Furrows Orator Booms McDonald At Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, June 24. — Opposition to the state "going into oil hunting business on a huge scale and losing millions of dollars to the taxpayers' money" was expressed by June K. Hendricks, known as the orator of the furrows, who was here Tuesday in support of W. H. (Bill) McDonald, Eastland county, candidate for oil land commissioner.

McDonald's opponent is expected to such a policy which would cost so costly that it would cripple the state's revenue and payment of an adequate salary to our elderly citizens would be made difficult if not impossible," said Hendricks, who lives in Eastland county, and is a farmer. He once ran a race for office against McDonald.

Services at Staff. Rev. Ross Respress will fill his regular appointment Sunday morning and night at the Baptist church at Staff, it was announced Tuesday.

Candidates Must File Expense Accounts

The next date for candidates to file the filing of the first campaign expense account because June 25 and July 1 with County Clerk T. M. Colie.

Harry Henry Needs 100 Terrapins at Five Cents a Head

Harry Henry, who is in charge of the terrapin race, is to be held in Eastland this year, is having his troubles. He seems that there are no terrapins in this country now.

On previous occasions he has stated that he wanted 100 terrapins, for which he would pay each one. This year he is having a very uneasy because not a terrapin has been secured for the race, though he has made a usual 5-cent offer.

If any of you boys or girls would find a terrapin—or a full-grown Harry Henry would buy them. The offer is for the first 100 brought in. However, Henry can be located at the Lone Star garage, well road, Ranger, where terrapins, if any, can be found.

The picnic is to be held Saturday, though, so there is very much time left for a deal with Henry.

Eastland terrapins can be at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Man Is Allowed To File His Name On Primary Ticket

The Eastland county Democratic executive committee decided Monday afternoon to allow the name of Charlie Wende, of Cisco, candidate for county commissioner of Precinct No. 4, printed on the primary ballot July 25. The meeting was held at Eastland.

The decision was reached after opponents of the candidate who failed to file his name by the deadline with the executive chairman requested the committee's action.

Wende's opponents are Arch Birt, Robert Tucker and Joe Clements.

It was decided that sealed bids will be received up to 6 o'clock Thursday from printers for printing the ballots. Names of candidates who will appear on the ballot are on file at district clerk's office in Eastland, where the bids are to be received.

The following resolution was passed:

Resolved: We the Democratic executive committee of Eastland county desire to express our appreciation to Earl Conner Jr., for his very active, efficient, impartial and faithful service as county chairman. He worked in harmony with the committee and actively sought the advancement of the party's interest. His interest seemed to be controlled entirely with the thought of services well rendered to the party.

O. E. LYERLA, Chairman.

Calf (?) With Appearance of Dog Is Attracting Many At Eastland

A five-day-old animal whose owners claim is half bulldog and calf, attracted the attention of stock raisers and others Tuesday at Eastland.

W. H. Cooper and Hoyt Davis claim the mother was a three-year-old Hereford and the father a four-year-old Boston bulldog.

The animal, with equal characteristics of a calf and dog and the possible dominating appearance of the latter, is located at Cooper's residence near the Point Service Station, east of Eastland on the Bankhead highway.

At birth the animal weighed 50 pounds, which Davis stated is about 25 pounds less than the average weight of a calf. It has a screw tail, dog legs and cropped ears. The animal is a male.

The mother of the calf-bulldog recognizes the animal as its own and is fed in the ordinary manner. A Ranger veterinarian examined the animal and stated its health was good and "should die of old age."

Teeth of the animal are of a dog's type. Horns are taking form on back of the head. The face resembles the usual pugnacious bulldog type.

Davis and Cooper are dealing with an insurance company to insure the animal for $2,000. They plan to exhibit the freak at the Dallas and Fort Worth Centennial celebrations.

The dog which the owners claim is the father is owned by Conner Stubblefield of Eastland. It has attracted wide attention. Majority of those who view the animal are dubious of the claims until inspection.

American Fleet Goes Down At Its Inland Scapa Flow Near Paris

PARIS.—At Bonneuil-sur-Marne, not far from Paris, an American fleet of 25 vessels is gradually sinking in America's inland Scapa Flow.

Strollers along the canal of the Little Darse, which leads from the Marne, come with surprise upon this graveyard of ships, some still afloat, some half-submerged, some showing only their smokestacks, on whose bows are the words, so strange to French eyes, Arkansas, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, Worcester, Georgia, and finally—not so strange—St. Louis.

They are part of the war stocks—25-ruver tugs, bought by the French government from the United States in 1916 with the intention of using them for the Paris-Rouen service. They were handsome boats when they sailed up the Marne, Missouri leading the way, and turned into the canal of the Little Darse in 1916, and the French government had paid 20,000 francs each for them. They were tied up to the bank—temporarily. Coal was left in their bunkers so that they would be ready to move out in a few days and start their new service. They haven't moved since.

After awhile the department of inland navigation took their engines out and, presumably, put them to work elsewhere. Later junkmen came around and removed what fittings were left. Inhabitants of the nearby settlements had gotten the coal long before that. Thereafter the boats were forgotten. Some of them gradually settled down into the ooze on the bottom of the canal. Others are still afloat.

Once or twice half-hearted efforts were made to sell them. The offering price was moved as low as 50 francs and there were no takers. None, that is, except one American. Maybe he was sentimental or maybe he was tired of paying rent. He turned the boat into a house boat and renamed it Noah's Ark. He lives in it now. It used to be moored in the Bois du Boulogne, and when he wanted a certificate of domicile, a document often necessary in France, he got it from the forestry guard of the Bois du Boulogne. Now he has moored his boat in the Marne.

The boats are not entirely abandoned. They provide a playground for children of the neighboring villages, whose favorite sport is playing pirate. Daily they swarm over the American boats and scuttle them with ferocious energy. It doesn't take much imagination. Half of them already are more below the water than above.

Oil Belt Gun Club Prepares For Its July 4 Shoot; Visiting Experts Due

Everything is in readiness at the Oil Belt Gun Club for their second annual shoot to be held July 4 at their grounds six miles north of Eastland on the Eastland-Breckenridge road.

Some 25 or 30 out-of-town marksmen are expected from Dallas, Fort Worth, Abilene, Graham and other towns.

A program of 150 targets has been arranged with many merchandise prizes.

One of the new features which will be of interest to old shooters are the new angles at which the skeet targets will be thrown. The Oil Belt club is one of the first in the state to change their traps to throw this angle which is said to be harder than the old style. Old-time skeet shooters may find it as difficult to run a high score as those who have never shot very much.

