A Good Thing

The experiment of working convicts on public roads in Illinois has proven more than a success, and its scope may be The widened in the future. work was voluntary on the part of the prisoners.

It is a policy which might be followed to advantage in many other states, and for two very obvious reasons.

1st. When convicts are the articles they manufacture are sold to the public, and therefore that much work is removed from the ranks of honest labor. 2nd. When convicts a re worked on public roads their labor is of benefit to every citizen property, all good ages. of a community without at the same time being a detriment to some honest man who is in need of bread for himself and family.

There is every reason why convicts should be worked on highways of this country.

America is notorious for having the worst roads of any civilized country on earth, and yet if every convict was put to work in road improvement it would be only a question of time when the highways of this country would be the best in the world.

TAPPING THE SOURCE OF CHEAP MONEY

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the third of a series of Articles on AGRICUL-TURAL PROBLEMS prepared by Judgs S. A. Lindsey, chairman of the Texas Farm Life Commission.

There are land loan and trust companies throughout this nation They operate in this way: they will take up land notes drawing 8, 9 and 10 per cent and sell them in the East at a rate which will net the investors 5 and 6 per cent note. This is legitimate. I only mention it to prove that our land securities can and do find cheaper money than the local market's offer.

The bill now before Congress proposes to authorize the organiation of Land Mortgage Banks, with Federal supervision same as National Banks. These Land Mortgage Banks will make loans on land notes where the title is good. to the extent of half the appraised value of the land. The mortgage bank will see that the title is good and the value is there, just as banks usually do. They will file these notes with Uncle Sam who will authorize the bank to issue its own bonds or promises to pay in such denominations as are easiest sold, not to exceed in the aggregate the sum of the mortgages and notes held. On these Uncle Sam, who is known as a square man all over issuing it is under his supervission, and that no fake methods have been used. The capital of the bank will be involved and will insure great care on the part of the bank taking the land note and mortgages, and Uncle Sam's supervision will give the investors

So if the bank pays 5 per cent on its John Horvath vs Walter Kuhn, bonds the borrower will pay the bank 6 per cent which is from 1 to 3 per cent less than other loan companies now make. You say no one would organize one of Uncle Sam's banks when he is allowed to make but 1 per cent on loans. But Uncle Sam is going to encourage his land banks. lends his Postal Savings funds to banks at 2 per cent, and that money is used in commerce. "I c'n get in all right, all right," said the messenger boy, "I got a tellygram for de loidy."

"Go to the rear!" exclaimed the doorman, with some energy.

While Miss Wrandall waited in Sara's reception hall on the tenth floor, the messenger, having traversed a more devious route, arrived with his message.

Watson took the envelope and told him to wait. Five minutes passed. Miss Wrandall grew very uncomfortable under the persistent though complimentary gaze of the street urchin. He stared at her, wide-eyed and admiring, his tribute to the glorious. She stared back occasionally, narrow-eyed here were the two men, leaning forand reproving, her tribute to the grotesque.

"Will you please step into the draw ing-room, Miss Wrandall," said Watson, returning. He led her across the small foyer and threw open a door. She passed into the room beyond.

Then he turned to the boy who stood beside the hall seat, making change for a quarter as he approached. 'Here," he said, handing him the receipt book and a dime, "that's for you." He dropped the quarter into his own pocket, where it mingled with coins that were strangers to it up to that instant, and imperiously closed the door behind the boy who failed to say "thank you." An fronic gleam appeared in the corner of Vivian's eye. "Oh," she said, and waited. Hetty smiled uncertainly. Like a flash she jumped at an obvious conclusion. and almost caught her breath. This girl loved Booth and was losing him! Vivian exulted for a moment and then. with an impulse she could not quite catalogue, laid her hand on the other's slim fingers, and murmured somewhat hazily: "Never mind, never mind!"

"Oh, you must wait," cried Hetty not at all in touch with the other's mood. "Sara expects to see you. The men will be out in a few minutes."

"I think I will run in tomorroy morning," said Vivian hastily. She arose almost immediately and again extended her hand. "So glad to see you back again, Miss Castleton. Come and see me. Give my love to Sara."

She took her departure in some haste, and in her heart she was rejoicing that she had not succeeded in making a fool of herself by confessing to Sara that she had said unkind things about her to Brandon Booth.

Hetty resumed her seat in the broad French window and stared out over the barren treetops in the park. A the day.

In Sara's boudoir, the doors of which were carefully closed, three persons were in close, even repressed confer ence. The young mistress of the house sat propped up in a luxurious chaiselounge, wan but intense. Confronting ward in their chairs. Mr. Carroll held in his hand a number of papers, prominent among them being three or four telegrams. Booth's face was radiant despite the serious matter that occupied his mind. He had reached town early in the morning in response to a telephone message from Carroll announcing the sudden, unannounced appearance of Hetty Castleton at his offices on the previous afternoon. The girl's arrival had been most unexpected. She walked in on Mr. Carroll, accompanied by her maid, who had a distinctly sheepish look in her eyes and seemed eager to explain something but could not find the opportunity.

