FURY of the JUNGLE

DONALD COOK-PEGGY SHANNON
ALAN DINEHART-DUDLEY DIGGES
NOVELIZATION BY ARRANGEMENT WITH COLUMBIA PICTURES

Matto Grosso, in South America, was the haven of refugees from all over the world. Among them were Richard Burns, alias Frenchy, wanted for murder, a knife thrower, who put his wife's throat; George Taggart, embezzler, wanted by Scott and Yord; Dave Allen, ex-marine, escaped from Federal Prison in the United States; and then there was Parrish, a physician, who had been here for six years because of drink and a faithless wife.

Farrish had been a great surgeon, but in Matto Grosso he was no better than the worst.

Taggart had become sort of a leader and ruler. He made the laws and he made them his own fancy, and then took great delight in breaking them himself, although he would allow no one to violate the letter of any one of them. Woe unto him who broke one of Taggart's laws, for that individual would have to swim across a river full of crocodiles, and should escape with his life, he would probably pass his days minus one or more limbs.

To Taggart, it was amusing to see a man fight his way across the river, and he would often sentence a lawbreaker just for the pleasure of seeing him devoured or mutilated.

Allen had prevented one native from meeting this fate by shooting a crocodile, thus incurring Taggart's displeasure.

"You are the one they call Lucky Allen," said Frenchy, as he approached him. "Luck is a fine friend, Monsieur, but if you intrude in affairs that do not concern you, it may strangle his shoulders, 'she may prove feckle."

"You're kind of new around here,"

"You're kind of new around here," Taggart interrupted, "so let me give you a friendly tip. That poggun's liable to get you into trouble."

turned toward the girl. "Where were you bound for?"

"We were going to join an expedition," Chita said. "It is a hundred miles up the river," she replied.

"Out of the question," the physician declared.

"You mean we've got to stay here?" Joan inquired.

"Your brother must," said the physician.

"Then I must, too,"

"I—have," asked the doctor. "Do you know what kind of a place this is?"

The girl looked at him steadily and courageously. "The captain told me, 'I've been in danger before this.'"

"Not the kind of danger you'll run into here," said the older man. "Most of the men in Matto Grosso haven't seen a white woman, a decent white woman, in a long time."

"I'm not afraid," said Joan. "Is there any place where we can stay?"

"Let me think." The doctor meditated for a moment. "Well, Miss, the best I can offer you is Mr. Allen's hut. It is in a quiet suite at the Savoy, but it's reasonably comfortable. Besides, my friend, here would feel terribly hurt if you refused his hospitality. Wouldn't you, Allen?"

The lad gave the doctor a piercing look, and then said, "Oh, sure, sure."

"That's awfully kind of you. Thank you," said Joan.

Allen pointed to the doctor. "Don't thank me, lady. Thank him." And then he turned away.

"You'd better pack your things," said the doctor. "I'll take your brother ashore."

After the girl had left, Allen came over to the doctor. "Some bad you are. What's the matter with your bunking in your hut?"

"My hut?" The physician acted as though the thought had never occurred to him. "No—it's too messy. I meant to give it a good sweeping about six months ago, but somehow I never got around to it."

"Yeah," said Allen in disgust. "That's what I get for leading a clean life down here."

On Texas Farms

By W. H. DARROW, Extension Service Editor

Paul Teinert's herd of dairy cows has doubled their milk production since November when he started feeding them ensilage from a trench silo, one of 34 such silos in Fayette county last summer, according to the county agent.

"I value my pantry complete at $591 but it is worth more than that to me and my family, and $8 is all the money I put out to get it," testifies Mrs. M. M. White who won first prize in the Lamb county farm food supply demonstration contest recently. She is a member of Sod House Home Demonstration Club.

An average labor income of $22.90 per boy was made by the 168 Van Zandt county 4-H club boys who made reports to the county agent of their demonstrations in better farming for 1933.

Half-acre gardens that cost an average of $8.22 to produce, yielding produce worth $75.62 in Williamson county last year according to reports of 4-H club girl demonstrators.

