Trades Day Well Attended Despite Cold and Rain

Despite the cold weather and rain, a large crowd was out for the first Monday program this week. The program was good. Two features were added this month, the cigar race, entered by the men, and the cracker race, entered by the ladies. The men were required to mount their horses and ride to the lower end of the corral and dismount, light their cigars and ride back over the finish line. The ladies were required to go to the lower end and dismount, eat peanut butter and crackers and ride back across the finish line and whistle.

Morton Valley furnished the largest crowd of any rural community. Some ten or twelve couples rode into town despite the cold and threatening weather.

In the goat roping contest, Winch Graham of Morton Valley won first place with the time of 17 seconds. Pat Downing of Morton Valley nosed out John Webb of Eastland by one second, the time being 19 and 20 seconds each.

Warner College Plans Drive For More Students

On Tuesday and Wednesday of last week the board of trustees of Warner Memorial college held their annual winter business meeting in the offices of the university. They inspected the buildings and grounds, reviewed the work being done in this session of the school and expressed themselves as well pleased with the showing made during the present session.

Members of the board expressed themselves as being confident for the success of the coming year's work. Much of the time of the two days' session was spent in discussing plans for the immediate future of the school. Local officials of the school view the outlook for the future with optimism. It was reported that one of the decisions of the board was to put on a campaign to better the financial conditions. However, the greatest result of the meeting will be a drive for more students. This drive will be put on new and maintained throughout the summer months, as an inducement for outside students a very low rate for tuition, board and room will be offered for the coming year. It was suggested that this rate might be as low as $213 for the entire term.

Besides the board of trustees for the college, other leaders in the affairs of the Church of God were present. Among these were E. F. Adcock from Anderson, Ind., secretary of the church extension and home and foreign mission board; W. E. Monk of Bessemer, Ala., field secretary of the church extension and foreign mission board.

Members of the board of trustees attending the meeting were as follows: J. N. Adair, Houston; H. M. Coker, Louise; M. B. Boucher, San Antonio; E. J. Mattox, Burkeville; L. D. Proposed Bill to Tax Natural Gas Is Opposed Here

The bill introduced in the Texas House of Representatives by Representative Cecil Lotief of Eastland-Callahan county proposing a tax of two cents per thousand cubic feet on natural gas, is meeting with much opposition throughout this section. A hearing on the measure was scheduled for Thursday, but information is that it has been postponed until March 16th.

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce and Retail Merchants Association passed resolutions definitely taking a stand in opposition to the passage of the bill. Other similar organizations of this section, it is stated, have passed like resolutions. Numerous individuals have also expressed their disapproval to the proposed bill.

It has been pointed out that if this bill is finally passed it will make necessary an increase in rates to all consumers of natural gas in Texas, effecting 350,000 families by placing a further burden on living expenses.

It is understood that no state in the union taxes natural gas more than two mills and that in lieu of ad valorem taxes. Texas natural gas companies, it is declared, are paying in excess of that figure in present taxes in addition to heavy production, pipeline, ad valorem and gross receipt taxes. The Lone Star Gas Corporation alone is paying more than $1,000,000 annually in the state, it is said.

Those opposed to the passage of the Lotief bill are urged to communicate with their representatives in the Legislature and urge them not to pass it. Especially are they urged to communicate with the members of the committee having the measure in charge.

Independent Oil Operators Form An Organization

All independent oil operators and owners in Eastland county are expected to join the new West Central Texas Oil & Gas association, which has just been organized by 100 operators in the district representing 16 counties, at a meeting recently held at Breckenridge.

The counties represented in the district are: Eastland, South Young, Shackelford, Stephens, Taylor, Brown, Jones, Fisher, Coleman, Callahan, Runnels, Throckmorton, Comanche, Erath, Haskell and Palo Pinto.

The organization is destined to protect the interests of the producers and royalty owners in the district and it was decided not to affiliate with any other oil or gas association.

Following officers and directors were elected at the first meeting: J. D. Sandefer Jr., president; Marshall R. Young, vice president; W. D. Gulley, vice president; Floyd W. Holder, secretary-treasurer. Directors selected from each county in the entire district were elected and are as follows: Bob Lindsey, Bob Windfohr, J. E. Lewis, W. D. Conway, W. W. Wallace, George Callahan, James B. Dunigan, C. M. Caldwell, George Lamb, E. P. Green, Jack B. Robert, W. J. Rhodes, Leon Shields, M. C. Chaney, Pat O'Donnell, Matt Grisham, Tom Bryant, Hugh V. Smith, E. M. Moutray, A. H. Rhodes, C. W. Hoffman, George Dickie, W. E. Lowe, Will Clay, C. K. West, and M. E. Daniel.

