TAKING OF TESTIMONY ENDS IN MAY KING MURDER TRIAL; ARGUMENTS BEGUN THURSDAY

Argument by counsel in the Mrs. May King case, which was begun late Thursday afternoon, will be resumed this morning when Judge George L. Davenport convenes court at 9 o'clock. The state has an hour and fifteen minutes and the defense an hour's time left for argument. District Attorney Grady Owen for the state and Frank Judkins for the defense are yet to speak.

The taking of testimony in the trial of Mrs. May King, charged with the murder of Leon Robinson, was ended at 1:30 Thursday afternoon and Judge Davenport immediately adjourned court until 3 o'clock in order that he might prepare a charge to the jury.

Arguments in the case were to be started immediately after reading of the charge to the jury by the judge. Mrs. May King, testifying for herself in her trial for her life for the slaying of Leon Robinson, Gorman peace officer on the streets of Gorman on Nov. 13, 1933, wept bitterly as she told how Robinson, whom she said she loved and whom she believed loved her, standing by the side of her car holding her hand, shot himself with a revolver that he had given her and which he had taken from her a short time before. And how, when she saw that he was dying, she got out of her car and with a small pistol which Robinson had also given her, fired a shot into her chest.

After she fired the second shot into her own body and fell across the prostrate form of Robinson the witness declared she knew nothing more until she came to her senses some hours later in the hospital where she lingered between life and death for five weeks.

Mrs. King, in response to questions by her counsel, gave a detailed account of her associations and affairs with Robinson, stating that they had not always been pleasant as they had had numerous quarrels, but until that on Armistice night in Gorman they had always made up and forgiven each other.

Mrs. King testified she was 37 years old and that she was born in Ohio. She was married to R. A. King, who is now her husband, in Fort Worth in 1920.

"I met Leon Robinson the first time in 1924 when I came into Gorman on a night train, en route to my home at Desdemona. I had seen him before but had never met him. He was carrying mail and said if I would wait until the last train run he would take me home, which I did. We became friends and then more than friends. He often came to my home. In fact he almost lived there for several years while my husband was working in West Texas," Mrs. King said.

Robinson, Mrs. King testified, was a dangerous man when he was drinking and when he wasn't drinking. He was very jealous and on one occasion he brought a rope to her in Desdemona and told her she had been trifling on him and that he was going to hang himself. She got into the car with him and they drove out into the country to talk it over. He cursed her and, tying a second loop in the rope, said he was going to hang her, too. She became frightened and fainted. He made up after this and had no more serious quarrels until on Armistice night when she went to Gorman to attend a show and see Robinson. She had agreed to meet him at the Perry gin, where they often met, and when she arrived there she saw a man with a light and became frightened and ran. Robinson overtook her and asked her what she meant running from him. She told him she scared her, that she didn't know it was him. Robinson cursed her, she said, and told her she had been trifling on him; that he had searched her car and found evidence of it. Robinson, assisted by a man he had deputized, dragged her to jail.

Mrs. King denied she was drunk on this occasion. She said she had had a few bottles of 3.2, but that she could not hold enough of it to make her drunk.

The witness also testified to Robinson's youngest son coming to her home on an occasion in Desdemona when Robinson was there and while she and Robinson were eating supper. The boy, she said, kicked the door down across the supper table. He cursed her, she went and got her gun, but Robinson stopped her and told his son to go back home.

Robinson's wife, Mrs. King said, knew of the affair between she and Robinson and that they had talked it over. Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. King said, came to her home one time when Robinson was sick in a hospital at Mineral Wells, and kept her posted as to how he was getting along.

Mrs. King said Robinson called to her soon after she arrived in Gorman on the night of the killing, but that she was mad and hurt over the way he had treated her on Armistice night and that she pretended not to hear him. She talked to Constable Jimmie Ellison about going to Eastland and filing charges against Robinson for his treatment of her.

A few minutes later she saw Robinson and he called to her. As she turned into the curb he walked up to the car, opened the door and took hold of her hand. "He asked me what I was there for and if I were going to cause him trouble. I told him I was going to see Dr. Blackwell and see what he would advise, but that I was not going to ever forgive him. I asked him for my pistol and he said he was not through with it. He said if I did not forgive him and make up with him it would be my last chance. I told him I didn't give a damn.

