Game Marked For Errors, Pitching Brings 9:49 Loss

To allow its opponents only four hits and yet lose the teams first game of the season was the experience Monday night of Methodist 9:49, which was defeated by Hi-Y club, 7-6. The Methodists scored all their runs in four innings, it was reported, and mounting errors gave the Hi-Y clubbers the inside track leading them to victory. Tommy Starkes occupied the mound position for the Methodists while Billy Blake Wood was pitcher for the other team. In the other game of the evening Modern Dry Cleaners and Dyers won over Texas Electric Service company 12-3. The Methodist team had won five consecutive games prior to the defeat.

BACKACHE?

A sore and painful back is nature's way of bringing it to your consciousness that there is serious trouble in one or more of the small bones of the spine. As a rule these conditions, unless of long standing, are not difficult to correct, in a short time, by the trained chiropractor. Delay is costly. Let us examine your spine today.

Haircut Is Blamed For Jail Sentence

By United Press
DALLAS.—The gangling negro youth, handcuffed and charged with theft, was led into Judge Winter King's county criminal court.

He was a typical young buck, broad, thick features and his head was shaved to the scalp except for a thick bushy scaplock fashioned across the forehead.

"Boy, don't you know any better than to come into this courtroom with a haircut like that?" Bailiff Jess Pugh asked.

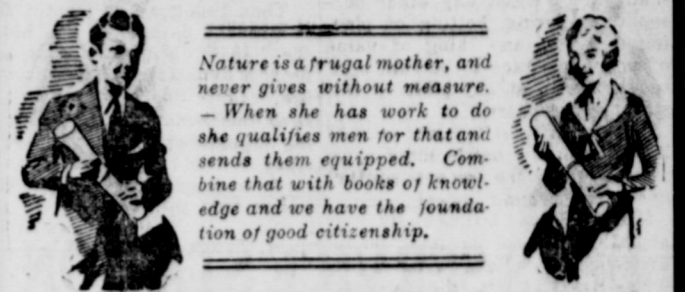

The negro's eyes grew big and he looked scared.
After Judge King had assessed a 30-day sentence in jail the youth was heard to remark: "Yassuh, ah bet ter ah hadn't had such a bad haircut, dat judge wouldn'ta given me moh'n five days."

Horse Race Betting, To Be Before Special Session, Has Long Been Before The Legislatures of the State of Texas

AUSTIN, Texas—Betting on horse racing was prohibited in Texas in 1909 by the following article added to the penal code:

"No person, or any agent of any association or persons or any corporation, at any place in this state, by pool selling or book-making or by any means of telegraph, telephone or otherwise, shall aid or assist any other person in wagering, betting or placing a bet of any thing of value of any horse race to be run, trotted, or paced at any place in this state or elsewhere."

Passage of that law was marked by a legislative battle more spectacular than the recent conflict over race betting repeal.

Racing at the Dallas State Fair at that time was the main object of the attack. Race friends predicted then that the fair was doomed if racing were forbidden.

Efforts to bring about the legal return of racing with betting were begun approximately 10 years ago. The late W. T. Waggoner, owner of a large stock farm between Fort Worth and Dallas, started non-bet racing at Arlington Downs, in the hope that it would arouse statewide interest in horse racing and that it again would be legalized with betting.

Two sessions of the legislature refused to amend the prohibitive law. A third also voted against race betting. As that session was near its end, a departmental appropriation bill was sent to a conference committee to adjust differences between the House and Senate. When the bill emerged, a rider had been attached which set up a state racing commission, legalized part of the revenue derived from the state share of the pari-mutuel take to purchase breeding stock to be made available to farms through the state department of agriculture.

Faced with the necessity of accepting the rider or of killing the entire appropriation bill, legislators took the race rider.

The Alamo Downs race course near San Antonio and Epsom Downs near Houston were established after Arlington Downs. Many county fairs resumed racing. The next legislature accepted a larger share for the state in betting funds and yielded to a plea to give racing another chance.

Merchants joined churchmen in a fight against the race tracks. The merchants argued that many persons were betting on horse races instead of paying their bills.

A repeal bill was one of the first major measures put through the House of Representatives after the opening of the present legislative session. The vote was 109 to 26.

Then began a two months fight to prevent passage of the bill by the Senate. No report had come from a Senate committee on it by March 4. But a bill appeared before the Senate that day, introduced by Rep. H. L. McKee of Port Arthur, which sought to require a fixed percentage of Texas as race track employes.

Race bet opponents seized that opportunity to offer the entire repeal act as an amendment. It was adopted by a vote of 20 to 8. Twenty-one votes were needed to suspend the rules and adopt it finally. Next the measure was sent back to the committee for a public hearing. The hearing was held March 10 and the bill was reported favorably.

Repealists tried again and again to suspend the regular order of business and take up "House Bill 53," the race repeal measure. At first they lacked only a few votes. Gradually, the demand faded before the press of other bills in which Senators were more interested. At one time there were only 12 votes to take up the race bill when 21 were needed. All the while, a vote of 16 would have been sufficient to enact the bill if the two-thirds to get it before the senate could have been obtained.

Exasperated, Gov. James V. Allred pointed to the demand in successive Democratic platforms for race betting repeal. He demanded a direct vote of the Senate.

"Unless there is a fair and square vote," he notified the Senators, "I will reconvene the legislature immediately and submit nothing else to the Senate until it takes that vote."