Reductions in the price of Fisher and Jones county crude oil by Shell Pipe Line company and Humble Oil & Refining company drew strenuous protest at the meeting. In addition to the resolutions censoring Shell for lowering the price of Fisher county crude to 30 cents a barrel and the Humble for the same action in Jones and Fisher, the newly organized West Central Texas Oil & Gas association protested against the increased allowable granted by the railroad commission without a hearing of interested operators.

RECEIVERSHIP RACKETEERS AND THEIR PLUNDER

Another scandal of huge proportions has come to the surface in Chicago. Indeed, according to the Chicago Daily News, receiverships and attorneys' fees are "matters of urgent public concern demanding immediate investigation." University professors, outstanding members of the Chicago Bar association, and newspaper publishers and editors say they have unearthed an industry as well as a combination of racketeers "preying upon the carcasses of banks and defunct business enterprises."

Now Attorney Gen. Otto Kerner has promised a grand jury investigation. According to the investigating committee of the Chicago Bar association "cases have come to light where receivers and attorneys for receivers of banks have taken in fees more than depositors have been paid," and in other cases "receivers of building enterprises have drawn more in fees than buildings have realized at foreclosure sales."

As for the News, an independent newspaper, it editorializes as follows: "If ever the whole truth comes to light, one of the ugliest chapters in the record of the last few years will be that which tells the story of mortgage foreclosures and receiverships. It is abhorrent to every sense of justice and decency that, in the time of desperate exigency and under cover of lawful procedure, many who have suffered financial losses have been subjected to exploitation by officials and other persons whose carnion appetites are not satisfied until the bones are picked bare."

Of course, the Chicago racketeers have the law on their side. This is the conclusion of the News editorial: "The law as it stands may protect men who enrich themselves at the expense of depositors in closed banks and the creditors of other unsuccessful enterprises, but exposure of the facts should arouse the people and their representatives to such amendment of the law as would end the possibility of such buzzard practices."

Why point the finger of scorn in the direction of Al Capone? He was a bold pirate and never sailed under false colors.—Eastland Telegram.

THE ADVANTAGE IS WITH THE DRYS

Congress has passed the resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment. This puts the prohibition question directly up to the states. Now it is well to study the situation and consider what probably will be the strategy followed by the wets and drys. Without doubt it will be the same for both except for the important difference that the wets will be fighting to line up thirty-six states, while the drys will have to corral and hold only thirteen. A decided advantage is with the drys in this situation.

If the drys can win thirteen victories in as many states, the battle will be over. From a strategic view point that is all they have with which to concern themselves. They can choose the thirteen states and concentrate their activities within their bounds. If these thirteen states can be induced to reject the twenty-first amendment, the fight will be over. Nothing could be gained by the wets in carrying on after the thirteenth state voted dry.

The race is on and the contest will be to see which side gets the decision first. However, the attitude of the drys now seems to be to delay action as long as possible in each state. Time will doubtlessly work to their advantage until the people have an opportunity to regain their sense of balance following the sudden and breath-taking speed of Congress in passing the resolution to submit repeal. The drys will seek to be sure of their standing before they step in to take their thirteen states. It is well to remember that when a state does act that decision is final. There will be no appeals from the decision of the people in this case.

Paper Makes Weekly Visit For 100 Years

A. T. Stewart, a well known citizen of Indiana, Pennsylvania, called at the Indiana Progress a few days ago to renew his subscription to that periodical, and informed the publisher that the paper had not failed to make its weekly visit to his home in 100 years. Mr. Stewart resides on the old homestead established by his grandfather. It was his grandfather that originally subscribed for the paper. The Progress has changed titles several times during the century of service to the Stewart home but it is the same publication. This is a record of service not only for the newspaper but for the post office department as well.

Dog Opens Door and Saves Two Lives

A dog saved the lives of a woman and child during the recent heavy freeze which cut off the treated natural gas supply in Crane City, Texas, oil camp. Mrs. Dutch Etheridge and her 4-year-old son were asleep in their house in one of the camps when she suddenly felt a dizzy sensation, but was too far gone to rouse herself, she later said. A dog in the house, about to die from the poisonous fumes, made a rush for the door and shoved it open, flooding the room with fresh air. Etheridge found his wife in a critical condition, but artificial respiration saved her life. The son was not as badly affected. The door opened by the dog prevented complete suffocation.

