Not long since I was making a drive through a North Texas county. The contour of the county was rolling, with strips of woodland alternating the cultivated fields. On making a turn in the road I came upon a recently built community school house. It was painted white with green blinds and set in a grove of native oaks. There was an abundance, prosperity and progress about the very building. It seemed to say: "I am the repre sentative of this community: look on me and you, will know the kind of men who built me and the manner of children who will come to me to be taught". That building did typify the community as I found afterwards. The parents of the school were honest law-abiding Americans of more than average thrift and intelligence. They had voted good work in their own particular Investigators have practically ward to a happy school year.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The Prince Comes.

The glittering morning sunlight of late March flooded the eastern diningroom of Roanoke house. A fire blazed on the hearth; hot dishes steamed on the table; the girl's face, the crackling fire, the polished silver reflected from polished mahogany: the soft shod, solicitous service of a whiteaproned negro; all this made the room fragrant with homeliness in spite of the fact that one could see one's breath in the air. But they were used to it-the hardy Virginians of those days of open fires and no furnaces, of many luxuries and few comforts, and in happy ignorance of world progress, they suffered cheerfully and were strong.

The colonel blustered a bit, but the lessons were arranged as Francois wished, twice a week throughout the winter he rode over from Carnifax to give them. And little by little he came to know the small mistress of the manor as few had known her. People thought Lucy Hampton too serious and staid for a young girl; no one realized that, her mother being dead and her father such as he was, the clear-head ed little person had begun at ten or twelve years old to know that she must make her own decisions, and many of her father's also. At fourteen she had taken the keys and the responsibilities of the house, and now at sixteen, she was in reality the head of the whole great plantation. The colonel, who would have been most indignant to be told so, leaned on her in every detail, and it was she who years before. The carved white woodplanned and decided and often execut-

Colds are caught in many ways: Illy ventilated rooms; rooms that have direct draughts; crowded rooms; damp houses; stuffy school rooms; offices illy heated.

A dose of Peruna at the right time, at the first symptom of cold, before the bones begin to ache, before the sore throat manifests itself, or the cough, or the discharge from the nose, just a dose or two of Peruna before these symptoms begin is generally sufficient. BOSTON TO BE EMULATED New York Sun Thinks That City Might Well Follow the Example of Her Sister. Here in New York the growth of cities has been so swift and the problems of building them have been so new that the buildings were scraping the skies along every thoroughfare that commanded high rentals before the sacrifices that a congestion of skyscrapers entailed upon the public became apparent, says the New York Sun.

Reforming New York in any essential particular is too colossal for the city planning committee to tackle over night. Instead the mirror is held up to us so that we can see many of our most glaring faults.

The nearest example that we ought to study is Boston, and the plan of Boston's new zone system are the first thing the visitor sees. There, following the system of some German cities, they have enacted laws forbidding the erection of buildings taller than 125 feet in a large area extending from the river docks to the commons. In this area there are only two buildings violating the law, the Ames building, built before the law went into force, and the new United States Customs building, which, in spite of all protests, is 400 feet tall.

Copley square, on which Trinity church and the Library front, is protected by a height limit, and so is Commonwealth avenue. A building on Copley square, the Westminster chambers, exceeded the legal height and was cut down to the lawful limits, the city paying damages. Boston also proudly exhibits plans of her great 1.200-foot docks, her great dry dock, and the famous fish dock.

SEAT LITTLE GOOD TO HIM Smart Youth Had It But He Did Not Proceed Far Toward His Destination.

An important-looking and haughtily acting young man was wandering up and down on the platform of the railroad station of a small western city. He was intent on finding an empty seat in the express, which was almost due to start. Vainly did he search each car. Suddenly he assumed an official air and, walking up to the last car, he cried out:

"All change here. This car will be left here."

The occupants of the crowded car uttered exclamations which proved their dissatisfaction, but hurried out and packed themselves in other coaches. The face of the young man assumed a bland and childlike expression as he settled himself very comfortably in an empty seat.

Shortly after, the station agent put his head in at the door and said:

"I suppose you're the smart boob who told the folks this car wasn't go-ing, aren't you?"

