Cunningham Withdraws From Judgeship Race

Tom J. Cunningham, who some time ago announced as a candidate for judge of the 91st district court, has withdrawn from the race. In the following letter to the editor of this paper he announces his withdrawal from the race and names some of the reasons for doing so. His letter follows:

Eastland Chronicle, Eastland, Texas.

With reference to my withdrawal from the District Judge's race. When I entered this campaign, I had records of the progress of other courts in which I have served as court reporter in the past years, with which I expected to compare with the record of the 91st District Court. After looking into the 91st Court record I found that the progress made and the cases tried compared favorably with those I have of other courts, and I could not conscientiously make an attack on that.

Since the candidates for Representative advocate abolishing one of the courts, that a great chance existed in loss of the position I now hold. I realized that the more the record may be exploited the less it would show in my favor and more in the favor of Judge Davenport, unless exposed, and I could not and would not give it other than as it actually is. I realized that since the court has progressed as it has, that in case it were abolished early in the coming year, that Judge Davenport, who has had the job for some time, would have the matter better in hand, and could clean up the docket and make the necessary transfers, and that if I were new on the job, that I would take several months to get acquainted with the situation, and that it would be much more economy to not have a change at this time, and therefore I could not conscientiously make a campaign upon this phase.

Judge Davenport bears the reputation, over a large portion of Texas, as being one of the most profound and safest trial judges in the State. He may not work as rapidly as some, but after about 30 year experience and observing many courts in which I have worked as reporter, I have learned that haste is often waste, and that to try a case properly the first time saves much cost, even though a little more time be used, because if hurriedly and improperly tried, and is reversed by the higher courts, for a trial three or four times, the costs are much heavier. A trial judge must be cautious, and therefore, I could not censure him in this regard.

After thorough investigation and much study of the situation, I could not see that it was in proper position to be improved upon, and I could not conscientiously ask the people to change at this time. I appreciate the interest of my friends, and they will I am sure, appreciate my position in the name of what I think "honesty and justice."

Your friend,
Tom J. Cunningham.

Mrs. John Williams entertained with a birthday dinner for her mother and daughter, Mrs. B. H. Neil and Miss Irene Williams. A splendid dinner was enjoyed by all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Belcher returned Tuesday night from Dallas.

Rotary Club Not To Meet Monday

The Eastland Rotarians entertained a number of guests at their luncheon on the roof garden of the Connellee hotel Monday noon, when a delightful program, arranged by program chairman, Sam Gamble and Grady Pipkin, was presented by Ranger talent, in the piano numbers, and folk dances by Miss Cecelia McDowell, with Mrs. C. H. McDowell at the piano; and a song and clever dance by Miss Vivian Cooper, with accompaniment by Mrs. V. V. Cooper.

The group were from the Lone Star camp.

Other guests were Charles Smith, a Rotarian of Plainview; Tom S. Caton of Clarksville, brother of Dr. J. H. Caton, who was also a visitor, and John Thurman of Ranger; Eastland guests were Fred Yonker, John M. Mouser, and Dr. H. B. Tanner, the last named making a fine talk on the Chamber of Commerce canyery, to which John W. Thurman replied that there was also one being started at Ranger.

The Rotarians will not hold their meeting next Monday on account of its being July 4, a holiday, but have accepted the invitation of Messrs. Thurman and Yonker, who invited the club to Ranger, to a joint meeting with the Ranger Rotarians, noon Wednesday, July 6, when the Eastland club will have charge of the program, to be arranged by the appointed program chairman, Frank V. Williams and Sid Pitzer.

Dr. T. J. Earnest Is Seriously Ill

A letter from Mrs. T. J. Earnest, wife of Dr. T. J. Earnest, formerly of Ranger, reveals that the doctor is in a very critical condition.

The letter, which was written to Charles P. Ashcraft of Ranger, said that Dr. Earnest was in the Spur Sanitarium and that an operation had been performed Friday morning, which the doctor withstood in a satisfactory manner, but the doctors hold no hope for his recovery.

Cancerous condition of the liver has been discovered, according to the letter, and he has been suffering considerably during the past 48 hours.

June Hendricks Announces For Representative

It is a pleasure for this paper to announce the candidacy of June K. Hendricks for Representative from Eastland county, 106 District. He is a farmer-teacher boy with business experience and is recognized as one of our most forceful and convincing speakers. One remarkable recommendation for him is the fact that in a former race, he received every vote in his home box.

To the voters of Eastland county: In offering my services as your Representative for the next two years, I realize that the people demand a constructive relief program.

Your Representative should go to the Legislature to contend for your views and not his own. He should be your spokesman, unreservedly in the Legislature.

Therefore, as soon as you have chosen me to represent you, I shall ask the various precinct chairman of the county as well as

Bonus Army In County Sunday

The California bonus army led by Adjutant Ainsworth passed through Eastland county Sunday about the middle of the day on its way to Washington where the leaders say the army will stay until the bonus bill is passed.

After spending nearly two full days as the guests of Sweetwater, the travelers were given gasoline there and they proceeded on their journey. The gasoline there was provided for jointly by Abilene and Sweetwater.

The three Eastland county cities, Cisco, Eastland and Ranger, jointly provided gasoline for the caravan. Commander Ainsworth designated which cars were to get their gas at each city. Approximately 800 gallons of gas was given the troop.

Contrary to advance notices, the members of the army were orderly and peaceable. They were well organized and disciplined and the commander seemed to have the entire body under perfect control. There were approximately 80 cars in the caravan as it passed through the county. Part of them were stopped in each of the three towns who jointly gave gasoline. The caravan moved on eastward and reached Fort Worth about 8 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The "lost battalion" consisted of about 500 men riding a freight train passed through shortly before the automobile division and was awaiting at the next overnight stop.

"When we get our bonus money, we'll certainly remember the towns where the people were nice to us on our way to Washington," said Commander Ainsworth. "We are coming back this way and we'll have money in our pockets to pay for what we get, and we'll certainly remember the hospitality of Eastland county," he concluded.