Hijacker Is Caught By Girl He Robbed

Last week Miss Marie Owen of Fort Worth, was held up by a hijacker and robbed of sixty cents. Angered at the proceedings, Miss Owen won from the man an admission that he robbed women because he was afraid to "stick up" men. A few days later she was passing the place where she was held up and saw the same man loitering in the vicinity. Running to a telephone, she called police and trailed the man until officers cruising about came to her and captured the robber.

Missouri Stirrup Plant Business Picks Up

There is only one factory in the world for making wooden stirrups. It is owned and operated by the Ratcliffe Company at Agency, Missouri, and for 63 years the people have been stirrup makers for all the cavalymen in the world. Since 1870 the factory smokestack has reflected peace and war everywhere on the globe. The plant is now turning out 1,200 sets of heavy military stirrups daily for exporters on both coasts. Not since 1918 when 140,000 sets of cavalry and artillery stirrups were turned out by day and night shifts for the American Expeditionary Forces has smoke poured so steadily from the old building's stacks. The orders began to come in as early as last August. Fighting in Manchuria has revived this unique business.

Cavalymen have clattered to battle in Missouri-made stirrups in every major military action of the last half century. J. L. King, vice president and general manager for the company, recalls that large consignments went to the Rough Riders and other American forces in the Spanish-American War.

So great has been the output of the Agency factory that the nearby heavily timbered hills have been cleared of suitable logs for a radius of fifty miles.

Meat Flames But Is Not Scorched

One night last week J. P. Morrison, who resides on route six out of Honey Grove, Texas, saw an unusual phenomenon. He is yet lacking an explanation for it. Mr. Morrison had been to town during the day and had purchased some fresh meat from a local market. He took it home, salted it down and placed it in a cabinet, expecting to use it the next day. That night he happened to go into the kitchen and was attracted by what appeared to be flames in the cabinet. Further examination revealed that the fire was coming from his meat. Close examination, however, showed no flames or fire. Thinking probably he might be "seeing things," he called other members of the family, and they observed the same thing as Mr. Morrison. Other people in the vicinity were likewise called in to see the burning meat that was not on fire. Just what caused the phenomenon he has not been able to learn.

Left Foot Is Right For Luck

A Breckenridge autoist, while driving eastward out of town Thursday afternoon, ran over a rabbit and killed it. He cut off the left hind foot for luck. Luck did not materialize during the afternoon and he began to wonder if he had cut off the wrong foot. Was it the left or right one that he should have taken? Friday morning he went down to interview the colored shine boy on Walker street and the following conversation ensued:
"Joe," he pleaded, "please tell me the truth, which hind foot of a rabbit should you cut off and carry for good luck? I cut off the left one."
"Right," said Joe as he plied the brush.

"The right hind foot?" the man questioned.

"The left is right," said Joe daubing on a pat of polish.

"Now don't kid me, Joe, tell me the truth," the man insisted.

"I cut off the left hind foot for luck, what about it?"

The man took his head in his hands and departed for parts unknown.

Jests For Fun

TWO OF A KIND

Two casual golf acquaintances were walking toward the green when they sighted two women coming over the hill.

"I say," remarked one of the men, "here comes my wife with some old hag she picked up somewhere."

"And here comes mine with another," retorted the other icily.

Wife: "You certainly have improved in your dancing, Merlin. Do you remember how often you used to tear my dresses?"

Merlin: "Yes, but your dad was buying them then."

Two youths were driving home from a convivial night in the big city.

"Me?" said Jack surprised.

Tips On Taxes

AUSTIN.—As a tax measure of major interest, the sales tax has given way to other tax proposals. A suggestion, which, at present is claiming much attention, is one which proposes a radical departure in raising revenue and controlling production of oil.

The proposal embodies a repeal of the gasoline tax and the gross production tax on oil. By a sharply graduated tax on oil production, beginning, in some bills, with one cent per barrel on production from wells with maximum daily output of five barrels and scaling up to much higher rates as the per well production increases. The top bracket calls for $1 per barrel tax on production of well in excess of 1,000 barrels per day.

