German Tyranny Puts Heroes in High Light

The one redeeming feature of any tyranny is that it throws old-fashioned courage into high relief. It beats down and destroys many of the things that make civilization worth keeping, but it does stir up plenty of plain, unadorned heroism.

Cables from Germany recently illustrate the point abundantly

First there is the case of Dr. Hugo Eckener.

Dr. Eckener is flying the great airship Hindenburg to new triumphs, just as he did with the Graf Zeppelin in years past. His name is appearing in the newspapers everywhere-but very little in his own Germany.

For Dr. Eckener doesn't like the Hitler government and he does not care who knows it. When the farcical election was held not long ago, Dr. Eckener refused point-blank to get out and stir up enthusiasm for the government. In revenge, the government is giving him the silent treatment.

If it were not for the fact that no one on earth can make airships jump through the hoop the way Dr. Eckener can, he would be looking for a new job right now. As it is, the Germans don't dare fire him. They will persecute him, however, and if they ever develop anyone who can take | Election July 25, 1936: his place, they will bounce the veteran out of there in jig time.

Dr. Eckener's attitude is a thing to win the admiration of everyone who likes courage. But he does not, after all, For Judge 88th District Court: stand alone.

Some thousands of German workmen refused to get out and vote as they were told to do; and the mighty Hitler government has been taking its revenge on them as it dared not take it on Dr. Eckener.

Storm troopers have been making the rounds of the shops and factories with lists of non-voters and the nonvoters are being fired from their jobs just as fast as the authorities can get around to it.

These men face a dismal future. They are on the world's worst blacklist. It will be almost impossible for For County Judge: them to find new jobs, and it's a lead-pipe cinch that they won't draw any unemployment benefits while they are looking for them.

Some of them will starve, some will land in concentration camps, some will be playfully kicked around by the storm troopers, and all will suffer tremendous hardships.

For what? Simply for refusing to bend the knee when the whip cracked; for being men enough to look omnipotence in the eye and tell it to go run up a twig.

Heroism of that kind doesn't grow on every rose bush. Tyranny finds it and puts it in the spotlight. And some day, when the present madness is past Germany will pay high homage to the men who displayed such courage.

Ghosts May See Final Act of Grim Fiasco

If ghosts ever come back to have a look at the old, familiar scenes, the Turks must be getting quite an audience as they proceed with the reoccupation of the Dardanelles.

The Dardanelles created ghosts in plenty-English, French, Australian, and Turkish. A little spit of land protruding into the eastern end of the Mediterranean, the penisula concentrated on its barren soil some of the most acutely bloody and vicious fighting of the entire World

It was, further, the scene of a great hope that failed, of a great plan that somehow missed fire. The memories of those ghosts who must be coming back, if ghosts ever do come back, contain a thousand dramas of failure, or heroism, of victories missed by a hair's breath.

The attack on the Dardanelles, in the spring of 1915, was one of the "inspirations" of the war. It was the venture that might have saved Europe from three years of ghastly trench warfare.

Had it succeeded, the way to Russia would have been opened, Turkey would have been put out of the war, and it would have been possible for the Allies to strike at the Central Powers from the rear. Victory at Gallipili would director of the National Emergenprobably have won the war within th. year.

And, just incidentally, all this might well have prevented the Bolshevik revolution in Russia.

But this brilliant inspiration somehow was less than will be given to farmers whose brilliant in execution. The allies contrived to give the Turks advance warning of the attack; at the last minute extend to farmers listed as "inacof the eleventh hour, just enough Turkish troops to hold the gate were rushed to the peninsula.

Allied soldiers who expected to march irresistibly up the peninsula had to die by thousands before a contingent ers. It was pointed out, however, that the annual council camp will could even get ashore. Once ashore, the soldiers found that standard clients of the Reset start July 15 and run to July 22 themselves in a box, unable to advance or retreat fated to dig in stoically and suffer the pounding of the Turkish

Time and again victory touched the allied fingertips -and then withdrew. Once an Anzac detachment reached the peak of a dominating hill, possession of which would have driven the Turks from the peninsula. For a moment, the soldiers looked across the straits and saw the sea of Marmara. Then, through some horrible mischance, their own artillery fired on them. The hill was lost, and never regional offices located at Dallas. 300. Many scouts have already overnor James V. Allred receives an original drawing by a famouartist. The illustration by Norman Price, entitled "Colonel William B. Fravis at the Alamo, March 3, 1836," depicting a dramatic moment in ast-man defense of the Alamo, is presented to Governor Allred by G. S. Robison (right), Texas sales manager for General Foods. Porrayed in the Price work are Colonel Travis' hard-bitten fontiersmer crossing the line" to certain death in preference to the ignominy of arrender. This event is the first of a series of nine historial criss pictures by Price for the sponsors of a $5,000 prize contest, now runing in Texas newspapers, and dealing with Texas history.
