ROWENA RIDES THE RUMBLE

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE AUTHOR

by ETHEL HULL FOLSON

"Why, here he's written me two whole letters, page after page, all about college and the boys and such nonsense, and never a word about money." She marched straight to the telegraph desk and Peter followed her guiltily. He had to know what she was going to do.

"But, Buddy, darling, don't you need some money???" she wrote.

"There was no bad news, I hope," said Peter, as they went up in the elevator. "Nobody's bothering him, or anything like that?"

"Why no," said Rowena, wondering. "Nobody ever bothers Buddy. He isn't that sort."

"How—nice," said Peter. The boy who took them up to their rooms did a very unusual thing, although neither Peter nor Rowena noticed it at the time. Instead of unlocking the door at once, he knocked, and it was opened from within. They noticed that of course, and framed in the open door was Bobby Lowell.

"Where in the world did you come from?"

"What are you doing here?" Bobby was crying, but they were too amazed, too concerted, to offer either greeting or condolence.

"I've been waiting four days," said Bobby. "I nearly died of lonesomeness. You were due two days ago. I had a notion to kill myself."

Peter turned to the boy quite savagely. Why didn't they tell us at the desk?"

"I told them not too," dimpled Bobby tearfully. "I wanted to surprise you. I told them to show you right up."

Rowena marched into the room, took off her hat and gloves and tossed them upon the bed. Then she got out her lip-stick and powder and concealed the stain of travel in a most efficient manner.

"All right," she said cheerfully. "Come on in Peter, and don't stand gaping.—Constantine, shake hands with one of the Boston Lowells.—All right, Bobby, give us the low down. Now, Carter Wellmon—"

"It's all his fault," sobbed Bobby, ignoring Constantine's black and white paw. "You know that telegram he sent you, Peter? It was a lie he didn't mean a word of it."

"Will you sue him, or shall I horse-whip him?"

"How do you know? You haven't had time to get to New York and quarrel with him this time," objected Rowena.

I had plenty of time in Albuquerque, and I called him up. I asked him what I should get for the wedding? He said, 'What wedding?' I said, 'Our wedding. That you wired Peter Blando about.' Rowena — Peter — he went on something awful. He said if I thought less about clothes and more about my immortal soul I'd be better off. He said what did I mean by telling strangers—and low principled characters like Peter, at that—the private details of our love affair. In fact, he said he wasn't going to marry me until New York had a new insane asylum where he could control me by the latest improved methods."

Rowena and Peter screamed with laughter.

"Rowena," said Peter, "I won't punch him in the nose. He's a great old scout."

"What did you say, darling," inquired Rowena.

"I said," announced Bobby with dignity, "that while perhaps he had never been in jail as Peter had, and had never toured the country under false pretenses and that sort of thing, Peter could teach him a whole lot about handling women."

Rowena rolled back on the bed, helpless with laughter.

"What did he say to that?" asked Peter.

"Nothing. He hung up the receiver on me—and me paying for a telephone call clear from Albuquerque!"

So Rowena retired with Constantine the train and went straight to the conductor, pointed Bobby out to him, and gave him the location of her berth.

"She's not very well," he explained in a fatherly manner. "Not really bad, you understand, but it's queer little aberrations once in a while. Gets odd notions about teaching and wants to get off the train. Cooks up any sort of wild excuse for getting off—wants to send a telegram—wants to call up New York—no end to the silly nonsense she can trump up. Now I want time to her rumble seat and they continued swiftly east. Bobby no longer did all the talking. Peter was showing up as something of a conversationalist on his own account.

"You've made a great mistake Bobby," he told her over and over, speaking in a low and impressive voice. "I know men. Carter meant just what he said in that telegram, but he re-rented you taking up such a sacred subject by long-distance telephone. The telephone is such a sordid, mechanical, diabolical device. Naturally he would not wish to make plans for the tremendous romantic experience of his life by telephone at so much a minute. He wanted to have you in his arms."

Bobby was impressed—even a little frightened. "But he used to make love to me over the phone in New York," she said defensively.

"That was different. He was seeing you every day then and the calls were from house to house. It's not like shouting 'I love you' over three thousand miles of farms and factories. I don't blame Carter. I'm like that myself."

"But I didn't know what to wear—" "That cut him to the quick," said Peter. "Men don't think about clothes in their emotional moments. And to know that instead of every pulse and every vein and every—er—corpulse—singing aloud 'I'm going back to Carter!—you were wondering what to wear.—Well, I'm just like Carter. It would wound me to the heart."

