from a month's visit in Virginia and Ohio. They spent three weeks in the Shenandoah Valley, guests of a cousin, Mrs. Harold Bauserman of Maurertown, Va.

From there they made short trips to places of interest, concentrating on Powells Fort Valley, the community where Mrs. Bailey was born, along with the other members of the L. T. Moreland family. Blanche Featherston, the oldest L. T. Moreland child, was also born there. The Morelands moved from Seven Fountains, in Powells Fort, Va., to Mills County, Texas, in 1901 when Virginia Bailey was one year old.

They arrived in Virginia in time to attend the annual business meeting and memorial service of the Isiah Clem Cemetery Association at the cemetery and Oak Level Methodist Church which is nearby. This is the cemetery where all four of Mrs. Bailey's grandparents are buried, along with many other kin, including Clem, Glenn, Shuff, Ross, Moreland, etc.

They visited briefly in Annandale, Virginia, with the Charlie A. Cook family, Moreland descendants. They returned by way of Ohio where they were guests of the Guy Clem family of Johnstown. They visited several members of the Shuff and Clem kin in that area.

It is still dry here; the rains didn't make it. But the norther did. It sure is fresh and cool. Maybe the rains will be next.

Mrs. Linnie Embrey had surgery Friday at the hospital in Clinton. Her sister, Timm, and two nieces, Bessie Pyburn and Louise Rawls of San Angelo, are here.

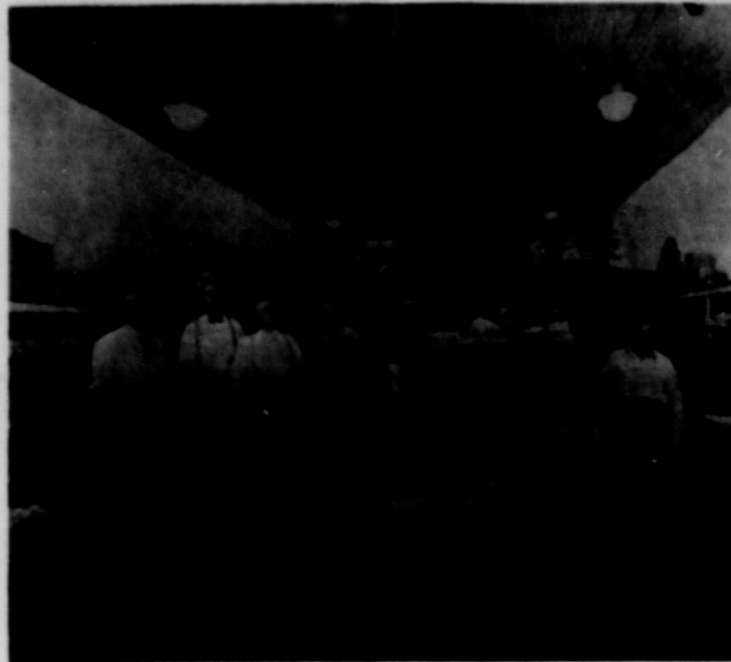

Visitors in my home last Tuesday were Mrs. Rosa Tiemann and Mrs. Lydia Wagner of Priddy. Also Mrs. Temp of San Angelo, who is Mrs. Wagner's sister, and Mrs. Witzche of Pottsville.

Those spending the weekend in the home of Elsie and Mr. Holland were James Buchner and his wife, Marlene, of Henderson and Mrs. Holland's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Coleman of Jacksonville, Tx.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Marwitz spent last weekend in Temple visiting their daughter. Her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Don Burks. They carried Don, Jr. home and he spent the weekend here.

I talked to Clara Swindle of Goldthwaite one day this week. She was telling me that she had a birthday the day before, I believe. Anyway, her sister, Annie Roberts of Indian Gap who works in Goldthwaite and also has the same birthday, came out and had lunch with her. Happy birthday, girls!

