Lower Gas Rates Offered Eastland The City Commission Defers Action Eastland's Plans For County Fair Are Going Forward

Citizens Should Meet With Council

At the regular meeting of the City Commission Monday the proposed gas ordinance was the main subject. As will be recalled the gas company had been notified and were offered a chance to meet with the Commission and be heard. Chester L. May, vice-president of the Gas Company, appeared with the local manager, Mr. Williams, and made an extended speech in the presence of the commission and a few other citizens.

The chairman made the motion that the ordinance be passed, and Tom Johnson promptly seconded the motion. One of the new members of the commission offered verbally an amendment to section one of the proposed ordinance, with regard to the basis of pressure required in the gas mains. This same new member offered first a motion to table the proposed ordinance, and such motion was later withdrawn when no second was had to the motion. Then he moved to pass the entire matter for further consideration to the next regular meeting of the Commission. The next meeting will be August 3rd. This motion met with favor.

In view of the fact that a majority of the Commission at a former meeting voted down a proposal for a judicial determination of the gas rate question this alternative proposition to fix the gas rate at 35c per thousand feet by an ordinance becomes very interesting. Will the people get relief from the very high gas rates? From Mr. Mays' talk it appears that the gas company has no sort of intention of yielding to the public demand for lower rates. He even stated in substance that if the Commission should pass the ordinance fixing a lower rate than is used at present, his company will file an injunction suit against the City and would apply to the State Railroad Commission at Austin to have the rates maintained at the present rate or to have them raised to a higher rate. Much was said about the cost of litigation and rate fixing at Austin.

From expressions heard from members of the Commission about the proposed ordinance it is not possible to forecast what their votes will be on the matter. This paper feels that the public will not be satisfied unless some means and some plan of action are followed that will eventually get relief from exorbitant gas rates. It should be proper for the members of the commission to get the ordinance in good form, but that done they should not hesitate to fix a reasonable gas rate even though the gas company does threaten to file a law-suit and to carry their fight to the railroad commission. This is no time to entertain a threat or to make a threat. We may be pawns in the hands of a large gas corporation for awhile, but we ought to be found fighting the enemy in the very last ditch. We note that other people believe that when Fort Worth gets its new gas rate, it will not be long before new gas lines will be laid to our large and extended gas fields.

When the Commission meets again on August 3rd why should not a representation of our citizenship meet with them and be heard?

Club Entertained by Mrs. R. P. Reagan

Mrs. R. P. Reagan of South Oak street entertained the Thursday Night Club with a forty-two party at their last meeting. Refreshments of Devils Food cake and grape juice were served to the following guests:

Mmes. Stover, Campbell, Street, Griffin, Weatherford, Wright, Greer, Maynard, McBea and Hostess.

Pythian Sisters To Entertain

The Pythian Sisters will entertain with a tacky party next Thursday night. Old fashioned games will be played.

All members are urged to be present, and those not there will be fined 25c. All those not properly dressed will also be fined 25c.

State Health Officers Here

Dr. Don C. Petterson, director of the Mobile unit, and Mr. E. D. Hopkins, sanitary engineer, will be in Garrett Hassley, State Health nurse, and Mr. Miller, sanitary inspector, in regard to plans for work in this district. They are well pleased with the work now in progress and will lay plans for a more extensive program.

Sat. Entertainment Proves Popular

The merchants of Eastland are staging a form of entertainment every Saturday night that is meeting with the approval of the public. This is evident by the large crowds that attend.

Last Saturday night an usually large and happy crowd milled about the square and on the lawn of the court house until a late hour.

A rather novel form of amusement was offered last week, a colored orchestra. The boys were at their best and held their audience until the last note was sounded. Popular music was played. Each piece had all the fixings and brought much applause from the listeners.

Dr. H. B. Tanner and J. C. Day are to be credited with being the fixers as they are cooperating with the merchants in putting on these Saturday night entertainments.

The merchants appreciate the response to these programs and welcome an opportunity to entertain the visitors each week.

Arrangements are being made at this time for bigger and better programs so every one is invited to be present each week and enjoy this free entertainment as the guests of the Eastland merchants.

Mr. V. J. Hatcher, advertising manager of the Weekly Record, was carried home seriously ill Thursday evening and will be unable to be on the streets for a few days. If you are in need of our service in any line call 205 and your orders will receive prompt attention.—Weekly Record.

Committees Have Been Appointed

At a second special meeting of the directors of the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon final plans for the Eastland County Fair were made. Committees were appointed and the prospect for a bigger and better fair are good.

The general chairman will be M. E. Lawrence; C. J. Rhodes, assistant; Horace Conley in charge of mid-way; K. B. Tanner, treasurer; and Dr. H. B. Tanner in charge of publicity. Advisory, J. C. Patterson, County Agent, and Miss Ruth Ramey, Home Demonstration Agent.

A general executive committee, from the Rotary club, J. E. Lewis, chairman; John Mouser from the Lions club, Frank Crowell, Chairman, E. Woody and Horace Conley, and from the Chamber of Commerce, Geo. Harper chairman, Ham McRae and T. L. Fogg.