El Paso dairymen are efficient, the county agent claims. With the F. E. S. canning plant running short of cutters only one dairyman could be found with cull cows, and he could furnish but two animals.

Mrs. Roy Matthews intends to have a home that cakes furnished. She makes them in her Hopkins county farm home and sells them through the local home demonstration club market. Saturday before Christmas she filled orders for 18.

An 80-acre field that cost $5 in cash and six days hard labor to terrace several years ago has been worth at least $2 more per acre each year since, F. A. Burnett, of Young county has reported to the county agent.

Tenant Benefited By Cotton Plan

The tenant farmer, along with the landlord, is benefited by the operations of the cotton adjustment program now being put into effect throughout the South.

Tenants who pay cash rental to landlords, or those who are known as managing share tenants, furnishing their own work stock, labor and equipment in operating a farm, are eligible along with their landlords to sign contracts, as are any other producers, and thus may share in the distribution of the rental and partly payments offered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Share tenants or croppers also are expected to receive their proportionate part of the partly payments to be made on cotton produced and sold.

In addition, share croppers are protected in the contract to such an extent that all reductions in acreage are to be made ratably among the tenants on a farm. In other words, it is not expected that a landlord will produce all of his cotton on the land farmed by one or more tenants and thus deprive another tenant of the opportunity of growing some cotton.

"It is expected that the landlords of the South will maintain as nearly as possible the normal number of tenants and other employees and will permit tenants to live in their houses on the farm, rent free, for the years 1934 and 1935," says Cully A. Cobb, head of the cotton section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"It is our purpose that the acreage reduction campaign shall not upset the usual good feeling prevailing between share croppers and their landlords. We feel that landlords will have definite understandings with their tenants so that no hardship will be placed on any one tenant through the operations of the adjustment program."

Mr. Cobb also points out that the tenant will share in the better price to be received for cotton by reason of the acreage reduction and will have the use of the contracted areas on which to raise his home supplies. Even though a tenant reduces his acreage for 1934 by 40 per cent, the better price received for the cotton grown on the smaller acreage is expected to bring him a greater total income for his share of the crop. As a result of these provisions, the tenant on Southern cotton farms should be eager to cooperate with his landlord in making the reduction program a success, Cobb says.

Flatwood to Have Preaching Sunday

The pastor, Rev. Ephraim D. Conway, announces that there will be preaching services at the Flatwood Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on Sunday morning and Sunday night. The subject of the sermon for the 11 o'clock service is "The Lord's Discipline." The night service will be at 7:15 o'clock. Subject of the sermon, "Why I Am a Methodist."

At the first quarterly conference of the Ranger circuit of churches held last Sunday at the Flatwood church, Brother J. C. Butler was elected Sunday school superintendent of the Flatwood Sunday school. Come to Sunday school and let us build for a greater and better Sunday school, for a greater and better Flatwood community. The quality of her community depends upon the quality of her citizenship.

FINED ONE CENT

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Perusal of police and court records has revealed that the smallest all-time fine here is one cent. It was assessed in 1922 against Edna Palmer who pleaded guilty to a liquor charge. Court records also showed that she paid the fine nine years later—without interest.

Some automobile owners call those additions to the fenders skirts and some call them pants—according to the sex of the car.

FIRST BURGLARY IN 40 YEARS

GEORGETOWN, Cal.—Georgetown will remember 1934 as the "year of the burglary." The year had advanced only a short time when a burglar entered the Miners Club and stole $400 in cash and a quantity of cigars. Although petty thefts had been committed, this was the first professional burglary in Georgetown in more than 40 years.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Ice jams which clogged main pipes in Buffalo's water supply system aided the water bureau in collecting delinquent taxes. The clogged pipes caused a slight water shortage in the city and hundreds of citizens flocked to the bureau to pay back taxes in the belief the water had been shut off for non-payment of levies.

Free Action for all 4 wheels

plus the safety of a front axle and comfort of Cantilever Springs

A great deal of thought is being given today to springs. Various experiments are being tried in an effort to get independent action for an automobile's front wheels.

All of which is simply another tribute to the soundness of Ford engineering and the Ford V-8 for 1934. When you drive this car you get free action not only for the front wheels—but for all 4 wheels.