Heritage "HAPPENINGS"

THE WAY IT WAS in the life of one of our residents, Mrs. Curtis Long, and certainly touching the lives of many of us, is this "happening" of a bygone era, the Long and Berry Grocery.

Taken in 1934, this photograph shows, from left, Jim Kelly, Albert Herford, Henry Ezzell, father of Mrs. Long, Booster Berry, Annie Berry, Curtis Long, Lorraine Kelly and H. L. (Dick) Long.

Located in what is now the Geeslin Gas Co., the Long and Berry store's history began in 1925 when Curtis Long and Lee Berry bought it from J. H. Borden. Destroyed by fire in 1939, which was believed to be caused by the bakery next door, the store was rebuilt and then was known as Long's Grocery. In 1946, Mr. and Mrs. Long sold the business to Jack Long.

Also associated with the store and not present when the picture was taken, was another of our residents, Scott Thompson.

FOLKS AND FACTS -- We want to express our gratitude to all the churches of the county and all the volunteers who bring religious activities to our residents -- Tommy Ray Collier is now serving as our pianist for Sunday School and we are very grateful for his services. We also enjoy having Glenn Collier and Kay. They are helping out with the song service. -- Even though Maxine McCasland has had foot surgery, she was kind enough to help us with crafts recently. This time we had fun creating flowers out of yarn. -- We always look forward to the Men's Downtown Bible Class Singing and we thank them for their faithfulness in providing enjoyment for our residents. -- Do not forget the evening of Sept. 20 is the regular date for the string band, the Nashville Brass, to entertain in our home. A most cordial welcome is extended to the public to attend.

WE WELCOME -- Virginia McDonald and Dan McConal to our home.

B Team Takes Hamilton 20 - 6

Coach Perry Farley's B Team Eagles pulled off a fine victory over the Hamilton Bulldogs last week, easing by with a 20-6 score.

The outstanding part of the game for the Eagles was the defense, according to Coach Farley. Mike Williams was the leader with 24 tackles.

It was a real standout team effort by the B Teamers.

The first half of the game ended 0-0, indicating the tough defensive battle that was going on.

The Eagles scored first in the last two minutes of the third period on a quarterback sneak by Mike Connally. Runs by Williams and Tommy Collier set up the score. The PAT failed.

Hamilton came back and tied up the score, but missed their PAT also.

Then, the first time the Eagles got their claws on the football after the Hamilton score, Tommy Collier raced over 70 yards on a nifty reverse for a score. But again the Eagles could not convert the extra point, making the score 12-6.

With 2:31 left in the contest, Williams scrambled on a 47 yard run to score. A dive play by Collier netted the two extra points, making the final tally 20-6 in favor of the Eagles.

Williams had 164 yards rushing in 18 carries. QB Connally passed for five out of eight for 38 yards.

The B Eagles are open this week and will travel to San Saba on the 25th.

Historical Commission Meeting

The Mills County Historical Commission met at the Courthouse, Thursday, Sept. 11, 1975. The treasurer reported a balance of $382.89.

Mae Featherston, historical preservation chairman, reported that she is working on a history of Mills County to be published in future years.

Mrs. M. F. Horton said that she had heard from the Center City and the Mills County Park and Well application which had been sent to the state office for historical markers. These applications are being processed.

The history appreciation chairman, Mrs. Hollis Blackwell, reported that the histories of all the churches in Mullin had been gathered by Mrs. Herald Locke.

The chairman asked that everyone keep in mind and start working toward the Bicentennial celebration which will include an Old Fiddlers Contest, an Old Settlers Reunion, and many other activities. It will be held the last Saturday of May, 1976.

Everyone is urged to fly his flag every day since the Bicentennial started March 1, 1975, and will go through December 31, 1976.

It was called to the attention of the group that Goldthwaite was 90 years old September 5, 1975.

All persons in Mills County, as well as former residents, are asked to boost and support the museum which is growing every day.

The historical commission would like to express appreciation to the Young Homemakers for their generous donation of $50 to be used for historical markers. Many other people have given memorials and gifts and we thank each one for the help.
