The United Kingdom was literally girdled with sunken treasure in the latter part of the sixteenth century. Sir Francis Drake returned in 1580 from his great journey of exploration to California, and he had an adequate idea of the vast amount of gold which was being carried in Spanish ships from Mexico and South America to Spain. As a matter of fact, there was so much of it in Spain that the possessors did not know what to do with it, and the idea of the great Armada may have been conceived as much to find a glorious means of expending the royal wealth and the wealth of the ambitious nobles as to have a method of diverting the attention of the poorer classes, who were very little better in spite of the flood of gold that had come to the Peninsula.

It is a well-known fact that when certain form of stomach trouble affect cows, dogs and other animals, they seek metal oxides, and will swallow nails, rusty iron, and bits of jewelry. This particular cow was so troubled. Her grazing-ground included part of the general locality in which the treasure is known to lie. She was noticed fairly close to the other farm buildlicking the rusty hinges of the pasture gates, ings, and should be protected licking an old plowshare, and some weeks later she gave evidences of being in great pain. ALFALFA NEEDS MUCH WATER POULTRY ON DRY FARM

Works in Splendidly as a Profitable Branch.

Gives Farmer Something to Fail Back On in Case of Failure of Grain Crops - Little Required in Way of Outlay.

(By M. C. HERNER, Manager Poultry Department, Manitoba Agricultural College.)

With the opening of the new era in western agriculture comes the opportunity for the poultry industry to de velop into a distinct branch of diversified or mixed farming. This method of farming seems to be the only hope for future prosperity. We need scarcely refer to the effects of crop failures for a few successive years on the general welfare of certain sections of country in which they occur. To relieve this situation farmers must engage in something more than grain farming, so that in case crops fail they may have something else to fall back on. In diversified farming they could draw on the proceeds of the dairy and poultry products to meet the current expenses

Poultry raising works in splendidly as a profitable branch of dry-farming. Very little is required in the way of outlay, and the returns in proportion thereto are a good many times larger than in any other branch. The poultry houses need not be expensive, just so long as they are of the serviceable kind-the kind that give results. There is much waste in grain and other things on our farms every year that could be converted into poultry and eggs very easily at a handsome profit. Only about four pounds of grain are required to produce one pound of chicken, which is less than is required to produce one pound of beef, mutton or bacon. The labor required to successfully manage a flock of poultry is proportionately small. The market demands are practically unlimited, and the price of dressed poultry and eggs is sufficiently high at all times of the year to make poultry keeping a paying business, even when prices are at their lowest. From these facts we see that poultry can be made a very profitable branch of farming, with but very little in the way of initiative expenditure.

To begin poultry raising on a dryfarm I would prefer to start with a few settings of eggs the first season and hatch chickens from the eggs, and then have my own stock the second season. This way of starting is the When a person wants to cheapest. invest a little heavier a better start can be made by buying 10 to 20 birds and hatching chickens from these the first year. This means, of course, a heavler expense, but then one would be a year ahead in getting returns already the first year.

The poultry house should be located from the north winds, or it may be built as a lean-to against the barn. The idea well cheap This house has a peak or gable roof, is seven feet high from sill to plate, and house is not very expensive and answers the purpose very well for the Experiments Show That It Is Most Important to Have Plenty of Moisture in the Soil.

North Platte government experiments show that it is most important to accumulate water in the soil before starting alfalfa, as the plant will use practically all that falls thereafter.

In the Great Plains region, alfalfa has shown its ability to take more moisture from the soil than any other plant, brome grass coming second and buffalo grass third: oats, wheat, corn and barley coming respectively next, though wheat on one occasion led the corn

The problem with alfalfa under good conditions is not so much to get the stand as to retain it, for if it does not find water lower down it will often live two or three years on stored soil moisture until it has exhausted it and then die out. It is work, however, considering the great improvement it has worked in soil conditions. even under these circumstances, for it has filled the subsoil with vegetable pipe lines which, as they decay, will carry moisture down beyond the attraction of wind and sun and furnish plant food where there was little before, in an available state.

The storage reservoir of the soil at North Platte is from four to six feet for spring grains; and two feet deeper for winter cereals. For alfalfa the depth has not been definitely ascertained, but it certainly takes water to a depth of fifteen feet.

