September 10, 1931.

Mr. Editor. Our City Commissioners and Citizens of Eastland: Your "Letters From the People" column serve a good purpose and I wish to use it this one time.

There are rumors over town that the people have lost interest in the effort of our City Commissioners to secure lower gas rates from our Community Natural Gas Company and the Lone Star Gas Company, which we all understand to be what is commonly called the parent company, and that the people are not supporting our City Commissioners in their efforts. Through your paper I want to state my views and I believe that 65% of our citizens as a whole and 99% of those who voted for the three elected commissioners are still of the same desire and interest as on the day of election. Personally, I am. Get it correct now. I say we are still interested in efforts to secure lower gas rates especially and other utilities as well. I did not say I was still for the three elected commissioners.

Mr. McCullough and Mr. Johnson should resign or Mr. Clark should resign. The three were elected to do what they could toward a reduction in gas rates and other utilities, especially gas. You can see from report of our local newspapers reports of the City Commission meetings that some one is not living up to expectations. The papers carried last week a report where the Commission voted down a fixed gas rate of 35c per thousand feet. Why did they do that—or rather, why did he? People, notice the two names in the paper who voted for that rate.

Some say the gas company can't make any money at the present rate. If that be correct imagine what our rate would be if the gas at the well was as high as it was a few years ago. Yet our present rate is almost the same as former years when gas at the well cost more and all operating costs were much higher. Of course the parent company has the rate at the city gate fixed so the child company can't make money, perhaps, by charging him 40c per thousand feet. But the boy is working for his Pa and is not supposed to make anything. But the parent makes it on the son's effort. Every reasonably minded person wants to see our Public Utilities prosper. They render us a real service. But no one wants to be held up to unreasonable charges for service when we know the cost of the raw material is very low. The Community Natural Gas Company profits do not concern us, but the parent company's fixing do. Of course they spend large sums of money in various ways. What of that—it pays to advertise.

I say let's have action somewhere to get results on the gas price. I am told, reliably, that a member of our City Commission has been in the employment of the Lone Star Gas Company since he was elected by the people to serve us, and the main point of his being elected was the belief he would strive for a lower gas rate. Of course he has a right to work for anyone he chooses, but how can he work for them and the people of Eastland at the same time, and make any headway toward getting gas rates lowered from the same company? No man can serve two masters. A fact as old as the hills. People it is up to us. Let it be known if you are interested in the efforts of our Commissioners, either way they vote on a question. This is our town and our home. Why not run it for the people? It is up to us to say something and do something.

In conclusion—Almost everyone here knows me. If you do not like this that is your privilege. If it fits you, wear it.

W. A. ELLIOTT.

The above letter, it is believed, expresses the views of a great per cent of the people of Eastland.

It has been suggested that the people call a mass meeting and stop the commissioners from further harassing the gas company, give up and admit as some have said, "there is nothing we can do," or lay down plans for the commission to follow.

If such a meeting is called a date should be set that would allow every commissioner to be present and then and there the people should make their wishes known, in fact prescribe the action they want taken.

You will be told that this costs money and we have none. You are going at it wrong, which may be true, but there is a way that will bring the desired results, but if you don't try something the right way will never be found.

Other Cities have gotten relief, the state has taken up the fight, are we to stand by, or shall we be seen fighting for our existence.

As has been stated, the Railroad Commission has a legislative appropriation of $80,000,000 to be used for investigating gas rates over the state, and now comes the news from Austin that this work is to be started at once.

Will Eastland acquaint herself with the efforts that are being made to help her and get into the fight? A mass meeting and a set of instructions, it seems, would be a good first step.

The Record is glad to publish the above letter and again reminds its readers that these columns are open to them to express their views on all matters of interest to the people.

ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

BY THE AUTHOR

It was indeed very plain what they thought about Peter. The friendly, admiring smiles with which they said good-bye to Rowena froze into cold disapproval in their curt nods to Peter. He felt quite cut up over it all.

"Don't you care," said Rowena. "When they find out how things really are, they'll be so mad at me for fooling them that they'll rebound your way and think you're quite the nuts."

"Well," said Peter, "there's one thing sure. Everything in the world has happened to us now. From desert sands to mountain mud, from separate floors to bridal suite, we've run the gamut of the unexpected. Nothing will surprise me after this."

"Me either," agreed Rowena. "I've used up the very last of my surprise sensations. No matter what happens I'm expecting it."

But they were both wrong. Incredible as it seemed at the moment, they were due for many more surprising denouements and more sensational ones. Even climatic conditions conspired to add to their discomfort.

