NEW TAXES HIT JOHN CITIZEN 25 TIMES FROM MORNING SHOWER TO NIGHT CLUB

No wonder folks get dizzy trying to keep track of Uncle Sam's new taxes! This sketch illustrates just a few of the new 1932 levies which are designed to balance the federal budget by raising additional revenue of $1,118,500,000 this year—which is about $10 for every man, woman and child in the land, or approximately $50 per family.

Sleep Is Cheapest Pleasure and It's Free

(Copyright, 1932, NEA Service) Every day and in almost every way, whether you realize it or not, you are paying taxes to Uncle Sam to help him raise the $1,118,500,000 in additional revenue which the recently enacted revenue act of 1932 is designed to produce for balancing the federal budget. This total represents, on the average, about $10 a year in increased taxes for every man, woman and child in the United States—or $50 a family. These taxes have been in effect for several weeks, but it is probable even now that many persons do not realize the multitude of ways in which they claim toll from American pocketbooks every day. The reason for this is that many of the new levies are "manufacturer's sales taxes," in which the tax must be paid originally by the manufacturer and is therefore concealed in an increased sale price for the article. A clear way to show the multiplicity of these new federal taxes (but by no means all of them) is to take an average day in the life of an average man. You will see that he may be called on to pay taxes to Uncle Sam 25 times a day: 1—He arises and takes his morning bath—with toilet soap, on which there is a tax of 5 per cent. 2—He brushes his teeth with a dentifrice—on which there is a tax of 5 per cent. 3—He shaves and powders his face—5 per cent tax on the shaving cream, 10 per cent tax on the talcum powder. 4—He has coffee and toast with his breakfast—3 per cent tax on the electricity consumed by the electric toaster and electric percolator. 5—He glances at his watch to see if he is late for work—10 per cent tax on the watch, if it cost more than $5. 6—He drives to work in his auto—3 per cent sales tax on his auto if it is a new one, 1 cent per gallon tax on his gasoline, 1 cent a quart tax on his lubricating oil, approximately 11 per cent tax on his new tires and 15 per cent tax on his new tubes. 7—A spark plug fails on his way down and he stops at a garage for a new one—2 per cent tax on auto accessories and parts. 8—Arriving at his office, he sends a telegram—5 per cent tax on telegrams. 9—He makes a long distance telephone call—10 cent tax on messages costing between 50 cents and $1; 15 cents on tolls between $1 and $2; 20 cents on tolls of $2 or more. 10—He lights a cigar—tax of 2 cents per 1000 on matches of wood, 1/2 cent per 1000 on the paper kind. 11—He writes a check—2 cent tax on each bank check. 12—He mails the check—3 cent letter postage now, an increase or "postal tax" of 1 cent. 13—He goes to his bank and opens his safety deposit box to remove a bond which he wants to sell—10 per cent tax on rental of safety deposit boxes. 14—He goes to the office of a broker—who pays 5 per cent tax on his leased wire. 15—He sells the bond—4 cents per $100 on bond and stock transfers. 16—With his lunch, he has a fruit sundae—6 cents per gallon tax on soda fountain syrups. 17—In the afternoon he plays golf—10 per cent tax on golf balls, golf clubs and other sporting goods, plus 10 per cent on dues as member of golf club if dues exceed $25 a year. 18—At the clubhouse he buys a bar of candy or a pack of chewing gum—2 per cent tax on candy and chewing gum. 19—A friend takes a picture of him in golf togs—10 per cent tax on cameras. 20—He returns home for a cold dinner from his mechanical refrigerator—5 per cent sales tax on the mechanical refrigerator, 3 per cent tax on the electricity it consumes. 21—With his meal, he has a bottle of home-brew or a glass of home-made wine—3 cents a pound tax on malt syrup, 20 cents a gallon tax on grape concentrate. 22—If he doesn't like home-brew or wine, maybe he likes mineral or table water with his meals—2 cents a gallon tax on mineral waters or table waters costing over 12 1/2 cents per gallon. 23—He turns on his radio or combination radio-phonograph for a little music with his dinner—5 per cent sales tax on the set, 5 per cent tax on phonograph records. 24—He decides to go to a movie