The soil is capable of holding 15 per cent. of moisture, and alfalfa can draw it down to 6.5 per cent. One per cent. to a depth of 15 feet amounts to 2.5 inches of water, so the alfalfa receives 8.5 per cent., or 21 inches of water

These figures show at once the advantage alfalfa has over other crops and at the same time its limitations. in that it can go ahead of the average rainfall for a term of years and destroy itself unless it reaches a subsoil sheet of water or a sub-soil containing an excess of free water for its requirements, which is, fortunately, often the case. When the alfalfa does its own pumping free of charge it will have an intermediate dry ground and yet produce good crops and ceases to draw so heavily on the free soil water above, reducing the moisture content to only 8.5 per cent. instead of 6.5 per cent.

On account of its rapid growth, alfalfa takes a great deal of moisture to transpire and from its dry content whose bulk will be governed by the amount of water in the soil.

By good cultural methods water can be stored in the loam soil to a depth of ten to fifteen feet, and where borings show plenty of moisture at such depth there is great hope of success. but if a dry, impervious bed is met by the root beyond their power to penetrate, they spray out and lose their penetrative power to go deeper.

This points to the fact that successive alfalfa seeding would give much greater hope of success than the first one under unfavorable circumstances, which is indeed true of all plants where roots, have already penetrated the subsoil, a progression of deeper and deeper ra

However that may be, the great Armada is usually considered a magnificent adventure which was meant to crush the power of England at sea and to humble the kingdom to a state of practical vassalage to Spain, her bitter enemy.

The English ships were well-trimmed, meagerly fitted vessels for war-war and nothing else. Spanish ships had, in some cases, silken sails, many splendid canopies on poop decks, gold mounted cannon, and even the lowest estimated accounts say that from seventy to one hundred millions in Spanish gold and silver was the sum total in treasures distributed among eighty great ships.

How Sir Francis Drake and the British admirals and captains fell on the fleet and scattered it, how in battle after battle it was worsted. is a matter of history familiar to every one. The bulk of the Armada, driven by a great storm, was hurried into the North Sea and, vainly endeavoring to circle by the Orkneys and the Shetlands and get back to the Bay of Biscay through the Minches, the North Channel, Irish Sea, and St. George's Channel, was wrecked in strange waters

It is impossible in brief space to go into detail concerning all of these rich sunken wrecks. Each of them that is known has its more or less definite history and from some of them millions of dollars' worth of trappings and treasure were recovered in the years following soon after the gigantic disaster.

One of the Spanish Armada ships, the Florencia, went ashore in the Sound of Mull in 1588 She had a vast treasure aboard, and when she was attacked by a band of Scots her commander blew her up. The Duke of Argyll spent a fortune in the search. His ancestors have been hunting since 1664, and in 1667 an announcement was made public that the old records showed that there was $30,000,000 in money on her, besides the gold and silver plate. None of it has ever en recovered, although the Argyll family have the full information of where the wreck lies. The Cavaller treasure of Marston Moor is another famous cache. For centuries the villagers near the historic field where the Roundheads and Cavaliers contended have been thrown into great excitement by finds of gold-pieces and by the ar-rival of parties of strangers who the villagers imagine have come to look for the treasure.

The story of this trove is that before the battle, owing to the necessity of shifting headquarters of the King's government so often, the army funds in four chests, each of which could be transported en pannier between two large horses, was brought to the Cavaller camp. A sudden descent of the Roundhead cavalry cut off the treasure and its guardian, who held out stubborn-

The Cavaliers retreated, expecting to receive reinforcements and regain possession of the treasreinforcements and regain possession of the treas-ure, but the battle of Marston Moor followed. The ground was torn up with hoofs, fire swept part of the plain, and the marks were gone, so it has remained undisturbed ever since. No, not

The square face of Gibraltar, made so familiar in America by use in advertising, in reality fronts the landward side. Between the Rock and the mainland runs a flat sandy strip that is neither British nor Spanish. Gibraltar has always been a great haunt of smugglers, and the neutral strip has always been their greatest danger-ground.