The House has passed a bill authorizing the creation of a special division in the Comptroller's department to enforce collection of gasoline taxes, as well as providing more drastic penalties for evasion of these taxes. The House has passed a bill to reduce the State's income tax from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year in taxes from this source.

Senator Moore of Green introduced a bill limiting the profits of the Confederate veterans who are in actual receipt of the pension. The House has passed a bill reducing the poll tax to $1. The Senate is yet to act on the measure.

Mrs. J. N. Williams entertained Thursday afternoon of last week with quite a unique party. Contests of various kinds kept the guests interested from the beginning until the end of the afternoon. Mrs. Roy Ashburn was the winner of the most contests and received prizes that were beautiful and useful, all of them being given by the guests and hostess. Mrs. Williams is noted for serving delicious and unusual refreshments and on this occasion she kept up her reputation. The pink bread used in the sandwiches was one of the several attractive features on the refreshment plate.

Oak Grove

OAK GROVE, March 8.—News is scarce this week as "ye scribe" is suffering from an attack of the flu and has not been out much.

Walter Wright has moved into this community and is living in the Louse with his father, Will Wright, on the Miss Johnnie Mae Finley farm.

Quite a number of our Oak Grove farmers attended the raven shoot Tuesday night in the Pleasant Hill community. This raven nuisance has come to be a worse thing than the jack rabbit pest, and if they are not destroyed or driven out of the country they will destroy our crops as fast as we plant them.

Douglas Hall is working through the crop with Clarence Hastings this year. This is fine for a young man to get started in the business of "making his own way in the world."

A man said to us the other day that "he was not making a living but was living on what he made." And then added "If I had followed that plan all my life I would have enough around me now that I could be making a living," which reminds us "That is better to starve into a living than to live into starvation."

Birch, the Famous Magician, Coming Here March 15-16

The appeal of magic and magicians is genuine, powerful and universal. It is not confined to any nation or people and it is as powerfully exerted upon grown-ups as it is upon children, who derive pleasure from a magic show that can only be equalled by the glamor of the circus. For this reason it is expected that Birch, the most famous magician, will be host to capacity audiences of Eastland county people, when he presents his mystifying array of illusions at the Connellee Theatre next Thursday and Friday evenings and matinee.

The Birch production is one of the finest and most magnificent now on tour and it is undoubtedly the most complete ever presented here.

Included in the Birch repertoire are such magnificent illusions as the Vanishing Pony, in which a beautiful Shetland is caused to vanish while suspended in mid air, the Challenge Packing Box escape in which Birch will attempt to escape from a strong box constructed by a local lumber company, the beautiful silk mirage, said to be the most beautiful silk production act ever devised, the Canary and the Mazda Lamp, in which a live canary is shot into a burning light bulb, slicing a young lady into four parts, and almost fifty other bewildering illusions.

Thurston, the great magician, says Birch is the one man fitted to take his place.

The advance ticket sale has already started and tickets may be purchased from the Connellee News Stand.