Automobile Races In Breckenridge

Breckenridge has been selected this year for the Texas annual automobile races instead of Abilene and the former Oil Belt fairground speedway is being reconditioned for the speed classic. The races will be held on Sunday, July 3, instead of the fourth as in former years.

With entry blanks signed by more than 20 famous drivers from various parts of the country, to compete in eight feature races, fans are promised one of the most thrilling race meets held for some time in Texas. Plans are to erect temporary seats for this inaugural race on the Oil Belt Speedway and to permit those who can not be seated to view the races from their cars.

It has been a number of years since the speed buggies have roared around the Breckenridge oval and arrangements have been completed by race officials to safely entertain thousands of race fans who are expected to be on hand to welcome this thrilling sport back.

Heading the list of drivers are Art Challenger of Chicago, eastern ace in his fast C-7 Frontenac; Carl Mayfield, Sooner State title holder of Oklahoma City; Raymond McKinney of Los Angeles, Pacific Coast champion; Derrell Bramlet of St. Louis, in his unbeatable Miller Special; Oscar Coleman, Tex West and Pete Lambert, the latter trio attempting to carry the honors back home to Dallas.

Miss Dorothy Scott of Flatwoods passed away Friday following an illness of 10 days.

She failed to rally and was surrounded by her parents, Mrs. Eugene Whitehurst of San Angelo, and Mrs. Bula Connellee of Eastland, her aunts; and her cousin, Miss Jane Connellee at the time of her going.

Funeral services were conducted at the connellee residence at Eastland at 3 p. m. Saturday, by Rev. O. B. Darby of the Baptist church of Eastland.

A choir composed of Mmes. A. J. Campbell, W. P. Palm, J. A. Beard, Jep F. Little, Miss Wilma Beard, and Messrs. John Knox and A. E. Herring, with Mrs. T. J. Pitts, pianist, sang "Whispering Hope," "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," and "Ivory Palaces."

Six of the late Miss Scott's high schoolmates were pallbearers.

Funeral services were conducted at the cemetery in Flatwoods and interment was in the family lot.

Miss Scott was a very sweet and lovely girl, who numbered a host of friends in this city. She had recently graduated from Eastland high school and had been in perfect health up to the time of her illness.

Sympathy of the friends of the family was shown in the beautiful floral offerings that hid the casket from view and filled the sunroom.

Saturday, July 2 Is Trades Day

Saturday, July 2nd (tomorrow) is trades day in Eastland, the date having been changed from First Monday on account of that date coming on July 4th and many merchants wanted to close their places of business on that day and other people wanted to spend the day elsewhere. Hereafter Trades Day will come as usual on the first Monday in each month.

A program equally as good if not better than that rendered on last trades day has been arranged for this trades day. There will be the usual amount of entertainment, such as horse racing, bronc busting, foot races, etc. Also there will be numerous valuable prizes to be awarded.

The committee in charge of Trades Day is making progress towards securing permanent quarters for Trades Day. Additional ground has been secured and this week workmen have been engaged in building a corral. Later other improvements are to be added.

The turf is in fine shape due to recent rains and constant mowing and the long grass in the roughs has been cut with field mowers and the hay raked. The traps will be re-sanded and at the rear of the caddie house electric lights have been strung, providing a large plot of ground fully illuminated.

Fred W. Blatt has finished the barbecue pit and has the tables and benches in a little house in case of rain, with adequate accommodations for 25 or 30 people. For the convenience of all members who wish to participate in the barbecue, call Mr. Cook, 411, to make any arrangements for that evening.

To ascertain if the pit was in proper working order, Curtis Hertig officiated at a little steak fry, for a small bunch of the club members, and all will vouch for its efficiency.

There has been more golfers on the links, pounding golf balls around the course, so as to get in trim for the tournament, than have utilized the greens for many moons.

Aubrey Cheatham, secretary, states he expects the qualifying list to be larger than any tournament ever given by this club. Arrangements have been made to take care of six flights will be arranged for if necessary, because there will be golf for everybody, regardless of their score.

Eastland members are requested to qualify before Saturday, July 2, leaving that day for visitors to qualify. All entrants should register at clubhouse to receive qualifying score cards, which must be turned in to tournament committee before 6 p. m.

Old Rattlesnake Theory Exploded

LONGMONT, Col.—There is nothing to that old backwoods theory that a rattlesnake will look up the barrel of a rifle until you pull the trigger and blow it into a snake's head, according to "Denver Dick" Griffith.

"Denver Dick," gave a rattler several chances to peep up the barrel of his rifle, recently, but the snake would have none of him.

"He looked everywhere but up at the rifle, and every time I pulled the trigger and tried to put a .22 slug in his face, he was looking around admiring the scenery," Dirk said. "So I killed him with a rock."

The snake had eight rattles.

Your county chairman to meet with me and consider every issue that we are likely to consider in the next Legislature. Then I shall ask these gentlemen to call the citizens together in the various precincts and let each individual voice his sentiment and cast his vote for or against each issue and in that way you will form a definite platform and I shall accept your views as my views.

I shall take the platform that you adopt by popular straw vote and in a systematic manner shall draw just as near a state-wide endorsement of your views as is possible before I assume the duties of the office. I shall prepare for battle before the guns begin to fire and will be in a position to represent you in the most effective manner.

I shall report to you each week that I am there as to how I have tried to represent you and shall post you on forthcoming legislation that you may instruct me as to your desires. I shall be in immediate contact with your county organization at all times.

I have been asked to give my personal views on some issues and shall give them out of fairness. I favor submitting the question of one or two district courts to the vote of the people. Cut all salaries to harmonize with wages in other lines of business; defending good credit by placing "habitual account dodgers" in the same class with the "hot-check artist"; as to the $3000 homestead exemption, frankly I consider that proposition as politics and designed to catch votes. I had rather spend my time looking up large tracts of land that are set aside as State Game Reserves to evade taxes and getting them on the tax rolls of the county and state. I favor every piece of land in the state that is used for personal gain paying a reasonable tax. I favor abolishing all appointive offices where their duties can be performed by a regular constituted office. I favor the head of every department in the state being elected and not the choice of an individual or board. I favor 30 to 50 per cent lower taxes.

