SYNOPSIS.

On Misery creek, at the foot of a rock from which he has fallen. Sally Miller finds George Lescott, a landscape painter, unconscious, and after reviving him, goes for assistance Samson South and Sally, taking Lescott to Samson's home, are met by Spicer South, head of the family, who tells them that Jesse Purvy has been shot and that Samson is suspected of the crime. Samson denies it. The shooting of Jesse Purvy breaks the truce in the Hollman-South feud.

He sauntered down the road, but, when he had passed out of vision, he turned sharply into the woods, and began climbing. His steps carried him to the rift in the ridge where the white oak stood sentinel over the watch tower of rock. As he came over the edge from one side his bare feet making no sound, he saw Sally sitting there, with her hands resting on the moss and her eyes deeply troubled She was gazing fixedly ahead and her lips were trembling. At once Samson's face grew black. Some one had been making Sally unhappy. Then he saw beyond her a standing figure, which the tree trunk had hitherto concealed. It was the loose-knitted figure of young Tamarack Spicer.

"In course," Spicer was saying, "we don't 'low Samson shot Jesse Purvy. but them Hollmans 'll 'spicion him, an' I heered just now thet them dawgs was trackin' straight up hyar from the mouth of Misery. They'll git hyar against sundown.

For an instant the two clansmen stood fronting each other. Samson's face was set and wrathful. Tamarack's was surly and snarling. "Hain't I got a license ter tell Sally the news?" he demanded.

"Nobody hain't got no license," retorted the younger man in the quiet of cold anger, "mer tell Sally nothin'

"What air ye a-reachin' atter, Tam'rack?" he inquired, his lips twisting in amusement. "Thet's my business."

"Well, git hit out-or git out yeself, afore I throws ye offen the clift.'

Sally showed no symptoms of alarm. Her confidence in her hero was absolute. The boy lifted his hand, and pointed off down the path. Slowly and with incoherent muttering, Spicer took himself away. Then only did Sally rise. She came over, and laid a hand on Samson's shoulder. In her blue eyes, the tears were welling.

"Samson," she whispered, "ef they're atter ye, come ter my house. I kin hide ye out. Why didn't ye tell me Jesse Jurvey'd done been shot?"

"Hit tain't nothin' ter fret about, Sally," he assured her. He spoke awkwardly, for he had been trained to regard emotion as unmanly. "Thar hain't no danger."

She gazed searchingly into his eyes. and then, with a short sob, threw her arms around him, and buried her face on his shoulder.

"Ef anything happens ter ye. Samson," she said, brokenly, "hit'll jest kill me. I couldn't live withouten ye, Samson. I jest couldn't do hit!" The boy took her in his arms, and

As Lescott wandered through the these dogs want to cross your fence. I but, also, because the family, which like whispers of hues to strong, flaring riot of color, this fret of restlessness became actual pain. He was wasting wonderful opportunity and the creative instinct in him was clamoring.

One morning, when he came out just after sunrise to the tin wash basin at the well, the desire to paint was on him with compelling force. The hills ended near their bases like things bitten off. Beyond lay limitless streamers of mist, but, while he stood at gaze, the filmy veil began to lift and float higher. Trees and mountains grew taller. The sun, which showed first as a ghost-like disk of polished aluminum, struggled through orange and vermilion into a sphere of living flame. Lescott heard a voice at his side.

"When does ye 'low ter commence paintin'?"

It was Samson. For answer the artist, with his unhurt hand, impatiently tapped his bandaged wrist. "Ye still got yore right hand, hain't ye?" demanded the boy. The other laughed. It was a typical question. So long as one had the trigger finger left one should not admit disqualification.

"You see, Samson," he explained, "this isn't precisely like handling a gun. One must hold the palette; mix the colors; wipe the brushes and do half a dozen equally necessary things. It requires at least two perfectly good hands. Many people don't find two enough."

"But hit only takes one ter do the paintin', don't hit?"

"Well"-the boy spoke diffidently but with enthusiasm-"between the two of us we've got three hands. I reckon ye kin larn me how ter do them other things fer ye."

Lescott's surprise showed in his face and the lad swept eagerly on. "Mebby hit hain't none of my bustness, but, all day yestiddy an' the day hefo' I was s this thet corn weeded an' now I'm through. Lescott whistled and then his face lighted into contentment.

Lescott, South and Company get busy.' It was the first time he had seen Samson smile, and, although tie expression was one of sheer delight, inherent somberness loaned it a touch of the wistful.