In order to interest new shooters a special event of 50 targets has been arranged for beginners only.

The clubhouse and grounds will be open to the public. Plenty of room for parking. The clubhouse is on a hill overlooking the grounds making it one of the coolest spots in Eastland county, officials declared.

All shooters and their friend and anyone interested in watching some of the best shots in West Texas break targets are invited to drive out and enjoy themselves, an announcement from the club and District Clerk P. L. Crossley.

Blanton Says He Will Return To Texas by July 1

It will be July 1 before he is able to reach Texas, Congressman Thomas L. Blanton states in a letter dated at Washington, D. C., on June 21.

"My mail has congested terribly during the closing days of congress and it must be answered," Congressman Blanton said. He also stated that there were numerous PWA and WPA projects in his district not yet released and that he would endeavor to have them all released before he left Washington.

"In spite of everything the few of us who watch them closely could do to stop them, several scores of bad bills got by and were passed during the last three days of Congress. I am preparing briefs on them to submit to the President, with the recommendation, and in the hope, they may be vetoed," Mr. Blanton said.

Cisco Official and Carbon Man Inspect 800 Acres Pop Corn

CISCO, June 25.—J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has returned from a business trip to Austin, Dallas and Fort Worth.

On Sunday Spencer was the guest of G. C. Atkins of the Carbon Peanut company which has 800 acres of pop corn in the winter garden district. This corn is coming into maturity and should make 15 or 20 cars of shelled corn, weighing at 10 cents a pound, Spencer said.

The mill has just received a letter from a California concern asking for samples and price on a 20-car order.

While at Austin Spencer secured committeemen from Bucy Early of the maintenance department that Highway 89 would be kept in good condition for traffic during the Centennial but that likely no paving would start before Fall.

Robot Charts a Hot Air Belt High in Ozone

SYDNEY, Australia. — Radio experiments just completed by Drs. D. F. Martyn and O. O. Pulley of Sydney University have demonstrated the possibility of exploring the entire stratosphere for a distance of 150 miles above the earth without the necessity of further dangerous ascensions.

Except for the possibility of ascertaining whether the stratosphere constitutes a medium for speedy aerial travel, the two Sydney scientists are convinced that all necessary information about the earth's upper atmosphere can now be obtained from the earth itself.

Under the system invented and thoroughly demonstrated by Dr. Martyn, the upper air can now be probed by radio signals.

His new method gives accurate data on the amount of electrification, the amount of ozone, and the temperature throughout the whole thickness of the upper air from 22 up to 150 miles.

The new type apparatus which Dr. Martyn has perfected consists of a robot that sends out signals, catches the echoes, varies the wave lengths and pilots all the information obtained on a tiny chart.

One of the first discoveries made by Dr. Martyn with his new invention was that there is still another cold layer of air far above the stratosphere cold layer recently reached by Russian and American balloonists. Between the two cold layers there lies sandwiched a warm layer, and it is in this latter that Dr. Martyn thinks that stratosphere flying might become a possibility.

According to the radio records made by Dr. Martyn, temperatures again dip in the second stratosphere above the warm ozone layer, reaching a minimum at 50 miles above the earth's surface.

From these upward the temperatures increase till they end in a torrid zone at 150 miles of altitude.

On this latter heated zone, Dr. Martyn's radio reports contradict the belief of Professor Appleton, who was convinced this zone was hot only in summer. Martyn's experiments show that the sea-

Huge Gun, Long Silenced, Displays Might in Tests

With earth-rocking repercussion, this huge 14-inch railroad rifle is shown as it sent a projectile screaming through space toward targets 26 miles distant, in tests along the California coast. Simulating war-time conditions, the scene of the firing was near Don, Calif., about 40 miles north of San Diego. So terrific is the shock of firing the guns, which propel a 1400-pound shell, that they have not been used since 1928. Windows in coast houses for miles around then were broken by their discharge and many Californians believed an earthquake was in progress.

sonal drop in only from 1,300 to 1,000.

As a consequence, Dr. Martyn declares, that the earth is perpetually girdled by a fiery ring of inconceivably rarefied air, in which, necessarily, no human activity could ever be hoped for.

Measurements of the upper ozone show fluctuations exactly corresponding to barometric measures on the ground, but antipating them. As a consequence weather forecasts, Dr. Martyn declares, can be made from these radio probes of the air.

Australian authorities are so impressed with Dr. Martyn's findings, that modern ozone measures are now being installed at the Commonwealth Weather Bureau, the Solar Observatory at Canberra and at the installation of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research.

New All-Time Oil Production Record Was Established in the United States During the Month of May This Year

By ELMER H. JOHNSON, Industrial Geographer Bureau of Business Research University of Texas.

A new all-time record in oil production in the United States was attained during the week ending May 16, 1936, with an average of a little more than 3,000,000 barrels a day. The previous highest stage had been attained during the week ending Aug. 23, 1929, with an average of 2,975,435 barrels a day.

The proportions contributed by the oil producing states and by major fields, however, was very different for the week of May 16, 1936, from what such proportions had been in the peak production of 1929. Comparisons of these changes during this period show that two states—Texas and Louisiana—have gained considerable. The large gain in Texas has been due, of course, to East Texas which was not producing oil in 1929. Two other sections of Texas also show gains—the Gulf Coast and East Central Texas—but the sum of the gains of these two districts is more than offset by the decreases in West Texas, North Central Texas and the Texas Panhandle. There has also been a slight gain in Southwest Texas.

The gain of the whole of Texas amounts to nearly 31 per cent over that for the week ending Aug. 23, 1929. In Louisiana both North and Coastal Louisiana show significant gains. Largest decrease in oil production by states during this period occurred in California—a decrease of 34.5 per cent. And in Oklahoma in spite of the enormous increase in the Oklahoma City field, the state total had declined by nearly 23 per cent. The States of Kansas and Michigan and the Rocky Mountain field show increases but substantial decreases have occurred in Arkansas and the Eastern fields.

Comparisons of these data, together with other available information, show unmistakably certain well-defined tendencies and changes in oil production. The section of greatest current production and of largest increases since 1929 is the Gulf Coastal Plain in Texas and Louisiana. This section includes the producing territory lying along the Gulf—the Gulf Coast, of Texas, and Louisiana—and the interior Coastal Plain fields—Southwest Texas, East Central Texas, East Texas, and North Louisiana.