More Community Cooperation Is Need of Eastland

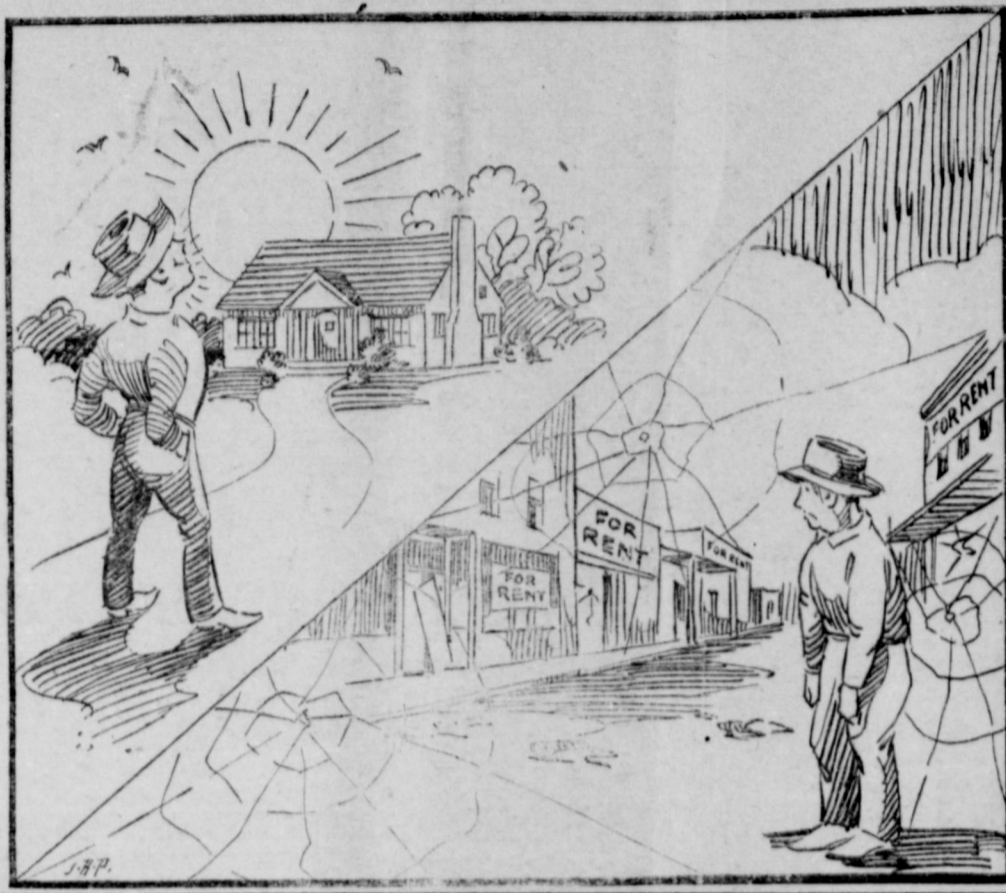

There is a growing necessity for community cooperation. Not from a selfish standpoint, but to meet the demands of those interests which effect our individual needs the most. Nothing is more paramount to real happiness than the home fireside. When you're feeling good and prosperous we take on an attitude of independence and feel that we don't need our next door neighbor. But when we get in the dumps . . . sickness invades the home, things get bad in a business way, we somewhat lose our independence and when our neighbor walks into the door to cheer us up or lend a helping hand—then we come to realize beyond question of a doubt that home folks mean something.

Of course as always the long lane will soon come to a turn. We're going to get on our feet again. We have had a harsh teacher for the past few years, in some respects almost unmerciful . . . lets never forget that the home folks can always be depended upon. It has been demonstrated almost 100 percent. Now is a good time to think it over. Let's reward each other with a determination to try Eastland first.

West Texas cities near our big city neighbor, Ft. Worth to be exact, have suffered almost irreparable loss during the past years, by its citizens taking on an independent attitude to trade where they please. West Texas cities are in Ft. Worth's wholesale trade territory, but when it comes to the retail trade, each West Texas city has a right to expect the trade of their respective citizens. It is the only thing that will keep West Texas cities in line with progress. For Ft. Worth to expect both the wholesale and retail trade of its West Texas neighbors is usurping on sacred territory and can only react to the thorough disadvantage of the cities of West Texas.

Most people resent any one telling them where to spend their money . . . which after all we can't blame them. This article is written only in the spirit of appealing to the better judgment of those who probably haven't taken into consideration the seriousness of the situation. There is no attempt to browbeat or use high powered tactics to demand that Eastland citizens trade in Eastland, and no business interest cooperating in this move has such an idea, but fair play, "Do Unto Others as You Would Have Them Do Unto You" is a maxim that has been handed down from the ages. It has never failed when put into practice.

What Causes the Smaller Towns Population In Face of State Gains Over Period of Years

(Copyright 1933 by Associated Advertisers)

Perhaps you—like many others—never give a thought to what buying from your own home-town merchant means to you as an individual. A matter of convenience, certainly. Civic pride? Well, maybe so. But consider a purely selfish point of view, just what it would mean to you if EVERYBODY went to some other place for their merchandise.

The Federal census of 1930 showed that while Texas, as a whole, gained some 24 percent in population between 1920 and 1930, 14 per cent of the state's towns under 20,000 actually had less population in 1930 than they did in 1920, and a great majority of the small towns either just barely held their own or fell far short of the increase that should have come to them through the operation of natural laws.

What causes the smaller towns to lose population in the face of a statewide gain? The outstanding factor, as community after community can testify is that too many people went to the larger cities to buy their food and clothing, radios, ice-boxes, automobiles, tires, paints, printing, rugs, implements, theatre tickets and a host of other necessities and luxuries, which they could just as well have bought from their own home town merchants, just as cheaply—and certainly far more conveniently.