In 1870 the dangerous Theron band desisted from smuggling long enough to run some cargoes of arms into Spain for the use of Don Carlos and his army. After securing some $450,000 they set out to effect a retirement from Gibraltar, and made their way to Jaen, where a wealthy mer chant was known to have some $600,000, collected in readiness for use in the Carlist cause. Under pretext that they had instructions to deliver a shipload of munitions to him at Malaga, and displaying the documentary evidences of their late deal with Don Carlos, they persuaded the merchant to accompany them on the road to Malaga

When a fitting opportunity came they murdered him, threw his body into a dry ravine, and with their weight of wealth in gold and English notes. set out for Gibraltar. The body was found sooner than they had expected, and they were pursued. Some ten miles from the neutral ground they were overtaken, and a running fight occurred, in which Gasprey, one of the outlaws, was killed in a most spectacular manner.

Four of the outlaws crouched among the rocks and held the pursuers at bay, anxiously awaiting But when the dawn came they Theron's return. found that he had buried the treasure, turned the mules lose, and was making his way back to them when a bullet had stretched him out dead on the sand

Seeing this, the four now tried to retreat to ward the Rock, one after the other, but they were shot down.

When it was found that there had been over a million dollars in booty with the party, a carefu search was begun, but the drifting sand had obliterated the necessary traces and it has never been recovered.

wind is constantly carrying away the sand on this zone, and the Gitani and others who fre quent it keep a sharp eye out for the rusted cor-ner of a steel boz. Some day the money will be found; in fact, search with a magnetic instru-ment could disclose it today if some one on the spot only thought of such a device.

Supposing the dry-farm has already a well established poultry department, then the work should be directed toward increasing the returns by weeding out the poor layers, killing all the hens over two years old and increasing the average egg production per hen per year by carefully selecting the best layers and breeding only from them. In this way the poultry on the farm will give 25 per cent. larger returns in the course of a few years, and at the same time it will become an important factor in bringing diversifled farming to the front.

Cultivate Growing Crop.

Under semi-arid conditions, cultivation is of prime importance in preventing the loss of moisture, as has already been explained. In addition, cultivation is of great value in killing weeds, and in getting air into the The oxygen of the air is necessofl. sary for the proper growth of the roots, and for the support of certain bacteria which work upon nitrogen for the use of the plant. It used to be a saying that "cultivation is manure." This statement today will hardly pass muster, but by conserving soil moisture and by liberating plant food, the cultivation of the crop accounts for a wonderful increase in plant growth.

Better Than a Good Rain.

You think there is no hope of their searching for me here?"

Here were two uplifted from the earth upon a sky-piercing mountain. They would have had more range of action and more liberty of motion if they had been upon a derelict in the ocean. And she realized at the same time that in all those stories the two cast aways always loved each other. Would it be so with them? Was it so? "But do you know him?" queried the girl in great surprise.

'I did once," said the man, flushing darkly at his admission. "I haven't seen him for five years."

So that was the measure of his isolation, thought the woman, keen for the slightest evidence as to her companion's history, of which, by the way, he meant to tell her nothing.

"Well?" she asked, breaking the pause

"Kirkby would certainly see the cloud burst coming and he would take the people with him in the camp up on the hogback near it. It is far above the flood line; they would be quite safe there.'

"And did you look for them there?" I did. The trail had been washed out, but I scrambled up and found undisputed evidence that my surmise was correct. I haven't a doubt that all who were in the camp were saved.'

"Thank God for that," said the girl, greatly relieved and comforted by his reassuring words. "And Robert Maltland and the rest on the mountain, what do you think of them?'

"I am sure that they must have escaped, too. I don't think any of them have suffered more than a thorough drenching in the downpour and that they are all safe and perhaps on their way to the settlements now."

"But they wouldn't go back without searching for me, would they?" cried the girl.

"Certainly not. I suppose they are searching for you now."

'Well then-

"Wait," said the man. "You started down the canon, you told everybody you were going that way. They naturally searched in that direction. they hadn't the faintest idea that you were going up the river. "No," admitted Enid, "that is true.

I did not tell anyone. I didn't dream of going up the canon when I started out in the morning, it was the result of a sudden impulse." "God bless that-" burst out the man, and then he checked himself, flushing again darkly.

What had he been about to say? The question flashed across his own mind and into the woman's mind at the same time when she heard the incompleted sentence; but she, too, checked the question that rose to her Hps.