By the time they reached San Antonio, Bobby was completely convinced, entirely repentant and asking Peter's advice—he being "one of those men" and knowing how they were apt to feel about things.

"If I were you," said Peter with the heavy air of one who weighed his words, "I should take the first fast-food train at Houston."

"I'll do it," declared Bobby. "I'll take the first train from Houston and I won't breathe a word to Carter. Then if I do change my mind along the road I can call him up somewhere."

So in Houston, Peter put her on you to see that she goes straight through to New York. Her doctor will meet her at the station and I'm depending on you to see that she gets safely into his hands. She'll be no trouble at all, one of the sweetest girls that ever lived, but just will get that odd notion about travel."

Peter gave the conductor ten dollars, who said he could safely promise that she would reach her doctor without misadventure.

"You'll know him all right," said Peter. "He's red headed and kind of square jawed."

The conductor, who was pretty square jawed himself, promised to see to it. Peter passed on the same word and a five dollar bill to the Porter in her pullman, and then sent a telegram to Carter announcing the exact moment of her arrival and advising him to get in touch with the conductor of the train. Then he hurriedly rejoined the girls.

"Good bye darling," said Rowena cheerfully. "See you in New Orleans." "Oh, no, you won't" said Bobby. "You won't see me again till you get back to New York."

At the hotel in Houston they found another fat letter for Rowena and a telegram which she opened nervously. But it was only Buddy's answer to her inquiry from El Paso.

"No," it stated briefly. "If I needed money, wouldn't I ask for it?"

And hard up as she was, Rowena gave herself the satisfaction of wiring back the one word.

"Yes." There was also a telegraphic money transfer for Peter, to the amount of fifty dollars, and with it the short cold message.

"You go to hell."

It was from Ronald Rostand. Rowena was wrong about it. Buddy needed money a great many times after that but never asked for it again. He accepted a job in a haberdashery where he worked two hours every afternoon and all day Saturday. Rowena didn't like that because it kept him away from ball games, but all Buddy said to her objection was, "I've seen a ball game."

Rowena was quite uneasy about it all.

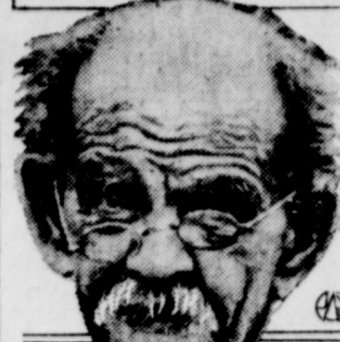

Peter wanted to write him again, tried many times to put his friendly feelings into phrases, to say cheerio and tell him he was quite the stuff. He would even have apologized for his meddling. But somehow the kindly thoughts would not be written, for he had not Rowena's facility with words and it was only in the pressure of deep emotion that Peter turned to the pen. And so, months later, when the two met for the first time, there had been no interchange of opinions between them after Buddy's lucid wire. But when Rowena with a hand of each in one of hers, said brightly:

"Oh, Peter, this is Buddy!" they shook hands heartily, and Peter said, "Well, hello!"

"Hello, hello," said Buddy. And they both laughed a little and each knew exactly what the other had in mind.

They had looked forward to New Orleans as one of the high spots of the entire tour. They had heard enthusiastic friends rave over its quaint charm, had seen exquisite etchings of its thousand odd little corners, had sampled its time honored recipes. Peter had his heart set on doing something really worth while in New Orleans—two really worth while things one for Rackruff Motors, Inc., and one for Peter Blando and his future. It was his idea to pick out the most picturesque and typical corner, with just a small portion of the roadster showing and with Rowena peering out mistily into a shadowy street—a new Rowena, shimmering and shadowy herself behind a Spanish veil. Rowena, on the other hand, thought it would strike a more telling note to have the quaint old shop and the quaint old street with a strictly modern Rackruff and a strictly modern Rowena standing out in bold relief.

Rowena and Peter never had the same idea about pictures, and Rowena wouldn't admit for a minute that Peter was always right. Certainly, whether right or wrong, he would have his own way when it came to pictures.

It was in vain that Rowena argued she wasn't the type to do a native daughter peeping out—she was strictly a New Yorker, looking fascinatedly in.

