INFANTILE PARALYSIS REPORTED

Dr. F. T. Isbell of Eastland, county health officer, Saturday listed precautions which if heeded will aid in the prevention of the spread of infantile paralysis.

Two cases of infantile paralysis are known in the county. Many persons who thought the number was greater have for the past several days called members of commissioners' court, County Judge W. S. Adamson and other county officials, but found the total was not as great as expressed in rumors.

One of the cases in the county, said Dr. Isbell, is of a youth from Big Spring, six miles of Eastland. The other in the county is an isolation case at Ranger.

The following precautions and information were given:

"Infantile paralysis cases and family childhood contacts should be isolated and quarantined for 21 days from onset of febrile symptoms. Employes of food or milk establishments who have been around an infantile paralysis case must remain away from work for 14 days.

"In localities where the disease is occurring children should be kept away from public gatherings. "Traveling with children to another community should not be done as this will cause fatigue and possibly reduce the child's natural resistance to the disease.

"To date no vaccination has proven effective against infantile paralysis. "Whenever the disease is occurring the child should not be subjected to over exertion or undue fatigue."

Joseph A. Kornfield, company geologist, staked the locations, all except one offsets to the Barnett No. 2-A Downtain, itself an offset to the discovery well.

Queer Law Quirk Affects Dry Status Of Houston Heights

AUSTIN, Texas — That peculiar quirk in the law concerning the prohibition situation of Houston Heights has again begun to tickle capital city barristers. Notice of the situation came about when the Supreme Court of Texas decided to grant a writ of error on a Galveston court of civil appeals ruling. Back in 1912 Houston was far from the sprawling metropolis that is now the largest city in the largest state. Already, though, symptoms of greatness were beginning to pop out like pimples on an adolescent. Such a pimple—not at all unsightly but nonetheless evident—was Houston Heights. The Heights represented an ostreperous child itself, and for a time threatened to be a husky rival to Due-To-Big Houston.

The meeting and merger was inevitable.

In 1912, however, six years before the merger came about, citizens of Houston Heights voted a prohibition ticket and a local option election revealed the town very dry indeed.

Big Houston, however, felt no qualms about allowing a few bars to dot its business area so long as the boys kept the choruses low. When the absorption of the Heights by Houston finally came, Houston was still wet, the Heights still dry. Not much later Congressman Volstead evolved a plan that put into effect the national prohibition act. Houston, following the Heights by nearly a decade, became dry.

Little more than a dozen years later prohibition was gone and a local option election restored Houston to its wet classification. Things ran smoothly for awhile. Taverns and restaurants sold beer in the Heights and package stores sold liquor just as was done in other sections of Houston. But a noisy crowd in a Heights tavern one night caused an objecting citizen to go to the City Hall and legal authorities to see if there wasn't something that could be done about the situation. An investigation revealed:

The dry election in Houston Heights in 1911 had never been superseded by a wet election.

With its incorporation with Houston, the Heights lost its entity as a municipality and could not legally hold another election.

Therefore, a conclusion was reached that Houston Heights must forever remain as dry as the proverbial bone while the rest of Houston legally drinks its fill.

The conclusion, though, is a moot question. In fact, it is what

Canadian Veterans Are Rehabilitated

By United Press

OTTAWA, Ont.—A $250,000 probational training scheme, designed to aid war veterans to re-establish themselves in the trades they were engaged in, before the war, has been decided upon by the Canadian government.

The scheme will embrace both Canadian and imperial veterans who actually served in the war. It will be administered by the War Veterans Assistance Commission, the Employment Service, the Canadian Legion and, where necessary, other veterans organizations.

Indian Tribesmen to Appease God's Anger To Secure a Rain

BY WALT RUNDLE

United Press Staff Correspondent

NISHU, N. D.—Stalwart Hidatsa braves have sworn in solemn tribal council to restore themselves to favor in the eyes of the rain god, Thunderbird, by recovering from the White Fathers the Sacred Skulls of the Two Eagles.

Chief Long Bull recounted how the white man carried off the Sacred Skulls and brought the great "never rain" upon the Hidatsa tribesmen and western North Dakota.