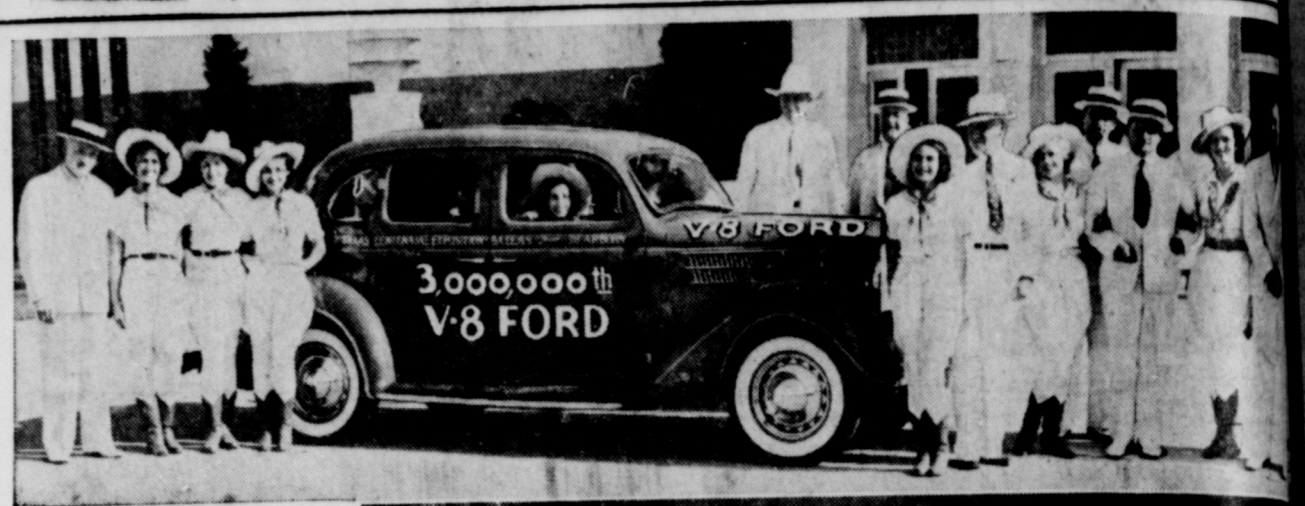

Certain major fields elsewhere show significant increases in the comparisons under consideration—such as Oklahoma City; Kettleman Hills, Calif.; Hobbs, N. M.—but oil output as a whole outside the Gulf Coastal Plains, coast zones and interior, shows decreases.

To what extent these changes are indicative of a long-time trend which may increase the relative importance of Texas and Louisiana in oil production it is impossible to say. New discoveries no doubt will be made outside Texas and Louisiana; but it appears now that the great happy hunting grounds for new reserves in the United States will be largely confined to these two states.

One by one the older oil producing states have been left behind. Pennsylvania was for years the leading oil producing state; but its largest annual production, 1891, was only 31,424,000 barrels. During the later 1890's Ohio held leading rank. Alternately Oklahoma and California have been the leading producers. Texas' annual production since 1931 has eclipsed that of any state at any time in the past.

Texas is not only the leading producer of all time, in 1935 producing nearly 24 per cent of the world output of oil, but it apparently is to be the last stand of big

3,000,000th Ford V-8 Driven to Southwest Exposition

The Centennial at Dallas, Texas, made a great "to-do" when the 3,000,000th Ford V-8, off the assembly line in less than a year after the 2,000,000th left last year for the Exposition at San Diego, California, arrived at the Exposition gates. In the upper photograph, taken in front of the Ford Exposition building are shown Rex Ryan, of the Ford Motor Company, a group of the Exposition's Rangerettes, the 3,000,000th V-8 after its trip from Dearborn, Michigan, Sheriff Smoot Schmid, of Dallas County; the city manager of Dallas, Hal Moseley; Nathan Adams, chairman of the Centennial; Fred F. Florence, president of the Centennial; Mayor George Sergeant, of Dallas, and smiling James Rooney, who drove the V-8 from Dearborn, collecting "3,000,000" license tags from the states he crossed. The good-looking young ladies at the right of the car are oil production in the nation. It is inevitable though, like other states in the past, that Texas oil production will at some time in the future be subject to a decline.

Oil production is rather highly localized. Three states—Texas, Oklahoma, and California account for the major output of the United States. During the entire history of oil production of the United States 50 major pools have accounted for nearly 60 per cent of the nation's total output. All but four of these dominant pools occur in either Texas, Oklahoma or California.

Oil refining is likewise rather highly centralized but the geographic distribution of the oil refining districts shows many contrasts with that of oil production.

The location of the oil refining industry is oriented by access to the markets for major oil products as well as by the presence of crude oil. Largest refining district in America is the Texas Gulf Coast which currently has been taking about 22 per cent of the total crude runs to stills in the United States. Refineries in all of Texas have been taking more than 26 per cent of crude runs to stills.

Second in rank in crude runs to stills is California; during the week ending May 23 California refineries took 18 per cent of the total.

Third in rank in refinery operations is the East Coast district—refining crude oil brought in mainly by coastwise transportation, and clearly a district whose location of refineries is market oriented. Fourth in rank are the refineries of Indiana and Illinois—largely using crude oil brought in by extensive pipe line systems, and oriented by the demand of the great Mid-Western market. Of lesser importance are the refining operations in Oklahoma and Kansas.

Largest expansion in refining operations during the past few years has occurred in the Gulf Coast. A substantial new crude production from Continent fields has been south by pipe lines to supplementing the increase of the Gulf Coast. definite movement of refinery operations of the Coast has been augmented. factor of accessibility to market of northeastern States, made possible by cost tanker transportation wise commerce.

Laughs Under the Big Top!