These are merely my personal views that I have been asked to express. I shall present them to the people as I have outlined and let them accept or reject them. I shall not be able to meet every voter, but you know I want your vote and I shall try to express my appreciation with service. Please do not heed the political cry you hear that I entered the race too late. The welfare of yourself, your family and your country are more sacred than any personal obligation. You have the divine privilege of waiting until July 25rd to make up your mind and your best interest should first be served.

The independent business interest, the farmer and the laborer have a mutual interest and should be inseparable. If one prospers, they all must prosper. Let us lay aside political whims that have divided us and join hands in one united effort for the advancement of our common welfare. If you favor legislation by the people and would appreciate a government of the people, by the people and for the people for the next two years in Texas, I shall expect you to help me reach every voter before the primary, not as a personal favor to me but for the sake of your own interest.

I shall be satisfied with the opportunity, through good service of laying the foundation for a brilliant public career which has been the one commanding ambition of my life. Yours for united service, JUNE K. HENDRICKS.

Eastland C. of C. Installs Canner

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce cannery is now installed and a personal inspection of the equipment, in place at present, will interest and surprise the visitor.

When the balance of the equipment is installed, practical operation will be immediately conducted.

This undertaking is due to the initiative of Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and is a rather unique affair, for a chamber of commerce to assume, and especially to install such an outfit in chamber of commerce rooms.

The venture deserves and undoubtedly will receive considerable publicity when the cannery is under way.

This will benefit the citizens who wish to make use of its operation for they will be apprised of this opportunity to put up their own food supplies at a minimum of expense. What the chamber is trying to do is to provide some food for the needy this coming winter, figuring that at the present time and for yet awhile there will be abundant supplies of vegetables that cannot be sold or given away, and that can be saved through this canning process. As it is being operated for charity, and not profit, the secretary will be enabled to reduce the overhead to a minimum, and accumulate a stock of food. Dr. Tanner also has in mind trying to dry vegetables and have them packed in five-pound sacks, ready for distribution if need arises. The equipment will be completed by the first of the month and an open house held, with canning demonstration for the public given by Miss Ruth Ramey, Eastland county home demonstration agent. This enterprise, it is hoped, will stimulate our citizens who have gardens to obtain pressure cookers and can their home supply of vegetables. The chamber hopes in this venture to be of direct service to Eastland citizens.

Breck Defeats Eastland Here

Breckenridge defeated Eastland, 10 to 7, here Sunday in a game marked by both good and bad spots by both teams. Errors coming at crucial times accounted for most of the scores. A two-base blow by Ratliff in the first and a fielder's choice gave Breckenridge a three-run lead but Eastland came back to tie the count on four walks and an error in their half of the same frame.

A three-base blow by R. Watson in the second was the batting feature for Eastland, while Ratliff was the batting star for the Dynamoes.

Both Turner and Potoff pitched good ball but the Breckenridge pitcher got the breaks at the right time.

The Eastland Lions club met in regular session at luncheon on Connelley roof, Tuesday noon. The newly elected officers will be installed at the next meeting of the Lions.

The report of the committee assigned to agitate cleaning of lots and cutting of weeds and presented through their chairman, George M. Harper, showed that much of the property will be taken care of by the owners, and the balance needing attention will be looked after by Lion club members, who will engage men for this labor of cutting weeds.

An engaging talk was made by Mr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, a visitor, who conferred with the Lions committee on the vacant lot proposition, and also reported progress in the cannery enterprise, being sponsored by Eastland C. of C., stating much of the equipment was already installed. M. B. Collie, a visitor, made a pleasing address on miscellaneous affairs. Carl Johnson, manager of the Economy store, was elected to club membership. Dr. W. S. Poe was elected as delegate to the Lions international convention, which meets July 19 to 22, in Los Angeles, Calif., and George M. Harper was chosen as alternate delegato. The entertainment committee, W. B. Dickens and V. O. Hatcher, presented an intriguing and original program, in a questionnaire, which each member was supposed to answer items concerning his particular business or occupation. A lot of wholesome amusement was furnished as well as some embarrassment to members, who were shy on information. There was an attendance of 30 members. Horace Condeley, district governor for this district, will be one of the prominent attendants at the international convention.

Managers of The Oil Belt Penney Stores In Meet

The successful Penney Stores of this district including Ranger, Breckenridge, Cisco and Eastland, held their every-other-month social gathering and co-operative entertainment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stire, in Eastland, Wednesday night.

Mr. Stire, manager of the Eastland Penney store, was assisted in receiving his guests by his wife and employees of the Eastland Penney store, Mrs. L. E. Beaty, Mrs. L. A. Noell, Miss Winnie Snider, and Miss Betty Stire, the young daughter of the host and hostess.

The beautiful lawn at the rear of the Stire residence was converted into a real living room for this event.

Here and there, 12 small tables, linen covered and centered with vases of bright flowers, were prepared for the foursome supper hour groups.

Soft light was shed by tall electric lamps that threw brilliant colors, radiating from their globes. Chairs, settees and smoking stands, were placed in convenient spots, and an undertone of music was furnished by the radio, which had been installed on the garden plot.

At half past seven o'clock, the barbecue pit was opened by Sam Williams, famous barbecue chef, colored, and the spicy steak was served with attractively prepared trays of potato salad, baked beans, fresh tomatoes and lettuce, sliced onions and cheese, hot rolls, iced tea.

The climax to this delicious fellowship supper, ice cream and home-baked cake, brought by each manager's wife to add to the delectable chocolate cake, the work of the house hostess, Mrs. Stire.

A business meeting preceded the social hour, presided over by Mitt Williams, manager of the Cisco Penney store.