Buckley will return from their vacation trip to California about the first of August. V. O. Wyatt is feeling much better now. He underwent a tonsil operation at the Blackwell sanitarium in Gorman a few days ago. It is reported that Guy Hendricks is on the road to recovery following an operation for appendicitis at the Blackwell sanitarium in Gorman. Miss Jewel Russell is visiting friends in East Texas this week. Miss Mary Evelyn Edwards entertained a party of young people at her home Friday night and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present. The Baptist revival meeting starts Sunday, July 24, at the tabernacle. Everyone is invited to attend. From all accounts, everyone in and around Olden has been busy canning the surplus of fruits and vegetables. Because of the good season, a heavy yield of garden and orchard crops has been grown and is being gathered. Many are canning in tin cans with steam pressure cookers and sealers, others who have no cookers have found that by borrowing a friend's sealer, they can seal their vegetables in the tin cans, boil them in the wash tub for three hours and thus save their vegetables. Those who are using this method say it has proven extremely successful. But whether they

Nutrition Expert From A. & M. Gives Information On Canning

In answer to the questions about home canned foods and some of the results of the canning in tins, the following statements from Miss Lola Blair, nutrition specialist, College Station, Texas; the U. S. department of agriculture, and the National Canners association, will be of interest to all:

Copy from Bulletin 111A, National Canners association: "Food cans are made of sheet iron, coated with a thin layer of tin. Some acid foods, such as grapefruit, peaches, pineapple and tomatoes, if left in a can exposed to the air, tend to act on the metal of the can. Dissolved iron may give the contents of the can a slightly astringent or 'metallic' taste. Any tin dissolved in the food would have no taste, and even if all the tin on the inside of the can were dissolved, the amount of tin which the food would contain would be small, and there is no evidence that such tin compounds as may be present in canned foods are harmful.

"The U. S. Department of Agriculture has recently made a study of the effects of feeding canned foods containing known amounts of tin. The results of this work have been summarized as follows by the bureau of chemistry and soils:

"Our own experimental work, involving the ingestion of far larger amounts of tin than any previously reported, and supported by the experimental evidence of other investigators, leads us to the conclusion that tin, in the amounts ordinarily found in canned foods and in the quantity which would be invested in the ordinary individual diet is for all practical purposes eliminated and is not productive of harmful effects to the consumer of canned foods."

Copy from National Canners association. Bulletin, "Stop Wondering; Here Are Facts." Does rust on a can indicate spoilage?

Not unless the rust has penetrated the can and caused a leak. What does a hissing sound mean when the can is opened?

A hissing sound when the can is opened usually means that there is a good vacuum in the can and the sound is made by the air rushing in to fill the vacuum. If the can is bulged, the hissing sound is made by outrush of gas from the can.

Of what is the can made? The tin plate used in making cans is a thin sheet of steel coated with pure tin.

What causes the discoloration of the inside of some cans? Is it harmful?

Some foods contain a sulphur which discolors the inner surface of a can for the same reason that it discolors a silver spoon left in contact with a cooked egg. In either case the stain is harmless. It has no unwholesome effect whatever on the food inside the can.

Does the metal of the can affect the wholesomeness of the food?

No. The can is simply steel covered with pure tin and for some products it is coated with carefully selected enamel baked on at high temperature. It is sterilized and clean. It can have no unwholesome action whatever on the food inside.

Is there a taste of tin? No, the so-called "tinny" taste is usually the astringent or metallic taste imparted by dissolved iron, which is entirely harmless.

Why are enamel-lined cans used for some foods and not for others?

Enamel-lined cans are not necessary to can a wholesome product; but they are necessary with some kinds of food to retain an attractive appearance; for example, to preserve the color of red fruits.

What is the best way to store canned foods? They should be kept at a moderately cool, not refrigerated, temperature—a cool, dry cellar or closet is suitable. Avoid storage near steam pipes, radiators, furnaces, or kitchen ranges.

Do canned foods cause ptomaine poisoning?

No. The illness generally called ptomaine poisoning is due to bacteria which are found occasionally in unsterilized foods, but which have such low resistance to heat that they are killed by the canning process. Dr. M. J. Rosenau of Harvard Medical school, who has made an exhaustive study of ptomaine poisoning, recently stated: "Canned foods are the safest foods which come to our tables because of the sterilization to which they are subjected during the process of canning."