Ford transverse cantilever springs provide individual suspension for both front and rear axles. In the new Ford these springs have been made more flexible. This type of construction is not experimental and has the advantage of comfort plus the proved safety of a front axle.

This new Ford combines V-8 power with gasoline economy—20 miles to the gallon at a speed of 45 miles per hour, in exhaustive road runs. It will do 80 miles an hour without difficulty. At 50 or 60 miles per hour it is actually running at ease!

This reserve power means acceleration unequalled by practically any other make of American automobile, regardless of cost. Before you buy any car at any price, drive the new Ford V-8 for 1934.

First Aid institutes have been organized in Virginia, in fifteen conveniently located centers, class rooms and other facilities being made available to local Red Cross Chapters.

Teachers were selected from among doctors and laymen, qualified and authorized by the Red Cross.

Key workers at regular CWA wages, were sent with transportation and maintenance paid for a week of intensive training.

The purpose of CWA safety officials, is to have at least one employee in every group, equipped to administer first aid in emergencies.

In a letter to State Administrators and Directors of Safety, Harry L. Hopkins, National Administrator said, "Immediate and proper treatment of all injuries is one of the first and most important items in our safety program. Such treatment will prevent minor wounds from developing into serious cases and reduce compensation costs of more serious injuries, or even prevent loss of limb or life."

CWA class in Virginia are held three hours a day, thirty men assigned to each class. In that state about 2,000 CWA projects are now under way, in 100 counties and twenty-two cities; 40-

000 men are at work and this number may be increased to 60,000.

National Red Cross headquarters has on file, names of about 8,000 instructors authorized to teach first aid courses, according to H. F. Enlows, Director of First Aid and Life Saving Service.

12-Pupil School Has Newspaper

AUSTIN. — Clairemont High school, at Clairemont, Texas, in Kent county, publishes a weekly newspaper. The surprising feature about it is the fact that Clairemont High school has only twelve pupils in the whole student body while many schools over the state with even hundreds of students do not go into this activity, according to D. C. Reddick, University of Texas sponsor of the Interscholastic League Press conference. Clairemont is believed to be the smallest high school in the state to publish a weekly paper. It is issued under the supervision of G. W. Haggard, principal, who has had several years of experience on daily newspapers. Furthermore, since the town does not have a daily newspaper, efforts are made to make the school paper a com-

Lucky Strike the fully packed cigarette

— no loose ends

Always the finest tobaccos and only the center leaves are purchased for Lucky Strike cigarettes. We don't buy top leaves—because those are under-developed. And not the bottom leaves—because those are inferior in quality. The center leaves—for which farmers are paid higher prices—are the mildest leaves. And only center leaves are used in making Luckies—so round, so firm—free from loose ends. That's why every Lucky draws easily, burns evenly—and is always mild and smooth. Then, too—"It's toasted"—for throat protection—for finer taste.

Lucky Strike presents the Metropolitan Opera Company Saturday at 1:55 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, over Red and Blue Networks of NBC. LUCKY STRIKE will broadcast the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York in the complete Opera, "Aida."

Cagney, Once Stage Hooper Dances For "Footlight Parade"

James Cagney is hoofing again. Jimmy's career started as a hooper on the stage, but he has done nothing in this line for years. Suddenly he found himself cast for the leading role in "Footlight Parade," the Warner Bros. mammoth musical picture which comes to the Lyric theatre on Monday.

For several years, Jimmy went through dance routine in various Broadway productions. Once he graduated to featured roles, however, he didn't rely on his feet again as a livelihood. But now, in the search for new laurels, Jimmy's agile pedals are brought into action again—with a vengeance.

Jimmy's part called for him to go through many dance steps during his staging of musical prologues. He also does a specialty dance and song number singing "Shanghai Lil" when his juvenile fails him just before the curtain goes up on his most elaborate prologue.