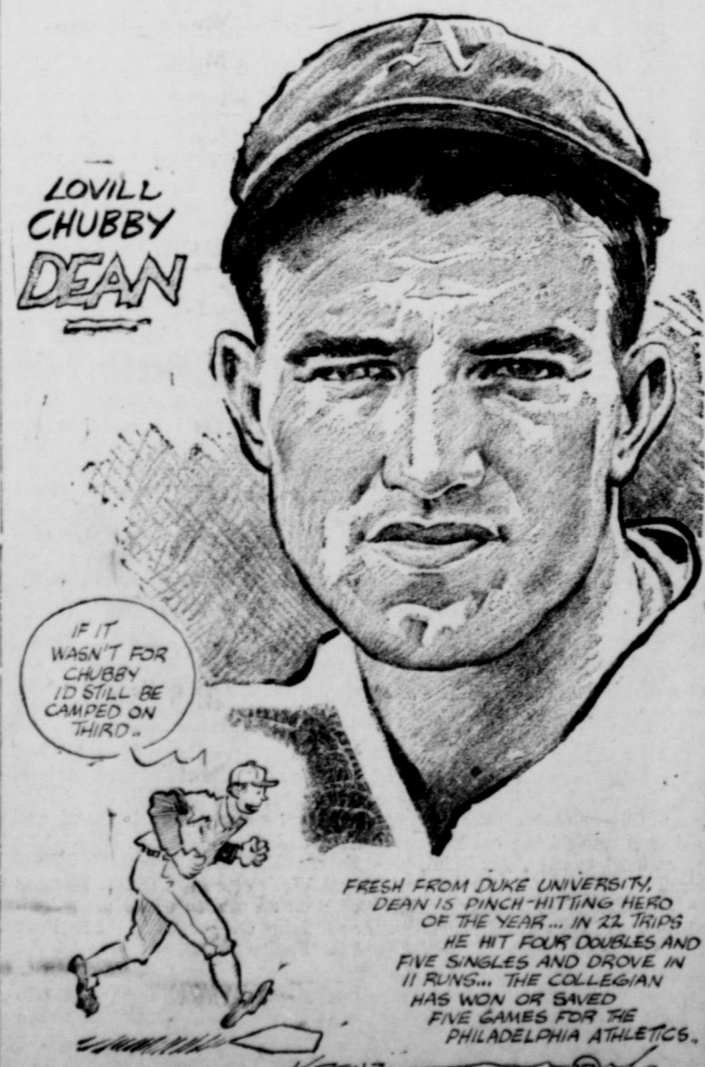

Gay crowds are thronging Dallas for the magnificent Centennial Exposition. And why? Well, one good reason is that the Gainesville Community Circus is booked for three shows June 25, 26, and 27, and excitement. Juanita Bailey, daring aerialist, is as comfy on a dizzy high wire as she is here in the ample arms of Billy Basinger, chief clown, whose specialty is a hula in a grass skirt. The circus, the only enterprise of its kind in the world, is composed entirely of amateurs drawn from ranks of merchants, waitresses, judges, policemen, Sunday school teachers, and many other classes.

Slugging Held 'Legion Vengeance'

Inset is her husband, William H. Guthrie, questioned by police. Mrs. Guthrie had revealed to officials that the terrorists' printing plant was in their home and that her husband had printed the cult's inflammatory literature there.

There Are Sails And Sales!

A friend of ours is the wife of a seafaring man. She knows what "charting a course" means. She believes in it.

Her charts are the advertising pages of this paper. Before she starts a shopping trip, she plots her course. Here's a bargain in canned goods. There's a good buy in kitchen utensils. Here's a sale of shoes. Thus the fog of haphazard shopping lifts, and the course is clear. Time is saved. Money is saved.

"Certainly," she tells us, "I would no sooner start on a shopping tour without having read the advertisements than my husband would try to navigate without his charts and compass."

Even if you have never set foot aboard a ship, you can chart your shopping course. Read the advertisements on these pages every day. Follow them as a mariner follows the weather report and see how much simpler and easier shopping becomes. Remember, an advertised product is a reliable product—it has to be!

Pensions Will be Sent by Mail on First of July

By United Press
AUSTIN.—Old age pensioners will receive their assistance warrants at their Texas homes by mail, first are due about July 1. Payments will vary from about $9 to $30, with the average $20. The payment will be by warrant that can be cashed at face value. The warrants will be slightly smaller in size than those used for general state purposes. They will be printed on manila colored paper with the amounts punched into them by machine. The payments will be mailed in widow type envelopes so that the name and address on the warrant will eliminate the work of addressing envelopes. The warrants will be turned out on card machines at the rate of 80 a minute. Preparation will be on the same machines that made the master card for each pensioner. The master card contains the number and record of each pensioner but leaves a blank space for the amount of payment because the payment will vary with need.

Issuing the pension warrants will be quite a job. Duplicate lists of the approved pension rolls will be certified by the old age assistance commission to the offices of State Comptroller George Sheppard and State Treasurer Charley Lockhart. Their departments will check the warrants with the rolls. Then the warrants will be sent to the Old Age Assistance commission to deliver to the beneficiaries.

It had been estimated that several thousand dollars might be saved by sending all warrants for one city to that place to be mailed with local postage of 2 cents. Postal regulations will make it necessary to mail all from Austin paying 3 cents on all for delivery outside Austin itself.

Incidentally this may mean a raise in pay for the Austin postmaster.

Plant Unions Are Urged as Means To End Disputes

By United Press
BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—A compromise plan which he believes offers a solution of the nationwide labor controversy between craft and industrial union factions has been proposed here by E. Z. Yeager, vice president of the Alabama Federation of Labor.

Briefly, Yeager's plan calls for organization of all workers in a plant into a single union, without craft distinction, but with a provision that part of the dues paid by skilled workers shall go to the national unions of their respective crafts.

The plant union in each instance would be under jurisdiction of the labor organization whose craft was predominant in that industry—a procedure already adopted to a certain extent by some craft unions.

A. F. of L. May Study Plans
The proposal for a division of dues paid in such plants by skilled craftsmen has been suggested by Yeager to George L. Googe of Atlanta, Southeastern representative of the American Federation of Labor, and it is considered likely the proposal may be brought before the next A. F. of L. convention in Tampa, Florida, in September.

Designed as a means of uniting workers in the more or less unorganized mass-production industries, the plan would not affect unions already organized on an industrial or plant basis. Yeager explains, United Mine Workers of America, for example, would retain its present exclusive jurisdiction over all classes of workers in the coal mining industry, whether they be miners or electricians, and no dues paid by a U.M.W.A. member would be shared with any other union.

"The division of dues," Yeager says, "would apply only where one craft union took over workmen to another craft union in order to establish a unity of workers in a plant.

Sally Rand Dons Coat—of Paint

No, Sally Rand isn't going in for camouflage, nor was she nervous in applying her rouge. The fan dancer is pluming herself on her new "cosmetic costume," which she is displaying in Los Angeles. The ensemble consists of jagged but artistic streaks of makeup paint, permitting a "lightning change."