Later, he vetoed the joint legislative rules found to contain provisions which Gov. Allred insisted were designed to permit a minority to block the will of the majority.

Repealists declined consistently to discuss the state revenue loss from racing repeal. They said that a matter of principle was involved. A report of the state auditor covering the period from Jan. 1, 1935 to Jan. 1, 1937 showed that the state's revenue from pari-mutuel receipts alone had amounted to $1,040,207.

It must be hard for the Madrid realtor to learn that the house he sold a few hours before has become a lot.

Cattle Shipments Show An Increase Above Last Year

AUSTIN. — A substantial increase in livestock shipments from Texas to interstate points and to the Fort Worth market occurred during April compared with the like month last year, it has been pointed out by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Forwardings totaled 12,021 cars, against 9,369 cars during April last year, an increase of nearly 30 per cent.

During the first four months of 1937, shipments aggregated 26,596 cars, an increase of 18 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago. With the sharp increase in forwardings together with recent strengthening of livestock prices the economic situation of Texas cattlemen is rapidly improving.

The increase of sheep forwardings was especially marked, the Bureau's report showed. Shipments of these animals totaled 1,520 cars, an increase of 165 per cent over April last year. Almost 70 per cent of these shipments went to the Fort Worth market.

Cattle shipments, 9,003 cars, as compared with 7,434 cars last year, increased 21 per cent; calf shipments, 663 cars, increased 13 per cent; and hog shipments, 835 cars, increased 8 per cent.

The bulk of the hog shipments were destined for the Fort Worth and Los Angeles markets. Receipts at the latter market were twice those of April last year.

"April shipments of Texas cattle to the Osage country of Oklahoma and the Flint Hills of Kansas for summer grazing were substantially greater than a year ago, the increase to the former having been 16 per cent and to the latter nearly 19 per cent," the Bureau's report said. "The bulk of this increase probably came from South Texas and parts of the Edwards plateau where drought conditions earlier in the season had caused deterioration in range conditions."

Delivery of H-SU Yearbook of 1922 Delayed 15 Years

ABILENE. — A 1922 Bronco, Hardin-Simmons year book, was delivered to its owner last week after fifteen years in transit. The book was wrapped and mailed C. O. D. to Miss Madge Morrison, then a student of Southern Methodist University. She explains that she probably lost the slip and forgot to claim the book before it was returned to Abilene.

The Bronco was found last week when workmen were cleaning out the building formerly occupied by the Rex studio. It was still wrapped and marked "C. O. D. and 'Refused.'"

Miss Morrison, a student in Hardin-Simmons in 1922, prizes the book highly—even though it is fifteen years late. She lives in Abilene, less than two miles from the office the book left fifteen years ago.

COURT HOLDS WAS WITHOUT JURISDICTION

Holding it was without jurisdiction, 91st district court Thursday dissolved an injunction which May 6 enjoined canvassing by commissioners court of returns in the May 1 local option election.

"It is the settled law of this state that elections are essentially the exercise of political power, and that the canvassing of the returns of the election is necessary to the determination of the result," Judge George L. Davenport said in rendering a decision.

Dissolution of the injunction, which had granted to beer retailers and wholesalers, was in recognition of a motion filed by commissioners court's attorney, Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., after the testimony in the hearing had been completed asking the court to dissolve the injunction for the reason that it had not jurisdiction to interfere with the action of the county judge and commissioners court in canvassing the returns and declaring the result of the election.

Commissioners court, advised of the court's action dissolving the injunction, made immediate preparations to canvass the returns and declare the result. The members of the court were in session at the time the order was made.

At the same time the court when rendering its decision said the "holding only relates to the motion to dissolve the injunction and does not affect the trial of the case on its merits which will be heard during the June term of this court, but has the effect of leaving the county judge and commissioners court free to complete their work of canvassing the votes and declaring the result of the election."

The court also stated, in part: "It is the settled law of this state that elections are essentially the exercise of political power, and that the canvassing of the returns of the election is an integral part of the election without which the election is a void proceeding, and the right to declare the result is as absolute, as the right to vote or for the election to be held. Therefore the political power of the government to hold an election and declare the result is beyond judicial interference.

The courts of this state have no jurisdiction to interfere with the political right of the public to hold election and by 'hold election' is meant every step pertaining thereto, including the declaring of the results. This rule obtains even though the election called and held is void. The right to call and hold void election is a political right that the courts have no judicial power to interfere with, but the right to enforce a void election in such a way as to violate the laws of this state would present a matter that the judicial power of the government would have the right to give relief from. This doctrine is abundantly sustained by the courts of other states.

Unofficial returns of the election show a victory for drys in the proposition all liquors shall be prohibited from sale in the county.

Wets in the hearing of the case upon its merits will protest that the issue submitted in the election was improper and that the proper issue should have been upon 14 per cent beer and wine which were legalized last year.

EASTLAND WPA POOL TO OPEN ON WEDNESDAY

Eastland's swimming pool at the city park will be open for bathers at 6 o'clock Wednesday night.

This was decided by city commissioners in session Wednesday night this week at the city park. A formal opening program is being arranged to include a concert by the Eastland High school band beginning at 8 o'clock.

Works Progress Administration workmen Thursday were making preparations Thursday for the opening. The large pool and wading sections had been fenced.

The grandstand for the band concert and other features to be arranged will be placed by the north side of the pool.