A powerful all star cast which includes, besides Cagney, Joan Blondell, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Frank McHugh, Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert, Gordon Westcott, Arthur Hohl and Phillip Faversham, was directed by Lloyd Bacon who won such signal honors with "42nd Street." Manuel Seff and James Seymour wrote the story.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

STANDARDS OF THE KINGDOM
 Text: Matt. 5:1-48
 The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 28

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist
 The Kingdom of Heaven begins in blessedness, and blessings are the portion of all who enter into it and who continue in it. Not blessings as the world too often counts them. Not the blessings of ease or of pleasure or of material satisfactions.
 Jesus never promised to his followers, and to those who would establish the truth in their hearts and lives, an easy way. On the contrary, it was to those that he offered burdens and sacrifices and ways of service.
 He told them, even, that they would not be free from sorrows and sufferings. But in a world where these things are the lot both of the good and of the evil, Jesus promised deep satisfactions and blessings to those who would find the way of light and love and truth.
 Our lesson begins in what have been called the Beatitudes—that is, the roll of blessings. It is instructive to study the blessings that are promised and those to whom they are offered. They offer to the persecuted and the harassed inner peace and satisfaction, but beyond this they express also great spiritual laws or compensations that are operatives in life.

The poor in spirit—that is, the ingenuous, honest, simple, earnest souls, who are not concerned about worldly gain, or power, or anything that enables them to dominate over their fellowmen—have the blessing of the Kingdom of Heaven.
 It will might be asked whether that blessing is possible for any other men than those of such simple honesty and earnestness.
 The blessing of comfort is offered to those who mourn. It is doubtful whether those who never have mourned ever have discovered the real meaning of comfort. There are spiritual satisfactions that one can know and understand only as one has felt the need of them through suffering and sorrow.
 Perhaps the strangest of all the blessings is the pronouncement of the inheritance of the earth for the meek. It seems to contradict almost all the experiences of human life, where it is apparently the aggressive, and the selfish, and the exacting, who win the greatest rewards. But it will may be asked whether the success of these is as great as it seems.
 It was this same Jesus who pronounced these blessings, who inquired concerning the worth of a man who had all the world, but who had lost his own soul. Surely the world is full today of people who have attained great world success, who seem to inherit the earth, but in whose lives there is little that makes the soul either glorious or worthwhile.

Does not experience, when we search into its meaning, reveal something of the truth that Jesus emphasized? The blessings upon the merciful, and the pure in heart, and the peacemakers, speak for themselves.
 The framers of this lesson have shown insight and good judgment in attaching to the Beatitudes the closing verses of the fifth chapter of Matthew, which lay stress upon the good human life as like the life of God in the bountifulness of its love and magnanimity.
 This triumphant description of the good life is closely related to the way of blessing. It is a life in which man is lifted into a different atmosphere from that of worldly and selfish passions and interests. It is a life in which even toward one's enemies reconstructive powers begin to operate when one meets enmity not with enmity, but with love.

 Selfishness never can conquer selfishness, hats never can conquer hate, but when one meets selfishness with unselfishness a foundation is laid for something new. There is a revelation of spiritual value.
 And when one meets hate with love, he has met something that is strong and deep with something that is even stronger and deeper.
 But there is no blessedness apart from the commitment of life to truth and righteousness and love.

Poll Tax Payments Slow In County

T. I. Cooper, county tax collector, Tuesday morning stated that currently his office was seized with citizens making payment for their auto and poll tax.
 Due to the rush of the past several days, Cooper was unable to furnish exact figures as to the comparison with those of last year. He was of opinion that, all in all, the complete figures were below those of last year because of lack of alacrity of payments by citizens the first three weeks of January.

If you want safe relief from Constipation

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

1. Regulate intestinal action gently—no "purging"
2. Measure dose to suit your individual needs
3. Avoid Bowel Fatigue and the laxative habit

Here's Why:

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.
 A doctor will tell you that the unwise use of harsh laxatives often does more harm than good.
 Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.
 A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.
 In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains doubtful drugs, don't take it.
 Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:
 First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.
 Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

KEEL IS HELD BY OFFICERS AT EASTLAND

L. C. Keel, an itinerant speaker from Ranger, was taken in charge by members of the Eastland county Sheriff's department at Eastland this afternoon and is being held for investigation. Deputy Sheriff Steele Hill, who took Keel in charge, said that he did so when a call for the sheriff came from the Eastland CWA headquarters to which place Keel, with a number of followers, had gone after a talk by Keel on the courthouse square...