Offers Typical Example
"Suppose a majority of workers in a plant are molders. Then all workers there would form a local of the International Molders Union. An electrician or machinist working in the plant would belong to the molder's local but part of his per capita tax would be sent to national headquarters of the electricians' or machinists' union. "When the electrician or machinist left the plant he would be transferred to the union of his craft. This would safeguard craft unions against disintegration, at the same time achieving the goal of plant unity sought by advocates of the industrial unionization," he added.

The per capita tax sent to national union headquarters is usually one-fourth of a member's monthly dues, Yeager points out.

Favorable Trend is Seen
A move in the direction thus proposed is being made in regard to some "federal" unions—local unions organized on a plant basis and chartered directly by the A. F. of L. without affiliation with any international union.

Several hundred Alabama sawmill workers were taken over by the Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners last fall, and now are under way to have 1,000 local cast iron pipe workers absorbed by the International Molders' Union.

The pipe workers now have their own federal unions, as do sawmill employes before merger with carpenters. Yeager's proposal this year would give jurisdiction of various craftsmen in a given industry to plants where unions exist, but would be extended to all plants now not under jurisdiction of an international union.

the official film of the Schmeling-Louis fight which was staged in New York June 19th, will be shown at the Connellee for two days Tuesday and Wednesday, June 30 and July 1.

This fight caused international interest due to the knockout victory of Schmeling who was doped to be an easy mark for Joe Louis. This official film account of the fight is complete in every detail and depicts every round of the fight without any deletions. The knockdown in the fourth round and the knockout twelfth round are of special interest to fight enthusiasts.

In conjunction with this special attraction the feature picture "I Married a Doctor," starring Pat O'Brien and Josephine Hutchinson will be shown.

AIRWAY DRAMA FEATURES A BIG CAST OF STARS

"Thirteen Hours By Air," featuring Fred MacMurray, Joan Bennett, ZaSu Pitts, John Howard, Bennie Bartlett, Grace Bradley, Alan Baxter, Brian Donlevy, Ruth Donnelly and Fred Keating opens today at the Connellee Theatre.

This Paramount picture is a story of romance and intrigue on a New York-to-San Francisco transport plane, with attempts at murder and at cracking up the ship merely two of the incidents that make the flight adventurous.

On board the plane as it takes off from New York are a girl who describes herself as a prominent socialite, but who is suspected of being involved in a big jewel theft; the nine-year-old heir to a fortune of millions and his governess; a man who describes himself as a physician, but who shows a surprising lack of medical knowledge; two other mysterious male passengers; and the crew—pilot, co-pilot, and the hostess.

Once the ship is in the air, things begin happening quickly and furiously. There is an attempt at killing, another to crash the plane. MacMurray, the pilot, is reluctant to believe Miss Bennett, the girl in the case, is a jewel thief. The events that follow before all this is cleared up make for one of the most exciting stories brought to the screen in months.

According to a movie cameraman, actresses "don't forget their lines as often as do men." Or—to judge by their gowns—let anyone else forget them.

Washington now is getting Boy Scout fingerprints from throughout the country. It might try to get those of waiters from China.

Universal Hunting Regulations Urged By a Federation

PALESTINE—Universal hunting and fishing license and regulatory powers for the Texas legislature toward game control are the chief advocates of the new Texas Wild Life Federation, T. W. Sharpe, of Austin, declared. Sharpe appeared before members of the Anderson county chapter of the federation and outlined the salient points of the program. Pre-letting passage of a bill next session that will the Texas legislature power to regulate game-taking as to size, species, bag limit and territory, Sharpe said that out of 650,000 hunters and fishermen in Texas only about 65,000 pay licenses.

"In other words," the secretary said, "the man who pays a hunting or fishing license is not only paying his own way but is also paying for nine others." As an example of the damage from lack of state territorial regulation, he cited an incident in West Texas when a drouth almost exterminated prairie chickens. Still, he said, hunters could legally kill the game because there was no law to protect it. Sharpe said there was a strong possibility that when Texas is organized solidly for game conservation, which is now the aim of the federation, the federal government will sponsor wild life sanctuaries, breeding grounds and national game preserves in the state. He mentioned that the federal government had purchased 450,000 acres for this purpose in Houston county, but added that the state is not yet ready to do its part toward conservation. Before the Palestine sportsmen, Sharpe showed several movie reels, showing the restoration of game in Pennsylvania. The federation secretary said the federal government is working hand-in-hand with the Texas Wild Life Federation. Mussolini should have little trouble settling Ethiopia, since he can always exile political enemies.

West Texas League Player is Now a Candidate

several qualifications no other candidate for the office can claim, was a visitor here Monday in the interest of his candidacy.

Segrist, who was reared on a farm near Hico, where he still lives when he is not campaigning, not only can claim several qualifications for the job but he is:

The only ex-service man in the race for the office;

The only candidate for the office who has attended an agricultural college.

The only ex-Texas League baseball player who has ever run for a state office;

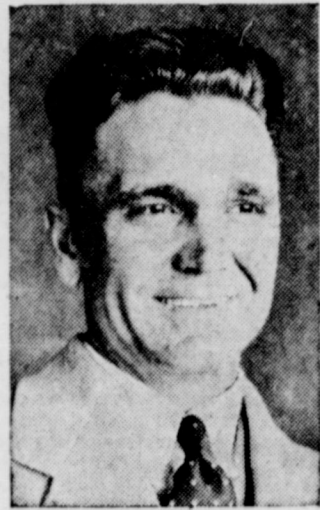

And the youngest man to enter the race for agricultural commission.

Segrist, who is 39 years of age, played sandlot baseball around Hico, graduating to the old West Texas League, where he played one year before being bought by Dallas. He played third base six years for Dallas and one year for San Antonio, before going to Omaha to manage the Omaha club. For a few years he managed ball clubs, the last being at Midland, before he returned to his farm near Hico to become a dirt farmer.

But before becoming a ball player and a farmer he attended John Tarleton, served in the army during the World War and then entered Simmons University at Abilene. After securing his education he turned to baseball for a few years.

Chief planks in Segrist's platform are:

1. To appoint a state honorary agricultural advisory board, without pay, composed of leading citizens representing the various farming sections of the state. The board will have 14 members, one from the Panhandle grain section; one from the West Texas sheep and goat area; one from the fruit section of the Rio Grande; one from the rice section of South Texas; one from the diversified farming section of East Texas; two from cotton belt; one dairyman; one poultryman; one florist; one nurseryman; one from the agricultural colleges and one man at large. This board will be designed to keep Segrist in touch with agricultural conditions and needs throughout the entire state.