W. M. U. NEWS

Girls Basket Ball Practice.

The girls basket ball practice began Thursday, September 24th in the W. M. U. gymnasium. There was a good turnout and the girls put in an hour of good, hard practice. Beginning Monday they expect to practice every afternoon from four to five o'clock. This is hoped to fit the girls for the games already scheduled for the near future. W. M. U. has some good players this year and we are expecting a good team, one that will give their opposing teams some food "practice."

Pep Meeting.

A pep meeting was called Thursday, September 24th at 9:40 in room No. 1. A large majority of the student body was present and much pep and enthusiasm was shown by all. The pep squad is increasing in both number and zeal and we intend to make the games a real success by the help of this group. The pep squad were on hand to give the boys some real encouragement with their school songs, and their "Rah, Rah, Rah's" before the team left for Weatherford for their first scheduled football game.

Warner Stags Meet Weatherford

Last Friday, September 25th, W. M. U.'s Stags motored to Weatherford where they pitched a hard but losing battle against the Weatherford Coyotes. They were far outmached but succeeded in holding the score to fourteen downs.

We admire them for their fine spirit that they exhibit over their loss.

Warner - Olden Game.

On Tuesday, September 22nd, Olden played W. M. U. a game of foot ball on the University field. At the end of the game the score stood 18 to 0 in favor of W. M. U. Both teams displayed good sportsmanship.

A Freshman's First Impression of W. M. U.

There are 12 different states represented in W. M. U. They are Oklahoma, Texas, Indiana, Ohio, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Illinois, New York, Louisiana, California and Kansas. In addition to this there is one student from Syria. No doubt the students who came from other states expected to find a very different place than they did. Without a doubt many were dreading to reach their destination, fearing that the University would be a cold, formal looking building with no look of welcome about it.

It makes no difference how far you come when you reach W. M. U. you instantly sense a home like atmosphere. Instead of the freshmen being hazed, as they are in many colleges, they are welcomed and made to feel at home.

Personal Sketches.

Who—Ruth Bruner.

From—Dacoma, Oklahoma.

Standing—Graduated from Dacoma high school last year. She is a freshman in Warner Memorial University this year. She was elected sergeant of arms of the freshman class.

Description—She is five feet and four inches tall and weighs one hundred and twelve pounds. She has dark brown hair and blue eyes. Ruth has a pleasant, happy disposition and every one likes her. She is always ready to cooperate in the different phases and activities of school life.

Campus Notes.

Miss Grace Bailey, Dean of Music in Warner Memorial University spent Tuesday, September 22nd, in Fort Worth, where she went for an audition at the studios of Radio Station WBAP. Miss Bailey has been invited to broadcast over WBAP on Thursday, October 8th.

Miss Frances Ward, instructor at W. M. U. spent Sunday at the W. E. Hallenbeck home nine miles southeast of Eastland.

Students are still enrolling at W. M. U. Every week sees the addition of one or two more to the list. The increase in enrollment in the Literary Department over last year amounts to about 37 1/2 per cent to date.

The students and teachers of the University are showing a keen interest in the open air revival being conducted on West Main street. The teachers are making the lessons easier in order that the students may attend regularly. Each night several of the students aid in the singing. Thursday night was Young People's night and the young people gave a special program. Two special numbers, the boys quartett and the girls double duet were highly appreciated.

Four of the University boys have recently organized a University Male Quartet. This quartet is practicing faithfully and have already appeared at two different occasions in program work. Both of these numbers have been well rendered and greatly appreciated.

Chapel Notes

We have had some very interesting chapel program this week. On September 21st Miss Luella Warren brought a very inspiring lesson. We are always glad when Miss Warren speaks because she brings some new thoughts.

Dr. Geo. W. Shearer, pastor of the Methodist church spoke to us Wednesday, September 23rd. We enjoyed his message and invited him and others to come and talk to us. Dr. Shearer has always proved a good friend of W. M. U.

September 25th, Professor Parker, head of the Science Department, gave a very helpful talk. He illustrated the talk by the means of chemicals, showing the effects of sin on the life and the cleansing effect of the work of the Holy Spirit. By means of an electromagnet, nails and brass, he showed the difference between the true Christian and the mere church member.

Visitors are always welcome at these programs and any friends of W. M. U. who care to attend any of these chapel hours will be cordially received and welcomed. Chapel is held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 9:40 o'clock.