The reaction, in such communities, was felt all down the line. The merchant couldn't afford to keep up his stock. He couldn't afford to pay as high rent as before or if he owned his building, couldn't pay taxes and keep his property up. He couldn't afford to keep as many employees or pay them as much as he did before. So there was unemployment and shortage of money. Naturally the unemployed sought work elsewhere and good citizens were lost to the community.

No wonder the census shows so many smaller towns steadily losing population.

Now bring the situation home to YOURSELF. Suppose you awoke some fine morning feeling like a million dollars. You bound out of bed and make a hasty toilet.

You can hardly wait for the con and eggs, because you have to be out in the street an hour yet before you can get your town and you want to get home or two with the lady. You really enjoy morning now, because, well, you know. It was a long time ago when your wife and you made many sacrifices. You made the payments, but you have been looking forward to the day when you could sell it and get your money back. Anyway, the house you could sell it and get your money back. Anyway, the house you could sell it and get your money back.

PAYMENTS.

Happy? Why not? Run the house over. Run the house over. Run the house over. Run the house over. Run the house over.

But when you go to the street you can't help but see the eyes. Why, the eyes. Why, the eyes. Why, the eyes. Why, the eyes. Why, the eyes.

Not a store open, of them are boarded there are "For Rent" signs nearly all of them. The dusty spiders webs across the windows, the merchants, for lack of business, have simply "folded town is dead."

As you walk along, you see the business section is yours suddenly realize it has gone ever so fast. Your job, just as represented it, home of which you just a little while ago the house is still there. But it is worthless to sell it for what it is any price. You can't get away. Residential drug on the market.

So, whether you own a town, or a farm, or a business, the value of your property is yours. OWN WELL-BEING with the success of your merchants and your town prosper. Your business and your town prosper by the proportion of local business. prot local business. cape that fact. Every citizen in your shares in the money at home. Money away from your town come back to help your community. So—

States Seek Repeal of Federal Gas Tax

Legislation designed to request Congress to repeal the federal gasoline tax has been passed or is pending in the legislatures of at least seven states.

Such bills already have been passed in North Carolina, Oregon, Washington and Nevada; and are pending in Georgia and other states.

Typical is the resolution adopted in Oregon, which points out that the federal government, with numerous means of raising revenue, should not invade the limited tax field of the states. It asks that "Congress take immediate action to remove the federal gasoline tax, leaving the taxation of gasoline sales as exclusively a state function."

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Tony Pasqual, a poor Italian barber who has recently arrived in America, strives mightily to gain his citizenship papers, going to night school to prepare himself. Tony is continually helping out his neighbors on the East Side. The day he receives his papers, he happily returns to the barber shop he closed for the occasion to find himself held up by Bob Richards, a destitute World War veteran. Tony makes friends with the man, buying food for him and his starving sister and her child.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The next morning Richards entered Tony's shop all decked out in his best attire, which was practically the same as he had worn the day before with the exception that it had been brushed and pressed.

"Say, you look fine," Tony exclaimed. "All a man needs is a full stomach and a shave and everything is okay."

Richards laughed. The barber took his hat, turned and gave the lad another inspection. "You look first-class."

"I'll never forget you, Tony." The Italian regarded his friend closely. Something was missing. "Where's the medal?" he asked suddenly.

Richards took it out of his pocket and handed it to the barber, who pinned the trophy on the lapel of the lad's coat.

"Not there, Tony. It's too conspicuous."

"Con—con—I don't care what it is! If I had that medal I'd wear it in my nose. Come, now we go get you the job."

They left the barber shop and made their way to a night club. At the hour it was deserted; but the owner was present and came over to greet the Italian.

"Hello, Tony." "Hello, Mr. Reilly. Mr. Reilly, I bring you here one fine man for your cafe—Mr. Richards."

Reilly extended his hand to the lad. "Glad to know you." He spotted the distinguished service cross, her out. After she had gone, Richard turned to Tony and said: "Tony, if that kid's gambling, I know the spot."

"I always thought he was such a good kid," Tony murmured, disappointed to feel that anybody could do wrong.

"That's the kind of suckers that gang lives on," Richards showed his disgust in his voice.

"What gang?"

"The gambling house—they're right under your nose."

"Under my nose?" Tony was amazed. It was unbelievable. "You don't think he went to gamble? You think we could stop him?"

"Sure, if he's there. I know that outfit. They took plenty from me."