2. To distribute to the best advantage the jacks and stallions among the farmers of Texas.

3. To cooperate and work with the A & M College, John Tarleton, Texas Tech, North Texas Agricultural College and the Vocational Agricultural departments of the high schools in every way possible as well as with county agents and 4-H clubs.

4. To devote to the several divisions under his supervision the attention they deserve, each according to its importance.

"Farming is important to our city population no less than it is to our rural," Segrist said, "because their interests are too vitally related in the phase of producer and consumer. I seek the office of agricultural commissioner of this large farming state with full comprehension of the importance of the office. I shall always and all along face its problems with a very definite understanding of its duties and my obligations to perform them."

Bones Disclose An Ancient Indian Multiple Birth

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Discovery of the birth of Indian twins 15 centuries ago is as important an event to Pennsylvania archeologists as the birth of the Dionne quintuplets was to the world.

Skeletons of the infant aborigine twins, uncovered recently by WPA workers in an ancient burial ground near Somerfield, Pa., are believed to be the first of their kind in the United States.

Unearthing of the twins born among the Indian tribes which roamed what is now Somerset county opens a new chapter in archeological research.

Dr. Donald A. Cadzow, state archeologist, who made positive identification of the skeletons, pointed out that while multiple births among the Indians 1,500 years ago were rare, to find the remains of Indian twins of that period is "without precedent in archeological work."

Centennial Affects Even Those Dead

DALLAS.—Even the dead are being affected by the Texas Centennial Expositions and its crowds.

The heavy traffic and one-way regulations in the vicinity of Centennial Park is making it necessary for some funeral processions to be routed through the center of the business district or on streets where they do not usually proceed.

In order to keep traffic moving as smoothly as possible when such processions are necessary, Inspector R. B. Stewart said motorcycle officers are being sent as escorts for most funerals.

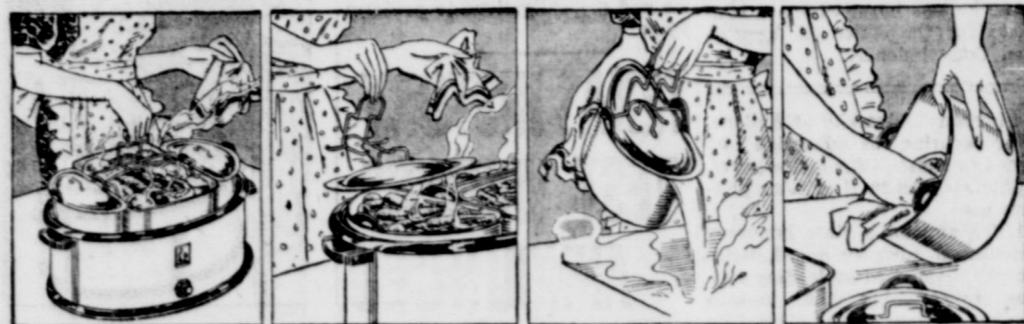

While it is unlawful to break through funeral processions, motorists may pass them.

Search Abandoned For Convicts In Mexia Territory

MEXIA, Texas, June 25.—State and local officers abandoned today the search for Forrest Gibson and Luke Trammel, fugitive convict killers, convinced they would have to await further movement of the pair.

A horse stolen Tuesday from a farmer was found tied to the barn of a farmer at Round Prairie, Robertson county, yesterday, but the farmer told posemen he had not seen the two convicts.

Prison bloodhounds were too exhausted for further use at present. The pursuers said it was useless to continue the chase in the area so well known to Gibson, who was reared there.

- 1 V-8 ENGINE PERFORMANCE WITH ECONOMY
 - 2 SUPER-SAFETY MECHANICAL BRAKES
 - 3 WELDED STEEL BODY—STEEL STRUCTURE AS WELL AS SURFACE
 - 4 SAFETY GLASS ALL AROUND AT NO EXTRA CHARGE

NO MATTER how you classify your expenditures for car up-keep—it's your total expenditure that counts. How much "dollar mileage" is your car giving you?

Dollars do go farther in the Ford V-8. Modern improved carburetion gives you unusual gasoline mileage with brilliant V-8 performance. Most owners of today's Ford change oil only at 2000-mile intervals and never add a drop between changes. And after the first few thousand miles you know what Ford V-8 "dollar mileage" really means.

It gives you more miles per dollar because it gives you all-round economy—low first cost, low up-keep cost, low depreciation and long life—as well as low gasoline and oil consumption. All these help to make the Ford V-8 the most economical car.

FASTER, SWIFTER JUSTICE GAINED UNDER FINGERPRINTING LAW FOR ALL, U. S. BUREAU SAYS

By MARY KNIGHT
From Staff Correspondent
SHINGON. — If fingerprints were as compulsory as birth certificates there would be less crime in the United States and justice would be swifter, the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice believes. Officials admit, however, that while it will have to be educated into the idea before any federal fingerprint law can be passed.

"Headquarters" are beginning to realize that fingerprinting is a death sentence to a criminal, and that an innocent man, working for an employer, would be sure to have his passport in his pocket, and his fingerprints on it. As a result, they are checked at the time a new passport is issued without further delay.

Other Advantages Claimed
It is not the only advantage of fingerprinting for law-abiding citizens, it is pointed out.

If there were sufficient demand by the public, fingerprints could be made at home and forwarded to headquarters, but it would be far easier to file the fingerprints shortly after the birth certificates and thereby, in thousands of instances, prevent crime rather than detect it, officials argue. Human beings, many of them at least, would think twice before committing a crime if they knew that their fingerprints were on file at "headquarters" and that their conviction and punishment would be swift.

J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Bureau of Investigation, says: "Long since the time has passed when criminals hid in dark alleys or skulked in dark basements. The day of the mask and the dark lantern is over. Crime lives next door to you. Crime often plays bridge with you. Crime dances with your sons and daughters. These persons of the under-fifth are not simply poor boys and girls or moral invalids, as the super-sentimentalists would have us believe. They are marauders, who murder for a headline, rats crawling from under hideouts to gnaw at the vitals of civilization. True, they are dressed as we are dressed; they live as we

Out-Sallies Sally

Who said Sally Rand? The Texas Centennial Exposition offers as a feature of its $5,000,000 Dallas Midway the girl shown above—Mona Lleslie, "The Diving Venus." She appears nightly in The Streets of Paris.

Live and often for better, owing to the rich rewards of their profession, but their standards of life are those of pigs in a wall, their outlook that of vultures.