"He pulled the gun out and placed the muzzle against his head. I had seen him do things like that before and didn't believe he would shoot himself. I reached for the gun and had hold of it when he fired. He fell and I saw he was dying. He was vomiting."

While she was in the hospital Mrs. King said all of her doctors and the nurses told her she was going to die. "I told them, no I was not going to die; that I was not fit to die."

Mrs. King, when Deputy Sheriff Wood asked her if there was anything he could do for her, told him he could ask a minister to come to see her if he wanted to. Dr. Roden, Baptist minister at Gorman, came, and prayed with her and she prayed. Dr. Roden also read the eighth chapter of St. John. She said she didn't read the Bible much and was not familiar with the Scripture read, but remembered that it said something about Jesus talking to some man about casting stones at a woman. Mrs. King declared she had felt different since the prayers and Scripture reading and was not now afraid to die.

On cross-examination Mrs. King denied that she had ever said that Robinson shot himself and then shot her.

Cross-examination of Mrs. King and the hearing of possible rebuttal testimony by both sides was expected to take up all of this afternoon and it was not thought that the case would go to the jury before Friday afternoon sometime.

The .38 calibre revolver, which the state seeks to prove Mrs. King shot Leon Robinson with, was given to her by Robinson, witnesses for the defense testified. John Clarke, of Gorman, the first witness called to the stand by the defense, testified that Robinson bought the gun in Fort Worth in 1930 and made Mrs. King a present of it.

Robinson was described as being insanely jealous and at times flying into a mad fit when he saw or suspected Mrs. King of having anything to do with other men.

Mrs. Bill Woodard of Desdemona testified to having gone to Gorman with Mrs. King and Mrs. Woodard's little girl on one occasion to a picture show when Robinson saw a man give Mrs. King a pass to the show and called her out. The three of them (at Robinson's request, went down to the gin where they met Robinson and where Robinson and Mrs. King drank some beer. Robinson, Mrs. Woodard said, flew into a mad fit and told Mrs. King if it were not for Mrs. Woodard's little girl's

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Joan, a young girl on her way to join an expedition to South America, is forced to stop at a station in Matto Grosso, with her brother, who is sick with the fever. It is a dangerous place for a girl, and Taggart and Frenchy, two ex-cousins, have their eyes set upon the girl. Dr. Parrish and Allen are the only two in the community to defend her. Chita, a native girl, who is in love with Allen, is jealous of Joan.

In an effort to win the girl, Taggart leaves Dr. Parrish away from the brother's bedside and gets him drunk in order that the brother may die and Joan be left alone.

Allen comes to the rescue of Dr. Parrish and Chita discovers that her sweetheart is double-crossing her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Chita, who had overheard the play, had a look of contemptuous amusement in her eyes.

"Cognac might sharpen your wits," said Frenchy, as Chita leaned over toward him, and said, "From now on, Taggart, I'll call you my little bird that sings too loud."

"When I want any speeches from you, I'll ask for them," Joan said.

Chita jumped to her feet and faced the man with blazing eyes. "So, I'm not good enough for you any more? I know what you want. That's why you got the doctor drunk."

Taggart winced as he exclaimed, "Shut up!"

But the girl paid no attention to the threat in his tone. "You want her brother to die, then you have the girl for yourself."

Taggart gave her a rough shove. "I told you to shut up!"

Chita was beyond control. She

"So I'm not good enough for you anymore. I know what you want. You want the brother to die, then you have the girl for yourself." Chita exclaimed, jumping to her feet.

grabbed a bottle of cognac with the intention of crashing it at Taggart, but Frenchy grabbed her arm and twisted it so expertly that he had no difficulty in removing the bottle from her hand.

"Let me go," exclaimed Chita in rage, pain and fear.

Frenchy released the girl's hand, and she backed away from him completely covered for the time.

"Thanks," said Taggart. "She might have busted my head."

"What's more important," said the bartender, "she might have busted a good bottle of cognac."

Chita was forced out of the ring, and Taggart yawned.

"Tired?" Frenchy inquired.

"Yeah—I think I'll turn in."