Tony got Richards by the arm and started for the door. "Come on. That poor woman needs that money very bad."

The ex-soldier piloted Tony to a butcher shop and went in. They did not pause in the store, but went through the refrigerator and into a gambling parlor equipped with roulette table and other games. Tony was horrified. He could not believe what he saw. The young men of the neighborhood, the workmen who had all they could do to make both ends meet, and others were grouped around pool tables and gaming devices. Some were shooting crap. Richards was greeted by some of the fellows behind the table. The croupier waved at him.

Tony looked around. He saw the boy, Joe, at the table, putting some money down. That was enough. The barber walked over to him. "Joe, your mother is looking for you."

"What's it your business," was the lad's surly response. "You better stop."

The lad was about to put down the money as a bet, but Tony held his arm. The croupier interfered. "Why don't you let the kid alone? It's none of your business."

"Yes it is," Tony replied. "You know where he got the money?"

"I don't care." "Sure, you don't care. Well, he and fingered it. "Say, you got something there. Wish I had it." "Sure," Tony beamed with satisfaction. "You see nobody forgets."

"I'll never forget," said Reilly, musing to himself as memories flashed into his mind of those stirring days of 1917 and 1918. "I was over there for plenty. I got a lot of respect for a cross like that."

"He ain't only a hero," Tony declared. "He's one of the best fine entertainers."

"Did you ever work in a cafe before?" Reilly inquired of the lad.

"No, but I did a lot of entertaining in the Argonne."

"What did you do?" "Show him," urged Tony. "Show him. He done some very fine things. Make everybody laugh."

"Let's get a load of you," said Reilly.

Richards went out on the floor and did some imitations of his own choice while the other two watched. Reilly's face showed approval.

"He's a very fine actor," Tony declared as he applauded. "Bravo! Bravo!"

Richards came over to them and Reilly extended his hand, saying, "You're okay. When would you like to start?"

"Right away." "You ought to rehearse, Richards." "I'll do what I just did."

"That's fine. We'll see how it goes." "It'll go very good," Tony volunteered. "I like—everybody like."

With a job, Richards was happy. He visited Tony regularly for a shave and to report upon his progress.

"How are you doing?" Tony inquired.

"Terrible." "You can't do terrible," the barber declared, pausing in his work.

"I'm no knock-out, but it's work." "You said it," Tony combed back Richard's hair, giving him the final pat that most barbers give their customers. At that moment a little Irish woman rushed in.

"Tony, I don't know what to do. Someone stole all my savings," she cried.

"Did you leave the door open?" asked the barber.

"No." The woman shook her head. "Well, who could have stolen it?" The woman broke down. "I'm ashamed to tell. I think it was Joe. He's always gambling."

"Oh, it can't be Joe," Tony declared. "You go and look again. I'll try to find Joe." The barber put his arms around the woman and led

HOP OUT OF BED "RARIN' TO GO"

If you have lost your pep, feel tired all the time, and hate to get up in the morning, don't take a dose of salts, mineral oil or laxative and expect it to pep you up and make you young again, because it won't do it.

Your glands regulate your health, and the vital organs must be supplied with the all-important glandular hormones. The liver, the largest gland in the body, should pour two pounds of bile into the bowels daily to make your food digest and to keep you regular.

Glandular deficiency causes too much fat, or too little of it, gray hair or baldness, lack of pep, premature old age and death. Yerba-vida, Nature's "Plant of Life," has been found to be a powerful gland normalizer. Glands that have ceased to function are stimulated into renewed activity, constructive metabolism is again brought about, renewing both body and mind.

Yerba-vida is produced from plants growing wild on the American desert. It contains no drugs of any kind. In fact, no ingredients of any nature have been added to it. When brewed into a tea according to instructions, it becomes a delicious, satisfying beverage which has been found to accomplish wonders in cases of glandular troubles and also poisonous acidity.

G. M. B., of Los Angeles, California, writes: "From the very first day of using Yerba-vida I felt an increase in vitality, and in a few days all signs of indigestion with which I had been suffering for years had disappeared. But the greatest benefit of all is that I am no longer constipated, for which I am more grateful than I can tell, as I have had to resort to every kind and sort of pill and cathartic for years and have never received permanent relief from anything."

Yerba-vida is not a laxative, but greatly assists nature in overcoming constipation.