A clever feature of this discussion of the successful affairs of the business was the question box, from which many of the queries drawn, gave rise to fruitful measures and business decisions. The clear Texas moonlight night, the glowing lamps, the radio music that softly mingled with the conversation, furnished a wonderful setting for the social hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Stire were acclaimed most genial and successful entertainers. Hitherto the managers, their wives and employees have held a co-operative basket supper on the occasion of these social and business meetings, held by this group of the Penney stores. This innovation of having their supper on the co-operative plan and enjoyed in the manner that obtained at this hospitable home, was a delightful success. Officers attending were, P. B. Glenn, manager of the Breckenridge Penney store, with J. B. Brewster, assistant manager. Roy W. Gilbreath, manager of the Ranger Penney store, and C. E. Kerby, assistant manager.

Mitt Williams, manager of the Cisco Penney store, and G. S. Store, manager of the Eastland Penney store. Kerby; Misses Alice Hanson, Lois Landtroupe; and Messrs. Garland Powell, Arnold Conser; Mrs. Novella De Vore and small son, Jerry.

Democrats Adopt A Wet Platform

CONVENTION STADIUM, CHICAGO, June 30.—The democratic convention today adopted by acclamation its "ranging wet" 2,000-word platform for 1932. The work was quickly done. After Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and William Gibbs McAdoo had joined in virtually the only debate on the McAdoo plank to protect bank depositors, the convention proceeded to vote. One by one it rejected planks presented as amendments to the resolutions committee report by acclamation. Gov. William H. Murray's plank to support the soldiers' bonus was defeated first. Next fell McAdoo's plank. Then two silver planks were defeated, one by Murray and the other by Idaho.

The convention then, with a shout of acclamation, accepted the entire platform and democracy formally became a "ranging wet" party favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment and early modification of the Volstead act.

Two tables, centered with lace squares, and adorned with bouquets of daisies gathered from the camp's flower bed, were attractive spots.

One lovely table was graced with the white iced birthday cake, topped with three pin tapers, and later cut by little Neil, when the all-important party refreshments were served.

Mrs. Hurt was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Jack London, who led the children in games, dear to tiny hearts; London Bridge is Falling Down, Drop the Handkerchief, and Circle games.

The little people fished with real poles, through an open window, embowered to represent the ferny edge of a pool, and drew out mysterious packages with their rods from fish pond inside.

Each treasure from the deep was wrapped in tissue paper and tied with pink or blue silk ribbon.

The contents disclosed packages of marbles, or pocketbooks, or toy Eastland and the only one with musical support for Sunday services given by a string octet.

Soloists are Mrs. J. B. Leonard, Mrs. A. H. Johnson, Mrs. Grady Pipkin; Messrs. John Knox, A. E. Herring, and B. M. Collier.

The crowning feature of the supper was a wonderful cake, made and baked by Joyce Newman, a new member of the Camp Fire Girls.

DIRECTOR OF NUMEROUS LARGE CORPORATIONS

$50,000 A YEAR HEAD OF EMPIRE STATE BLDG.

The famous brown derby of four years ago has given way to the silk hat, for Al Smith is a big business man now.

'28 Nominee Again In Race for the Presidency

BY DEXTER TEED NEA Service Writer (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service.) NEW YORK.—The Al Smith now opposing his former bosom friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt, for the Democratic presidential nomination is a different Al from the brown-derbied, jovial "Happy Warrior" who was defeated by Hoover in 1928.

In the three and a half years that have passed since he finished the last of his four terms as governor of New York state, Smith has been battling to keep afloat in business and save himself from being sunk into the political oblivion that is usually the lot of defeated candidates.

It has involved breaks with his political pals, Roosevelt and James A. Farley, a mixup with Tammany Hall and Mayor Walker and the overcoming of a series of bad breaks in a business world struggling with depression.

But it has produced a new Al, a more serious Al, with gray hair and a renewed confidence in himself.

His supporters say the experiences he has had since 1928 have increased it, regardless of whether he can be nominated or merely play a role in dictating the nomination and party platform.

raphy and articles for newspapers and magazines. Many guessed it was a summing up at the end of a distinguished career.

Al refused to run for mayor of New York, although he did campaign for his assembly crony, James J. Walker. His friendship with Roosevelt continued and he nominated Roosevelt for governor.

"Happy Warrior" is Successful in Business

In the last state convention. The dry element in the Democratic party tried to oust him as leader but failed.

His break with Tammany Hall was never fully explained but there was a break after his defeat. As Hoover had advised New York state in 1928 it was generally reported that Tammany had double-crossed the famous product of the sidewalks of New York.

Al refused to take a part in the Seabury investigation into graft in New York City, although he is on record as declaring that "the unfaithful should be brought to justice."

With his political activities continuing at intervals, Al, meanwhile, had entered business in a big way.

Entering business at the onset of the depression, he was in a "tough spot" almost at once.

James J. Riordan, his friend and president of the County Trust company, killed himself. Al, a member of the board of that company, had to act swiftly.

Hoover defeated him that Smith was through with public life. In that first year he dictated his biography and articles for newspapers and magazines.

People had confidence in him and the bank was saved.

When John J. Raskob, the Democratic national chairman, and his associates started financing the projected Empire State building they conferred with Al.

The achievement of building the highest man-made structure in the world is well-known. But there is another side which isn't so well known.

Since the building has been completed Al has been in the thick of the fight to rent it, keep the observation tower tourist business profitable and spike the wild rumors about it.

Al has survived and has found time to do many other things. He has found time to make addresses at many public gatherings and has attended many of the important national conferences of his party.

Smith isn't a millionaire but he is, as they say, well-fixed; and he has made what money he has in the years since he rose from the East Side slums to national prominence.

After a long absence, Smith appeared at the Victory dinner of Tammany last winter and on the surface, at least, differences between the hall and him were patched up.

The break with Roosevelt and Farley can be traced to the same source. They both reasoned Al was through as a presidential possibility.

Roosevelt tactfully started a drive for the presidency and Farley went along with him as campaign manager.

And when he leaped to his feet at the Democratic Jefferson Day rally recently in Washington and cried he would "take off his coat and fight" he soon proved that Roosevelt and Farley had made a mistake in counting him out. He isn't through. He's an aged-in-experience Al, a warrior who isn't wholly happy but a strong opponent for even Franklin Roosevelt with all his personal charm.