Allen was unable to arouse Dr. Parrish sufficiently to attend the sick man, so he had to take over the task himself, although he didn't relish spending the night in the same house with Joan. But if Joan was alone with her brother for the nonce, she was well guarded because both Frenchy and Taggart were watching the shack.

"Walking in your sleep?" Frenchy asked pleasantly, but with an undercurrent of menace.

"Yes," said Taggart with equal menace and composure. "And I don't need any company."

"But you might land in a place where you're not wanted," said Frenchy, grinning.

"Cut the parlor talk, Frenchy," Taggart paused, then adopted a different tone. "You and I have been friends for a long time."

"Good friends, too," Frenchy interrupted.

"We never had a run-in yet," said Taggart.

"But a woman makes a difference?" Frenchy inquired.

"Maybe—but there isn't any sense of you and me getting worked up until we find out what happens to her brother."

"That shows gentlemanly consideration," said Frenchy, approvingly.

her all the time he was away—thinking only of coming back to her, and then, when he did come home, she skipped off with another guy. So, he bumped himself off."

"I see now why you don't like women," the girl said, and then, after a pause added, "They're not all bad—you know."

"There may be some that's all right, but twice is enough for me." He arose abruptly. "I guess I'll take a look at your brother."

But the brother was beyond human aid. Joan was alone.

After the funeral, she continued to live in Allen's hut, all alone, protected by the youth and Dr. Parrish. In the meantime, Frenchy and Taggart were preparing for the conquest. Both of them kept neatly shaved to make an impression upon the girl.

As Frenchy walked out of the barber shop, with his camera on his arm, he met Joan and Dr. Parrish. "Beautiful, keep that pose," exclaimed Frenchy. "You two make a happy picture."

Taggart, who was half-shaved, jumped out of the barber chair and came out to see what it was all about. "Oh, hello," he said to Joan. "You're looking well. Doc must be giving you special attention. Must be kind of lonesome for you Miss Leeson. How'd you like it if I sent my gramophone over to you?"

"That's very kind of you, but I think right now I wouldn't care for music."

"I just thought it might cheer you up," said Taggart.

"I wouldn't want to trouble you."

"No trouble. Anything I can do for you is a pleasure," Taggart tried to be ever-polite.

"Of course you're not afraid; but it would be safer for you to have someone in the house," said Frenchy.

"I'm quite safe," Joan replied. "I have a gun that would discourage any intruders."

Step out into the SUNSHINE

How many days of your life are lost in feeling under par? How many hours which might be bright are dull and dispirited?

Half-hearted days are frequently due to common constipation. It clouds your waking hours, takes the sunshine out of living. Yet it can be overcome so easily by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also a fine source of iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal way" pleasanter than risking patent medicines?

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal or use in muffins, breads, omelets, etc. In the red-and-green package. At all Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Monday has its office in the front of the Gorman Progress building. The farmers are gradually signing the contracts.

About 1,000 acres have been signed up in the cotton acreage reduction here. There are still a few more farmers who are eligible to sign up. It is hoped that these farmers will soon sign up their contracts.

MEDICAL ADVICE

If you want to . . .
relieve constipation gently and safely take the exact dose suited to your need avoid danger of bowel strain

—use a liquid laxative

Can constipation be safely relieved? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" declare thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills and tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can safely relieve this condition just by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit your individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will it irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The unwise use of strong cathartics may often do more harm than good.

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't

THE TEST:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics!

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative.

Second: take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used.