By J. L. Cottingham

Mayor Mac said he had relieved Lee Reid from duty during the fair so I had to stick around most of the time. Saw Jack Lewis down town without his hat—I guess he is imitating W. K. Jackson. The fair committee put C. J. Rhodes on the job collecting money. They explained to him that there would be no bell rope pitching and then put Horace Condley to watch him. That relieved me of any anxiety there so I went down to enjoy Earl Francis' barking at the corn game. Earl is really good but I missed the burnt cork that he usually wears in shows.

Ed Cox got up a good collection of antiques but he could have made it more complete by putting L. E. Richardson in the window too. John Ernest and wife were down looking over the prize cabbages. John is quite a farmer—he raised a cucumber year before last but has never been able to repeat. Airy Bandy says he has gotten too old to play golf. Did not see him at the fair either—hope he is not preparing to hibernate.

Met Bemous Brewer in the quilt show—he sheepishly explained that he was there only in his wife's name. I was in the same fix but would never have dared to say so. Some of the rabbits they had in the show were as big as Phil Russel's dog. Heard a rumor that the mayor took a bath in the Lion's tub—that leaves him one less job to do this year. The only thing lacking in the fair was the bird in the checked suit with the three sneezes—Kenneth Tanner should have run that concession. Doc Poe says to make no remarks about his white pants—I won't. Wedd Brubbs is bragging about a date with a chorus girl—amusing if true. Horace Oldham and Tom Harris were taking in the fair together—they were behaving when I saw them but I only saw them for a minute. One of the Crossleys had on a paper hat.

There was a war on over a certain theatre's signs. No lives were lost but one sign got thrown on a trash pile in the alley and another one went west. Boys will be boys even in fair time. Patterson was as busy as a one legged dog with a new crop of fleas. Doc Tanner went into competition with me during the fair and put out a daily column of funny stuff. I must be better than Doc though because he had to print his own stuff.

Coach Gibson claimed he went to the fair to see that none of the football boys broke training—sounds like excuse, my old man used to give for taking me to the circus. Gib has lost the distinction of having the only Plymouth in town—Joe Perkins arrived with a new one too.

Julius Krause spent two weeks trying to sell me a hat and then gave me one—now I can withdraw my application to the Community Chest. Karl Page seems to have assembled some hope from somewhere—two months ago he was sure the Indians cheated us when they gave over this country. The English Pound has gone down—you better watch your grocer—he may have read about that.

Stire was down at the fair but I could not tell whether he was having a good time or not. He would be a dangerous man in a poker game. George Harper was about to run his legs off. Even Woody was out in his best bib and tucker. Ashley was present with a bandana handkerchief and two pairs of pliers peeping out of his hip pocket—he was not dancing though.

Well—that is the best I can do and one of the first rules about columning is to quite when you get through. Further deponent sayeth not. I thank you.

Local Fire Dept. to Sponsor Show

Jimmie Rodgers and Swains Follies will be in Eastland for a two nights engagement starting October 7. They will play here under the auspices of the local volunteer fire department, and will be located on the old school ground across from the City Hall on West Commerce.

Jimmie, as he is familiarly known, to his friends and admirers, needs no introduction to the general public, especially in Texas, where his fame as a blue yodeler is known to every one from the city folks to the cowboys of the far western plains.

His rise to stardom is nothing short of the fulfillment of a dream. Until some three years ago he was a railroad brakeman and switchman, doing his singing and yodeling at off times in the then very popular vaudeville houses. It was at one of these vaudeville dates up in East Tennessee that Mr. Ralph Peer of the Victor Company heard his act and an interview was immediately arranged by the local manager of the theatre, and in less than twenty-four hours both of them were on a train bound for Camden, N. J., where Jimmie's first record was made. From that moment on his reputation began and has continued to grow as a singer and yodeler of those quaint blue songs throughout the civilized world.

The Swain show is said to be a big show in itself, carrying a complete cast of many performers, being a combination of drama, vaudeville, musical comedy, hippodrome acts extraordinary. A complete change of program nightly and popular prices will prevail during the engagement in Eastland.

The entire organization is under the capable management of Col. W. I. Swain, a tent showman of many year's experience.