Fight Pictures To Be Shown At The Connellee

The motion pictures of the Sharkey-Schmeling world's heavy weight championship prize fight, which was staged only a few days ago in Madison Square Garden, New York, will be shown at the Connellee Theatre Sunday and Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Belcher of the Connellee went to Dallas first of this week and made arrangements to get the pictures on first release and they will be exhibited here on the same dates on which they will appear in towns like Fort Worth, San Antonio, and Houston.

Taken round by round as the fight progressed Mr. and Mrs. Belcher stated that these pictures were the best and plainest they had ever seen of any prize fight. They saw the picture screened at Dallas.

The management of the Connellee has gone to considerable extra expense to bring this fight picture to Eastland within a few days after the fight and to show it at the same time it will be shown in the larger towns. Also they have arranged a double bill for Sunday and Monday; that is, they will have what would ordinarily be two programs. For this double bill only an admission charge of 20 cents instead of the regular charge of 10 cents, will be asked.

Mr. and Mrs. Belcher are expected one of the largest crowds yet seen at the Connellee for the fight picture since it is not being shown anywhere else in this section at this time and numerous fight fans from all over the Oil Belt have signified their intention of seeing the show at the Connellee.

EASTLAND WINS

Eastland took the long end of the intercity golf match with Breckenridge played on the Eastland golf course Sunday by winning five matches to three for the visitors. Breckenridge only sent eight players for the competition.

John Mouser of Eastland defeated A. E. Sweeney 2-1. George Wilkins swamped Hank Sweeney of the visitors 6-5. Doug Jones beat John Williams 5-3 and Red Jones beat Dr. Snyder by the same score.

Mrs. Agnes Harwood Doyle returned home Sunday morning from a three-day stay in San Antonio, when the trip to and from that city, was made by the airplane route.

Mrs. J. F. Tucker, 1021 West Main street, has returned from a motor trip to the Carlisle Cavern accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown of Abilene.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

MOSES' CHILDHOOD

Text: Ex. 2:1-10; Oc. 7:22. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 3.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. From the close of the last quarter's lessons, with the going down of Jacob with his family and his caravan into Egypt and his reception there with the favor of Pharaoh and all the glory that attached to having a son as the first minister of state, we come now, after a long period, to a very different situation for Israel.

A change of dynasty had brought in a king who knew not Joseph, and a people who had formerly been in favor were now in a condition of slavery and oppression. With the virility that throughout history has so strongly characterized the Jewish people, the increase of population, only added in some ways to their burdens—their masters fearing their increasing strength and therefore suppressing and oppressing them the more.

It was under these circumstances that the brutal order was issued that every new-born Jewish male child should be thrown into the Nile.

If there is anything that could defeat the evil purposes of tyrants, it is mother love and a mother's love for one babe made a preparation for her child which proved his salvation.

For three months she hid the babe, and then when it was impossible to hide him longer, she took the lesser chance, where she was faced with inevitable tragedy, and she cast her babe to the mercies of a frail basket of rushes, made water-tight with tar, and entrusted to the river. Then she placed the babe's sister to watch the fortunes of the little ark of bullrushes and its precious passenger.

Thus it was that the daughter of Pharaoh, coming down to the river to bathe, saw the basket, sent her maidens to fetch it, and as she beheld the weeping babe was touched with compassion, and though she knew it was "one of the Hebrew's children," her compassion was evidently none the less real. There it was that the older sister made her presence known with a wise suggestion. "Shall I go and call thee a nurse of the Hebrew women?" And in this way the child's own mother was installed as nurse.

In this way the life of Moses was saved, and he began even in his babyhood his preparation for leadership. It began, as most great leadership does, with a mother's influence and instruction.

It began, also, with an opportunity for large education in the wisdom of the time. The one form of preparation was no less useful, nor useful, than the other. For effective work, efficient preparation in knowledge and in the proper training of the faculties is as essential as an earnest purpose and a kindly disposition.

We make, sometimes, the very great mistake of assuming that good intentions and kindness of character are substitutes for ability and intelligent application to the task in hand. It is a mistaken judgment.

It is not enough to be good and let somebody else be clever, but goodness, if it has any real meaning, implies that we are seeking also to be as clever and able as we can be, and to do our work not only with good will but as well as we can with the faculties and powers that God has given us.

Mrs. A. H. Johnson left Tuesday morning for a two days visit with Mrs. J. R. Webb of Albany.

Miss Johnnie Hightower, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Courtney in Fort Worth, the past few months, is now the guest, accompanied by her niece, Catherine Courtney, of her brother, I. A. Hightower, and wife.

Miss Marjorie Taggart of Fort Worth will remain another week in Eastland, the guest of her sister, Mrs. James A. Jarboe, and of Miss Marjorie Davison.

Judge John D. McRae is now on the road to recovery, which will be glad news to his host of friends. He has had a long illness, and is still confined to his room, but shows a very distinct improvement in health.

WITCH HAZEL divining rods were thought to be useful, also, in sinking wells for water, and many superstitious persons of the last century would not think of boring a well without first sending for a man skilled in the use of the witch hazel fork.

EARLY WRITERS almost invariably described the giraffe as having forelegs of considerably greater length than the hind ones, and today it is no wonder that this impression is still quite common.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
To prevent her son, David, from marrying Kitty Lane, a waitress, Mrs. Livingston arranged for Judge Forbes to have the girl arrested on a violation of the Public Morals Act, while David has gone to get a marriage license.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

When Dave returned for Kitty, she was gone. Judge Forbes waited for him in the restaurant. "Where's Kitty?" he asked. Forbes turned away. Henry, the waiter, started to go to the kitchen to get the glass. "Where's Kitty?" Nobody answered. "Where is she?" "She's gone," Forbes replied. "What? When? What is this?" He looked uncertainly from Forbes to Henry. "Try to listen calmly, David, and I'll tell you. She's gone. For good. For her good—and your good. I couldn't let her take advantage of you." "What do you mean? What have you done to her?" "Come now—you promised not to get excited. Everything has been settled amicably. Kitty's perfectly satisfied. She got out of it with five thousand dollars." "You lie!" "Chivalrous, but foolish." David turned furiously to Henry. "He's lying, isn't he?" As Henry hesitated, David reached across the counter and grabbed him by the coat lapel, dragging him forward. "He's lying—say he's lying!" "She got the money, all right. As she's gone. That's all I know. As she give me a message, too."