The sky had been overcast for hours, and a heavy downpour of rain was followed by a steady, disheartening drizzle that showed no signs of diminution.

They smiled at each other after a terrible day and in friendly comradesly quiet pulled slowly up to the hotel.

"Just ask for two singles," advised Rowena. "And if they give us adjoining ones we can't help it. We've got Spokane to fall back on."

They followed the boy with their bags into the hotel lobby. And the first thing they saw was little brown Bobby Lowell sitting all hunched up in the biggest upholstered chair in sight.

"Bobby!" they cried. "You little duck you: Where did you come from? Where are you going? What in the world are you doing here?"

Bobby dimpled, wept and giggled, kissing them both again and again with complete impartiality.

"You angels," she said. "I've been so lonesome and I'm glad to be back with you again. I feel like a poor little lonesome orphan that just found out it is a Smith!"

"Where's Carter? Is it your honeymoon?"

The small brown nose uptilted itself to a very haughty angle.

"Never mention his name to me again," she said thickly. "I never want President Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (above) and Fred C. Croton, of Ohio, will combat unemployment this winter.

"Thank God we're not nice then," said Rowena. "With the example before us of you and Carter in love and all it leads to, Peter and I have entirely too much sense to be anything but enemies."

In San Francisco Peter found Rowena was starving herself to send money back east.

He had suspected that she was in debt. Evidently her creditors were pushing her hard. He went abruptly out to the little park where they were snapping the pictures.

"You must have enough," he said. "We're both dead tired. Let's lay off."

Rowena's smile was grateful. "I am tired she confessed."

When they got in the roadster to return to the hotel he said in a voice so offhand and unconcerned that if she had not been so vitally interested in his words she must surely have suspected some hidden prompting.

"By the way, I got the expense money to do. Of course we're not supposed to have it till Monday but I cashed the check so you may as well have yours.

"P-Peter!" gasped Rowena. And pressed the back of her hand quickly to her lips. Peter hoped she was not going to give away anything, confide any embarrassing details, but he need not have worried. Rowena shuddered her own worries.

"I'm hungry as the deuce," he said. "Let's see if we can find a good chop house and get a decent steak."

Rowena never said a word about soup. For himself Peter ordered the thickest, juiciest steak they could get their hands on, and plenty of "French fries."

"That sounds good," said Rowena meekly. "Two."

She hoped Peter could not tell from her voice how the very thought of it made her mouth water.

"Well, there's one nice thing about traveling trio," said Rowena. "You know just what to expect of every town. A bed and food and no adventures. It seems a bit smug after the life of adventure Peter and I have lived."

Bobby said nothing at all. She was brooding painfully over the probable state of affairs in New York and her heart was wrung with doubts.

There was no letter for her at the hotel in Los Angeles and she wilted visibly.

It was probably her absorption in her personal grief which kept her from sensing at the first moment, as the others did, that something was wrong.

Peter registered for all three, and the clerk instead of consulting the room chart as clerks are supposed to, turned without a word and went into the adjoining office.

"Peter," whispered Rowena. "I don't like that clerk. He looks like the worst sort of manager to me. I don't like this hotel either. I have developed a sixth sense about hotels. Let's go somewhere else."

"Oh, that's all imagination," said Peter, uncomfortably aware that it was not imagination and that Rowena was right about it.

But the clerk came back from the inner office at that moment, summoned a boy, and immediately they were on their way up. Rowena and Bobby shared a large double room with Peter in a single one adjoining, the bathroom between. He was thickly lathering his hands with soap to get rid of his accumulation of motor oil and California dust when there was a knock at the door and Rowena opened it to admit three men, one the

"Mr. Blande here?"

"His room is over there. He's in the bath now, I think."

"Call him in, will you?"

"Peter!" Rowena called at the closed door. "Can you come out a minute? Peter came at once, the towel still in his hands.

"Hello," he said cheerfully. "What's what?"

"That's what we want to know. Are you Peter Blande?"

to see him again as long as I live." "Carter! You never want to see Carter? Oh, you can't mean Carter!" protested Rowena, who simply could not conceive of a Bobby with no Carter at the tip of her tongue. "It's just not possible!"

"It is possible—it's a fact. All is over between us for ever and ever. That's why I came to go on the rest of the trip with you."

"But see here," said Peter sternly, "you can't just be on and off with us like that. You left us in a terrible hole running off the way you did—"

"I knew I had done wrong," said Bobby, "and so I said the best thing to do was to come straight back as fast as I could. That's why I didn't send back the money I borrowed, Peter. I needed it to come back on."