Their Technique Developed
Fingerprints can be "lifted" from paying cards, from cloth, from glass and silver; from wood, metal, leather or paper. Anywhere that a fingerprint is suspected, a certain type of "dust" can be sprinkled over the surface which will reveal it if it is there, no matter how faint it may seem.

In addition to the 12,610 fingerprints of men and women who are viewed by the Bureau of Investigation as the most dangerous and deadly of the army of more than 3,000,000 persons whose fingerprint records are clear and who are and will continue to be, in all likelihood, law-abiding citizens.

Twenty per cent of 20th Century crime is committed by persons not old enough to vote, statistics show. These minors should be home playing in their own backyards, but instead they are out stealing automobiles and committing nearly a thousand murders a year and tens of thousands of burglaries and larcenies, officials declare.

Among the arguments advanced for universal fingerprinting are: Fingerprints never lie and no two ever are alike.

There are nine classifications of prints that are foolproof, and into these will fit the imprints of the fingers of 1,849,359—all the people in the world.

Burning will not change fingerprints. Scar tissue will show, and if the skin grows back again it will be exactly the same as before the injury.

Bandit Gives Victim Dime for Bus Fare

DALLAS.—A bandit who was thoughtful enough to give his victim a dime to ride a bus back to town kidnaped Milo Winsett, Dallas, forced him to drive nine miles north of town and then disappeared in Winsett's automobile.

Winsett was preparing to look up his car when the man appeared, produced a pistol and told Winsett to get back in the automobile.

On the way out of town the man talked with Winsett.

"I knew Clyde Barrow," he informed his victim. "I suppose you heard of him. And you tell the officers I'm going to Oklahoma."

When they reached a dark spot near Love Field, nine miles from Dallas, the man ordered Winsett to stop the car and get out.

"Here's a dime so you can ride the bus back to town," he said, handing Winsett the coin.

Tests are simple. If a baby will sit unsupported in the examiner's lap, he wins his first rating, 42 months. Next he is handed a wooden cube. Then a second one is offered. If it is accepted, the baby is considered to have a mental age of six months.

Suspect Reveals 'Flogging Tree'

Held under $50,000 bond in the kidnaping and flogging case of Robert Penion of Ecorse, Mich., Frederick A. Guiley is shown as he demonstrated to Detroit authorities how victims were tied to this tree and lashed by the Black Legion. The tree is on an abandoned farm 11 miles from Detroit. Guiley said he was forced at gun point to join the legion and had tried vainly to get out.

ly half of this work was done during the past year. Bennett emphasized that terraces should be carefully built and that they are not adapted to all parts of the country. "Terraces are valuable in the control of erosion, especially on moderate slopes of deep, porous soil," he said, "but generally it is essential that they be supplemented by ample vegetation and proper cropping and tillage practices if they are to be effective in long-time erosion control. "Terracing is only one part of erosion control. More extensive use of adaptable trees and grasses, correct methods of cultivation, increased planting of soil-binding crops and proper crop rotations are among the equally important control measures. "Experience has shown that terraces are not practicable in all parts of the country because of peculiar soil and climatic conditions in certain sections," Bennett said. "For example, in some parts of Washington state, heavy snows often are followed by sudden thaws. If these thawing periods do not melt all of the snow, terrace channels are left with alternating sections of snow and water. The snow forms a series of blockades, preventing slow, safe runoff to the protected terrace outlets. With no other route of escape, water breaks over the top of the terrace and flows down the slope, endangering terraces below and often gullying the land." Similarly, Bennett pointed out that trees and grasses are more practicable than terraces for the control of erosion on steep slopes. Unless runoff is retarded by soil-stabilizing trees and grasses, it can gain considerable velocity and, during heavy rains, even those terraces supported by vegetation may be ineffectual in halting the flow of water.

ed fact, and not, as now, merely a courtesy term. A new business center in late years has grown up around Buckingham Palace. Already offices and business premises virtually encircle Grosvenor Palace, Grosvenor gardens, Buckingham palace Road, and other adjoining thoroughfares that were given over to residential purposes until the end of the war, now have been converted into offices and business chambers. The palace never has been really popular with any royal personages who have had to live there. It was settled on Queen Charlotte by George III, but she never stayed longer than reasons of state demanded. Nor did George IV and William IV. During the whole of her widowhood, Queen Victoria used the palace as little as possible, while King Edward VII never ceased to regret leaving Marlborough House.

To Build 36,000 Miles of Terraces To Hold Farm Land

WASHINGTON, D. C. — More than 36,000 miles of farm terracing, or enough to make 14 terraces from New York City to Los Angeles, are scheduled for construction by the soil conservation service of the Department of Agriculture during the next three years under agreements with farmers, H. H. Bennett, chief of the service, said today. Most of the terracing will be confined in the southeast and will help to protect approximately 500,000 acres from erosion. To date, the service has built more than 15,000 miles of terraces, as part of an erosion control program on farms of more than 200,000 acres. Approximate-

Revival is Urged For Old Hawaiian Body Massaging

By United Press HONOLULU.—The lost art of Hawaiian body shaping if revived would beat modern beauty treatments, Lalani Hawaiian village instructors believe. Ancient Hawaiians shaped the bodies of their children by skillful massage. Even heads were shaped according to standards of anatomy. "The soft, formative body of the newborn child was constantly massaged so that eyes, head, fingers, toes and other parts of the body were beautifully formed with greatest care," one instructor said. "The head was well formed partly by having a child sleep on both sides. Eyes were beautified by massage with thumb and forefinger dipped in kukui oil. Fingers and toes were taped by massaging. "Babies were partly buried in the sand and made to struggle free, thus giving early strength especially to lower limbs." Both sexes learned grace thru

Registration of 960,000 Automobiles In State Recalls Early History of the Daring Men Who Pioneered Driving

AUSTIN. — State registration offices report 960,000 passenger cars already registered for 1934. It is estimated the total will pass a million long before the year ends.

In May this year, cars were registered over highways at a rate that resulted in 17,336 drivers receiving the attention of the motor police. Of these, 1,989 were arrested for flagrant violations of traffic laws; 15,347 warned or given assistance, Chief L. G. Phares reported.

Defective lights brought stops and warnings to 3,027 motorists and 290 were thumbed to the roadside for reckless driving. Eighty-three drunk drivers were arrested and 313 speedsters taken to tell it to the judge.