was started in a show. She became a bit. The world bowed at her feet. Dot had left Fred and was now serving as a maid for the world famous Kitty Lane. "A card was handed in at her dressing room." "Who is it?" Kitty noticed the astonished look on Dot's face. "It's him." "Who?" "Him—David." "Show him in." As the lad entered the room, he was surprised to see Dot there. "Oh—" "Yeah! It's me." "To heard you left Fred." "He didn't need me any more. He's got paper dishes now." Kitty extended her hand to him. "My favorite ghost walks again, after six years. How are you?" "Flesh and blood, I hope. If I weren't, you'd make me want to be." "You've improved. Yes, pay compliments instead of insulting. Won't you sit down." "Thank you. You're lovely, Kitty. Gorgeous." "Go on! I adore these evidences of your maturity." "You're everything. I've heard about you." "And that covers a lot of territory." "It's great to see you—famous and successful. I'm happy for you." "Yes? Nice of you." His eyes rested upon a photograph on her dressing table. It was the picture they had had taken

She said to tell you—thanks for the buggy ride." Forbes turned to Dave. "You don't doubt my word, now, David?" "No. How can I?" "When you've had a chance to think it over, you'll realize how lucky you are to get out of it. You'll thank me, David." "Sure I will. I'll thank you right now." He halted, off and smacked Forbes on the chin so hard that the judge stumbled back in a corner of the restaurant. Then David turned fiercely to Henry. "If you ever see that little tramp again, tell her I said to keep the change." With that he rushed out. Kitty served her term in the State Home for the Regeneration of Females and was released at the expiration of ninety days. Her Aunt Dot was outside to meet her as the girl came out of the gates. "My but you're thin," said her aunt as she kissed Kitty, "but sweet like." "You don't get fat on what they feed you in there." "No hamburgers?" Dot smiled. "I could even eat one of Fred's now." Dot paused. She had a hard message to deliver and was uncertain how to go about it. "Well, now that you're out—what are you going to do, Kit?" "Go back to waitin', I guess, till I get on my feet." "Oh—" Dot was stumped. Kitty looked at her. She got the significance of her exclamation and helped Dot over the rough spot. "That is—if Fred'll have me." "Well—I sorta suggested it to him—the other night—it was awful mean—the things he said—" "Yeah! A good man like Fred wouldn't want a girl like me around—now!" She bent down wearily and picked up her bag. Dot walked beside her. Her aunt was pathetically anxious to be helpful. She reached in her bag, took out a crumpled roll of bills and stuffed them in Kitty's hand. "Here, Kit. That'll get you a start anyway." "Thanks, Dot." "I know a place they're takin' on girls. A canning factory." "I just got out of one." "You got to do something." "I will. Plenty." A look of resolution came over her face. "I learned in that joint. From now on it's every man for himself." "You'll get into more trouble." "Not me. I lost my amachour standing. I've taken my sock—and I'm up again!" She was. She picked her men and got ahead. She traveled, saw the world and lived high. When the man would not give her the things she wanted, she picked another and kept climbing until she together on the camel. Kitty noticed his gaze. "Is your memory strong enough?" "Overwhelming. I remember you spoiled a plate before this master-piece took." Kitty pretended not to remember. "Really? How?" "You haven't forgotten?" "Apparently I have." His expression became clouded for a moment as she continued. "What was it?—A schoolgirl kiss, or something as trivial? What?" "Nothing, I suppose. It was a long while ago." "That's more like the old, practical Dave. You always did do the sensible thing." They were interrupted by the call of the curtain. Dave asked to see her again and Kitty invited him to her home that evening to meet a party of friends she was having up. Dave accompanied her to her apartment. "How do you like my little cottage?" she inquired with a queer smile. "Little? I'd get lost here. I imagine you're lonesome yourself sometimes—aren't you?" She regarded him with studied carelessness. "I have plenty of company. Men flock around quite a bit." "I can understand that." "Although not as much as they might. Wives are so apt to be narrow-minded." The hurt was beginning to tell on him; but Kitty continued. "Mr. Dean's wife positively hates me. Flattering, isn't it?" "Who is Mr. Dean?" "He's my manager—you just met him." "Does his wife object to that?" "I never bothered to inquire what she objected to." He winced a little, despite himself. "You always were independent." "I'm more so now. I've discovered my real worth." Dave suddenly turned on her blazing. "Is that what you invited me here for? To throw this in my face?" He swept his hand around the room. "It's the best I can do now. I'm sorry I can't show you some of the places I've lived." Her voice grew low and tense. "And some of the ways—" Dave made a gesture almost threatening to strike her. "You're lying just to hurt me." He stepped away and started for the door. She placed herself in his way. "You needn't be ashamed of being here. Some of the biggest men in New York are proud to be seen with me." Dave took a threatening step nearer to Kitty. "I could kill you!"

Milburn McCarty Jr. is now at the Congress hotel, in Chicago, and has a position with the national democratic committee.