CHURCHES

W. M. S. IN JOINT MEETING ON MONDAY
The Martha Stewart and Belle Bennett circles of the Methodist Women's Missionary Society met together at the church Monday afternoon. Mrs. E. W. Willman called the meeting to order and announced "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go" as the opening song. Prayer was offered by Mrs. E. W. Kimble. Announcement was made by the President concerning the Workers Conference to be held Tuesday, September 29. At this time all auxiliary presidents, all superintendents of study and all superintendents of Christian school relations in the bound of the Cisco District will meet the District Secretary, Mrs. W. E. Barlow, for some intensive study and training.

to three o'clock, beginning the first Monday in October. Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite made an announcement about the banquet to be served the League's the evening of October 2, by the Martha Stewart circle. Mrs. Barlow was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Satterwhite brought the message of the fifth chapter of the study book, "Korea, Land of the Dawn." She discussed the educational opportunities and privileges of Korean children and the facilities offered by mission work under the direction of ministers and teachers sent out by the Board of Missions.

"O, for a Thousand Tongues to Sing" was sung, after which Mrs. Hickman presented chapters six and seven of the study book. These concluding chapters of the book told of youth and the New Day in Korea. The anti-Christian movement is strong in Korea, and presents a grave problem. Many agencies are active, however, in helping to overcome these conditions. Mrs. Frank Jones brought an interesting comparison of the generosity of the Korean church as compared with that of Eastland Methodist church. Mrs. M. H. Kelly told the life story of one of Korea's greatest men, Baron T. H. Yun.

This inspiring story was most helpful and encouraging to all. Mrs. T. L. Fagg told of two outstanding women of Korea, Miss Helen Kimm, Dean of the only college for girls in Korea; and grandmother Pak, an unusually heroic village woman of Korea. Mrs. J. E. Hickman concluded the discussion with a map talk and statistics of the work being done by the Woman's Missionary Council and by the Central Texas Conference in the Mission field of Korea. Mrs. T. M. Johnson read some passages of scripture bearing on the subject of "Laborers Together with God." "Must Jesus bear the Cross Alone," was sung softly and the meeting closed with a season of silent prayer of consecration.

Those present were Mmes. E. C. Satterwhite, Haley, McGlamery, Willman, Leslie, Fagg, B. M. Collie, Wayne Jones, Stubblefield, Crowell, Parker, Hickman Frank Jones M. H. Kelly, T. M. Johnson, L. H. Barlow and E. W. Kimble of Gorman.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Reality" was the lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, September 27.

James 1:17 furnished the golden text. "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning."

The lesson-sermon embraced the following verses from the Bible (Psalms 93:2,5): "Thy throne is established of old: thou art from everlasting. Thy testimonies are very sure; holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, for ever."

Included in the service were the following citations from pp 335 and 492 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Reality is spiritual, harmonious, immutable, immortal, divine, eternal. Nothing unspiritual can be real, harmonious or eternal. . . . For right reasoning there should be but one fact before the thought, namely, spiritual existence. In reality there is no other existence, since Life cannot be united to its unlikeness, mortality."

THE MACEDONIAN CALL
Acts 16:6-15; Romans 15:18-21
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

This lesson is larger than the study hour and offers much opportunity for special research. After the Council in Jerusalem, Paul, Barnabas and others reported back to the church in Antioch. Soon the urge for further work abroad caused Paul to lay plans for what we know as the second missionary journey. Barnabas was ready but insisted that John Mark, who left them at Perga, be taken along. Paul refused. These fellow servants of the Master showed common sense in agreeing to disagree, but each went forward with the work of the Kingdom. Barnabas took Mark and went to Cyprus. Paul effected a working agreement with Silas and proceeded to Asia Minor. At Lystra a handy man was found in Timothy and he became an efficient substitute for John Mark.

It was at Troas, famous in the writings of Homer, that the future itinerary was clearly indicated. Here we find the word "we" used, which indicates that Dr. Luke, the author of Acts, joined the party. Search out and find just where Luke was with Paul during the rest of his ministry.

It may be that Luke told of the great need for ministry in Phillippi. It was in a vision that Paul beheld the messenger who pleaded "Come over into Macedonia and help us." Look up the numerous visions that came to Paul both for direction and encouragement. Obediently the four workers set out for the first Christian impact on the continent of Europe as they came to Phillippi. That journey meant much to all of us in the western world. Since there were too few Jews there to have a synagogue a place of prayer was sought out at the riverside and evangelizing began in earnest. Lydia was the first convert and made her confession of faith in the rite of baptism.