"This is the way I figure it," continued the man hurriedly to cover up his confusion. "They fancy themelves alone in these mountains, which, save for me, they are; they believe you to have gone down the canthe trail until the ultimate moment," he added. "I do believe it;" she extended her hand to him. "You have been very good to me, I trust you absolutely.

And for the second time he took that graceful, dainty, aristocratic hand in his own larger, stronger, firmer grasp. His face flushed again; under other circumstances and in other days perhaps he might have kissed that hand. As it was he only held it for a moment and then gently released it.

"And you think they are searching for me?" she asked.

"I know it. I am sure of what myself would do for one I love-I

It cannot be denied that her thoughts were terribly and overwhelmingly dismayed, and yet that despair was not without a certain relief. No man had ever so interested her as this one. What was the mystery of his life, why was he there, what had he meant when he had blessed the idle impulse that had sent her into his arms?

Her heart throbbed again. She lift ed her face from her hands and dried her tears, a warm glow stole over her and once again not altogether from the fire. Who and what was this man? Who was that woman whose picture he had taken from her? Well, she would have time to find out. And meantime the world outside could think and do what it pleased. She sat staring into the fire light, seeing pictures there, dreaming dreams. She was as lovely as an angel to the man when he came back into the room.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Woman's Heart,

That upper earth on which they lived was covered with a thick blanket of snow. The lakes and pools were frozen from shore to shore. The mountain brooks, if they flowed at all, ran under thick arches of ice. The deepest canons were well nigh impassible from huge drifts that sometimes almost rose level with the tops of the walls. In every sheltered spot great banks of white were massed. The spreading branches of the tall pine trees in the valleys drooped under heavy burdens of snow. Only here and there sharp gaunt peaks swept clean by the fierce winter winds and thrust themselves upwar in icy air, naked and bare. The cold was polar in its bitter intensity.

All bids for the construction of permanent roads in Sherman district have been rejected by the Grayson County Commissioners' Court, and the county will build the roads. When the bids were opened last Friday it was found that none of them was complete as to the total cost, and when the calculations for labor and hauling had been figured in by the engineers it was

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanitoriums for the Tuberculosis.

According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island state sanitorium, the earnings of the expatients of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $266.

000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.

The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 ex-patients were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $2 to $31 per week, the total earnings the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of faradvanced cases would be still better Investments "

Out of a total of 46,450 hospital days treatment given, 39,147, or 84 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of 188 free cases investigated, 56 had no families and no income on admission to the sanitorium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were 5.46. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

Fred Poyner, a Chicago dentist, was recently at a banquet given by the Dental association. He said: "On one side is the right of things and on the other is wrong; sometimes the difference between the two is slight. As the following story shows: A gypsy upon release from jail met a friend. What were you in for?' asked the friend.

"'I found a horse,' the gypsy replied. "'Found a horse? Nonsense! They

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O .- "My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soan and .Ointment and sent for a sample.

Misinterpreted. William Shaw, the secretary of the is much interested in her auntie's Christian Endeavor work. The little girl was writing a letter to her brother at Yale one day, and in the midst of the epistle she looked up and said: 'Auntie, how do you spell devil?'

"'Devil!' cried her aunt, with a shocked smile. 'Why, child, don't you know you mustn't use such a word as devil?'

"But, auntie,' protested the little girl, "I want to tell brother about your Christian and devil meetings!"

Save the Babies. NFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Another gigantic irrigation enterprise has been put on foot here. It carried to completion as proposed, it will bring under irrigation from 50,-600 to 100,000 acres in Bexar, Kendall, and Comal counties. Filings have been placed on record for the convolle edged with scalloping struction of two dams, one across the Cibolo Creek and one across the dry Comal river. The dam across the Cibolo will be located three miles north of Bracken and fifteen miles northwest of San Antonio. The dam will be of reinforced concrete and 100 feet high. addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy." Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says : I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprie tary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

If local capital builds the road, there will be no increase in the State's wealth, as we will then have simply transferred money from some other line of industry to railroading, but if the money for construction is secured from outside the State, then we have increased our wealth, as the investment is in fixed improvements and the property will always remain a part of the State, regardless of the residence of the owner.