Legislators May Effect Savings For the State

AUSTIN.—Approximately $55,000 will be cut from the expense of sessions of the 43rd legislature if other prospective members join in the suggestion of Truman O'Quinn of Beaumont and serve for $7.50 a day instead of the $10 paid members of the last legislature. The constitution allows $10 a day for the first 120 days of a session, including the lieutenant governor who draws the same pay as members of the legislature there are 182 men on the $10 a day payroll during the session. Beside the salary the members receive 10 cents a mile as travel expense in going to and from the session. Actual railway fare is 3.06 cents a mile. O'Quinn argues that in starting an economy campaign the legislators should begin at home with their own pay. The Constitutional $10 is only a maximum figure. The actual pay, within that amount, is set by legislative resolution. Economy moves already being suggested for the next year include:

Reduction of state salaries. Reduction of fees specified for numerous offices. Abolition of a fee system is possible only by constitutional amendment. Two additional budget checks. Under an act of the last legislature the governor will prepare a budget as well as the state board of control. Under other provisions the State board of education is checking reported duplicate work done unnecessarily by the state colleges and universities. Requirement that all fees collected by department be paid into the state general fund and that all expenditures be under legislative appropriation. Now some departments like the game department are permitted to expend the funds they collect. Consolidations of state agencies upon which a report is being made by Chicago efficiency engineers employed by a state legislative committee. Refusal to pay increased salaries of fees provided for in special laws that have only fictitious classifications. Until the efficiency committee reports little valuable data will be had on expenditures of state departments. Amateur investigations are heralding the amounts spent for travel, automobiles, meals and hotel bills of various departments. Until a committee reports on the need for the travel and the rea-

Parrots Losing Old Time Ability Of Fancy Cussing

CHICAGO.—"Polly wants a cracker-ickit!" "Polly wants a cracker-ickit!" is obsolete. That well rounded vocabulary of the parrot of grandmother's day, with its oaths, is giving way before the influence of crooners, et al. But it is not only the radios that have deleted the re-sounding cuss words. "We buy fewer parrots from sailors, now," said one pet show head. "We used to get parrots in here that had been around the world and knew cuss words in seven languages. Some of them were kicked old fellows, 30, 40, and 50 years old. Now our birds come directly from South America and Mexico. They are young and innocent, if you except possibly a few pinkish Spanish exclamations." That explains the absence of profanity that used to delight the ears of visitors and small boys, but the new expressions seem weak, and this is due to the influence of radios. "While they are about the store they sometimes pick up a line: 'Come in, look around.' This is a real bargain." The funny part is that they frequently say things at the right time. I had one that once called for coffee every morning and would scream, "I'm a Democrat." "I've seen birds with vocabularies of 200 words, but they talk less as they advance in age. African grays are probably the best talkers, but the Panama parrots and the double yellow-headed Mexican birds also are good. Then come red-headed Mexican parrots, the Amazon parrots, the South American macaws in blue and gold, scarlet, scarlet and blue, maroon and other colors. "A parrot almost has as much personality as a human being. Some are friendly, some coy, some exceedingly wicked and touchy. An inveterately cross parrot will scream, swear and tear up everything in sight when angered," the pet shop keeper concluded.

Miss Ramey Will Give a Canning Demonstration

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent, will give a complete demonstration of canning beef, vegetables, etc., using the equipment recently installed by Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce. While the complete cannery has not yet been installed, the missing parts will be furnished by Miss Ramey from her units for this demonstration. This unique work for the chamber of commerce will be of material aid in saving any quantity of vegetables for later use, that might otherwise go to waste for lack of facilities for their preservation. The plant will eventually be able to handle all manner of canning as well as drying facilities, and will be of material aid to many of the citizens of Eastland county, all of whom should be present at this wonderful demonstration, by the capable Miss Ruth Ramey.

Judge Garrett Calls Meeting For Tuesday

Clyde Garrett, County Judge of Eastland county has authorized this paper to announce that he has called a mass meeting of the citizenship of Eastland to be held Tuesday, July 5th, at 2 p. m. at Eastland in the 91st District Court room. The meeting is being held for the purpose of passing suitable resolutions calling upon the Governor to convene a special session of the legislature for the purpose of giving our county road bond relief; said special session to be not later than July 15th.

This special session if called and proper legislation passed will give Eastland County relief for the year 1932. All other county judges over the state are calling similar mass meetings of its citizens for the same purpose. 107 counties in Texas have signified they are interested in bond; 96 counties favor a special session of the legislature to give this relief. Judge Garrett stated that every tax payer in Eastland should be vitally interested in this matter and that he hoped that every one who possibly could would be present and sign a suitable resolution or authorize some one to sign same for them.

Many of the legislators have indicated they would serve at their own expense. Probably one or two days is all that should be necessary for the legislature to be in session.

Bathing Revue at Cisco On July 4th

Political debates, a bathing revue, a water carnival, an old-fashioned open air picnic with soda pop, ice water and all the colorful events of well remembered days, a band concert and a baseball game are among the attractions that will be offered at the Fourth of July picnic and political carnival at Lake Cisco.

Tom Blanton and Joe H. Jones, opponents in the race for congress from the 17th district, will be headliners upon the platform that is to be erected in the big park just below the swimming pool. Tom Hunter, candidate for governor, will speak, as well as C. V. Terrell and Lee Satterwhite, opponents for the chairmanship of the Texas railroad commission, Julian Hyer, candidate for congressman-at-large, and district and county candidates. Speaking will begin in the morning and extend through the afternoon.

The West Texas A. U. swimming meet will be held at the swimming pool. The events will begin at 2:30. This will be personally supervised by Mr. W. F. Jacoby of the Southern A. U. Mail all entries to the manager. Almost every town in this section will have a representative in the bathing revue. This will take place during the evening at the big swimming pool in front of the Lake Cisco pavilion. Lighted up with batteries of floodlights, the setting for this revue and the parade of the contestants will present a charming picture. A stage erected over the shimmering water of the big pool will accommodate the revue.

Thousands of visitors from all over West Central Texas are expected to be there for the program. They will take their lunches to spread under the grove of the large park during the noon hour, when an interval of one and a half hours will be given.

The baseball game between the Fort Worth All-Stars and the Cisco Red Sox will be played in the afternoon.

Texas Motorists And Gasoline Tax

AUSTIN.—The average Texas motorist during 1931 paid just a little less than $22 to the state in gasoline tax, according to figures released by the United States Bureau of Public Roads, based on gasoline consumption and automobile registrations for the year. Texas was fourth among all the states in the amount of gasoline tax paid, a total of $30,514,558 from this source going into the state coffers. Ahead of Texas in this form of revenue were California, Ohio and New York, in the order named. Texas showed a gain of over $900,000 over the previous year's gas tax collections.

