His Great Hour.

Saturday night at eight o'clock. So the fiat had gone forth, with no oncession to be made on account of weather.

As Oswald came from his supper and took a look at the heavens from the small front porch, he was deeply troubled that Orlando had remained so obstinate on this point. For there were ominous clouds rolling up from the east, and the storms in this region of high mountains and abrupt valleys were not light, nor without danger even to those with feet well-planted ipon mother earth.

If the tempest should come up before eight!

Considerable excitement prevailed in the Cove district of Orange while, the water stood over most of that part as a result of water boiling up at place from what is supposed to be an unusual gas pressure. The various oil experts in this section were notified of the strange conduct of the water over the supposed gas holes and further investigation will be made.

Through an aperature formed by sawing out a single prison bar and through which only a small man could crawl, 20 white convicts escaped early Sunday' morning from Imperial state farm. That afternoon four of the men had been retaken, one of the four of the men had been retaken, one of having voluntarily returned to the camp and surrendered. One was arrested by police officers in Houston and the other two by posses combing the country in the vicinity of the camp. Three more were captured Monday.

Old People Need A Bowel Stimulant

The Ideal One Is a Mild Laxative-Tonic That Will Keep the Bowels Gently Active.

Healthy old age is so absolutely dependent upon the condition of the bowels that great care should be taken to see that they act regularly. The fact is that as age advances the stomach muscles become weak and inactive and the liver does not store up the juices that are necessary to prompt digestion. Some help can be obtained by eating easily digested foods and by plenty of exercise, but this latter is irksome to most elderly people. One thing is certain, that a state of constipation should always be avoided, as it is dangerous to life and health. Municipal engineers in England have recently complained against the wasteful practice of tearing up pavements just after they are laid in order to repair or extend water or gas mains and electric conduits. The same prictice obtains generally in the United States, but a number of cities have adopted stringent rules which are working satisfactorily. In New York city, previous to the laying of a new pavement, the city departments and utility companies which have subsurface structures are notified and ordered to make such repairs, renewals and extensions as will care adequately for their service for several years to come. Thereafter permits for street opening are not granted for periods varying from one to three years, depending upon the necessity of the case and the condition of the pavement. The standard period is three years in case a great neces- til spring. sity is not shown and the pavement is in good condition.

This condition results from the removal of condition results from the removal of the humus from the land in conse-quence of continued cropping with grain from year to year ! Because of this condition the crops in many instances fail because of the removal of the covering through the force of the wind. Of course the first aim should be on the part of those who work such lands to destore the humus, says the Denver Field and Farm. This is brought about by sowing grass or the soil. But in practice the farmer cannot lay down all the blowing soil that he may have to solution that he may have in a single year. He should manage to get the part not under control into grass.

Certain principles apply to the handling of these blowing lands. First, they should not be summer-fallowed in the ordinary way. To summer-fallow them, the more that they are worked the more they will blow. They may be managed by plowing as late as possible but before the maturing of any weed seeds. Let grain be sown on such land at once, preferably a mixture of grains to be pastured. The soil will not blow thus managed. The roots of the grain plants remain un-

When grain is drilled in amid those roots the following spring the soil will not blow. Another plan is to drill in eye of an inspector and is done with a peck of milo maize or kafir. The harrow may still be used to keep the field clean.

There may be some objections to handling the land thus, but they will not outweigh the advantages that come from disking rather than plowing. When winter grains are sown cost of the pavement disturbed. #### Religion and Etymology.

Mr. Crawford declares that the African mind is fitted to grasp the principles of Christianity with remarkable quickness, strength and accuracy. 'Can they appreciate the doctrine of the Trinity?" I asked. He smiled. Everything in their thought and observation exists in threes. They are Hegelians, and do not know it. Thesis, antithesis, synthesis-they find it everywhere. Hegel did not know he was a Trinitarian. The African takes to the doctrine as to something he has always known."

"The Atonement?" "Their language and their thought are full of it. They have many proverbs like this: 'No blood, no blosom.' " Then he made one of his amazing plunges into etymology. "You see, even in English, they are all the same word: 'Blood, bloom, blossom.' "

Not only can the African grasp Christianity, but they express it most forcefully and beautifully. For instance this, from the lips of one of our young converts recently: "God allowed sin to unmask itself in the murder of his Son."-Christian Herald.

Twelfth Century Football.

In the twelfth century football was a game for the streets. The chronicler of that period tells how after dinner the city youths "addressed then selves to football," and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices, of particular trades would each have their peculiar ball. There were spectators, too, in those daysenthusiastic spectators. Fathers would come to watch their sons and "become as youthful as the youngest, their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much ability.'

In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde Park. In 1654, then, "there was a hurling of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen of one side and fifty on the other: one party played in red caps, the other in white." And-here the historical value of the contest-Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great agility of body" displayed.

For Suppresion of Bandstands.

France runs England pretty close in the matter of leagues and associations. The latest French institution of the kind is the "League for the Suppression of Bandstands," which has just been established. The leaguers are up in arms against the ugliness of the bandstands in France. but in view of the love of the French local authorities for these edifices, they have their work cut out for them -London Globe

Reaping of Prosperity.

Sclomon, the wise proverb-maker, said: "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth and there is that withholdeth more than is meet and it tendeth to poverty." 'The sowing of grain is an illustration of the thought the more they are cut the more they in this text. By sowing it increase: sprout. by withholding the seed, failure to scatter it in the soil, increase is made impossible, not because of the will of the law of sowing and reaping, which is universally recognized. "He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly: he that soweth bountifully shall also reap bountifully."-Unity.

Benefits of Disking.

I once disked part of a field early in the spring and left the rest of the field untouched until the field was plowed early in May, says a writer in an exchange. The season was dry, with scarcely any rainfall. When the plowing was done the disked ground was in excellent condition while the other part of the field awas so hard the day. and dry that it was almost impossible

Breeding Immature Ewes.

A good many sheep owners practice the plan of breeding ewe lambs, which is a poor practice from any standpoint. These immature ewes cannot be reasonably expected to produce strong, vigorous lambs and sup ply animals that will make a good growth and develop into profitable feeders, and at the same time reach a desirable degree of development and maturity themselves.

Food Supply Lacking.

If an orchard is on the decline it is a pretty sure indication that the available food supply in the soil is being exhausted. Fertilizers and cultivation are needed.

Paving the Feed Lot. It is far more profitable to pave the feed lot than to sacrifice the cattle in a half-fed condition.