With some firmness, Miss Castleton had asked Mr. Carroll to explain why the woman had been set to spy upon her every moment, a demand the worgood and sufficient reason that he wasn't very clear about it himself. Then Hetty broke down and cried. confessing that she was eager to go to Mrs. Wrandall, at the same time sobbing out something about a symbolic dicky-bird, much to Mr. Carroll's won-

The meeting between Sara and Hetty was affecting. . . . Almost immediately the former began to show the most singular signs of improvement. She laughed and cried and joyously announced to the protesting nurse that she was feeling quite well again! And, in truth, she got up from the couch on which she reclined and insisted on being dressed for dinner. In another room the amazed nurse was frantically appealing to Mr. Carroll to let her send for the doctor, only to be confounded by his urbane announcement that Mrs. Wrandall was as "right as a string" and, please God, she wouldn't need the services of doctor or nurse again for years to come. Then he asked the nurse if she had ever heard of a disease called "nostalgia." She said she had heard of "home

"Not at all," he cried hastily, "not at all. I-"

"That's all tommy-rot, Sara," cried Booth earnestly. "We just couldn't have anything to fear from you."

TREES AND YET MORE TREES Matter of Duty for Every Man Who Is Able, to Plant One in His

say that he was not right? There is nothing more beautiful, more dignified, more valuable in the broadest sense of the word than a fine old tree. There are few things more lasting. The splendid cathedrals of the thirteenth century are kept in condition only by constant and loving repairs, but many an oak that marked the landscape when the corner stone of Amiens was laid is still alive. New England settlers moved elms from the woods to their dooryards and roadsides almost three centuries ago-and the same trees are there today. The few "cedars of Lebanon" which still mark the site of forests from which the ships of Tarshish were built may number in their thinging ranks individuals which saw the march of Godfrey de Bouillon, and the countermarch of Saladin.

Plant trees. Do not wait for the government to reforest some distant mountains. Reforest as much of your own holdings as you may. You have no better chance of satisfaction now and grateful remembrance later than may be found in planting trees.

FOR A WOODLAND PARADISE

Chicagoans Determined That Their City Shall Be Abundantly Supplied With Trees.

In view of the advance which city beautification has made during the last few years, especially in Chicago, Arbor day has a definite significance. Tree planting exercises have been held in all parts of the city, about two relief. We have learned since hundred and fifty thousand white pine seedlings being provided for store which, when translated, yards, vacant lots and roadways. The mortality rate among seedlings, however, is almost as great as it is among slum babies. If a reasonable fraction of these young trees grow to maturity Chicago will be in time a woodland paradise. An authority on arboriculture as applied to cities says the ratio should be one living shade tree to every five inhabitants. In the absence of a tree

MADE HIS FUNERAL A PARTY

Bartender, a Suicide, Pays for Feast for the Mourners Around His Ashes.

William S. Casey, a bartender widely known in the California cattle country, had a funeral which he paid for himself. Casey died by his own hand. His health shattered, he told his friends that he did not want to live if he could not be happy. He had $1,000 in a bank at Salinas, and arranged that the sum be used for his funeral.

"My passing out is not a signal for sorrow," Casey had said. "I want the friends that attend my funeral to enjoy themselves just as if I were among them in reality, as I will be in

A special car brought Casey's body from Salinas to San Francisco, where it was cremated. With the ashes in an urn, a score of Casey's friends, following directions left by the decedent, proceeded to a hotel whose proprietor was an old friend of Casey's.

Before the party sat down to dinner the urn was taken into the barroom and placed behind the bar. Then every one ordered his favorite drink, and this toast was drunk:

School Playgrounds.

How large is your school playground? Henry S. Curtis, in a bulletin just issued by the United States bureau of education, declares that every city school building should have at least one full block of ground, whether the block is the usual city block or two or three acres, or one of ten acres, as in Salt Lake City, Utah.

AWOKE THE HUNTER INSTINCT

Alert Traveler Evidently Imagined Providence Had Thrown "Game" Within His Reach.

Gilbert Parker, the English author, tells of an English gentleman, who recently came to this country to visit some friends in California. "In common with most travelers he supposed game was plentiful everywhere in that state, so he carried with him the necessary guns and ammunition.

"As his train neared San Bernardino-just before making the mountain climb-there was a delay. Several hours passed, and still the train remained stationary; and our traveler friend grew restive, and sought the porter of the Pullman car to ascertain the cause of thet delay.

"It seems that in mounting the grade a freight train had broken apart, the rear portion having descended the grade and blocked the track. The porter informed him of the accident to the freight train, and said, 'There is a caboose on the track.'