The date of the fair will be September 23, 24, 25 and 26th.

Abilene Acts On Lower Gas Rates

Ordinance Passes First Reading As Commission Seeks Lower Rate For Consumers.

From Abilene Morning News Saturday July 18th

The City Commission Friday started machinery rolling on its avowed plan of obtaining cheaper gas for Abilene, adopting, on the first reading, an ordinance granting Roy Guffey of Baird a franchise to distribute and sell natural or manufactured gas at a domestic rate of 50 cents, gross, and 45 cents, net, per 1,000 cubic feet.

The franchise provides for Guffey to establish and maintain a distributing system of mains, construction on which must be started within 90 days. First consumers must be served within a period of one year, and the franchise is in effect 30 years, with opportunity of a price change at the end of five years.

The commission's action was unanimous, and it came with little hesitation, after several business leaders of the city, attending the meeting, admonished cautious investigation before definite action was taken. Before it goes into effect, the ordinance must be passed a second time. It was considered certain that it would be up for action again next Friday.

Methodist W.M.S. of Olden Meets

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, Olden, met in regular session Monday afternoon at the church. A splendid program from the Missionary Voice was rendered by the following: Mmes. H. R. Horner, T. L. Stanton, W. R. McGowen, and Mr. Robert Bockman.

Hon. Ed S. Pritchard is home for a visit with home folks for a few days.

OIL PRICES ARE INCREASED

The Magnolia Petroleum Company has announced that they will meet the Continental Oil Company posted price of 40 cents a barre at the well, for crude of thirty-five gravity and above. The Magnolia is running some oil from the Eastland-Ranger district and some local benefit will be derived therefrom.

What effect this will have on the other purchasing units cannot be fore told. It must be remembered that the Magnolia have never met the cut of June 8th, and are the only major in East Texas who are carrying a posted price for that field.

The raises made by the two companies are, however, an indication of a strengthening market and any improvement in the East Texas situation might drive crude prices to attractive heights.

Important Legion Meet Last Monday

Much important business was disposed of at the regular meeting of the American Legion Monday night. A good attendance was there, but not enough—Buddy—you are needed at these meetings.

It was decided at a meeting to accept a proposition offered by Buddy Belcher, who operates the New Conlee Theatre. This offer was a good percentage of receipts from the sale of tickets to a fine war picture which will be shown August 6th and 7th. All money to go on the debt on the American Legion air port north of town.

If you are called upon to sell tickets get in and let's put this over 100 per cent and present Eastland with an airport that all will be proud of. Watch for future announcements and let's put this over in the old army way, "all together, men."

Funeral Services For Eastland Boy

Funeral services for Roy Clinton Lippard, 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Lipard, 205 South Walnut street, who died Monday morning at ten eighteen, was held Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock at the Methodist church. Rev. George Shearer officiated. Burial was in the Eastland cemetery.

Besides his father, mother and little sister, Anna Faye, he is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Fields and other relatives.

EASTLAND MAN DIES

Mr. John Richard West, 79, died Wednesday afternoon about 6:30, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Eula Meyers, East Commerce street.

Funeral services were held at the Hamner-Barrow Undertaking parlors at four o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. Frankin, pastor of the First Christian church officiating. Interment was made in the Eastland cemetery.

Each 17 Years Old

George Zureick, 6 feet 7 1/2 inches, weighing 255, and Earl Pfeffer, four feet, 10 1/2 inches, are classmates in Cincinnati. They never fight.

Child's Body Taken Back To Missouri

The body of seven year old Jackie Henbest of Leuders, who was thrown from her mothers arms and instantly killed Sunday midnight in an automobile accident two miles west of here on the Bankhead highway, was sent by Hamner-Barrow Undertaking Co., Thursday morning to Monett, Mo, for burial. Besides the father and mother the body was accompanied by Mr. Arch Gibson of Leuders and Rev. Pryor, pastor of the Nazeren church here.

Charges Filed

A charge of murder was filed today by District Attorney Collie against Grady Ford of Abilene after the death of Jackie Henbest, of Leuders.

Ford also was charged with driving while intoxicated and drunkenness charges were filed against Paul Waker and Mrs. Frances McGinney, who were riding in Ford's car.

Grapevine Wins In Dress Contest

The cash prizes given by the merchants in the Home Demonstration Club Dress Contest held here last week, was judged on a per centage basis.

Grapevine Club carried off first prize of $3.00, having the largest number of members present wearing the contest dresses in the style show. The second prize of $2.00 went to the Okra Club. Much interest was shown from all clubs in the county.

EASTLAND GOLF ACE

CHAMP IN COLEMAN MEET
S. J. Barnett is leading the field at Coleman Invitation Tournament. He qualified Monday with the lowest medal score carded that day. He is favored to beat Howard Gibson, the Thurber champ. This will take him to the finals where he will meet either Scott Key, Jr., of Eastland or James Smith of Ranger.