As he spoke, hot winds rattled corn leaves in nearby fields and whipped spirals of dust from the dry plains of the Fort Berthold Agency. Drought has withered this year's crops and the Hidatsas face another winter of privation.

Things were not always so, Long Bull told his councilors—not until 1909, when a faithless keeper sold the skulls to a white trader.

For 28 years the skulls have been in the Heye Museum of the American Indian, in New York.

And for 28 years droughts have blighted the maize fields and impoverished the tribe.

The Hidatsa commissioned Arthur Mandan, chairman of the tribal council, to seek the aid of the Indian office in Washington. Next week, in New York, tribesmen will meet with representatives of the museum and the Indian bureau.

Long Bull has told his councilors that while the pledge of the two eagles was kept "there were plenty rain, much buffalo."

The legend is that 180 years ago the warring Shiwahwa and Hidatsa were brought together by two youths, one of whom became a tribal leader, the other powerful in "medicine."

Their people grew powerful. Rains were plenty and buffalo numerous. Enemy tribes fell before them. The leaders became renowned heroes, were known as the Two Eagles.

Then the Shiwahwa was killed in battle. His friends preserved his skull. Later, the Hidatsa eagle man lay on his death bed. He called the tribal leaders to him and said:

"Now I die here, but I make a solemn promise. My skull and my friend's skull shall be the medicine of my hand which shall be known as A-wapti-taka. Choose a trusted man among you to keep them in his lodge. So long as my skull and my friend's are kept in honor, my spirit will remain among you to help the people and be their guide."

The dying eagle revealed the mysteries of the skulls:

"If drought shall come and the fields wither, let the keeper of our skulls, mine and my friend's, set them on aromatic herbs and sprinkle over them some water. Then there will be rain."

"We must keep the pledge of the Two Eagles again," Long Bull told his tribesmen. They nodded assent.

ASHTON, KEYNES, Eng.—After weeks of negotiation with immigration authorities, 30 members of the German Bruderhof have been permitted to land in England and have just arrived at the Cotswold Bruderhof here. Expelled from Germany when their movement was disbanded by the German secret police last April, they were given temporary sanctuary in Holland.

Ambassador From China Explains the Chinese Position

WASHINGTON. — Dr. Cheng-tung T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador to the United States, in answer to a question by the Institute of Knowledge as to China's attitude in the present Sino-Japanese controversy, said:

"China for centuries past has been an advocate of peace and friendly relations with other nations, but we learned a lesson at the peace conference in Paris in 1919, that international injustices must be resisted and that might was not right. The American public has probably forgotten that the Chinese delegates flatly refused to sign the Treaty of Versailles because it contained provisions transferring to Japan the rights hitherto held by Germany. However, these rights were eventually returned to China as a result of the Washington conference held in 1921-1922."

In answer to a question as to recent material advances in China, Dr. Wang said: "The advance of China in the last ten years in material ways has been outstanding. Now we have a little over 10,000 miles of railroads but we plan eventually to build 90,000 miles more for the whole country. Every mile of rail is laid down to render the greatest possible service to our people by means of improved highways acting as feeders for traffic on railroads. Our creation of roads in ten years has totaled some 70,000 miles. While we are a very old nation, our material development along modern lines is quite recent, but we are not building just for the sake of building, but building to a plan that has been gradually perfected. For instance, in ten years our rural school systems have been made over, and last year we graduated 12,000,000 students in all grades from kindergartens to colleges and universities." In answer to a question as to China's ideals, Dr. Wang said: "We are, in brief, seeking a position of freedom and equality among the nations of the earth. The ideals that we are carrying out on behalf of our great leader, Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, in the revolution of 1911, is to bring to China an alert but not aggressive sense of nationalism; a democracy expressing itself through a republic; and a common sense realization that the chief interest of the individual is livelihood. We are preparing to play our part in the future history of the world, and America is invited to understand that a republic of four hundred and fifty million people in Asia, the republics in North and South America, and the democratic monarchy of the British empire, contain promise of future ages of peace through freedom granted to the self-reliant individual."

Research Professor of Economy

She's not a Ph. D. or an LL.D. She hasn't a diploma or a cap and gown. Her research is not done in the laboratory or the library. As a matter of fact, her findings are made, usually, in the street car, in the subway, in the suburban commuter's train.