"Immediately the 'hunter' instinct he procured his gun and started for much. the door saying:

ECZEMA ON HANDS AND ARMS

1321 Douglas St., Omaha, Neb .- "My trouble began from a bad form of eczema all over my hands, neck and arms. I could get no sleep for the ftching and burning. Marriage Causes False Fire Alarm. Seven minutes of blasts from the whistle of the Passaic Metalware company, in honor of the marriage of the daughter of the superintendent, recently turned out five volunteer fire departments. The fog made the whistle audible in Rutherford, Nutley, Belleville, Garfield and Clifton and the firemen rushed to headquarters at the alarm.

It took half an hour to determine where the whistling came from. The wedding which caused the commotion united Miss Sallie Karp, 217 Brook avenue, Passaic, to Michael F. Bernan.-New York Mail.

Ingenious Smuggling Device. A museum of criminology has been

SUMMER WORKING NOTES

July is the time to propagate rubber plants. Pack a handful or two of moss around the stem and keep it well soaked. In a short time roots will appear. Saw a flower pot in half and bind the plants or rooting portion of the stem. Fill with a very light soil with plenty of sand and keep watered thoroughly. During the winter the roots will take good hold and in the spring the stem may be cut level with the bottom of the pot.

The latter part of this month the out-door carnations may be potted up. Cuttings from the geranium may be made the latter part of July and all through August in most climates.

Watch the tender greenhouse plants that are in the open and take them up before the last days of summer have passed. Have the pots ready for the bulbs which must be taken up soon. About the middle of July is a good time to sow mignonette for the window garden. Sow in pots or boxes was awakened; hastening to his berth, and water frequently, but not too

Insects will now begin to attack the scarlet runner and other flowers of that nature and they must be watched carefully. The dahlias, gladioli and other rank growing plants are likely to be blown down by the wind and should be staked. Unless the chrysanthemums are shaded during the hot months of July and August, they will be injured by the sun Drench the ground around the tea roses but do not spray the bushes. Roses of all kinds should be thoroughly manured with well-rotted cow manure and mulched with lawn cuttings and leaves. Liquid manure should be applied only when the ground is moist enough to absorb it. It is fatal to some plants to fertilize them with rich manures when the ground is very dry. Never allow roses to remain on the bush when the petals begin to fall. All plants that are intended for winter bloomers should have the buds pinched off now.

Pick the pansies and nasturtiums every day if you want to have plenty

When the lilacs have finished blooming, all the seed clusters should be develop on the lilac it generally has few flowers except every other year.

The best way to kill weeds now is to pull them up by hand.

The red bug and other enemies of the rose, if not killed off last month the bumps in it were pressed out." should be effectually removed now. An excellent spray for rose bushes is made of one-half pound of laundry soap melted in hot water to which is added one cupful of kerosene. When this comes to a boil, use about one part to 15 parts of water.

Scrape up road dust and apply about the roots of your plants during the hot weather and keep the moisture in the soil. Lawn clippings make an excellent mulch for the larger plants and shrubs.

Save the grass clippings from the lawn to serve as a mulch for the bed of tea roses. These plants like to have the soil about their roots cool and moist. Spread the grass over the bed to a depth of two or three inches. When it withers, work it into the soil to act as a fertilizer as it decays and apply fresh clippings.

In a dry season don't mow the lawn as often as in the showery one. Regulate the frequency of your mowing by the appearance of the grass. Aim to keep it looking green and velvety.

White House Rose Garden.

The rose garden that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had planted at the White House is said to be quite equal to others that she planned at Princeton and other places where she has lived. She and her daughters have spent much time, not only in superintending the work of the rose garden, but in actually working in it.

"But-but, are you in your-your underduds! "Tell me something I don't know. Pass the butter, please," said Mr.

She passed the butter, remarking nervously: "But, Mordy, dear, as you came in I saw you didn't have any shoes on.'

"Well, what of it. Your hair is in curl papers, isn't it?" "Why-y-yes."

"And you have on a wrapper, haven't you?"

"Yes." "Very well, then."

And he went on eating his break fast in silence except when he asked her to pass the butter. Then he went upstairs and firished dressing, and the next morning and on succeeding mornings she reported for breakfast in regular clothes.