Capitalist Will Ask For Franchise

The following letter was just received at this office:

Mr. Editor:
You may announce that a special City Council meeting will be held at 7:00 o'clock next Friday evening, to consider with some private capitalists, who are well known in this section, the matter of a special gas franchise for Eastland. This company proposes to pay their own gas lines at their own expense and will offer gas to our homes at a very reasonable rate, and will give bond to guarantee their obligation, provided Eastland people want lower gas rates and will agree to connect up with their lines at the proper time.

M. McCullough, Chairman
July 22, 1931. City Council.

Thomas Davis Gets Ten Years

A verdict was returned at 10:15, four hours and fifteen minutes after the case was given to the jury Wednesday night in Albany.

Davis was under a five year suspended sentence for the slaying of Lucian Shook at the Leeray Oil Camp about nine miles west of here in 1928. He was being tried at this time for the death of Leon Shook, a younger brother of Lucian, also shot to death at the same time.

Judge R. N. Grisham was one of the defense attorneys while Judge Frank Judkins and District Attorney Joe H. Jones represented the State.

The case has been of unusual interest as the fate of Clyde Thompson, now under death sentence for the slaying of Lucian Shook, may be affected by the outcome of this case.

Governor Sterling had granted a 90 day reprieve to Thompson in order that he may be able to get all evidence possible before acting on his case.

"FAMILY TALK"

An advertisement appearing in the Star-Telegram of the 17th sponsored by the Chambers of Commerce of Ranger, Breckenridge and Eastland asked the citizens of Ft. Worth to vote against Charter Amendment No. 1 in the election of Tuesday, July 21st.

The spirit prompting this move on the part of these organizations is commendable in that they are trying to maintain an open market for the natura gas supply of this territory.

They also appeared before the City Council of Ft. Worth and urged them not to enter into a contract that would shut Eastland and Stephens county gas off the market by having their gas supplied by another field.

Ft. Worth is having her own family row and it is a dangerous thing to interfere in a family row. It usually terminates in both sides turning on the one interfering and administering a sound thrashing.

This same proposition may have to be fought out in Eastland before we succeed in getting lower gas rates here.

When we reach a point where a corporation like the Lone Star Gas Company can have such a strangle hold on the public as to virtually dominate the actions of the city officials, as Ft. Worth seems to feel, it is time the public should be awakened. If no relief is forthcoming at the hands of the Utiities in the matter of exorbitant rates it is high time that the matter of municipal ownership should be launched. Ordinarily we do not favor cities undertaking to operate the utiities serving the citizens, and if proper consideration of the rights of the public is shown by them it is not necessary to even consider such a course.

We have said numerous times before and still contend that we should have lower gas rates in Eastland. There are numerous citizens who have given public expression to their views on this and all are agreed that we should have some relief. There have been a few who have criticised the method of approaching this matter but they have not offered a better method. We are not interested so much in the manner but in the results.

We should get behind our City Commission in this matter and let them know we are depending on them to run the affairs of the City for the benefit of the citizens of Eastland rather than for the benefit of the Lone tar Gas Company.

True, we want a market for our gas. So do we want a market for our farm products and for every other commodity, but why allow one corporation to strangle the public in order to keep an open market for only one commodity which is owned and controlled by only a few. Gas is a public necessity and should not be sold to the public at uxyry prices. It can be produced and supplied to the public at lower prices just as other products are being sold at ower prices.

A dress of navy blue or black georgette, made with skirt flounce, peplum and sleeve ruffles of pleated georgette. Nothing could be better choice for warm weather days in town when you want to have something that will be cool and smart and will not readily show the grime of the city.

With the aid of the professional pleater you can make a georgette dress of this sort without the slightest difficulty. You may make it in two pieces or one, using a simple pattern with V-neck closing and tucks on the shoulder. For the skirt you will want a flounce about 18 inches deep after a narrow hem has been taken. Mark the skirt eighteen inches up from the hem and measure the distance round. Three times this measurement will give you the right size for your flounce, because the box pleating calls for three times the finished amount. The ruffle for the peplum should be eight or nine inches after a hem is made. Take a generous waist measurement and multiply this by three for the amount needed.

The sleeve ruffles should be about seven inches finished. If the edge

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

Russian Tea Punch

This has a foundation of a quart of tea, strong, but quickly brewed. Nothing is worse in iced drinks than tea that has been brewed long enough to produce a bitter taste.

To the tea add a mixture of two tablespoons of orange juice, five tablespoons of lemon juice and two cups of sugar. Then add a quart of charged water and half a cup of fresh berries and shredded pineapple, either canned or fresh. Serve with shaved ice.

Loganberry Punch

To one pint of Loganberry juice add a pint of water and the juice of one lemon. Serve with thin slices of lemon in the glasses. If your taste demands it, add sugar.

Rhubarbade

Into a casserole put a pound of rhubarb cut into small pieces, half a cup of sugar, a cup of water, and bake covered until the rhubarb is tender. Strain, add a quart of ice water, the juice of one large orange and two lemons, and serve. This recipe fills a dozen small punch cups.