"Yes," replied the bright youth, with a grin.

"Well," responded the station agent, "you were right. It isn't. The brakeman heard you calling out about it. and so he uncoupled it. He thought you were an official."-Lippincott's Magazine are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually pubishing in the newspapers-hundreds of them--are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.-"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon to bed, but spent my time on a couch of in a steeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OKLA .- "I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medi-cine and I have recommended it to others."-Mrs. MARY ANN HAD-DOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others-why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for fe-male ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E.PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ploughs, four per cent. being in wheat. Less than five years ago the wheat crop was only 71,000,000 bushels. It is a simple calculation to estimate that if four per cent. of the available cultivatable area produces something over 200,000,000 bushels, what will 44 per cent. produce? And then look at the immigration that is coming into the country. In 1901 it was 49,149. 17,000 being from the United States; in 1906 it was 189,064, of which 57,000 were Americans, and in 1913 it was about 400,000, of which about 140,000 were Americans. But why have they gone to Canada? The American farmer is a man of shrewd business instincts, just like his Canadian brother, and when he finds that he can sell his own farm at from $100 to $200 per acre and move into Canada and homestead and pre-empt half a section for himself, and similarly for all his sons who are adult and of age upon lands as rich and fertile as those he left, and producing indeed several bushels to the acre in excess of anything he has ever known, it will take more than an ordinary effort to prevent him from making the change. 'And then, too, there is the American capital following the capital of brawn, muscle and sinew, following it so as to keep in touch with the industrious farmer with which it has had dealings for years back. This capital and the capital of farming experience is no small matter in the building up of a

FAILURES IN DRY FARMING

Under the Non-Irrigated System There Will Be Years When Best Methods Are Not Successful.

Failures occur in the best humid or irrigated country. Under non-irrigated farming there will be years when the best methods, on the best soils, will not be entirely successful. Probably as many fail, because of too little capital, as from any other source. Too little capital prevents work being done as it should be, when it should be. It prevents saving the big crop against the year of small crop. The settler must have domestic wa ter. His first consideration is therepected, and the hot beds are ample to having granted more than double the fore a good well. If he cannot obtain a good well, or if usable water for stock and household cannot be obtained within reasonable hauling distance, failure is certain, no matter how favorable the soil.

However, not every person is adapted to this class of farming. Success depends as much on the adaptability of the man and his family to the environment as to any other factor. Health and endurance are absolutely necessary. They must be able to live alone and find their own amusement, for the most part the settlements are far apart. The man who must be amused, who cannot endure his own company for long periods, has failed before his time. Misfit and incompetence will find anywhere under the most favorable conditions; they cannot exist under the regular conditions that sometimes prevail in the best to win success.

System of Cultivation. Cultivation by a system adapted to tion of 2,900 feet of concrete walks the conservation of moisture ought to be practiced everywhere, in every by property owners, and the work hoed crop, unless one has irrigated land. Good cultivation is always a benefit, whether the rainfall is too great or too small. So the best cultivation that can be given economically should be the practice with all hoed crops.

Not Much Water Needed.

The experience of the "dry land" farmers of the west in conserving moisture has proved that much less moisture is really needed in making crops than is generally believed in the humid portions of the country. But we shall certainly have to learn the benefits of thorough cultivation to get the best results.

STRIKES IN ODD WAYS VAGARIES OF CYCLONE ARE IN-COMPREHENSIBLE. Reports of Their Action Read Like the Work of Imaginative Writers of Fiction, Though They Carry Only Actual Truth. Cyclones of the sort that recently devastated the colliery valleys of South Wales are very rare in this country, says Pearson's Weekly. This particular storm, the fiercest ever known in Britain, carried a man nearly a quarter of a mile through the air before dashing him down to death. It threw tombstones about, hurled shop goods into the street and took the roofs off hundreds of houses. Cyclones as a rule occur only in hot

the and the second second the second second second second and go want west spran and make me are a function of the set of the > countries. Their fierceness is due to a sort of a hole in the atmosphere. The air all around rushes in with tremendous force to fill up this hole. So a cyclone is really a sort of a cartwheel of winds, fierce gales blowing along each spoke toward the hub, which is called the "eye" of the cyclone

In a cyclone the "cartwheel" is much smaller than in an ordinary storm, and the winds are correspondingly fiercer. There are authentic instances of cyclones driving flying nails into trees and planks right up to the head. Straws, too, have been driven half through stout doors.