Sporting Instinct Aroused. The street-corner orator had gathered around him a group of urchins. Why they listened so attentively he didn't understand; nor probably did they know themselves. Simply nothing doing. But the orator took full advantage of his opportunity and delivered an improving lecture on the value of kindness to dumb animals. At the end he sought for some illustration to point the moral and adorn the tale. It was there at hand. Across the way walked a lady, leading two little dogs in leash. The one was black and the other white. "Now." exclaimed the tub-thumper, "after what I have said, supposing those two dear little dogs were to start fighting, what would be the first thing you would do?" No answer came at first; but one little arab turned to look at the dogs critically and thoughtfully. "Well guv'nor," he answered, at last, "I fink I'd 'ave tuppence on the little black per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The problem of fire prevention is unquestionably of more importance than fire controll and the subject should taken into our public school for careful study. To teach the child the hilden dangers in all common fire promoting agencies, and the need for their elimination, is to install a spirit that will, in time, work much good toward minimizing the fire waste. The average child loves responsibility, and with proper encouragement grow up with a contempt for carlessness that would bring about marketed change for the better in the preventable fire record of Texas.

For the small family of simple tastes, nothing could be more appropriate for a residence than a bungalow built according to the design here shown.

This is a bungalow designed in the true western or southern spirit, but so modified as to make it a substantial and comfortable residence for the severest climates.

The exterior is sided with boards seven-eighths inch thick, left with a rough finish, and stained a soft olive green. This style of siding is very effective in bungalow work, and is probably the cheapest of any of the styles of siding. Shingles are just about as cheap, so far as the material is concerned; but the high labor cost, these days, for applying them, What is said to be the largest ship- brings the total cost of the job up equal to that of finished clapboarding. ing is in its favor, also, where warmth | bathroom opening off the hall, is loand durability are of importance.

tone is desired, and is applied with a pebble-dash finish. Four inch strips seven-eighths inch thick, are used to divide the plaster coat into panels, giving an English "halftimber" effect. These strips should be securely nailed to the sheathing boards, through the cement plaster, Additions Make It Comfortable before the same has hardened. They are put on before the plaster finishing coat is applied.

As will be seen from the floor plan, the interior arrangement of this cozy little bungalow leaves little to be desired. There are five good rooms, besides vestibule, pantry, bathroom, two closets, and the hall.

The living room is 20 by 14 feet, and is very well lighted. It has a practical fireplace that is meant for business, in the middle of one end. There are seats built in on each side of the fireplace and under the high windows.

The dining room is a very attractive apartment, separated from the living room by an artistic columned opening. A square bay window with cement sash is a feature of this room. The kitchen is arranged to save steps. It is not too large, being 11 by 10 feet, and is light and airy. The sleeping room provision in this design is arranged to give a surprising amount of privacy for a bungalow. Two good-sized bedrooms are provided, each with a clothes closet. The Samoan Islanders for Twenty Years Have Held Robert Louis Stevenson in Loving Memory.

How many of the lovers of Robert Louis Stevenson-the modern who a modern, the contemporary who became a classic because he translated new things into thoughts for all time -how many of those millions who have fallen under his spell know that How many know that 19 years ago the bronze tablet was erected over his tomb in a far-away South Sea isle for endless generations to read and wonder at?

It was 20 years ago next December that Stevenson died at Valima, near Apia, on the island of Upolu, in the Samoan group, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Since then he has slept in a distant grave, but not in a neglected one. For the natives of that island keep his tomb on the lonely mountainside fragrant with flowers. 'The Tomb of Tusitula," they call it -that was the great Scot's Samoan

Stevenson went to live in Samoa in 1887. He was a comparatively young man, but he had seen the vanities of the world, and, captivated by the climate, the scenery, and the kindly ing the month ending June 30 amount, character of the natives, he at once determined to live out whatever space of life might remain to him in that fortunate island. And there he did live for seven years. Long ere he died he wrote his own epitaph, and that epitaph is engraved on the brass tablet that was put there 19 years

It is carved on lasting bronze but like Horace, he raised himself a monument even more enduring than bronze. The natives who keep his grave fragrant will all die, some day, and their descendants will be benevolently assimilated. But all the children who speak the English tongue will pluck perennial flowers from the child's garden of verses for that tomb; and all boys will know Upolu as the real Treasure Island.

Sad Journey for Man Who Had Al most Become the Master of the Civilized World.

A fresh letter arrived recently describing Bonaparte's conduct during his journey from Fontainebleau to Elba, says the London Globe of May 13, 1914. Subjoined is an extract: "In the early part of his journey Bonaparte took his meals alone, but when the unpleasant rumors from the south and the tumult in most of the towns through which he passed had thoroughly convinced him that the people were ready to proceed to the most cruel extremities he saw that his only chance of escaping was to assume the uniform of an Austrian officer."

The decision, however, was preceded by a flood of tears. The first day that he sat down with the commissioners it was observed that he ate nothing and that he secretly threw aside the victuals which he raised to his mouth. He was afraid of being poisoned!

The following day he requested permission for his own cook to dress his dinner, which was granted; and the same man who the day before pretended to be ill fell foul of the dishes with an eagerness bordering on voracity.