Keel, according to the officers, has been active in this section for several weeks attempting to organize workers on CWA projects and was in Eastland today to speak on the subject. County CWA administrator E. A. Ringold stated that a committee of three or four men came to his office about 2:30 in the afternoon and sought an audience with him, which he readily granted. This committee, Mr. Ringold said, were very courteous and nice in stating their mission, which, they said was to see if there was not something that could be done towards getting a more equitable distribution of work being paid for out of government funds...

Members of the committee claimed that there should be a distinction made between a man who had only a wife and one that had a wife and a large number of children. They also complained that people who did not need work were being employed when many that did need it could not get work. Mr. Ringold said that he understood that there was quite a crowd in the streets outside the building, but that he did not see nor hear them. He expressed the opinion that most of them were just curious onlookers. Deputy Sheriff Hill said that Keel would be held pending an investigation or until Department of Justice officials could be communicated with. Press Club Sends Roosevelt a Ten Pound Daisy Cheese

CUBA, N. Y. — A ten-pound "daisy" cheese, made at local dairy plants, was sent to President and Mrs. Roosevelt from the National Press Club of Washington. The Press Club has been buying "daisy" cheeses from the plant for some time and at a recent meeting voted to present the President and the First Lady with a ten-pound daisy.

Water's fine," splutters Franklin D. Roosevelt, as he bobs up in the health-giving pool at Warm Springs, Ga., where he started his fight back to physical fitness. The presiding genius behind the whole unusual scheme is Chairman Henry Latham Doherty, head of the Cities Service utility giant, director of 114 companies, owner of the Miami-Biltmore hotel...

So Doherty conceived the plan of honoring the president's courageous fight and furthering one of his dearest ambitions at the same time. The Birthday Ball project was the result. The presidency of the Warm Springs foundation was the only outside interest which the President retained when he took office. Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, one of the capital's social leaders, is in charge of Washington arrangements, which are on a scale comparable to the famous inaugural ball.

"I believe it is glorious thing to be able to honor the President and at the same time strike a blow at the dreadful scourge of infantile paralysis, which is the enemy responsible for half the crippled people in the country today," said Mrs. Dougherty. But the brilliant diplomatic and official spectacle at Washington will be no nearer the spirit of the occasion than the party at Pemberville, O., a village of 1000 people. Pemberville notified the national committee that it was holding "an old-fashioned box social," and announced that there would be no expense at all in connection with its party—that the entire proceeds would go to the President and Warm Springs.

Prison Guards Are Fired by Warden

CROCKETT, Texas, Jan. 22.—Neglect of duty was blamed today for the dismissal of three guards at the Eastham prison farm southwest of here, in connection with the escape of five convicts last Tuesday.

The guards, ousted by Lee Simmons, general prison manager, were J. R. McCafferty, Doc Robertson and B. S. Mathis. Capt. B. B. Monzingo, manager of the farm, said there was no criticism of the men for failing to return the fire of the convicts and their liberators. He cited neglect, however, for leaving their squads of convicts they had taken into the woods to work.

HOW— TIME —FLIES

By THE FENCE RIDER

The fence rider and the "ole" flivver had such a wonderful and exciting day in Eastland last week, it made us want to be back again on our appointed day more than ever.

The weather being so fine first of the week we had no trouble. The flivver is doing fine. But as to the fence rider "not so good," for have been suffering with a very painful toothache.

After arriving in the fair city I parked upon the square and thought I'd try to find a drug store and see if I could get something to relieve my aching tooth. I went into Toombs & Richardsons where Hubert Toombs met me at the front. I told him what I wanted and he hurried back and fixed something for me. And soon I began to feel better. I talked with Hubert for a while and soon found out he was not married, for he informed me that too many were jumping into matrimony just for experience and that too many perfect wives took the precautions to turn the radio on in full blast when they wanted to tell their husband just what they thought of him. And that he didn't care to take the chance for the experience. Most old men, however, when they do fall, go like a rock.