"Well, what happened," demanded Rowena "How in the world did you ever get off with Carter?"

"It was like this. At first he was simply overjoyed to have me back and then in an hour we got to talking about it and he got madder and madder and said he really didn't know whether he wanted to ruin his future by marrying a woman who had no more sense than that. So naturally I broke the engagement and gave him back his ring. I put my things in my bag and called up Rackruff to find out where I could catch you, and here I am. Oh, darlings, I have been so unhappy and it is so good to see you ly that he was not vitally interested in the details of the falling out with Carter.

South to Portland proceeded the thoroughly chaperoned bridal party. It was in Portland that Bobby, who had been delighted into genuine hysterics over their gay account of the big doings in Spokane, demanded to see the wedding present. Peter brought out the cocktail shaker and the cigarette lighter and Rowena showed her the watch and the candy box with the kissing cupids.—It was the last time Rowena showed that watch for a good many weeks. She left it in extremely safe deposit—for a consideration—right there in Portland.

They gave Bobby a lurid account of the desperate strait in which she left them, and how Rowena conceived the bright idea of getting married as a sop to the requirements of society. Bobby said she always did think Rowena was just too clever for words.

"But aren't you just as married as if you really married?" she asked interestedly.

"Not at all. We're just pretending that way. In fact we're the same old maids and bachelors we always were."

"Isn't it too bad you're both so disagreeable?" said Bobby sweetly. "If you were just a little nicer you could fall in love with each other now—you know, they write the best stories about men falling in love with their wives—and it would be too romantic for words!"

Twenty or thirty years ago it was generally true that you could tell precisely the vintage of a dress by the design and detail of the sleeve, because sleeves, more than any other part of a dress, changed from season to season. When women remodeled last season's dress so that it would do for this season they gave first thought to the sleeves. The contour of the bodice and the shape of the skirt might need no alteration at all; invariably the sleeves needed attention.

But within the past ten years all this has been different.

What with no sleeves at all and sleeves of the simplest sort of construction, arm covering sank into insignificance. But now at last, after repeated efforts on the part of the dressmakers, we have finally become sleeve conscious again. And this season sleeves really are important.

We are showing today one of the newest sorts of sleeve ornamentation, consisting of a small belt worn just above the elbow. The dress consists of an overblouse and skirt of bright blue crepe, and belt and sleeve trimming are made of two strips of inch ribbon, one red and the other of dark blue. The ribbons are sewn together and finished with buckles. On the blouse the belt is removable but on the sleeve it is tacked into place to prevent it from slipping.

Notice, too, that the sleeves are made with a fairly roomy armhole and remember that deeper armholes are part of the present mode. Some of the dresses and the coats are made with pronounced dolman sleeves, which have the effect of accenting the slenderness of the waistline.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL

Ten years ago who had heard of tomato juice cocktail? Two or three years ago it was still something of a novelty. But now at any restaurant or lunch room you can get it as the first course for luncheon or dinner.

You can make it by pressing out the juice of very ripe fresh tomatoes. You may prefer to use the juice of canned tomatoes or to buy your cocktail already prepared. If you use the plain juice you will have to season it a little with salt, pepper onion juice, lemon juice and possibly a very little catsup. A new way of preparing it is to use tomatoe purée, which may be bought at any grocery store in small tins. Add equal parts of water, season well with salt, lemon juice, onion juice, etc., and chill well and the cocktail is ready.

To be at its best tomato juice cocktail should be well chilled. It is not enough merely to pour the unchilled cocktail in the glasses set in chopped ice. The juice itself should have been chilled several hours before serving and on no account should ice be added to the juice itself, as this dilutes and robs it of its flavor.

Boiled Bacon

Select a piece of bacon of moderate fatness and let it soak in warm water for two hours. Now scrape off any rusty places. Put the bacon in a saucepan with cold water and let it come to a boil. Then simmer, allowing an hour for a pound piece and an hour and a half for two pound piece. When done, remove from the saucepan, take off the skin and serve with any desired vegetable as a dinner dish.

Broiled Sardines

Select a dozen good sized sardines. Broil them for two minutes on each side and then arrange them neatly on six small pieces of thin, hot buttered toasts. Place a quarter of a lemon by each and put a little maitre d'hotel butter on each, prepared by creaming two tablespoons of butter with the juice of half a lemon, a little nutmeg and teaspoon of finely chopped parsley.