Throughout the whole journey he betrayed the strongest apprehension and preserved a solemn silence. But as he approached the coast and perceived the Mediterranean fleet and sails of the vessels lying it the road. his heart expanded and he began to talk with extreme volubility, but, as usual, very incoherently.

It is said that in his conversation with Marshal Augereau he several times observed: "'Tis all over with me in Europe, but Asia wants man."

President Wilson Orders Lower Speed for Autos

WASHINGTON.—There is sorrow in the White House garage. Two mighty touring cars and a landaulet have been brought to a state of watchful waiting. There is an embargo on speed which will not be lifted. Four chauffeurs-any one of whom can pass within an inch of a given object while running at 50 miles an hour-are constantly on watch lest the speedometers start to climb on them.

About the only person in the garage who is happy is the automobile washer, who has figured it out that the slower automobiles run the less dirt they accumulate.

Ever since a presidential automobile was held up outside of Hyattsville the White House machines have been passed by about everything on the road. Recently one of those runabouts (the type that sounds like a lawn mower and travels with a limp) actually went ahead of the big seven-passenger car which President Wilson The cause of the sorrow is manifest. The engines in the White House cars are of the latest type, and can, without an effort, run the machine up to 50 miles an hour. And on the road it is extremely difficult to gauge speed unless one's eye is constantly on the speedometer. President Wilson has always insisted that the cars in which he rides be run slowly. But occasionally when his friends are taken out for a little spin the chauffeur has been inclined to open the throttle and let things whoop. Besides the automobile washer, there are others in the White House who feel a certain relief. They are the secret service men.

Sleigh's Bells Give Shivers to the Gauzily Clad

T WAS at noon on G street when the fingling bells of a sleigh were heard. A large, perspiring, spluttering fat man suspended his palm leaf fan in "The doctor told me to cut it down to two these hot days. I didn't; mid-air. now I am hearing things," he muttered.

Another fingle, in frosty accents. A willowy maid, exceedingly summerish and diaphanous as to her gown, pulled her gauzy skirts close about her and was seen to shiver. And still they jingled. Temperature, 98 in the shade. A puffing lady, of generous girth, plumped down her market basket on the pliant asphalt and felt her pulse.

Traffic was suspended, passing horses sniffed the air, and Doctor Cook's press agent came running up from a nearby hotel to see whether some other intrepld explorer had put another one across on his employer.

"Going, going, gone. At twenty. And it's a bargain at that." The raucous voice of the auctioneer explained the greatest natural phenomenon Washington has witnessed for many moons.

The fat man dashed back through the swinging doors for another bracer "That's the hottest job I've had this week," plaintively wailed the auctioneer, as he wiped a seeping sleeve across his briny brow.

Birds Use Bubble Fountain as a Bathing Place

THE English sparrow is the quickest of all the feathered tribe to adapt itself to the advances of science and civilization. This is frequently proved to the consternation of biologists and many lovers of the beautiful.

The most striking instance of this adaptivity was recently proved to a group of laymen who gathered by the little triangular park in front of the Munsey building, that has recently been landscape-gardened into architectural eminence.

The sycamores along the avenue side of the park, and its cool shrubbery are favorite gathering places for the sparrow. Before the Pulaski statue was erected, the sparrows disported themselves in the cool water of an open fountain. Some lovers of bird and animal life wondered what these sparrows did for a drink and a bath after the fountain was torn up. Apparently there was no water in sight. Some time ago a drinking fountain of the bubbling type was installed.

For weeks and even months the sparrows paid but little attention. One or two audactous fellows eyed the bubbling stream at close range, but could find no standing water.

In the heat of noontime the other day, one of the boldest and noisiest of a twittering group, solved the problem. He lit on the outer edge of the fountain, cocked his dark brown head and eyed the stream. One or two pedestrians stopped to watch. Others gathered. Finally Mr. Sparrow thrust his bill into the stream with a quick darting motion. Nothing happened, and he tried it again. Finally he let it rest in the stream, and withdrawing it only to throw back his head, drank his fill. Contented he eyed his surroundings while an admiring throng applauded his perspicacity.

Suddenly selzed of a new notion he fluttered through the stream to the other side. He repeated this feat several times, and many sparrows, quick to learn, were soon using the drinking fountain in approved style.

O YOU swear," said the marriage license clerk light-heartedly, "that the statements herein given are the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth so help you God one dollar please?"

The young man with the large, expressive hands, the trembling knees and the huge, awkward feet, dug feebly into his pocket and produced the sum of money required. There was something so red-faced and apologetically rabbitlike in the way he did it that one almost expected to see him flap his ears. But he didn't.

"Wish you all the luck in the world," said the marriage license clerk, evidently desirous of making the agitated young man feel at peace.

The tall awkward young man scratched himself violently. Where's a preacher?" he demanded abruptly. The marriage license clerk waved a hand toward the city directory.