Currant Punch

Mix together two cups each of sugar and currant juice and boil five minutes with six cups of water. Add the juice of three lemons and three oranges, one cup of cold tea, and serve. This will fill twenty-five punch cups.

Pineapple Lemonade

Add four cups of hot water to two of sugar, and boil slowly for fifteen minutes. Cool and add a small can of chopped pineapple, the juice of three lemons and of four medium oranges, and a bottle of charged water. Add a quart of cold water, and pour on chopped ice in small or large glasses.

Milk Shakes

It is quite possible to make delicious milk shakes at home. You can, for a considerable price, buy an electric milk shaker, or you can for a very reasonable price buy a hand-shaker that is quite satisfactory. Then make chocolate syrup and keep it on ice, and when you want a milk shake put syrup and milk and ice in your shaker, and shake. If you like, add malted milk, which, by the way, comes with the chocolate already mixed with it, so that you can omit the chocolate syrup. Add a drop or two of Vanilla if you wish it.

Caramel Ice Cream

One quart of cream, half pound of sugar, one tablespoon of vanilla, one pint of milk. Put four extra ounces of granulated sugar in an iron frying pan, and stir over the fire until the sugar melts, turns brown, boils and smokes. Have ready one pint of boiling milk, turn the burnt sugar into this, stir over the fire one minute, and stand away to cool. When cold, add the sugar, cream and vanilla; mix well and freeze.

HUMORETTES

A demon taxi-driver whirled us in to Fifth Avenue out of Twenty-third Street the other noon, just beating a red light, grazing a traffic sign, grazing a safety one, grazing a bus. A cop halted him. Deliberately he took a big handkerchief from his pocket. "Listen, cowboy," he said. "On your way back I'll drop this, an' see if you can pick it up wit' yer teeth." With this he motioned him on.

Lawyer: And what was the defendant doing meanwhile?

Witness: He was telling me a funny story.

Lawyer: Remember, sir, that you are under oath.

Witness: Well, anyway, he was telling me a story.

"Why, yes, my boy; you may have her."

"How's that? Have whom?"
"My daughter, of course. You want to marry her don't you?"
"No, sir; I just wanted to find out if you would endorse my note for $100."
"Certainly not. Why I hardly know you."

ent earnings are not sufficiently high to maintain efficient railway service and railway credit. A freight rate increase is the only way in which the existing emergency can be speedily met.

The railways are not now seeking to obtain a fair return to which they are legally entitled. Even with a 15 per cent increase in freight rates they would earn, under present traffic conditions, an annual return of less than 4 per cent on the value of their properties. They are asking for only such an increase as is absolutely essential if they are to maintain their service and their credit. The 15 per cent advance in freight rates now sought is far less than the losses which the public will sustain, both now and in the future, if railway service breaks down and railway credit is destroyed.

After some discussion the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved: By the Chamber of Commerce that we acknowledge the necessity of maintaining the efficiency of the railroads, and also recognize the present depressed conditions and crisis which seriously threatens such efficiency. We hereby recommend to the Interstate Commerce Commission that such relief be granted the railroads in the way of freight increases as will insure their continued efficient operation; and that a petition of intervention be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission containing the above resolution.

Camp Fire

Girls Meet

The Camp Fire girls, with their guardian, Mrs. Tom Harrell, met Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist church at four o'clock. After the meeting had been called to order by the president, Elizabeth Ann Harrell, Caryl Cox reported on the food for their camping out trip which starts next Wednesday. The party will have a bake sale Saturday if the committee composed of Cathern Utt, Clare June Kimble, and Caryl Cox get permission from the Piggly Wiggy store to use a space at the front of their store for their sale. The program Wednesday was as follows:

Song, "Burn Fire Burn," by group. Count Book report by Elizabeth Ann

Harrell. Wood Gatherers Desire by Caryl Cox and Elizabeth Ann Harrell.

Lurine Brawner became a Camp Fire Member. She was heartily welcomed by all into the camp. After the meeting the girls went out to the Olden Swimming pool, where they passed test and had lots of fun. Friday afternoon at two o'clock at the Methodist church the State Health nurse, Mrs. Margaret Hasley, will give a health lecture to the girls. The group of Camp Fire girls will present a program at the Connellee Theatre Wednesday night, August 8th.

R. R. Officials

Address C. of C.

At a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday morning Mr. T. E. Little, General Agent and Mr. J. A. Lynch, General Freight Agent for the T&P, at Fort Worth, spoke in behalf of the rail roads, asking intervention by the local Chamber of Commerce in the rate case that is now before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. Lynch, in addressing the meeting, stated that while he and Mr. Little were with the T&P they were under instructions from all the rail roads of the nation. Judge H. C. Shropshire of Weatherford also addressed the meeting.

Points brought out in the addresses were as follows:

The railways have applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to increase their revenues by raising freight rates 15 per cent. Losses of railway traffic have been so great in recent months that an emergency has arisen which not only threatens the continuance of efficient rail service, but also endangers the financial stability of the steam lines.