When, an hour later, the two set out, the mountain boy carried the paraphernalia and the old man standing at the door watched them off with a half-quizzical, half-disapproving glance. As the boy, with remarkable aptitude, learned how to adjust the easel and arrange the paraphernalia, Lescott sat drinking in through thirsty eyes the stretch of landscape he had determined to paint. Then, while he painted, the boy held the palette, his eyes riveted on the canvas, which was growing from a blank to a mirror of vistas-and the boy's pupils became deeply hungry. The day of painting was followed by others like it. The disabling of Lescott's left hand made the constant companionship of the boy a matter that needed no explanation or apology, though not a matter of approval to his uncle.

Another week had passed without the reappearance of Tamarack Spicer. One afternoon Lescott and Samson were alone on a cliff-protected shelf, and the painter had just blocked in with umber and neutral tint the crude sketch of his next picture.

(TO BE CONTINUED.) Tribute Money.

Fancy long ago said that the black marks on either side of the head of the haddock were made by the Apostle's finger and thumb as they held him, while extracting the tribute money from his mouth. But alas for fancy! The haddock is not found in the Sea of Galilee! Most of the fish there belong to the barbel family, and no one has ever told us authoritatively what particular variety the tribute bearing fish belonged to. The "half shekel" of the tribute was 112 grains Troy weight of silver, say nearly a quarter of an ounce, worth about thirteen cents today, but greatly more in those days.

MEAT CLOGS KIDNEYS THEN YOUR BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers You-Drink Lots of Water.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney Builders of Human Habitations Do Well to Avoid Too Many Straight Lines.

Nature makes no straight lines, for whether it be the canopy above, the horizon about us, the shore of ocean or pond, the course of streams, the lines of horse, bird, or even of the human figure, beautiful curves and variety and multiplicity of curves everywhere abound. It must then be apparent that nature never intended man to make straight lines, and the present writer loves them not, even in a dwelling-house. Metropolis Finds Itself Facing a Hard Problem.

Manhattan presents a hard problem for those who want to beautify the metropolis with shade trees. It seems that certain streets are not altogether hopeless, according to the report of the Tree Planting association of New York, just out.

Such are Seventh avenue and Lenox from One Hundred and Tenth street up; Broadway north from Fifty-ninth street, also West End avenue, West One Hundred and Thirty-eighth, West Seventy-ninth street, etc.

On all of these there are plantations at present. In spite of the fact that some people have the idea that New York has few shade trees there are dozens of varieties of all shades and styles and patterns, from aristocratic shade trees to scraggy slum dwarfs.

Tree doctors and surgeons are very necessary, and tree surgery has become quite a definite science. Many a fine old tree is saved by "filling its tooth," as it were-that is, filling its hollow cavity with cement to prevent further decay

The committee of the association has divided up New York into districts for special examination, and the report on the different geographical locations is exhaustive.

ALFALFA ON DRY LAND

for Hay.

Plant Is Deep-Rooted and Must Have Soil in Which to Sink That Long Tap Root-Subsoiler Is Often Necessary.

Most of this western country can grow alfalfa. To be sure there are some failures, especially with those just starting out, but when the conditions necessary for the crop are known it will be grown with as much success as the farmers to the east of us grow clover. As far as its value is concerned there is no more profitable hay crop. A ton of alfalfa is worth in feed value about what a ton of bran is worth. Say it is worth $15 and that an acre yields from one and one-half to three tons per acre, then the crop would be worth from $22.50 to $45.00 per acre. Easy figures, you say. Yes, and also they are figures that anyone with a little effort can obtain.

Alfalfa is a deep-rooted plant and therefore it must have ground in which it can sink that long tap root, writes Leon H. Robbins in Dakota Farmer. Break up that plow sole, for no root can penetrate that, and if the undersoil is hard it should be loosened up as deep as possible. Sometimes it is necessary to use a subsoiler. Use a field that is clean and free from standing water. If the early will kill the alfalfa by freezing out mine the system. the crown of the plant. If the field is not free from weeds

It is best not to cut even a hay crop too late. Or in other words. late enough so that there is not time between the cutting and cold weather for the crop to get six inches high. This is also true about pasturing. Cultivate the crop in the spring with

ECONOMICAL USE OF WATER

Dry Farmer Should Carefully Select Drought-Resistant Plants for Forage and Grain Crops.

To use as economically as possible the water stored in soils one must needs make up a list of crops from those known to be drought-resistant. Among those plants of known ability to resist drought to a great degree are alfalfa, kaoliang, milo, sudan grass and other grain sorghums, common sorghum to a lesser degree, and corn. though a heavy feeder on soil moisture, is yet able to live through all but extreme conditions of drought because of the fact that it is intertilled.

Some of the varieties of the small grains are notably superior as drought resisters, such as Gatami and Swan Neck barley and Kubanka wheat. From the list of drought-resisting forage and feed and grain crops the dry farmer will do well to select carefully and wisely. The experimental data on this point is readily available.