She reads the advertisements in this paper with care and consideration. They form her research data. By means of them she makes her purchases so that she well deserves the title of "Research Professor of Economy." She discovers item after item, as the year rolls on, combining high quality with low.

It is clear to you at once that you . . . and all who make and keep a home . . . have the same opportunity. With the help of newspaper advertising you, can graduate from the school of indiscriminate buying into the faculty of fastidious purchases!

Machine Age Bound to Benefit Mankind

You cannot travel far enough these days to get away from the problem raised by man's invention of machinery. Ernie Pyle, roving reporter, visited Alaska recently and in the town of Petersburg met a man who believes he has perfected a shrimp-picking machine.

Shrimp are relatively tiny creatures which come out of the ocean encased in little shells. Getting them out of the shells so that they can be canned has always been strictly hand-work, and quite a few people get jobs every year at the canneries, doing this work.

But this chap whom Pyle stumbled across has spent 10 years working on a machine to do the work. He thinks, at last, that he has it ready to go; he plans to install 10 machines immediately in his cannery, and each machine will do the work that 10 men used to do.

The result is that even a small fishing village in Alaska—which you might suppose would be the last place in North America to be bothered by "technological unemployment"—is going to get a taste of the machine age. A number of people who always, before this, could rely on several weeks or months of steady work will have to find something else to do hereafter. Machinery has advanced one more little step along the road toward the obsolescence of human labor.

This sort of thing has been happening on such a huge scale in the last few decades that the Alaskan development looks relatively insignificant. But it isn't. It is a grim little signpost, reminding us—in case anyone still doubted—that for better or for worse, the replacement of human labor by machine labor is going to continue.

It is not merely a problem of the big city; it is something that affects far-away fishing villages just as it affects big manufacturing centers.

Now there is no use in bemoaning this development, for it is as certain and inexorable as death and taxes. And, indeed, in the long run, it cannot be anything but a tremendous boon to the race as a whole. Mankind is being relieved of drudgery; the mean, monotonous, back-breaking jobs that once were part of the universal human lot are being lifted off his back.

The trouble right now is that we reap the temporary disadvantages of the process ahead of the permanent advantages. It is hard to rejoice over relief from drudgery when at the same time one is relieved of the chance to earn a living. The man who is put into a breadline by the machine may be pardoned for viewing the machine's blessings with a jaundiced eye.

To say that we are living in a period of transition is trite—but accurate. Our job now is to learn how to translate the machine's achievements in terms of the well-being of the entire community.

Utah Salt Lake Germless Basin

LA JOLLA, Calif. — Scientists said today the Great Salt Lake in Utah is virtually a "germ-proof" swimming hole.

Researchers of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography of the University of California announced that all ordinary bacteria or "germ-carrying" microbes are killed instantly when exposed to the lake's concentrated salt waters. No land or fresh-water bacteria has yet been found which can live in the saline concentrated waters of the lake, they disclose.

It was found that the lake water was not only highly bactericidal or "killing," but was also bacteriostatic or "retarding" to the already present saltwater-type bacteria.

Some types of microbes are living in the lake, said the scientists, but they differ from those of other habitats in that they develop slowly and are in smaller colonies. They are believed to be species which became used to the slowly increasing salt water concentration during the time the waters of the old Lake Bonneville evaporated, leaving the saline residue of Salt Lake.

The series of experiments was made by Dr. Claude E. Zobell and D. Quentin Anderson of the Scripps Institution and W. Whitney of the department of bacteriology, University of Utah.

Big Sister to Future King

Its not every little girl who can cuddle a baby who some day may be king, so the pride of four-year-old Princess Maria Luisa is understandable. Very seriously she holds Crown Prince Simeon of Bulgaria up to the camera for his first picture, made at the Royal Palace in Sofia.

May Get Place on Supreme Court

Stanley F. Reed, shown above at his desk as solicitor-general, is being mentioned as one of the most active possibilities for the Supreme Court post left vacant by the resignation of Associate Justice Van Devanter. Reed has defended New Deal legislation before the court, was counsel for the R.F.C. and for the Federal Farm Board under Hoover. He is regarded as one of the ablest reconcilers of New Deal laws with traditional constitutional views.