SPANISH OMELET

A well made and well seasoned Spanish omelet is a lunch in itself. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a saucepan, add an onion chopped fine, six mushrooms and one red and one green sweet peper cut in small pieces. Cover and cook slowly for twenty minutes. Make a plain omelet from six eggs, turn it out on a hot platter, pour the Spanish sauce around it and send at once to the table. Spanish omelet is sometimes made by American cooks from stiffly beaten eggs, the yolks hardly mixed with the whites, even after they are cooked.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS MET AT JUNIOR HI

Those present were Carolyn Doss, Mae Gates, Joan Johnson, Jean Kitley, Elizabeth Ann Harrell, Edith Meek, Clara June Kimble, Joy Coppen, Norma Frances Vickers, Mary Kathryn Uttz, Margaret Fry, Earline Harvey, Lurline Brawner, Evallee Jones, Eleanor Ruth Ferguson and guardian, Mrs. Tom Harrell.

STATIC

By J. L. Cottingham

Miss Coleman at the United asked me why I never mentioned any ladies. There are several reasons. I do not want to ride out in front of the procession in a black box. I do not know enough about them to make an interesting column and I do not know enough of them. I would probably describe a foulard dress as a crepe-de-chine or I might describe crepe-de-chine as g'ingham—which last would be sure to start a war.

The ladies have been very nice to me and tried to help me out in every way they could. For instance the other night I got some lobster and wanted to have Lobster ala Newburg for supper. My wife knows how to manage my business but she did not know how to make Lobster ala Newburg. I decided to call up each and every one of the ladies I knew over the phone and ask them to tell me how to make Lobster ala Newburg.

Mrs. W. K. Jackson did not know but she would be glad to tell me how to make puree of bean soup. Mrs. (Dr.) Ferguson had never made Lobster ala Newburg, but she would send over a recipe for chicken ala king. Miss Juanita Danjel could not cook lobster in any form but she would be glad to lend me the latest fashion quarterly. Mrs. Ralph Mahon could not make the dish but she had written two poems about it and would let me read those. Mrs. Bill Thomas was no lobster specialist either but she knew how to make rhubarb pies. Beany Miller admitted that she had married one but did not know how to cook them.

Mrs. Scott Key's youngest son said he was sure his mother knew how but she was not at home. Mrs. Morris Keasler thought that if I could find a good recipe for grape marmalade it might work. Mrs. Van de Venter thought that lobster was no dish for a fat man and would render no assistance whatever. I was sure Mrs. Angstat would know but I was afraid of her and did not call her. Mrs. Jim Cheatham said to forget about lobster and take that course of bridge lessons I had promised her I would.

Mrs. Dave Wolf suggested that I write a certain cafe in New York and ask for their recipe. Mrs. I Wolf said that she would exchange the lobster for pork chops and probably my wife could cook those. Mrs. George Cross knew a lady in Pennsylvania who had a niece in California that could make Lobster ala Newburg and she would be glad to write and ask the lady in Pennsylvania to write her niece for me. Mrs. Joe Cole said Joe would be sure to know, he knew everything else anyhow.

Mrs. Kimbrell offered to tell me how to make chocolate fudge and Mrs. LeRoy Arnold suggested that I ask Miss Celia Haas. Mrs. Curtis Hertig used to know but had never made any since she had married and had forgotten entirely—thought maybe you used whipped cream and sliced peaches in it though.

When I got through with that I sent out for the ash can and put the lobster out for the cat to eat. Further deponent sayeth not. I thank you.

There'd Be No Use For A & P If You Could Deal Direct With The Farmer

For in the "Good old days" what the housewife paid for food and what the farmer received for it were exactly equal. But as towns and Cities grew, the farmer received less and you paid more . . . because of a clumsy, round-about system.

By cutting out many wastes, A&P is able to charge you less, and pay the farmer a larger share of the retail price. We bridge the gap between the farmer and you.

 THE COUNCIL IN JERUSALEM
 Acts 5:22-19
 Galatians 2:1,2,9,10
 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Spiritual growth of converts was always in Paul's thinking. Derbe was visited after the stoning at Lystra. Without hesitation return was made through all the cities where awful persecutions had befallen Paul and Barnabas on the outward journey. The purpose was to strengthen the brethren in their new found and most precious faith. Return was made from Pamphylia direct to Antioch in Syria where full report was made to the leaders who had sent them forth.

Problems of procedure arose as full account of this first missionary journey was narrated. The older Jewish Christians insisted that in order to be converted the rite of circumcision must be administered to a Gentile. The returned missionaries and many others insisted that this form was not necessary and the outward act was not essential to inward faith. When agreement could not be obtained after long and even heated discussion it was decided to lay the whole matter before the mother church in Jerusalem.