"Take your pick," he urged. "There are all kinds in the city. Also plenty of justices of the peace-if you want them." "I want a Baptist," said the tall young man stubbornly. "I come from Powhucket, W. Va. And I kinder eloped here for the fun of seein' the city

OD ALFALFA POINTS LANGLEY'S FOLLY" VINDICATED BED MEANS SUCCESS.

ROF. SAMUEL P. LANGLEY'S memory has been vindicated. Glenn H. Curtiss has proved that the man who died of a broken heart because of the failure of his aeroplane was the first to construct a really practical heavier-than-air machine. Curtiss secured permission to take the Langley machine from the Smithsonian institute in Washington for the purpose of making tests. He made no changes whatever in the machine, merely restoring such parts as were broken. He made a short flight, demonstrating that Langley's princt-ples were right and that the sole fault lay in the method of launching the machine. Scientists long ago accorded to Professor Langley the full measure of credit due to him. The Wright brothers, who made a practical success where he had seemed to fail, have acknowledged the debt they owe to this unassuming man who drew his inspiration from the clouds and gave to man the eagle's secret. He had worked out for them the problems in aerodynamics. and left for them in alwhat should be the condition gebraic formulae the

But in the mind of was then, when the secretary of the Smithsonian institution returned North, stung by unjust and unthinking criticisms, but undaunted, and confident that he was on the "right track," determined to go ahead, a determination that was thwarted by his untimely death in 1906.

The history of invention has no record more pathetic than that of Samuel P. Langley. At the very moment when success was in his grasp, when the dreams of a lifetime were about to come true and the labors of years of toll to be rewarded, the cup was dashed from his lips through the failure, not of the invention itself, but of a purely mechanical contrivance of minor importance. Derided in congress and held up by the newspaper wits of the world as a target for their jests, Langley must have died a thoroughly discouraged man.

The experiments of 1903 were the culmination of years of patient effort. As far back as 1891 Professor Langley announced that as the result of experiments carried on by him during previous years it was "possible to construct machines which would give such a velocity to inclined surfaces that bodies indefinitely heavier than the air could be sustained upon it, and moved through it with great velocity."

President McKinley had become impressed with the possibilities of the airship as an engine of war, and in 1898, at the request of the board of ordnance and fortification of the war department, Professor Langley undertook the construction of a man-carrying flying machine, and an allotment of $50,000 was made for the purpose. The services of Charles M. Manly were secured as an assistant.

In his earlier tests with models Professor Langley had employed a small houseboat, from the roof of which he had launched them. He determined to follow the same procedure with the larger man-carrying airship, and, although advised not to do so, he persisted until the end in this determination. And it was the launching apparatus which caused the final failure! An enormous houseboat, therefore, was built. Atop the house was the superstructure carrying a turntable, weighing about fifteen tons, supported on a circular track, an arrangement which was designed to make it possible for the aeroplane to be launched from the "roof," headed into the wind, without the necessity of turning the entire houseboat. Finally on August 8 a quarter-size steam-driven model was launched from the top of the houseboat. It was in the air 27 seconds and covered about one thousand feet. The experiment was regarded as a success and gave the inventors great hopes for the success of the man-carrying machine. Numerous delays occurred to prevent the launching of this, and it was not until October 7 that the real Langley aeroplane was sent forth into the air, the first heavier-than-air machine carrying a man ever to attempt a flight. A few days before this date the reporters at

Widewater received from their home offices queries reading about as follows:

"Two brothers named Wright are said to be experimenting with an airship at Kitty Hawk, N. C. Ask Langley what he knows about it." It was the first time any man in the reporters' camp had ever heard of those famous brothers from Dayton, Orville and Wilbur Wright. Not a > killed in his foolhardy attempt to emulate a real As a spectacle it was dramatic, impressive.

> The aeroplane was taken from the houseboat early in the morning, weather conditions being ideal for the first time in weeks, and under the direction of Mr. Manly was assembled with the greatest care. The aeroplane was poised on the turntable atop the superstructure, fifty or sixty feet above the Potomac, with open water on all sides, and a vast stretch of unobstructed sailing area in three directions, so that in the event of success the aerodrome might have flown for miles. Had the aeroplane been tested on a level stretch of ground, which would have been possible had it been equipped with light bicycle wheels, that day might very well have witnessed man's triumph over gravity.

The aeroplane was a beautiful thing, like some great white bird poised there on the houseboat, and waiting only the signal to spring into the air. Its long, white Penaud tail added to its birdlike appearance.

It was about sixty feet in length, exclusive of the tail, with a main body elliptical in shape, to which were attached the four spreading white silken wings.

Mr. Manly weighed but 150 pounds. He was the lightest man in the party. Moreover, he was coinventor, and for these reasons he claimed the privilege and the honor of making the first flight

As Mr. Manly climbed into his dizzy perch and took his seat he looked down at the handful of newspaper reporters who were gathered around the houseboat and who, in addition to the members of the Smithsonian staff and representatives of the army and navy, were the only witnesses, and smiled at them. The reporters gave him a cheer.