A large package, enough for 240 cups, can be obtained for only $1.00. If your local druggist cannot supply you, accept no substitute but send $1.00 direct to Yerba-vida Sales Co., 612 Southwest Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

their right to use, under reasonable restrictions, roads they are taxed to support. In 1931, authentic figures indicate, commercial vehicles paid $293,505,000 in taxes, of which $77,000,000 represented license fees, $144,530,000 gasoline taxes $31,775,000 common carrier licenses and gasoline taxes and $40,000,000 personal property and other levies.

Of the 3,231,000 motor trucks registered, 880,000 or 27 per cent, are owned by farmers, and 2,100,000 or 86 per cent, by private owners. Only 200,000 trucks operate as common carriers, and only one per cent as interstate common carriers. Motor buses number 98,900, but only 42,300 are common carriers.

Farmers own twice as many motor vehicles as they do telephones.

Gasoline Taxes Are Deductible in Many States

Motorists of 25 states may deduct from gross income on federal income tax returns the amount paid in certain gasoline taxes, the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue has ruled.

State taxes, which range in rate from 2c to 7c per gallon and cost motorists $12 to $42 per year, are deductible in the following:

Delaware, D. of C., Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington and Wisconsin.

Recent changes in laws may add others to this list. County and city gasoline taxes, where imposed upon the consumer, also may be deducted. Federal gasoline taxes are not deductible.

More than $150,000,000 of taxes collected for road financing in 1932 was diverted to other purposes.

Income from automotive freight exceeds the railroad's annual tax bill.

The average gasoline tax represents a sales tax of 40 per cent.

Chevrolet Motor Co. to Show a New Six Saturday

Directly on the heels of the most successful new car program since 1929, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced today that a companion car to the present series, to be called the "Standard Six" Chevrolet and priced considerably below the present range, would be shown throughout the nation Saturday.

About 15,000 of the new models will have been built and dispatched to Chevrolet dealers for a simultaneous national showing. W. S. Knudson, president and general manager, stated.

The new "Standard Six" is built for business use and for that group of private owners who want a car without the deluxe features and extra long wheelbase of the present Chevrolet Master Six, he stated. He emphasized that the new line would offer the lowest-priced, full-size, six cylinder enclosed models the industry has yet seen—and would be ideal for severe utility use.

A new and slightly smaller Chevrolet has been rumored in trade circles periodically since April of 1932, a circumstance which Mr. Knudson attributed to the fact that the new line of cars has been under development for two years. It will be a quality line throughout, machined to the same close limits as the present Chevrolet and built of the same raw materials, although it will have a slightly shorter wheelbase and will lack some of the features and improvements of the present Master Six line.

In bringing out the new car, Mr. Knudson said his company is simply producing a supplementary line which will open up new markets and further entrench the company in its position of leadership. He added that he expects the new Standard Six to account for about one-fourth of the company's total production and sales in 1933.

"Automobiles," said Mr. Knudson, "like most everything else, are worth just about so much a pound. Naturally, with a shorter and lighter car, we can reduce the first cost as well as the cost of operation."

"There is a growing need for a car of this type among fleet users. Similarly, salesmen who are not furnished company cars, and have to buy their own, will welcome the 'Standard' model. They want dependable, economical transportation coupled with a reasonable amount of style. But primarily they want a quality car of low first cost and low operation and maintenance costs."

"With our present 'Master' model we have conducted tests on the proving ground showing a return of as much as 22 miles to the gallon of gasoline with certain models, making the 'Master' one of the most economical Chevrolets ever built. Yet with the new 'Standard' car we will be able to better even this high mark with a car properly serviced. Similarly, the cost of maintenance will be commensurately lower, as will insurance rates and registration fees."

"We feel that with the 'Standard Six' we will greatly expand our market among people who buy transportation primarily. Undoubtedly many private users will select the 'Standard' for personal use, but we expect the bulk of our business from the large fleet user and the commercial traveler."

"We think that the market is ready for a car of this type at this time. We have experienced an improving market for a number of months past, and have consistently run ahead of last year since we announced our Master Six model in December."

"We are now coming into the spring season, best for the sale of automobiles. In addition to that, the great number of fleets of cars purchased in 1928 and 1928 have reached an age, because of the high mileage they pile up in commercial service, where they will have to be replaced this year or they will fall to pieces. They have gone so far that it is more costly to run them than to replace them."

The "Standard Six" Mr. Knudson said, would follow very much the lines of the present car. Details, he said, would not be disclosed until Saturday.