Questions And Answers On The Agricultural Plan

Cotton Plan Q: Who may enter into the cotton acreage reduction plan? A: Any producer who is an owner, landlord, cash tenant or managing share-tenant and who operates or controls a cotton farm that fulfills one of the following three conditions: 1. Cotton was planted for at least three years of the base period 1928 to 1932 inclusive. 2. Cotton was planted for three years of the base period, one of which years was either 1931 or 1932. 3. Cotton was planted in both of the years 1931 and 1932. B. Any producer who is an owner, landlord, cash tenant or managing share-tenant and who fulfilled an acreage reduction contract with the secretary of agriculture in 1933 and will farm land in 1934 on which such a contract was fulfilled. Provided, in either (A) or (B) that the reduction shall not be less than two acres, and provided further that, on land planted to cotton for any of the periods specified, the average production shall not be less than 100 pounds of lint per acre. Q: Is a producer who has moved from the land he farmed in the base period eligible to enter into a contract? A: Yes, if he has moved to a farm which is eligible under the contract. Q: Is a new farmer who wants to start producing cotton eligible to sign the contract? A: Yes, if he is farming land which is eligible under the contract; otherwise the answer is "No." Q: Can fertilizer be used on the acreage planted to cotton? A: Yes. The normal amount of fertilizer may be used. Using or encouraging the use of more than the normal amount of fertilizer violates the spirit of the cotton acreage reduction plan. Q: Will each farm be inspected and measured to see that the required cotton acreage reduction actually is made and that other terms of the contract are complied with? A: Yes. Inspection and measurements are necessary before the second payment for 1934 or 1935 can be certified. Q: If the producer's farm is mortgaged, must the mortgage sign the contract? A: No. Q: Will the required reduction in cotton acreage be based upon the number of acres planted or the number harvested? A: Upon the number of acres planted and incultivation on July 1 in each year of the base period. Q: If the producer had a partial or complete crop failure during one or more of the years in the base period, will his farm allotment be affected? A: Yes; because his average production will be lower. Q: Can a producer who is operating two or more separate tracts of land include them all under one contract and get a single allotment? A: He can if they are all under one ownership and operated as one farm. If they are operated as individual farms or by managing share-tenants, the producer should make a separate contract and obtain a separate allotment for each farm so operated to be covered by a contract. Q: What restrictions are placed on the cotton land rented to the secretary of agriculture? A: The following restrictions will be in force: a. Under no circumstances can any crop be grown for sale directly or indirectly upon the land taken out of cotton production. In renting this land to the secretary, the producer should not expect to use it for producing any product for sale any more than he would on land rented to a neighbor. b. Feed crops intended to be grown on other land for the feeding of livestock cannot be diverted to the land taken out of cotton production, thereby releasing acreage for the production of some crop or crops for sale. c. The boundaries of the land taken out of cotton production shall be marked by the producer with stakes or other appropriate markers. d. The land cannot be made a source of profit by renting or otherwise disposing of its use or by the sale or exchange, directly or indirectly of products from the land. Corn-Hog Plan Q: Can a contract be signed by a producer for corn or hogs alone? A: No, except as follows: a. If his 1932-33 litters were less than four, he does not have to reduce hog production and does not receive hog payment. If such litters were less than three, he is not eligible to receive a payment even if he desires to reduce hog production. b. If his 1932-33 average corn acreage is less than 10 acres, he does not have to reduce corn production, and he is not eligible for corn payment. In any case where the average corn acreage is 10 or more acres and the average number of litters is more than three, a producer must reduce both corn and hogs. Q: Can a contract be signed if the producer does not intend to plant corn or raise hogs in 1934? A: a. He may reduce his corn acreage in 1934 as much beyond 20 per cent of the 1932-33 average corn acreage as he wishes, but he cannot receive payments for any reduction in excess of 30 per cent unless otherwise authorized by the secretary of agriculture. b. He may reduce his litters farrowed and hogs produced for market by any amount in excess of 25 per cent of his 1932-33 average but he cannot receive reduction payments for such excess reduction. The contract signer agrees that the farm under contract will be operated throughout 1934. Q: A person owns sows which are placed with producers under an agreement whereby such person retains ownership and receives back the sows and a specified number of pigs at some future time. Can such person include the litters of such sows in his 1932-33 litters under a corn-hog reduction contract? A: No, because he does not own the litters when farrowed and because the litters are farrowed on land not owned or operated by him. Q: Can hogs produced under an agreement such as indicated in the previous question be included under any contract? A: Yes, they may be included in the 1932-33 litters of the producer if he owns such litters when farrowed.

