NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

A Desperately Serious Case Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Brought to the very verge of starvation by the rejection of all nourishment, her vitality almost destroyed, the recovery of Mrs. J. A. Wyatt, of No. 1189 Seventh street, Des Moines, Iowa, seemed hopeless. Her physicians utterly failed to reach the sent of the difficulty and death must have resulted if she had not pursued an independent course suggested by her sister's experience.

Mrs. Wyatt says: "I had pain in the | w region of the heart, palpitation and shortness of breath so that I could not walk very fast. My head ached very badly and I was seized with vomiting spells whenever I took any food. A doctor was called who pronounced the Practically all the interest the bill trouble gastritis, but he gave me no recenters in the Foraker amendment, lief. Then I tried a second doctor withand every possible effort on both sides out benefit. By this time I had become Washington. - The question of the is being made for and against that very weak. I could not keep the most delicate broth on my stomach, and at the end of a month I was scarcely more than skin and bone and was really starving to death.

"Then I recalled how much benefit my sister had got from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to take them in place of the doctor's medicine. It proved a wise decision for they helped me as nothing else had done. Soon I could take weak tea and crackers and steadily more nourishment. In two weeks I was able to leave my bed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were the only thing that checked the vomiting and as soon as that was stopped my other difficulties left me. I have a vigorous appetite now and am able to attend to all the duties of my home. I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to all my friends because

Senatorial Repartee.

Ex-Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire was one day questioning Senator Tillman very closely while the latter was making one of those impassioned speeches in the senate which made him famous in caricatures as the senator with the pitchfork. After Tillman had been interrupted several times he became very much annoyed and blurted out: Why, my friend rattles around in his seat over there like a disturbed grasshopper." "But a pitchfork never hits a grasshopper," was the quick reply from Senator Chandler

Was Determined to Marry Freak. The widow of a substantial War saw (Poland) tradesman fell in love with a living skeleton, on exhibition at a booth, and induced him to visit her at her house. Here she declared er passion, and upon its meeting with but cold response she seized the wretched freak and, having gagged him, placed him in a large box, procured to meet the emergency, enclosed wherein she had him rapidly driven to a villa owned by her in the suburbs, and there kept him prisoner until he agreed to her proposal.

Knee Deep in Molasses.

A curious accident occurred at New York on board a freight steamer reently. There was a large cargo on oard consisting mainly of sugar and colasses. Just before the ship was molasses. Just before the ship was docked the warm weather caused the molasses barrels to burst, with the result that the men who unloaded the sugar had to wade through a perfected of molasses. The men could only york an hour or so at a time as the molasses filled their clothes and made > Twain's Felicitous Introduction. Mark Twain on one occasion introduced Senator Hawley of Connecticut to a political gathering in New York state. Mr. Clemens told the audience that they could bank on the senator's honesty, for although his back yard at Hartford adjoined that of Hawley he had never lost a single chicken and although he had closely watched the general as he passed the plate in the Asylum Hill Congregational church he had never seen him take one cent out of the plate. evening frocks.

In the lighter, more dressy linen cloth, trimmed in tailor fas gowns, Princess styles are exquisite, those lovely little lingerie gowns making the plainest woman look her best. For, un'ike the severe Princess gown -the type that came out first-unlike any of the others of heavier materials -those of mull or of handkerchief linen and such soft delicate stuffs are so full and betrimmed and beruffled and generally fascinating that every hint of severity of line is lost.

For that matter, there has been almost a revolution in the way of making Princess gowns. Instead of only two or three types of figure looking well in them, dressmakers and dress artists have juggled with the stylegiving in an inch here, to take an ell there-until almost any woman can be made to look well in at least one style.

In Light Broadcloth.

Frocks and wraps of white or pale lined broadcloth which are so much in demand this season and so numerous among the "ready to wear" models, are excellent investments if offered at prices really low, for unless they have some perishable trimming they will stand innumerable cleanings and keep their shape and modishness. e dress is pale-blue broadcloth, with rimming on skirt and bodice of light blue and silver braid, put on in design. The little vest in front of bodice is white kid and the plaited girdle chiffont taffeta, exactly matching the cloth. There is a pretty buckle of novel shaped rolling colla rhinestones where the revers meet at closing at the center front. waist line and a frill of fine white lace finishes the elbow sleeves. Blue gloves and a cloth-of-silver hat with blue plumes and aigrettes accompany the costume.

EN LETTERS THE CZAR SETS LIMI

NOT TO GIVE LEGISLATIVE AS SEMBLY A FREE HAND.

CERTAIN SUBJECTS ARE BARRED.

'Reds" Not to be Allowed to Sit as Members of the Assembly - Government Retains Power to Promulgate "Temporary Laws."

St. Petersburg, March 8.-The full text of an imperial manifesto and laws relative to the national assembly and the reorganized council of the em pire, the features of which have already been telegraphed to the Associated Press, throws a flood of light upon the purpose of the government to keep a firm check on the new Russian parliament and to exclude cer tain subjects from consideration by the people's representatives. The composition of the council of the empire, or upper house of the national assembly, with one-half appointed by the emperor and twenty-six elected from the nobility and clergy, not counting scattering supporters from other classes, seems to insure a conservative if not a pliable majority in the council to block the national assembly should the majority of the latter be in opposition to the crown.