Manly started the motor and braced himself for the start.

The aeroplane, ready for its voyage, was held in leash on the turntable by a powerful spring, which, when released, would give it an initial velocity of about thirty-five feet per second, and enable it to clear the superstructure. As Mr. Manly put his hand to the lever and set his jaws

There was a whirring noise increasing to a roar, as if a thousand eagles were passing overhead. It was 12:20 o'clock p. m. when she started. The great birdlike thing flew swiftly over the 60-foot track of the launching apparatus, passed

Instead of soaring off into the air like the thing of life she looked her beak dipped, and she shot downward, plunging head first into the river only 50 yards from the houseboat. The propellers worked perfectly until the very last, and one of them broke as it struck the water a powerful blow.

Then the whole airship, every vestige of it, even to the tip of its beautiful white tail, disaptin such demand that I was offered $25 peared beneath the surface of the river. Suddenly the soldier on the houseboat came to life and shouted a command. A boat was tied at the stern, and into this a squad of workmen threw themselves, and pulled off for the scene of the disaster. Then the airship floated to the surface, and Mr. Manly's head bobbed up.

There was half a smile on his face, but no sign of fear, although he was not yet saved. Entangled in the wreckage, his lifebelt did him but little service. However, he managed to hold himself up until the first boat to reach the spot came up, when he was hauled aboard, none the worse for his ducking.

The official explanation of the failure was that the front guypost caught in its support on the launching apparatus and was not released in time to give free flight, as intended, but caused the front of the machine to be dragged downward. bending the guypost and causing the aeroplane to plunge into the water.

Discouraged, but not disheartened, Mr. Manly took the wrecked machine back to Washington. It was growing late in the year. The available fund of money was about exhausted, and it was realized that unless a better showing could be made there would be no more funds forthcoming from congress. Workmen were set to the task of getting the aeroplane ready for another flight before winter set in.

Although the main frame and the engine were not damaged, other delicate portions were so badly injured that two months were required for the repairs to be made, and it was not until December 8 that everything was in readiness for another flight. Despite the lateness of the season, Mr. Manly determined to make one more effort to prove that the Langley aeroplane would fly.

It was bitterly cold, and there was ice on the river when, on the afternoon of December 8, between four and five o'clock, the houseboat was towed from her berth at one of the wharves at Washington to Arsenal point, where the eastern branch enters the Potomac. Here was a space barely sufficient for the requirements of the aviator in his extremity.

The engine worked perfectly as the propellers were set in motion. But again the launching apparatus was at fault. This time the rear guy post seemed to catch, bringing the rudder, or tail, down on the superstructure. As the aeroplane, looking ghostly in the deepening night, shot over the edge of the houseboat, her nose pointed toward the arsenal, there was a grinding noise. The rear wings collapsed, the whole machine plunged downward, and Mr. Manly for the second time was carried beneath the waves. This time his escape was narrower than it had been at Widewater in October. In the darkness and confusion his location was lost sight of, and while men looked for him in small boats he remained beneath the water tangled in the wreckage, stunned, and with his head cut open. He was found just in the nick of time, taken aboard the houseboat and resuscitated. The workmen totled until midnight in the icy waters recovering the wrecked airship, twice saved from the waters of the Potomac. The aerodrome was finally taken to the Smithsonian shops, where it was partially repaired. It has been stored there until its recent removal to Hammondsport for its third attempt at flying.

PLAY FOR HIGH STAKES

BEACH CLUB AT PALM BEACH IS GAMBLERS' PARADISE.

Reckless Spendthrifts Win Occasionally, Though Money is Almost Invariably Left In the Wide Open Coffers of the Bank.

The play at the Beach club is worth studying, being so unlike the usual gaming. It is a sure thing for the house, yet the most dangerous kind. the kind where the winnings of a month may be swept in an hour. The recklessness of these spendthrifts who know nothing of money values makes them dangerous to the house. They do not play skilfully, place their bets regardless of accepted rules, and destroy all the laws of averages. I have seen a few play, or attempt to play, abortive "systems," and one or two try systems learned from a book; but the majority ignore entirely the laws of mathematical progression unon which "systems" are founded. The nominal limit at the club is $1,000 on a color, although this limit may be raised indefinitely by a simple request, and it is not recorded that the proprietors ever refused to permit a plunger to dive as high as he pleasedprovided he could afford it. The player will stumble upon a run of kuck, or drop a disproportionate bet upon a single winning number. Many of them play the long shots steadily and, of course, occasionally some one wins a large amount in a hurry. I once saw a young fellow put $10 in checks on number 5, get $350 for it, put $250 of that on the odd, $25 on each of the corners round the five, and $10 on the 5 which repeated. He placed a pile of checks on each number in the first 12 except the 5, played the first 12 to win and stacked a huge bunch on the red. In three rolls of the wheel he had won nearly six thousand dollars. An hour later he quit about five hundred dollars winner.