The return earned on railway property value amounted to only 3 1-2 per cent in 1930. In the first four months of 1931 the railways were earning a return running at the annual rate of only 2 1-4 per cent.

Even these earnings were made possible only by the most drastic economy, including the postponement of maintenance work which must be made up in the future. Had it not been for this deferred maintenance, railway net returns would have been even lower than the figures shown above.

These drastic economies, which the roads have been forced to make, have resulted in the furlough of many thousands of railway employees, with the consequent loss to agriculture and industry in general of the purchasing power of these men. These forced economies have also materially reduced railway purchases of materials and supplies, with a consequent decrease in employment in those industries which normally sell much of their output to the railways.

Present low earnings threaten to destroy the ability of the railways to secure new capital for investment in their properties to increase efficiency and economy of operation.

If the railways were permitted to participate in periods of prosperity equally with other business they should make equal sacrifices in times of depression, but they are denied such participation by law. Even in periods of prosperity, the return earned on railway property has been small and inadequate.

According to the Transportation Act of 1920 the railways are entitled to a fair return upon the value of their transportation property. For the past nine years this fair return rate has been 5 3-4 per cent. In no year since the law was passed, however, have the railroads been allowed to earn this fair return, and their total shortage below this amount, in the period 1921-1930, was $2,575,000,000.

The theory of the law is that the railways represent private property devoted to public use. Because of this public use they are required to forego chances for high profits in prosperous times in return for the supposed assurance of fair earnings. If, however, a fair return is never received even in the most prosperous years, and the railways are then expected to stand heavy reductions in earnings in poor years, our railway system cannot be maintained. Funds will not be invested in an industry which suffers all the evil effects of hard times and enjoys none of the benefits of good times.

In brief, the railways must have higher revenues because their business has suffered such losses, both through the depression and through subsidized and unregulated competition on highways and waterways, that pres-

Bible Class Has Good Meetings

By Wilbourne Collie.

The Men's Nine-Forty-Nine Bible Class of the Methodist church continues to enjoy a good attendance each Sunday in spite of the fact that numerous members are going away on vacations. Several out of town visitors and men living in the city are in attendance for their first time each Sunday. Last Sunday there were 57 members present and a fine musical program was given by the Dragoo orchestra, with Mrs. W. T. Root accompanist at the piano.

It was brought out at the business meeting that Judge J. E. Hickman, class teacher, would be away for some weeks and that local members, and perhaps out of town speakers, would be invited to teach the class during Judge Hickman's absence.

The class is composed of numerous attorneys, business and professional men, several of whom have taught classes of this kind for years and it was suggested that the president continue to invite these members to alternate in delivering the class lecture. Mr. W. S. Michael was first called upon and delivered a very interesting address on "social service within the Christian Church." Mr. Michael is a former teacher of the class and his portrayal of the olden times compared with the modern day with respect to social service was instructive and showed considerable study by the speaker. Many expressed themselves as being glad of the opportunity of again hearing Mr. Michael.

The class will continue unabated its social welfare and charity work during the summer months. The class maintains this work by special contributions of members and all members contribute to the charity fund by paying in during the week of his birthday an amount equal to his age. In this way the class has taken care of many cases and assisted others through sickness and in addition a fund is created for the usual Christmas charity activities for the needy.

Next Sunday Judge Cyrus B. Frost will speak and it is hoped that all members who can will come and be on time. Visiting men in the city are especially invited to attend.

BAPTIST CHURCH

W. T. Turner, Pastor

Rev. Neil Greer, pastor of the Rising Star church will preach both morning and night.

All of the other services of the day are as usual. The pastor, being absent, was delighted to hear that there were 313 present for Sunday school last Sunday. This was seventy more than was present where he worshipped in a larger church with a fine organization.

We will remain in Marlin for another week where Mrs. Turner is taking treatment preparatory to a tonsil operation. She is improving rapidly and if the operation is a success will be normal again in a few weeks according to medical advice of physicians in Waco and Marlin.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

BY ETHEL HUESTON

Rackruff Motors hires Rowena to accompany Peter on a nation-wide tour in their roadster as an advertising stunt. At the last minute Little Bobby is engaged to get as chaperon. They are waiting for Bobby to show up to make the start.

Peter himself showed up to good advantage.

From ten until eleven o'clock the photographers snapped and the reporters took notes. First Rowena sat at the wheel, then Peter, then the two together, each bravely trying to conceal the worm of fear that knawed at the core of his being—fear that the chaperon had changed her mind and would not come. Eleven o'clock—eleven thirty. The reporters were getting restive. Mr. Rack had his watch in his hand and Mr. Ruff was talking business off, at one side of the room.

A taxicab pulled up at the side entrance and a little brown mouse of a girl slipped out and crept timidly in through the rear door and sidled up to the cashier's cage. She had to stand on tiptoe to be seen from within.

"Where will I find Miss Rostand?" she asked and her voice was a rippling low whisper.