The government carefully retains the power to promulgate "temporary" laws during recesses of the parliament and as the parliament is subject to dissolution by imperial ukase, the government is thus in a position in time of stress to rid itself of an obnoxious mer long and his great legislature and proclaim such laws as it deems necessary to meet the emergency.

A feature of the law which seems effectually to bar "reds" from membership in the national assembly is a provision exacting from persons elected an oath of fidelity to "emperor, autocrat and holy Russia." The most significant article, however, is one retaining certain provisions of an existing law which is mentioned only by number. This innocent looking provision is far reaching, placing beyoud the jurisdiction of the parliament and consigning to existing commissions of the council of the empire composed solely of members appointed by the crown, for consideration. the following:

First-Reports of the minister of finance upon the state of the treasury.

Second — Charges of malfeasance against members of the council of the empire, ministers, governors general and commanders-in-chief of land or Third-The establishment of stock companies with special privileges. urth - Questions relating to entailed estates, titles of nobility, etc.

MONEY FOR RURAL ROUTES. Washington, March 7 .- The operations of the rural free delivery service up to March 1, 1906, are shown in a statement issued by Fourth Assistant Postmaster De Graw. Up to that time 52,227 petitions has been received and referred. Of these 13,722 were acted upon adversely. The number of routes in operation March 1, was 35,031, leaving 3,424 petitions still pending of which 191 have been assigned for establishment. In connection with these figures the statement is made that notwithstanding the develorment of the service there is an unexpended balance on hand to the credit of new establishment of $905,106 from the appropriation of $2,376,696 which became available July 1 of last year.

DROPPED OUT OF THE WORLD.

ADAMS' EXPLAINS THE MYS. TERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Boise, Idaho, March 7.-The grand jury did not return indictments against Mover and his associates charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg. It has been learned that the confession of Steve Adams clears up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of two of the men who dropped out of the world during the troubles at Telluride in 1902. One case is that of J. W. Barney, foreman of the Smuggler Union mine, and the other that of J. W. Smith. Both men disappeared mysteriously. Barney was taken from a livery stable by a lot of men and was not seen again. Smith was preparing to go to Colorado fact that my nerves had become de-Springs to visit his family. He disappeared from the hotel. He formerly worked in Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines at Wardner. Smith was a nonunion man. What Adams told of the disappearance is not known, but there seems no doubt that both cases have been fully explained.

Professor Charles Zeublin recently returned to the University of Chicago from a five weeks' lecturing trip in the Northwest, and has been telling Chisagoans something of the possibilities and probabilities of that great region. He says Portland is making a terrific struggle to keep its prestige, but is rapidly losing to Seattle, which, he thinks, will become the great seaport of the West, in time surpassing even San Francisco. Tacoma, he thinks, will be the great manufacturing city of the West.

Grounds for Opposition One of President Roosevelt's Western friends applied to him for a job. The president was willing and sought to find him a place. He had about settled on one when there came a great protest from the Western friend's state. "They discovered," said the president, "that he had killed four men. I didn't know that. Still, the homicide record did not form the basis of the protest. The people who opposed my friend opposed him not on

Champion Congressional Talker.

Littlefield of Maine is the champion talker of the house. He rattles off his words faster than an auctioneer calling for bids and in very much the same manner. When interrupting another man's speech he has a way of emphasizing his words syllable by syllable and with each sylabble he snaps his head forward as if to break his own neck. For instance: "The president's power is soup-ream." When he said that the other day he nearly cracked the desk in front of him with his head when he said "soup" and again when he said "ream."

MANUFACTURE NOSES. The Notoriety of Indore Rests Upon Its Hospital.

The city of Indore is modern and ugly and uninteresting. Apart from being the prosperous capital of a rich state, its chief claim to notoriety rests upon its hospital, which has won universal fame by the manufacture of artificial noses. That may seem a very limited industry on which to build a name. But in India there are several ways of promoting this fadustry. When a woman comes to the hospital carrying her nose in a napkin you may fairly assume that her husband suspects a breach of the seventh commandment. When a man appears in the same plight you may set him down as a usurer who has fallen into the hands of his clients, and has had no Portia to plead his cause. Indore is the Mecca of these unfortunates.

"I was loath to believe that these things came from the coffee I was drinking, but at last was forced to that conclusion, and quit it. "I was so accustomed to a hot table beverage and felt the need of it so much, that after abstaining from coffee for a time and recovering my health, I went back to it. I did this several times, but always with disastrous results. I had about made up my mind that coffee was a necessary

"About this time a friend told me that I would find Postum Food Coffee very fine and in many respects away ahead of coffee. So I bought some and, making it very carefully according to the directions, we were delighted to find that he had not exaggerated in the least. From that day to this we have liked it better than the old kind of coffee or anything else in the way of a table drink. "Its use gave me, in a very short time, an increase in strength, clearness of brain and steadiness of nerves; and sleep, restful and restor-