Manuscript of Charles Dickens Brings Big Price LONDON, Feb. 8.—Publication rights to a life of Christ, written by Charles Dickens for the benefit of his children and for nearly 65 years withheld from the public, have been sold for the record-breaking price of $15 a word. The manuscript contains about 14,000 words. Behind the announcement of the sale lies not only a human story of a father's desire that his children should know the life of Christ, but also one of a dramatic struggle of editors and publishers for purchase of the manuscript. The purchasers, the announcement revealed, were the London Daily Mail, which bought world rights, and the United Feature Syndicate of New York, which purchased serial rights. Receiver Suit Against Jesse Jones Dropped FORT WORTH, Feb. 8.—The receivership suit against Jesse H. Jones, RFC chairman and the Fort Worth Properties company, was dismissed here today on request of attorneys for Mrs. Selma Sternberg, St. Louis, Mo., who brought the suit. The suit was filed last February in federal court here by Mrs. Sternberg, who alleged the company had defaulted in interest on bonds she said she possessed. One Resident of Old Cattle Town Is Still Alive TASCOSA, Tex. — Once the boom cattle town of the Panhandle, Tascosa is nothing but a memory now. But the place has two memorials—one mute, the other living—of the rollicking days when the town was a cowboy's paradise of gaming places and drinking holes. On a bleak hill that overlooks the bank of the Canadian River where the town once stood are 29 unkept graves, the history of which give a good idea of the sort of town Tascosa was in the old days. Known as Boothill, the forgotten graveyard is the last resting place of 29 men who died and were buried with their boots on. The last three men claimed by Boothill were killed in a single brawl, March 21, 1886. They were victims of the famous feud between the LIT and the Lone Star ranches. Only four of the graves are marked. Less than two dozen live in Tascosa now, and only one of them saw the town flourish and dwindle and saw Boothill claim its victims from time to time. She is Mrs. Mickey McCormick, who was a belle of the town in its boom days. Dwellling alone in a two-room "dobe," the 79-year-old woman lives on memories of the past—when she was young and beautiful and when Tascosa was the cowboy's center of the Panhandle country. It was Mrs. McCormick and her husband, Mickey, who served Pat Garrett with a big turkey dinner immediately after the famous sheriff disposed of Billy the Kid.

Witnesses said Brewton had taken the man, said to be intoxicated, from the dance floor and had handcuffed him. To Finger Print In Many Lines

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The use of finger-print identification is becoming so common in business as well as police work that it is developing a new industry, according to A. W. Nelson, president of a company formed here to manufacture finger-printing supplies. Finger-print experts in the past have made their own equipment, but the practice is becoming so widespread that a demand has arisen for manufactured supplies, Nelson said. Finger-printing has ceased to be merely the work of a few persons who find it interesting, and has become a common practice in so many businesses that swift, easily-handled equipment is wanted. Hospitals in many cities use finger-prints for birth certificates, Nelson said. Insurance companies use them for policy applications and claims, banks use them for identification in large accounts, and undertakers are beginning to use them. This means of identification is comparatively new in America aside from police work. A Scotland Yard detective is credited with introducing finger-print identification to this country, when he came to St. Louis 33 years ago and established the identity of a prisoner wanted in England.

Hounds Travel Expenses Do Not Come Within Law

EL PASO, Tex.—Traveling expenses for a bloodhound fail to comply with the state law allowing peace officers the costs of their official trips, County Attorney David E. Mulcahy ruled when he denied Sheriff Chris F. Fox's claim to deduct such an expenditure from his fees of office. State penitentiary officials and Sheriff Fox sent the trained criminal tracker "on approval." Sheriff Fox sent the bloodhound back. The county attorney ruled that Sheriff Fox must pay the $4.86 express bill from his own pocket.

Lubitsch Wins High Honor for New Film

"Design for Living," Paramount's film adaptation of Noel Coward's sensational stage hit playing at the Lyric Theatre Monday, clinches Ernst Lubitsch's reputation as the most versatile of all the top rank directors in Hollywood.

Lubitsch has won renown as a director of tragedy, drama, comedy, farce and gay musical romance.

Now, in "Design for Living" starring Fredric March, Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and Edward Everett Horton, Lubitsch brings to the screen a startling presentation of modern life. A story of three people, two men and a woman, who love each other very much, without destroying their old bosom friendship.

This ultra-modern idea has been brought to the screen by Ben Tech, prominent Broadway playwright and the author of "Front Page."