By this time I was feeling so much better and knowing I needed a hair cut and shoe shine I went over to the City Barber Shop where Mr. Teatsorth is proprietor. He is an old friend of mine also. I found them all busy so had to wait. A lady that was also waiting expressed herself as admiring Mr. Teatsorth's lovely hair very much. Mrs. L. A. Cook, who was also among those waiting, wanted to know just what hair it was, that was being admired, the five on his head or those that had been cut off Clyde Garrett's head? I was wondering about the same thing. And have not till this day, found out.

So, after getting a perfect hair cut and my brogans shined I paid my 45 cents and walked out. I walked across and parked myself on the corner in front of the Palace of Sweets. Just to look and listen. In a very few minutes Dr. Caton and J. J. Mickle walked up and stopped. I overheard their conversation, and Mr. Mickle told the doctor that he had not been feeling so well for the past few days. Dr. Caton asked him several questions and then began to explain to him the necessity of drinking water freely, especially on rising of mornings, and between meals. He explained that water is essential to proper digestion, assimilation and elimination, and that nearly 7-10's of the human body is water. And advised Mr. Mickle to take no chances on drying up and blowing away. Mr. Mickle, looking rather puzzled, said, "Well, according to that I'm not a very big man, I'm all water."

By this time my tooth had begun hurting again, so I decided I had just as well go on to a dentist, as bad as I hated to, for I never saw a dentist who thought that a little human sympathy helped the toothache. And I knew Dr. Poe didn't think so either, but went up to his office anyway. For I had known him when he was in dental school in 1917. There were several victims besides myself waiting. I didn't know that Dr. Poe was trying to experiment with patent medicines outside of his dental work, but am almost sure that he is for I overheard him telling one of his patients about his almost getting down with lumbago last summer. But that after taking nine bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound he was sound and well again. He gave that patient some real advice, but I didn't want advise so I got up and walked out. I thought maby after that I would forget the toothache. As I went out I heard Dr. Brown, also giving advise on patent medicine, to Joe Earnest. He told Mr. Earnest that pepsin was made from the stomach of a hog and was used to aid the digestion of those who had made a hog out of themselves. Mr. Earnest promised he would sure get himself a bottle and the fence rider hopes he is feeling fine today.

I took the elevator and went on down to the street. Again I parked myself on the corner of the square in front of Walter's grocery store. It was a beautiful sunny day and thought perhaps I might see some sights. Milton Newman and Loss Woods were also standing on the same corner. A lady passed by wearing a sun-tan back dress. Mr. Newman made the remark that in a hundred years from now women just wouldn't be wearing any clothes. Mr. Woods said, Well, what are you worrying about? You won't be here. Well, said Mr. Newman, that is just what I'm worrying about. I wanted to tell Mr. Newman of Mr. Will Halliman's "youth scheme" and let him try it. Mr. Halliman was instructed to take six pills, one each day. Instead he took all six at once. The next morning his family had difficulty in awakening him. Finally he partially woke and said, "Well, I'll get up, but I won't go to school." So Mr. Newman, if you want to try it just ask Uncle Will about his "youth scheme," and the fence rider will be going for another week. Good luck to young and old.

"Smoky," Film of Will James' Book Here On Saturday

Taken from the pages of Will James' best seller, "Smoky," Fox Film's latest release bearing the same title, comes to the Lyric theater on Saturday. Irene Bentley and Victor Jory have the romantic leads, while Will James is cast in a prominent role. The author's name among the players stamps the film with a definite note of authority.

"Smoky" is the story of a horse whose vicious hatred of men brands him a killer. During the course of his life, he befriends only one man, the man that has tamed and understood him. The friendship of the man and animal is so great, that when "Smoky" is stolen, his friend puts everything aside, including his love for his sweetheart, to go in search of his friend. In the years that follow, "Smoky" attains the reputation of the famous "cougar" of the rodeos, and then sinks to the depths of a junk man's cart horse, abused and forgotten.

The film is said to portray the West with all its panoramic beauty and to depict with astounding realism the colorful vigor of the rodeos.