A very curious thing about cyclones is that a house caught in the eye of one has its doors and windows burst outward, not in. This was noticed in Wales, and accounts for the contents of shops being hurled into the street. The reason is that the eye of a tornado being empty of air, the pressure of air within a closed house against the empty space outside makes the house burst outward as if it contained a charge of dynamite. Air everywhere has a pressure of fourteen pounds to the square inch.

It is this suction that makes a cyclone draw corks from any empty bottles it finds in its path.

Any one caught in a cyclone often finds that dust or mud is driven into his clothes under such pressure that repeated washings refuse to remove it. The tremendous lifting power at the eve of a cyclone is shown not only by its hurling men and even sheds into the air, but by the curious fact that it usually leaves every well in its path quite dry. It is this upward suction that accounts for waterspouts at sea. In countries where cyclones are common every house has a "cyclone cellar" close at hand for use when a cyclone is on its way.

The only good point about a cyclone as compared with an ordinary storm is that the track along which it travels is always a very narrow one. Its oath is seldom more than 200 or 300 vards broad. On each side of the track where a cyclone is spreading death and destruction the weather is often quite average.

SMALLER THAN THE ATOM

Men of Science Now Talk of the lon as the Least Quantity That Can Be Imagined.

For a long time the atom was spoken of as being the smallest thing in the world, so small indeed that it could not be seen with the most powerful magnifying glass. A molecule is the smallest part of any material. It is supposed to be made up of atoms of various elements. Thus a molecule of water is made up of one atom of oxygen and two atoms of hydrogen. Now we hear that the atom may be broken up into fragments called ions. The ion is both the smallest quantity of matter and the smallest quantity of electricity capable of existing in a free state. It is so small that if enough electricity to generate the hydrogen in a toy balloon were to be obtained by counting out the ions, 100 to the minute, the task would occupy 100,000,000 persons 4,000,000 years.

And yet these ions have been isolat ed and measured in the laboratory of Prof. R. A. Milliken of the University of Chicago. Prof. Milliken has modified and improved upon the methods of previous experiments. Whereas those used for their experiments a fog of tiny water particles. whose average size and weight could be calculated, as well as the average electric charge on each. Milliken isolates and observes a droplet of oil, which he controls and experiments upon as easily as one might measure and test a block of steel. This droplet serves as a trap for flying ions, the accession of which to the drop is at once detected by a sudden change in its behavior.

Women in the Trades.

Has any one ever seen a woman plumber? There are not many persons who could reply in the affirmative, but according to the report of the census of England and Wales relating to occupations and industries, there are 86 women who ply the calling of plumber. Of these 77 are wid ows. The same blue book, which has just been issued, shows that women have succeeded in establishing them selves in a number of industries where their presence is unexpected. There are 70 women paperhangers and whitewashers, four bricklayers, all of them women, but only one woman coachman. Three women appear under the heading of "clergymen, priests and ministers," and four are coal heavers. There are 347 car men and wagoners and 231 women blacksmiths and "strikers." Only one woman occupies herself with making patent fuel, only three women are shipwrights, five women are "tramway car makers," and finally, England and Wates can boast of 56 women carpenters and joiners and 14 women masons.

Electrifying Terminals.

An investigating committee, financed out griping. by the railroads themselves, is said to have drawn up a report in favor of electrifying all passenger lines within the city of Chicago, including those devoted to suburban service. Such a report should end all controversy on this long-discussed matter, and usher in the era of action. The city council should provide for prompt electrificamay be passed, and the executive branch of city government must see to it that such provision is enforced. This will make a beginning-and only a beginning—in the work of clearing smoke and soot out of Chicago's atmosphere. Railroads are not the only offenders in this regard, though of necessity they are the most conspicuous ones .- Chicago Journal.