"What name, please? Are you from one of the papers?" asked the cashier briskly.

"No. I'm Miss Lowell—Roberta Lowell. I—I am the chaperon for the motor tour," explained the little brown mouse with a roll of brown eyes and a display of deep dimples.

"Oh, Mr. Rack," called the cashier, "here's the chaperon."

The little brown mouse looked ready to sink into the floor in shy confusion as the tide of photographers, reporters, automobile executives and salesmen—and Rowena and Peter, you may be sure—surged swiftly toward her.

"The chaperon!" ejaculated Mr. Rack.

She had told Rowena she was 23 years old, but standing timidly as she did at barely five feet two, with little brown curls framing her dimpled brown face, she did not at first glance bear testimony to such weight of years. Her small hands fluttered nervously with gloves and chain. Her big brown eyes gazed out, appalled and appealing, at the crowd that surged her way.

"Are -- are you Roberta Lowell?" gasped Rowena.

"No wonder they call you Bobby!" said Peter.

Rowena rallied first. "Never mind, never mind!" she announced with a quick assumption of severity. "This is Bobby, and I'm the chaperon."

A few minutes later the Rackruff roadster swept into Broadway and turned South, and the cheers of the assembled witnesses rattled the plate glass windows of the show-rooms.

"You were right, Peter," confessed Rowena kindly, when they slowed for the first traffic light. "We should certainly have looked her over."

They were rolling steadily along the Jersey side of the river when Rowena and Peter had their first argument. Rowena considered the ideal plan for them to tear along at a high rate of speed, stopping for nothing until they reached the Rocky Mountains.

And Peter didn't agree with her. Peter's idea was to drive along at a fair speed. He said that if they tore furiously along over roads, good and bad, through boiling heat and chilling rain, they would reach a point of interest, tired, cross and worn out, hence unable to turn out the high class work that Rackruff had a right to expect of them.

Rowena said that for her part she always worked best under pressure, that something in her responded strongly to hard driving, and that she enjoyed working when she was breathless, almost panting with haste. Peter, in that annoyingly gentle, almost disinterestedly lazy voice of his, said he didn't; said he couldn't work at all unless he had a breathful of fresh air in his lungs and quiet comfort in his heart.

"And of course," said Rowena cuttingly, "we will do it your way. Naturally you think good pictures are the most important part of the whole business."

"Of course," said Peter simply.

Rowena was speechless with rage. She was glad she had always hated artists anyhow, it made hating Peter now so much more natural. He was telling himself that he was very glad Rowena was pretty. It would be pleasant painting her. He didn't care in the least about her disposition. This was a business trip.

It just goes to show the sort that Peter was that he never even suspected that Rowena was furious.

A sudden gulping sob close at hand startled him from his comfortable reverie. He looked sharply at Rowena, who sat rigidly erect and stony-faced beside him, blue eyes glittering like cold.

"Ahe--are you crying?" he asked doubtfully.

"Me?--most certainly not! I hope you don't think for a minute you could make me cry!" ejaculated Rowena.

Peter listened. It came again, low and unmistakable, the gulping sob of a weeping woman. They looked back over their shoulders. The little brown chaperon was slumped deep in the rumble seat, her head bowed low, small shoulders rising and falling with great sobs. Peter pulled to the side of the road and stopped the car, and both he and Rowena leaned back through the window.

"Why, what's the matter darling?" asked Rowena solicitously. "Don't you feel well?"

"The small brown head shook vigorously from side to side.

"I—I'm lonesome," confessed a sad small voice. "C-Carter—didn't come to see me off."

"Carter?" asked Peter and Rowena in chorus.

"We're engaged, I thought surely he would come to see me off, and he didn't. I wish I hadn't come. I feel very badly. Maybe I'd better go back."

Stricken each with sudden fear that the chaperon might fail them—and they no farther west than the Hudson River—Rowena and Peter got hurriedly out and run back to her, standing on either side while Rowena tenderly wiped the tear-stained face with a wisp of handkerchief and Peter patted both small brown hands with great vigor.

"I wrote him a very formal note," Bobby went on, "and said good-bye, and told him he wouldn't need to bother taking me out places any more and sending me presents and flowers, for I was going on a long motor trip with some dear friends and would be gone a long time, and was starting on Monday morning at ten o'clock from the Rackruff salesroom on Broadway, and of course I thought he would be there to see me off, and he wasn't.

Grief quite overcome her, and she would have slid clear off the rumble seat into the bottom of the car if Peter hadn't caught her firmly and drawn her back.

"Don't you care, darling," said Rowena. "Men are all like that. They aren't worth crying about."

"You mustn't feel like that," said Peter gently. "He was probably so ashamed he couldn't bear to face you. That's the way I am. The more ashamed I feel the more—the more—"

The moose away you stay, I suppose," said Rowena coldly.

"Exactly," said Peter.

"But he knows how dangerous motor trips are," sobbed Bobby. "He knows I'm likely to be killed any minute, or at least maimed for life."