Answering an age-old question women have been asking themselves for years, "Design for Living" shows Miriam Hopkins as the young modern miss who can't decide between two men played by Fredric March and Gary Cooper.

The three join forces. Miss Hopkins becomes the boys' severest critic, gets a producer to put one of March's plays and gets Cooper an art reputation. As it eventually must, the situation gets out of control—and it isn't until Edward Everett Horton comes into the scene as a villainous comedian that the boys put up a united front before their joint enemy to win back Miss Hopkins' love.

Informal Barn Dance

A jolly crowd of 32 boys and girls of the younger set enjoyed a "barn dance" Saturday night, held in a vacant garage near the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chance, and hosted by Misses Lewai Chance, Carolyn Doss and Benny Kate Wood, assisted by hosts, Alex Clark, Jr., and Ralph D. Mahon, Jr.

The building was cleverly lighted with oil lanterns, decorated with harvest foliage and dancing was to vicirola music.

Chaperones were Meses. Leslie Word, Oneita Russell, Doris Powell and Mr. Chance.

Refreshments of ice fruited punch and small cakes were served during the evening.

The Booster Class

The Booster Bible class had a number of guests at their meeting Sunday morning in the Methodist church, and several new members.

The session opened with the president, Mrs. D. S. Eubanks, in charge, and Miss Jane Ferguson as pianist.

The meeting of the Booster class on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. T. M. Collier, when husbands and wives will be guests, was announced.

Visitors introduced were Mrs. Morgan Myers, Miss Belle Booner of Hobbs, N. M., J. A. Johnson of Sherman, and Joe Blalock of Bonham.

New members presented were Mrs. Cecil Hibberd, and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Fry Jr.

Preceding the wonderful lecture by Judge W. P. Leslie, Miss Jane Ferguson gave a delightful piano solo.

Lubitsch Wins High Honor for New Film

"Design for Living," Paramount's film adaptation of Noel Coward's sensational stage hit playing at the Lyric Theatre Monday, clinches Ernst Lubitsch's reputation as the most versatile of all the top rank directors in Hollywood.

Lubitsch has won renown as a director of tragedy, drama, comedy, farce and gay musical romance.

Now, in "Design for Living" starring Fredric March, Gary Cooper, Miriam Hopkins and Edward Everett Horton, Lubitsch brings to the screen a startling presentation of modern life. A story of three people, two men and a woman, who love each other very much, without destroying their old bosom friendship.

This ultra-modern idea has been brought to the screen by Ben Tech, prominent Broadway playwright and the author of "Front Page."

Answering an age-old question women have been asking themselves for years, "Design for Living" shows Miriam Hopkins as the young modern miss who can't decide between two men played by Fredric March and Gary Cooper.

The three join forces. Miss Hopkins becomes the boys' severest critic, gets a producer to put one of March's plays and gets Cooper an art reputation. As it eventually must, the situation gets out of control—and it isn't until Edward Everett Horton comes into the scene as a villainous comedian that the boys put up a united front before their joint enemy to win back Miss Hopkins' love.

"Song of Kong" at Lyric Saturday

"Son of Kong," RKO-Radio Pictures' sequel to the epic adventure fantasy, "King Kong," was produced as magically almost as an event in the Arabian Nights.

The producer and director of the film, said, quite casually: "We want Helen Mack to step out of a rowboat on the shore of an island, and to be frightened by a gigantic sea serpent."

One hundred men worked hectically, for one month, building the island. A ship was rented, and 100 technicians and five actors were transported thereon, to Catalina Island, off the coast of Southern California, for additional scenes. Fifteen men worked several weeks creating the serpent and endowing it with life through their carefully guarded and secret formulas. And—when the scene was actually shot, more than 100 film craftsmen sweated behind the camera, every one playing an essential and vital part in the recording of Miss Mack's predicament.

"Son of Kong," presents the additional adventures of Carl Denham, movie explorer, who captured "King Kong," the giant ape. Robert Armstrong again has the role.

In the story, entirely different in plot from the original production, he heads another expedition to "Skull Island," eerie land inhabited by prehistoric monsters, but this time, however, not in search of another ape, but to seek the buried treasure of a lost civilization. Here he meets the "Son of Kong," and amazing adventures.