Why Cover Crop Is Bad. Grass has no place in a western or chard whether the trees be large or small. The destruction of prairie orchards is lack of moisture and any crop grown in the orchard that takes up moisture, especially in late summer, is hastening the day when the trees will begin to die. If crops must be grown in the orchard let them be cultivated crops which are to be removed early.

Businesslike Dairying. The facts that so many dairy farmers prosper in spite of their methods is convincing proof that the same business conducted in a businesslike way could be made very profitable.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HER GRAY HAIR

Everybody had had experience with She Made Up a Mixture or Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

> Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of the famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy .-

The nationality of the mine which they can afford to buy these early destroyed the Evelyn has not been determined.

The Evelyn is the first American vessel to meet with disaster as a result of the sea warfare of the European nations. She did not sink within the war zone included in the German admiralty's decree of February 4, which went into effect on Thursday. Borkum Island lies directly off the German coast, at the mouth of Ems river, and is German territory.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—(By wireless to most profitable way. Sayville, L. I.) - According to advices

The disaster occurred at 4 o'clock Friday morning, and the Evelyn sank seven hours later. Captain Smith, a Dutch pilot, and thirteen men, drifted in a rowboat until Saturday afternoon, She said her first husband had the when they were rescued by a German on that he was a plumber, and she patrol boat. A Spanish stoker in the all the trouble from that source rowboat died meanwhile from exposure. The other men in the boat are all recovering. They are now at the sailors' home in Bremerhaven.

The mate and the remainder of the Evelyn's crew are understood to have landed in Holland.

THE EMBARGO

The United States Wheat Production Admits of 100 Million Bushels for Export.

The talk in the press some little time back of placing an embargo on wheat, brought forcibly to the minds of the people of the United States a condition that may at some time in the near future face them. 100 million bushels of an export of wheat means a splendid revenue to the country as well as to the farmer, and if this were assured year after year, there would be reason for considerable congratulation. But last year's magnificent and abundant crop, which was estimated at 891 million bushels, cannot be expected every year. With a home consumption of 775 million bushels, and a production in many years of little more than this, the fact is apparent that at an early date the United States will have to import wheat. It will be then that the people of the United States will be looking to other markets for a supply. And it is then that the value of Western Canada lands will be viewed with considerable favor. The great area of wheat lands in Canada will then be called upon to provide the greatest portion of the old world's supply, and also, in the opinion of the writer, that of the United States as well. At present there are only about 12 million acres of these lands producing wheat. There are five times that many acres that can be brought under successful cultivation. Apart altogether from the value of these lands as wheat producers there is an increased value to them from the fact that the soil is especially adapted to the growing of many other kinds of grain as well as all manner of cultivated grasses, while the native grasses are a wonderful asset in themselves. The climate is especially favorable to the raising of live stock, such as horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. All these bring into the limelight the adaptability of the soil, the climate and all other necessary conditions, to the carrying on of dairy farming, in a

Winter Chills Bring Kidney Ills

A spell of cold, damp weather is always followed by a fine crop of kidney troubles and backache. Colds and chills damage the kidneys. Other troubles common to winter weather are just as bad. Grip, tonsilitis, quinsy, pneumonia or any other infectious disease hurts the kidneys by overloading the blood with poisons. The kidneys get worn, weak and inflamed trying to work it off.

It isn't hard to strengthen weak kidneys though, if you act quickly. At the first sign of backache, dizzy spells, headaches, loss of weight, nervousness, depression and painful, irregular kidney action, start using Doan's Kidney Pills. Rest the kidneys by simple eating, avoidance of overwork and worry, and getting more rest and sleep. A milk diet is fine.

This sensible treatment should bring quick benefit and prevent serious kidney diseases like dropsy gravel and Bright's disease.

LABOR PERIODICALS TO HELP

Campaign Against Tuberculosis Will Shortly Have a New and Important Ally.

A new campaign for closer co-operation with labor unions and other groups of workingmen is announced by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. A committee has been appointed With Dr. Theodore B. Sachs, president of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute, as chairman, to formulate plans for immediate and future action. Other members of the committee are Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, Washington; George W. Perkins, secretary of the International Cigarmakers' union. Chicago: John Mitchell of the New York state compensation commission, New York; Austin B. Garretson, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Dr. William Charles White, medical director of the Tuberculosis league of Pittsburgh, and Dr. David R. Lyman, superintendent of the Gaylord Farm sanatorium, Wallingford, Conn. As the first step in the campaign a special health bulletin has been prepared for the labor papers and will be sent out monthly in co-operation with members of the International Labor Press bureau.

At length they came across a cow, from whom they determined to extract some nourishment, but after trying their best for an hour, each holding on to her horns in turn, they had to abandon all hopes of milk. This, remarks Doctor Morgan, is "one of the very few occasions on which I ever saw Stephen fairly