"All alike," repeated Rowena grimly.

"That's probably why he didn't come," said Peter comfortingly. "He realized that at thought of you going away into such terrible danger he would lose his self-control and break down before all those people. And then think how'd he feel."

Bobby thought of it. "But Carter's not like that," she said. "I don't believe he'd break down. He's not at all the breaking down kind of man. He's got red hair—"

"Well, he might pretend he broken down," insisted Peter.

"All pretense, every one of them," declared Rowena sweepingly.

"It's terribly lonesome going off on such a long trip without having Carter there to be ashamed of himself and feel sorry," said Bobby.

"I tell you what," said Rowena brightly. "You come around her and sit with Peter and let him cheer you up. He's very good company. It's too lonesome for you back there alone."

"But you said I had to sit in the rumble seat."

"Well, I've changed my mind. You see, I thought then that Peter and I would want to talk business and discuss our plans, and I never dreamed that ever time I made a suggestion that it would just lead to a bitter argument."

"Why, I didn't argue with you," protested Peter.

"I'd much rather sit in the rumble seat where I can think my thoughts in peace and not have my most innocent ideas contradicted before they are out of my mouth," continued Rowena.

"Why I wasn't contradicting you," protested Peter.

But Rowena insisted, so Peter helped Bobby get out of the rumble seat and was just turning to give Rowena a hand when he saw that she was already in, sitting very erect, chin high and eyes extremely blue. So he got in behind the wheel and they started off again.

Rowena settled back in the rumble seat with a malicious little grin. After listening to Bobby's chatter about Carter for an hour, she leaned forward.

"Do you mind if I close this window?" she asked sweetly. "I'm trying to think out the plot to a story and I must have perfect silence to decide whether I want to have Bobby's Carter commit the murder or be committed."

From that moment the rumble seat was Rowena's own.

She seemed to take a morbid pleasure in providing comfort for her privacy, and often smiled to herself in complacent and not unmalicious satisfaction when she heard the steady soft roll of Bobby's voice regaling Peter with vivid accounts about Carter and their last quarrel which caused her to apply for the trip.

Peter was in possession of a complete biography of Carter long before they reached Buffalo, wherthey were to pay their first official visit to the Rackruff salesrooms, and where he was to make his first picture of the roadster and Rowena.

For all the seclusion of the rumble seat, Rowena was able to break in on Bobby's love affair long enough to voice her disagreement with Peter's plans when she wanted to, which was pretty often. It went without saying that they did not agree about the financial management of the trip. Rackruff Motors, Inc., had agreed to pay all expenses for the car enroute, and had allowed Peter and Rowena a joint salary of $100 per week—an expense allowance, it was, really.

Peter's idea of the way to carry on was obviously the simplest and most natural. He said he would pay expenses for both of them and then divide equally with Rowena what ever was left of the $100 at the end of each week.

Rowena said it wouldn't do.

In the end, Peter agreed to divide each week's allowance with her immediately upon its receipt every Monday morning, each thereafter paying his own bills, bearing his own responsibility, and saving what he could from the amount.

Even before they reached Buffalo he realized it would have been money in his pocket to have stuck to his original idea. Certainly it was no great drain on the expense account buying food for Rowena. While motoring in the fresh air made him and Bobby ravenously hungry, so that they wished to eat often, fully and expensively, it seemed to have no effect whatever upon Rowena, who ate so rarely and so little that Bobby accused her of trying to reduce.

"Well," smiled Peter good naturedly, "of you carry on like this for the next three months you will get rich off your share of the expense account."

Fighting Against Animal Parasites

The following article written by Dr. E. M. Nighbert, Extension Veterinarian in Animal-Parasite Control, U. S. Department of Agriculture, is furnished us through the courtesy of the local chamber of comerce.

A talk about animal parasites is far from the realm of fancy as many of you know who have had experience with parasites. Nevertheless, in speaking of them I am reminded of the story of Gulliver's Travels, in one of which the hero, Gulliver, was tied hand and foot by the tiny Lilliputians. Animal parasites are the Lilliputians which handicap the livestock world. If we allow these tiny creatures to go uncontrolled we are likely to find ourselves in poor Gulliver's fix—not perhaps tied hand and foot, but at least greatly handicapped in producing domestic animals profitably.

There are two great classes of livestock, the external ones which attacks the outside of the body, and the internal parasites which spend at least a part of their lives within their hosts. In the first group we have the ticks, lice and mites. These pests transmit such diseases as tick fever, cattle and sheep scab, tularemia, and other serious ailments. Others produce only local irritation and less serious troubles. Practically all the external parasites torment or annoy animals and produce conditions that interfere with their health and normal response to good feed. The use of dipping vats and the application of suitable disinfectants are common methods of eradicating most of the external parasites.