TEXAS HAS RECEIVED $162,000,000 FROM THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT FUND

THOMAS C. HURST
Special Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Feb. 7.—Texas has received more than $162,000,000 from Federal funds released for relief and project work throughout the country under the Roosevelt administration's "new deal" program.

The estimate is considered a conservative one for the nation's largest state. At the same time the figure provides a bird's eye view where the Federal millions are being after President Roosevelt's request for 10 billion dollars for relief and project work.

A check by the United Press of a golden stream of Federal assistance being poured into this state revealed that more than $2,000,000 has been paid or is in the process of being paid by the government for relief and project work in Texas.

This figure does not represent total of Federal efforts in its state on depression. So extended have been the efforts that a comprehensive and conclusive survey is impossible.

Regardless of the impossibility of imminent recovery are being observers throughout the state. The recovery general-ly accredited to the stupendous pouring of federal funds.

In addition to the tremendous amount Texas already has received, prospects appear good for at least $150,000,000 more, pending congressional action on legislation which would appropriate a substantial amount for further river and flood control projects, some owners' loans and prop-erty management for security, and issuance of Federal relief and public works.

The valuation of the individual state roughly gives the total pro-portion represented, but the survey down to dol-lars showed a figure of $162,000,000 for six general relief ser-vice projects.

A particular part or section of the state is receiving a large share of the money. The Rio Grande Valley, the coastal regions, and major waterways and ranch lands from West Texas to East Texas are sharing according to the surveyed demands.

A survey revealed approxi-mate appropriations to Texas since the government's war on depression are as follows:

PROBE OF ALL ARMY AWARDS WILL BE MADE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The government investigation into alleged irregularities in letting of army contracts, moved in widening circles today, threatening to bring new names and figures into its scope.

What started out as an inquiry into activities of a few alleged lobbyists has spread to include all the past commercial transactions of the war department and CCC camps.

A federal grand jury continued taking testimony regarding the alleged efforts of paid go-betweens to induce the army quartermaster in the purchase of trucks and cars from certain manufacturers and a house committee pursued an inquiry into the cost of airplanes furnished the army and the profit allegedly made thereon.

Penney Managers Report Business Much Improved

George H. Hipp, manager for the Eastland J. C. Penney store, attended a group meeting of 15 managers of West Texas Penney stores at Abilene the latter part of last week and reports a very interesting and profitable meeting.

Conditions throughout this section, he said, look rosy, and the members of our organization are looking forward for still greater improvements in business. For the past few months at least we have been making improvements.

He was pleased with the fact that a check up on the 15 stores in this group showed his store had made a greater gain for January than any other store in the group.

Mr. Hipp is also enthusiastic over the prospects for the future of his store in Eastland and for the future of Eastland as a whole.

Burglars Enter Eastland Home

Burglars Friday night entered the bedroom of J. V. Freeman, Eastland insurance man, on South Dixie street, and took $80 in cash and some checks from the pocket of Mr. Freeman's coat, which he had worn the day before and which he placed on a hanger when he retired. The checks were found on the back porch by Mr. Freeman next morning where they had been discarded by the burglar.

Entrance to the house was gained through the bedroom window which had been pried up. So quietly did the intruder go about his business that no one sleeping in the bedroom was awakened by him. Officers are working on the case.

Thieves Plunder Many Vacant Houses

Thieves have been plundering vacant houses in Eastland recently removing plumbing fixtures and anything else that appeared to be of value. It is believed that the articles thus obtained are passed on to a fence in some other city where they are disposed of at a price satisfactory to those stealing them.

Old Standpipe Has Disappeared

Workmen who have for the past week been busy dismantling the old water standpipe by the city hall, which has been of no use since the erection of the newer one at the city park, have practically completed their job.

The parts of the standpipe already dismantled have been transported via truck to Desdemona.

For a long period of time city commissioners were of the impression that the water container was a "white elephant" because of the propositions submitted by various cities that never culminated. However, the city of Desdemona purchased the tower and showed alacrity in their intent of dismantling it.