Yet, it was only a little more than a week ago that the first man to own and drive an automobile in Texas died. This pioneer autoist was Col. E. H. R. Green, son of the "world's richest woman," Mrs. Hetty Green. He shipped the first automobile to Texas from St. Louis. Its first trip on its own power was between Dallas and Terrell.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

EDDIE HART and a sportsmen's syndicate have snatched Ralph Odell from the University of Southern California football squad and embarked the young man on pugilistic career.

Hart is very enthusiastic. The old Princeton captain and tackle points to Odell's youth, size, speed, punch, durability, gameness, and aggressiveness. "The candidate is to be taken east and given the finest coaching and training obtainable."

It's a noble experiment worthy of success, but similar ones have proved that champions, especially those of the larger dimensions, are not made that way.

Heavyweight champions just have to grow up, like John L. Corbett, Fitz, Jeff, Johnson, Dempsey, and Tunney. Jim Braddock wasn't fondled. Neither was Joe Louis. They simply were chucked in there when professional handlers considered them ready.

Every time I see or read of wealth sponsoring a heavyweight, I think of the time a Los Angeles oil man turned what he considered a splendid prospect over to Fred (Windy) Windsor, volatile California cauliflower character who had a hand in the development of Jack Dempsey.

"SEE that he gets the best of everything," were the orders given Windsor. The young man got all that, and then some, for six months. Things being what they were, Windsor wasn't in any hurry to start his pupil. Windsor was getting what to him at the time was a handsome retainer. At the end of six months the millionaire grew impatient. He was supremely confident that his protegee could wade through an army of pachyderms, and insisted upon action. He got it in the way of the softest kind of an amateur match for his charge.

The champion-to-be gave an excellent imitation of Gypsy Joe Beckett in reverse.

"What was the difficulty?" the sponsor wanted to know.

"He needs a little more time," advised Windsor. Six more months of schooling followed. Then again an easy test and once more the starch.

DISAPPOINTED, the man of money demanded an explanation.

"The boy's the right age, isn't he, Mr. Windsor?" he asked.

"Twenty, which is perfect for a start," replied the trainer.

"Big enough."

"Six feet one, 190 pounds. Ideal."

"Fast?"

"I don't see how Jim Corbett could have been any faster."

"Punch?"

"Dempsey couldn't have done any more damage with an ax."

"Can he take it?"

"Joe Grimm had a china chin in comparison."

"Game?"

"Anyone who has gloves laced on his hands is game."

"Aggressive?"

"To a fault."

"Does he like the business?"

"I can't keep him out of the gymnasium."

"Then tell me, Mr. Windsor, what in the world is wrong with my heavyweight?" summed up the backer.

"Well," replied Windsor, scratching his head, "maybe he can't fight."

"That's the trouble with practically all carefully manufactured ringmen. They can't fight."

There were two difficulties about its operation. One was that it scared both horses and people. The other was that the driver was never sure whether it would start forward or backward. If it started the wrong way, he stopped; started again and kept on until it started the right way.

As the automobile was driven between Dallas and Terrell, Colonel Green used to recall, people would rush to the road, look at the approaching cloud of dust, shut the gate and run back to the house or barn. The machine became known as "Old Hurricane."

"Old Hurricane," and other automobiles of a later date scared so many horses that the late Senator Joseph W. Bailey was among the statesmen who favored barring them from the roads. For a long time an automobile driver was required to stop the car and kill the engine on signal from the driver of a horse or mule drawn conveyance. The automobile operator had to sit quietly at the side of the road until the plunging steed was maneuvered safely by his car.

Sweden Backs New 'Garbo'

American movie fans soon may come face to face with a new "Garbo" from Sweden—the lovely Ingrid Bergman, who, at 18, has captured the hearts of European filmgoers. She hasn't yet reached the American scene, but notice that she seems to cast an alluring side glance this way, even though she has turned a charming back toward us.

A. B. Wharton, Fort Worth, was another automobile pioneer in Texas. He probably was the state's first automobile dealer. Son-in-law of the late W. T. Waggoner, founder of Arlington Downs, Wharton opened an automobile agency on Houston street, Fort Worth.

The late Dr. L. C. Chase not only pioneered in X-Ray among Texas physicians, but was one of the first doctors to use an automobile—a brassy Stoddard-Dayton. It was Mayor "Bill" Davis' Kissel Kar that brought Fort Worth most of its automobile fame. Decorated with License No. 400, the car had an attachment of musical horns, upon which the Mayor's chauffeur played appropriate tunes.

At a much later date, the automobile was still so great a novelty that the publisher of a leading state daily consented for a daring (?) reporter to accompany a Glidden tour through Texas only when the reporter signed a waiver freeing the paper from any liability for injury that might be incurred. Jess Illingsworth, later a prominent automobile dealer in Dallas, drove the Maxwell in which the newsman rode after signing the waiver. The Maxwell's chief rival in early days was a two-cylinder Brush. One of the early racing events at the Dallas State Fair was a mile contest between the two cars, each driven by the respective dealer.

Another milestone in Texas automobile history was the visit of the "Round-the-World" Thomas Flyer. By then, both Dallas and Fort Worth had a good many automobile owners. Dallas owners escorted the Flyer to Dalworth. It was met there by a Fort Worth delegation.

Riding the Flyer was something like bronco-busting. As special equipment for the rough roads encountered in the world tour, the car had extra-strong springs. When it hit a gully, the rebound would catapult a rider from the automobile unless he firmly grasped straps that were provided for the purpose.

Air progress was more rapid—once started. But it has been scarcely more than 20 years ago when gliding received a try-out where the Dallas Centennial Exposition Cotton Bowl now is situated.

William Truax of the Dallas Journal had built a glider. He was so confident that it would glide that he was willing to risk his bones in it. The problem was to get it off the ground.

Another member of the Journal staff owned a brass radiated automobile. He volunteered to tow Truax.

The attempt was a failure. The automobile could not develop enough speed on the soft turf to get the glider in the air. Which probably explains why Truax is still alive and whole.

In South Texas, flying was better established, thanks to U. S. Army efforts. M. M. Harris, now editor of the San Antonio Express, sat with Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois (then a lieutenant) when he made the first army flight at Fort Sam Houston.

Katherine Stinson of San Antonio became the Amelia Earhart of the period and with her brother "Eddie" operated a flying school.

Another "first" took place at Kelly Field No. 1 when an Air Service man stood on the wing of a plane with a closed parachute, pulled the rip cord and left the wind jerk him off the plane as the parachute filled with air from the propeller.