It is interesting to note that as Paul and Barnabas advanced to Jerusalem they evangelized all the way. They were out to win souls for Christ and argument about procedure was only incidental.

Follow the debate in the Council at Jerusalem as you read chapter 15. Though circumcision is not mentioned the Paul party won. Findings were prepared which were taken to the church at large. There were concessions on both sides. Manner of life was to be taken into account rather than any mere form. Some of the details are rehearsed when Paul wrote the special letter to the Galatians. Read the entire epistle and not the Golden text in Galatians 5:13. Councils have their place but real value is in the constructive work that follows.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 13.

The golden text was from Proverbs 22:4. "By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches, and honour and life."

Included in the service were the following passages from the Bible (Proverbs 8:20,21): "I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgement: That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill their treasures."

The lesson-sermon also embraced the following citations from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy (pp 468,508): "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay. Truth, Life and Love are substance, the Scriptures use this word in Hebrews: 'The substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' . . . The only intelligence or substance of a thought, a seed, or a flower is God, the creator of it."

CHURCH OF GOD AUXILIARY IN BUSINESS SESSION TUES.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Church of God met Tuesday morning at 10:00 o'clock to elect officers for the ensuing year. Elected officers were Mrs. D. K. Williams, President; Mrs. Harry Reynolds, Vice-President; Mrs. Barney Shoemaker, Treasurer; Mrs. Homer Stiffler, Secretary and Reporter.

The newly elected officers met at the church Thursday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock to perfect their plans and appoint chairmen for the several phases of the work. The Auxiliary will meet at the church Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 and from there will visit all members of the church in an effort to enlist every member in the Women's Work.

JOINT MEETING OF M. W. M. S. CIRCLES

The Martha Stewart and Belle Bennett Circles of the Methodist church met in joint session. Mrs. Ed Willman called the meeting to order and announced "To the Work," as the opening song. Mrs. W. P. Leslie led in prayer. A short business session was held. Mrs. E. C. Saterwhite was elected local treasurer. Plans were made for the Worker's Institute to be held at Eastland, September 29, at which time all Superintendents of Study and Christian and Social Relations and all auxiliary presidents from over the Cisco District will meet at Eastland for an all day session. Mrs. F.

M. Kenney will be general chairman of arrangements for the luncheon. The Bulletin of Missionary news was presented by Mrs. B. E. McGlamery, Superintendent of Publicity. A message of love and inspiration was brought from Mrs. W. B. Landrum, the conference president. The news from the home and foreign fields and from the families of the missionaries proved most interesting and helpful. In the contact through workers on the field, the women of the auxiliaries are privileged to go "spiritual adventuring" all over the earth.

Mrs. Lola Mitchell, superintendent of study, brought the message of the first chapter of the delightful book, "Korea, Land of the Dawn." The title of the book is most fitting for two reasons: first, that Korea is such a very old country that she was existent in the very dawn of history; and then that the Christian religion is in the very fullness of dawn at the present time in the land of Korea. Political, social, industrial and economic conditions in Korea were discussed, with special stress being laid upon the dominance and unfair advantages taken by Japan in all her relations with Korea.

History of different religious movements in Korea was briefly outlined and the fact was brought out that Spirit worship, Confucianism, Buddhism and Animism all prepared the way for the coming of Christianity. Korea, from the very first, received Christianity so enthusiastically that it has been called the "hot bed of Christianity." The great revival of 1907, which began in a prayer meeting, was vividly presented by Mrs. Willman. Mrs. F. L. Dragoog told of a wonderful revival meeting in which she once took part, which came as a direct result of the marvelous revival in Korea.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Mickle. Those present were Meses. T. M. Collie, Willman, Sparks, McGlamery, Mickle, Kenney, Leslie, Mitchell, Shearer, W. W. Kelly, Dragoog and Stubblefield.

B. W. M. S. MET MON. AFTERNOON

The Baptist Woman's Missionary Society met Monday afternoon in the church at 2:30 for a business and social meeting. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. S. C. Walker. Parker, acting as teacher for the group of students composed of the members of the missionary society, showed her proficiency in the art of teaching.

In a few well chosen words in behalf of the society Mrs. Campbell expressed the appreciation of the work done by the retiring president, Mrs. Lovett, and presented her with a beautiful pot plant. Meeting closed with prayer. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to 52 members and several children.