Internal parasites are found in the digestive tract, the lungs, kidneys, and other internal organs. Part of their life cycle is spent outside the host animal usually as eggs or larvae and other immature stages not readily seen with the naked eye. The eggs of some parasites hatch on the ground after leaving the body of the animals as they graze. The eggs of other parasites simply incubate on the ground and contaminate the soil, feed, troughs, racks and water supply. The dirt soiled bodies and udders of nursing animals may carry numerous parasite eggs and infest young suckling animals. Pigs, for instance, may thus become badly infested in the first few hours of their lives.

Fortunately there are methods of controlling most of the serious parasites, and this is the time of year to give special attention to control measures. The hot months of July and August favor the rapid multiplication and spread of parasites. To aid in their prevention and control, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has prepared a publication known as "A Calendar of Livestock Parasites" that gives timely information on the best way to fight them at different times of the year. Judging from the large numbers of this publication that have been asked for and sent out, it serves a very useful purpose. If you do not already have a copy in your library send for one. I suggest that you keep it near a calendar and consult it every time a new month rolls around. Here, for instance, are some of the recommendations for July. If your sheep, calves or pigs have husky cough, look out for lungworms. Infested animals should be isolated and given nursing treatment. Unthrifty dogs, especially pups, may be wormy.

Pale linings of the mouth and eyelids are indications of hookworms. Young chicks may be affected with coccidiosis at this time of the year, and other young livestock should be watched for symptoms of infestation that may be prevented by prompt use of the methods described.

Keep in mind also that animal parasites tend to increase on a farm if no attempt is made to control them. This is especially the case of the same pastures and feed lots are used year after year for the same kind of animals. Remember the example of the Lilliputians. There is power in numbers and, as I have already explained most parasites work in large mobs.

The outstanding symptom of a parasited animal is unthriftiness. Healthy, well-bred young animals carry a "bloom". Parasites will take the "bloom" away and make well-bred animals look no better than scrubs. As it is the practice today to feed on finish young animals for market, it pays to see that they are surrounded with conditions conducive to health, growth and rapid development.

Perhaps some of you have not heard the story of the traveler who was riding a mule on a hot summer day. Bot flies were pestering the animal and finally one of the mule's feet caught in the stirrup. Looking down at the stirrup the man remarked:

"Here now, if you're going to get on, I'm going to get off!"

And that's the case with animal parasites. If we let them get too strong a foothold we might as well "get off". But if we expect to make a profit from the business of raising livestock we must make every possible effort to keep the animal parasites in their proper place—which is under effective control.

Wagner Home Burns On Last Friday Night

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a five room dwelling and contents in the fourteen hundred block on South Bassett street about ten-thirty o'clock last Friday night.

The fire department responded promptly and succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not until the building and contents were badly damaged.

The building was owned by the Rees Estate and occupied by Mrs. Birdie

Wagner for about ten days. Insurance was carried on both house and furniture.

Barber—You are very bald, sir. Do you know what is the cause of it? Feddup—I don't know, but I suspect that my hair falling out had something to do with it."

CHRISTIANITY SPREADING BY PERSECUTION
Acts 7:59-8:4; 11:19-21

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D. Progress usually comes in connection with very hard experiences. It has been so in the extension of the blessings of Christianity. The stand-patters in the old Jerusalem church certainly made it hard for those who were trying to follow Christ's teachings. Persecution was resorted to in order to stay the progress of these humanitarian teachings which claimed the crucified and risen Lord as their Teacher. Special hatred centered upon one of the seven deacons, by the name of Stephen.

Again the Sanhedrin was summoned and Stephen was tried. When called upon to make his defense the opportunity was used to present a formal statement that reviewed the leading facts in the ministry of Jesus Christ and how He had been treated by this same council. In bold language Stephen charged the Sanhedrin with the killing of Jesus. Soon sentence of death was given against him, also in the hope that the Cause could be stopped by destroying its able proponents.

Death was accomplished by stoning. During the slaying, Stephen, like his Lord, prayed his executors might be forgiven. A profound impression was made by all these acts on a young man named Saul, who as a member of the Sanhedrin had helped in the sentence and further assisted as caretaker of the garments that were laid at his feet by those who did the killing.

Such persecution forced many Christians to leave Jerusalem, and thus the leaven of Christianity was extended over a large area and "a great number turned to the Lord."

Lyric Installs Cooling System

Work was completed Thursday on the installation of a washed air cooling system at the Lyric Theatre.

This method of cooling, designed especially for theatre use, is the same type equipment used by all theatres in this section of the country.

This added improvement is in keeping with the Publix Theatre policy to give to the Eastland Theatre patron the very best screen attractions available under the most comfortable conditions possible in all seasons of the year.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Life" was the subject of the lesson in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, July 19.

The golden text was from John 5:26 "As the Father hath life in himself: so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself."

Included in the service were the following passages from Proverbs: "As righteousness tendeth to life; so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death (11:19). In the way of righteousness is life; and in the pathway thereof there is no death" (12:28).

These citations from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, were also read:

"By putting 'off the old man with his deeds,' mortals 'put on immortality' (p. 62). Life is the origin and ultimate of man, never attainable through death, but gained by walking in the pathway of Truth both before and after that which is called death." (p. 487).