TO THE CITIZENS OF EASTLAND COUNTY:

Though I have never, before in my life, asked for an office within the gift of the people, I take great pleasure in making my announcement as a candidate for county judge of Eastland county, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July of this year, because I know I will have the pleasure of meeting many of my fellow citizens, during my campaign, that I have never met before.

I feel that I am qualified to fill the office for which I am asking, and will make the race on my own qualifications, and not on any other persons' so-called shortcomings or errors. Their mistakes, if any, can, in no way, add to my ability.

As to my qualifications I desire to state here that I am a graduate of high school, and obtained a law education in the University of Texas. I have taught school and coached athletics for six years of my life, and have now been in the practice of law for about 18 years, the last 15 of which have been in Eastland, Texas.

I came to Eastland county with my father and mother 40 years ago the third day of last December, and have resided in this county a great part of the time since that date. I was reared on a farm at Hallmark school, about three miles north of Okra, Texas, left that farm after I was a grown man, finished my education, taught at a few years, and then entered my chosen profession of law.

I earnestly solicit your careful investigation of my whole life, both as to my reputation for honesty and square dealing, and as to my qualifications from the standpoint of training and experience. If you find that I measure up to your requirements in all respects, to the extent that you feel that I will be able to fill the office of county judge, I will appreciate your vote and influence.

I hope to see you personally before the date of the primary election in July, but during the interim please investigate me, and if you can conscientiously do so, help me to get the job for which I am asking.

Sincerely yours,
W. D. R. OWEN.

Road Contractors Want Local Help Where Possible

Froemming Brothers, successful bidders on extension of West Main intersecting Bankhead highway, have started construction of the concrete pavements in this city. It has been rumored that this construction company was importing men other than citizens of this county to this job. We are advised that this construction company is required by the state highway department of Texas and the national re-employment agencies of this county to select their personnel from the files of eligible workers listed on the rolls of the national re-employment agencies of this county. It is permissible for this construction company to bring their directing personnel and for the national re-employment agencies to transfer from other points of Texas to this job the skilled labor which is required to operate the various equipment operated by the construction company, which requires a type of skilled labor not available through the local office. All other labor, teams, trucks, and working personnel will be, and is, required to be taken from the available unemployed of this county.

Since a slight misunderstanding as to the working personnel of labor requirements has arisen, it is suggested, should any organization or person feel that the labor requirements of this contract is being violated that they consult with J. R. Parker, superintendent of Froemming Bros. Inc., of Texas, or with Wesley Hall, state highway department engineer, or with Crigler Paschall of the national re-employment service at each respective office.

Available records of the entire working personnel are kept and are open for inspection, and Mr. Hall and Mr. Paschall represent the interest of the unemployed of this county and welcome an opportunity to discuss the working of this or any other project with the citizenship.

tered the house through it. Miss Drago believes she heard the man in the house two hours earlier and believes he was in the building when the family retired.

The purse which Miss Drago tore from the burglar's hands contained a $5 bill, some postage savings certificates and small change, only the small change was missing.

Later this morning, H. W. Hipp, who lives on South Daugherty street a few blocks below the Drago home, whose wife is out of the city, was awakened by the presence of a man in the house and upon investigation found that a pistol, some cigarettes and a flashlight were missing. He saw the man leaving the house.

Miss Drago was completely exhausted from her experience with the intruder and had to remain in bed, dismissing her violin classes for the day.

In her struggle with the intruder Miss Drago tore a button from his clothing which she still held in her hands when the excitement was over.

Burglar Enters Eastland Home But Is Routed

Miss Wilda Drago, who lives with her parents on South Daugherty street, Eastland, was awakened about 3 o'clock this morning to find a man standing near the foot of her bed going through a purse belonging to Miss Katherine Carter of Fort Worth, a guest in the Drago home and who was sleeping on another bed in the same room.

Frightened but retaining her presence of mind, Miss Drago made a flying tackle as the intruder attempted to leave the room through a window, caught the purse in one hand and the man about the waist with the other. She held on and was being dragged out the window when Miss Carter, aroused by the commotion in the room, went to her rescue, catching Miss Drago by the feet and pulling her back into the room.

Miss Drago says the man was a white man, well dressed, and that she could identify him should she see him again.

Officers were called and investigation revealed that the intruder had removed a screen from a window, opened the window and en-