Is there any danger from tin in the foods?

No. The U. S. Department of Agriculture says: "Our own experimental work, involving the ingestion of far larger amounts of tin than any previously reported, and supported by the experimental evidence of other investigators, leads us to the conclusion that tin, in the amounts ordinarily found in canned foods and in the quantity which would be invested in the ordinary individual diet, is for all practical purposes eliminated and is not productive of harmful effects to the consumer of canned foods."

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

THE MIRACLE OF MANNA

Text: Ex. 16:1-5, 14, 35. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 31.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

From the pleasant oasis of Elim, with its palm trees and its springs, the children of Israel entered the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai.

The oasis and the wilderness are alike typical of life. The entrance to the Promised Land could not be made simply through passing along pleasant paths with palm trees and sweet springs of water all along the way.

For us, as for the children of Israel, all endeavor and all progress imply the experiences in the wilderness, and we may be thankful that cases of rest and relief appear at frequent intervals. In the experiences of the wilderness we are apt to forget very quickly the comforts and the delights of the oasis, and we are apt, also, to forget the goal toward which we are moving.

It was so with these children of Israel. They began to murmur and to complain against Moses and Aaron, their leaders. They even looked back with longing upon their days in Egypt, and their life there became exaggerated in its comfort into a memory of flesh pots, although in reality they had been suffering the cruellest and most terrible oppression.

Possibly much may have been forgiven to a people in dire necessity and faced with the sheer peril of hunger.

Then came the miracle of the manna, and the provision of food from heaven. The story may be read in the light of the comment that we have made upon last week's lesson.

In our own day at least we spiritualize the story for we have not seen bread coming down out of the skies, nor is there much likelihood of that happening. We have seen, here in America, the spectacle of a people able to produce far more bread than they need, with their granaries fairly bursting with wheat, and yet millions of the people threatened with starvation.

The problem that confronts us is not one that we should give to God, but it is one that God has given to us, and that it is our duty and our business to solve in his name.

The children of Israel had no such resources. There were no great stocks and stores of provisions in the hands of some while others in the community lacked. Whatever there was available for the whole community, but there were no resources to supply the need.

Man's necessity is God's opportunity, and the story of the manna is one of a deliverance and provision as remarkable as the saving of the people at the Red Sea. But God did not give his help without the co-operation of the people. The manna that came was only the day's supply.

If the people would find heaven, they must co-operate with the divine forces working for their relief. Nor was the manna continued when the people were restored to the opportunity of self-help.

The lesson of the manna finds its best interpretation through the teaching of Jesus concerning the bread of life. Man in himself has no power of sustenance; he depends for his very physical being on forces outside of himself, and how much more does he depend for the life of the spirit upon the spiritual food that comes from heaven.

It is well that we should make our prayer daily to the Father: "Give us this day our daily bread." It is an acknowledgment of our dependence; it is an uplifting of our eyes and of our souls toward that power outside of ourselves with whom we commune and with whom in communion and co-operation we find life's highest and deepest satisfaction.

Huge Mohair Sale Cheers Growers

Good news for mohair producers in Eastland county is seen in the announcement by Sanford Mills and the Goodall Worsted company of Sanford, Me., world's largest mohair weavers, of the purchase from the government of 14,500,000 pounds of mohair. This is the largest single sale of mohair in history. The amount is equal to the average annual clip for the United States.

The encouraging point for local growers is the fact that both of the mills concerned have recently gone on record in behalf of quality mohair fabrics as opposed to the disastrously low grade materials which have been hurting the entire mohair industry from the finished product to the raw fleece.

The "quality platform" established by the mills has won wide endorsement in the furniture, automobile and other industries and the pledge to keep mohair products from further quality debasement is regarded as a constructive step greatly beneficial to growers.

BIG PENNIES

You seldom see the figure 1 cent in an advertisement, because there are so few things that you can buy with Uncle Sam's smallest coin.

Natural gas is one commodity that brings you a lot of comfort and convenience for one cent. In fact, we don't know where else you can get so much real value for so little cost.

Your Natural Gas Penny Is Your Biggest Penny . . .