These winnings are not regretted much by such clubs. I saw one case of how such "killings" affect the Beach club. A young Falls River fellow had been playing regularly each evening and losing almost as regularly-how much I do not know, but it ran into thousands. One evening he had just such a run of luck as I have described and, as nearly as I could tell, he took about six thousand dollars out of the club-possibly more, but not much. Before he reached the Breakers, where he was stopping, the sum of his winnings, according to corridor gossip, was trebled. In the grill, where he was buying wine an hour later, the statement was made he had won $35,000. By midnight it was reported as authoritative that he had won nearly one hundred thousand dolars and that the Beach club was hit hard. The next afternoon and evening play at the club was much heavier, and applications of membership were for the use of a membership card for the afternoon by a young man who had neither the wealth nor the influence to get in .- American Magazine.

Steel in Old Skyscraper.

Among the first of the tall office buildings in New York was the Tower building, which although only ten stories high was considered a skyscraper when completed in 1889. Its recent demolition has called attention to its position among pioneer constructions of the modern type office building and it has been mistakenly credited as the first example of steel cage construction. It illustrated an early stage in the development of tall steel buildings, the different character of details prevailing only twenty-five years ago, and affords valuable information on the effects of corrosion on iron and steel members imperfectly protected through a quarter century of service.

A careful and thorough examination made as the building was demolished showed practically no case of very bad rusting, that is, of corrosion sufficient to impair the strength of the metal.-Engineering Record.

Build Island to Construct Bridge. With the completion of the Pamban channel viaduct connecting Tonitural in India with Pamban on the Island of Rameswaram the first link has been forged in the railway line between the south end of the Indian peninsula and the island of Ceylon. This viaduct is 6,776 feet long. Rail connection is made across the island of Danishkodi and then by steamer across a 22-mile strait to the island of Manar to which point the Ceylon railway system has been extended.

To facilitate the work of sinking the bridge cylinders an artificial island, made of coral boulders and concrete in sacks, was created one on each side of the stretch of water.

This bridge was made by Indian la bor, under two contractors. There was intense and sometimes by no means friendly rivalry between the two crews of workers.

Q .- Why should we believe there is a God? Does not the theory of evolution explain everything? (Evo.)

Answer .- Some who deny the exist ence of an intelligent Creator claim that nature is the only God, and that from nature all forms of animal and regetable developments proceeded without the ordering of intelligence, but governed, they say, by "the law of the survival of the fittest" in a process of evolution. This theory lacks proof, for all about us we see that the vari ous creatures are of fixed natures which do not evolve to higher natures and though those who hold to this theory have made repeated endeavors they have never succeeded either to elending different species or in producing a new fixed variety. No instance is known where one kind has changed to another kind. Even the transformation of the caterpillar into the butter fly is not an exception. Flying fish and singing frogs do not turn to birds. nor monkeys to men. On the contrary it is found impossible to blend the species. If unintelligent nature were the creator the process would continue This theory we conclude is as contrary to human reason as to the Bible.

The change of dispensation was an nounced by Jeaus saying, "Your house is left unto you desolate." From this time on the heavenly Father was repregented in Christ and in the Church of Christ. Now "God dwelleth not in temples made with hands." We are not to think of God physically dwelling in the Tabernacle or the Temple, but rather that He was representatively present by His spirit, His power and His wisdom. So during the coming dispensation God will dwell with men, will tabernacle with them representatively. Those who have His spirit at that time will represent Him. Still the heaven of the heavens is the residence of God personally, and merely in a figurative sense is He said to dwell anywhere in the earth.

Q .- Is it true that God has elected some of us to go to heaven and elected others to go to eternal terment? (C. S).

Answer .- Wonderful indeed are the present and future blessings of the elect, but while we are rejoiding in these privileges and hearkening to the Master's words, "Blessed are your they hear," we are definitely informed that our election and selection for these great bonors and privileges of service are not arbitrary. We are admonished that God has established certalu standards of fitness for those who aspire to this "high calling," this heavenly calling." We are advised that there is a "mark," a standard by which we are all to be tested, and that only those who stand the tests will "make their calling and election sure" (2 Peter 1:10). Local Druggist Says "Take Only One Dose"

We want to tell those in Miami and fering from stomach or bowel trouble that we are agents for the cimple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adier-i-ka, the remedy which became famous by curing appendicitis. This is the most thorough bowel cleanser known and JUST ONE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation almost IMMEDIATELY. You will be surprised at the QUICK action of Adler-A. M. Jones, druggist.