In spite of this tremendous volume of tax money and the increase over 1930, the state lost some several millions of dollars through the activity of the gasoline tax evader, who during the year became recognized as a major problem confronting the state authorities and the oil industry. It has been variously estimated that this loss to the state was from two to six million dollars, and that from five to 15 per cent of all the gasoline sold was disposed of without payment of the state tax of 4 cents a gallon.

These millions of dollars going into the pockets of organized rings of gasoline tax evaders are tax payers' money which should, in the ordinary course of purchasing gasoline, go toward the building and maintenance of the highways the motorists use. Robbery of the state of a portion of this tax costs the educational facilities that would be bought through the proper use of the money.

Not only is the tax evader a No. 1 enemy of the motorist, but he has proven himself a distinct threat to the legitimate vendor of gasoline who honestly pays his 4 cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold. There is no doubt but what gasoline bootlegging activities contributed to the huge losses sustained during the past year by legitimate refiners and marketers. It is obviously impossible for any legitimate dealer to compete with a vendor who has the advantage of the 4 cent margin obtained through evasion of the state's tax. Such wholesale tax evaders are estimated to have done a $100,000,000 business throughout the nation in 1931. Neither the oil industry nor the tax payers can sustain continued losses of that magnitude.

Awakened during recent months to the real menace of the gasoline bootlegger, Texas state authorities have actively combated his activities. The state comptroller's department, upon which falls the duty of enforcing the gasoline tax law, has made a sincere effort to curb gasoline bootlegging activities. It finds itself, however, seriously handicapped through the lack of adequate machinery and is badly in need of the many additional inspectors who will be necessary to efficiently check this evil.

The chief need of the comptroller's department is the full co-operation of local authorities. The problem is one of local as well as national nature and city and county authorities should lend their efforts to bring about cleanups in their own respective territories. Detection of local evasions should not be difficult for alert officers; there is a limited number of outlets for these bootlegged products, and the local authorities are in vastly better position to cope with them than state enforcement officers. Local authorities in some communities have been very successful in detecting evasions and checking them.

The necessity for halting the tax evader's activities is acute—more acute than is generally admitted—and it is to the interest of every law abiding citizen to do his utmost toward co-operating with authorities in their efforts to stamp it out.

QUESTIONS FOR CANDIDATES FOR THE LEGISLATURE (Both Houses) BY EASTLAND COUNTY TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION.

1. If elected will you do all you can to eliminate all unnecessary bureaus, commissions, departments of government and offices; combine as many of those that are necessary as will best serve the interest of the people at the least expense; and reduce all salaries of public officers and employees to the level of values generally in the state of property and wages?

2. If elected will you do all you can to enact a state income tax law that will result in relieving the property of all state ad valorem taxes, and cause the profit bearing industries to bear their share of the cost of government?

3. If elected will you do all you can to repeal Art. 1533a R. S. 1925, which enables foreign monopolies to manage the business of corporations doing business in this state without subjecting themselves to the laws of our state or the jurisdiction of our courts?

4. If elected will you do all you can to repeal that part of Art. 1128 R. S. 1925, which protects utility corporations in profits on their investments of not less than 10 per cent, when we have no laws protecting the individual citizen in any profits at all?

5. If elected will you vote to repeal the present truck law, and enact such a law as will protect the traveling public from an improper use of the highways by the truck owners, but will give them a right to use the highway in a fair, reasonable way, and haul freight at their own prices, provided they charge the same price for the same services wherever they do business?

6. Since our state constitution forbids monopolies as being against the spirit of a free people, and since the utility companies have, by a combination of great wealth and the aid of laws granting them special privileges not enjoyed by citizens, monopolized the utility business of our state, and are now charging boom-day prices, and are even raising the rates where they have no competition; and since they have, in defiance of public policy and common justice, made it a practice of killing competition by reducing rates below the cost of production and a fair profit where competition appears, and at the same time raising rates (sometimes double) in other places for the same service; therefore, if elected will you do all you can to enact a law that will prevent this banditry in business by the utility companies, with such penalties and provisions as will make the law effective?

Please answer each question "yes" or "no," and then add whatever explanation you wish to add. Signed: COMMITTEE OF EASTLAND COUNTY TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION.

4 IOOF Degree Teams In Contest

The noble grand, Don Cook, of the Ranger I. O. O. F. lodge, presided at the meeting of the Eastland lodge held Tuesday night in I. O. O. F. hall, when the degree contest, in the four lodges in the tournament representing, Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge and Strawn, in their contest for membership, and interest which is in its third month and closes with the next month's work, was graded by judges, one person from each of the four lodges, Davis from Breckenridge, D. H. Lankford; W. E. Myers of Fort Worth, candidate for congress-at-large; place No. 2, and the Strawn judge.

This lodge is the Flatwood lodge and one of the strongest of the four towns, with I. C. Butler, as the efficient noble grand.

The four lodges in this tournament will meet in Breckenridge the last Monday in July, at 8 p. m., when Eastland will put on the initiatory degree for the whole four lodges engaged in this work.

The Flatwoods lodge meets every Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. There were 30 members present at this initiatory degree exemplification, Tuesday night, the greater number of whom were from out of town.

Refreshments of iced lemonade and cake were served at the end of the season.

Chief Reid is to Take a Vacation

Contrary to a rumor afloat about the streets of Eastland this morning, Lee Reid has not resigned as chief of police but merely asked for a 30 days leave of absence.

John D. Seale will act in the capacity of chief of police during the absence of Reid.

Eastland was honored by the visit of Hon. Thomas L. Blanton of Taylor county, congressman of the seventeenth district, accompanied by his two sons, calling on the Eastland Telegram office, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Blanton was looking after his political fences, and was making a search of the records while here.

The noted gentleman was his usual breezy self. He stated he was en route to Ranger and other towns east.

MERRIMACK, Wis.—A prehistoric Indian village was discovered north of here recently by members of the Wisconsin Archeological Society.

Fireplace stones are still visible and a few pieces of ancient Algonquin type pottery, flint chips and hammerstones were found.

Unusually low water in Lake Wisconsin made the discovery possible, Charles E. Brown, Madison, secretary of the society, said.