REASONS FOR VOIDING OF "BEER" ELECTION EXPLAINED IN FILING

Pursuant to the request of respondents in the recent prohibition election, Judge B. H. Atchison of Breckenridge, who presided, Wednesday filed findings of facts and conclusions of law in the case.

The request had been made by the respondents, including members of commissioners court and Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., nominal defendants, in preparation for perfection of their appeal for the election voiding the Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals.

It is not likely a ruling will be made by the appellate court until the latter part of September as the tribunal is now in recess. The case was heard originally in 91st district court, Judge George L. Davenport, regular jurist of the court, was disqualified.

The findings of fact: 1. "That on October 15, 1901, a local option election was held in Eastland county, Texas, under due order of the commissioner's court of Eastland county, Texas, and in accordance with the then existing law to determine whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors should be prohibited, and that the result of said election was to the prohibiting of the sale of intoxicating liquors within the bounds of Eastland county, Texas, and that thereafter the sale of intoxicating liquors was prohibited in Eastland county until the year 1933.

"2. That after August, 1933, elections were held in subdivisions of Eastland county legalizing the sale of 3.2 beverages at elections called for that purpose, that said elections and results were duly and legally declared and published by the commissioner's court of Eastland county, Texas.

"3. That on April 18, 1936, an election was duly ordered and held in Eastland county, Texas, to determine whether or not the sale of vinous and malt liquors, that did not contain alcohol in excess of fourteen per centum (14%) by volume should be legalized in Eastland county, Texas; that said election resulted in a majority of the qualified voters voting for legalizing the sale of vinous and malt liquors containing alcohol not in excess of fourteen per centum (14%) by volume in said county; that said appropriate order with reference to declaring the result and the object of the election was made and so recognized and same became lawful.

"4. That on the 19th day of April, 1937, there was filed with the commissioner's court of Eastland county, Texas, a petition for an election to determine whether or not the sale of all liquors should be prohibited in Eastland County, Texas.

"5. That on the 19th day of April, 1937, the commissioners court acting upon said petition ordered an election to be held in Eastland County, Texas, on May 1, 1937, for the purpose of determining whether or not the sale of all liquors should be prohibited in Eastland county, Texas; that on the 27th day of May, 1937, the commissioner's court convened in special session to canvass the returns of said election held on May 1, 1937; that such result was duly declared and the certificate of the presiding judge of the commissioner's court was duly issued and recorded in the minutes of such court declaring the effective date of inhibiting the sale of all liquor to be June 27, 1937.

"6. That the form of ballot in the election that was held on May 1, 1937, was as follows: "For prohibiting the sale of all liquors" and "Against prohibiting the sale of all liquors."

"7. That the election notices were signed by said W. S. Adamson, county judge of Eastland county.

"8. That the election notices were not posted by the clerk of the county court of Eastland county; that he did not issue said notices; that the county clerk only mailed such notices issued and signed by the county judge of Eastland county to the various election judges of Eastland county.

Conclusions of law: "1. The court concludes as a matter of law that the notices of election held on May 1, 1937, were not issued or cause to be issued by the county clerk of Eastland county, Texas.

"2. That Eastland county was 'dry area' under our present law so far as the sale, etc., of spirituous intoxicating liquors containing in excess of fourteen per cent of alcohol by volume is concerned and at the same time 'wet area' as it relates to the sale of malt of vinous beverages which do not contain in excess of fourteen per cent of alcohol by volume.

"3. That the ballot being an improper ballot to submit the issue of the prohibition of the sale of the type of liquor which had heretofore been legalized."

"4. That the ballot being an improper ballot to submit the issue of the prohibition of the sale of the type of liquor which had heretofore been legalized."

National Missions Representative to Speak In Eastland

Services were held in the First Presbyterian church Sunday, with Alvin K. Bailey, acting pastor, delivering the message.

Special music was furnished by Grady Mortor, soloist from the Methodist church. His number was "The Pastures of Peace." He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Vera James.

Announcement was made the pulpit would be filed next Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service by Rev. George W. Funder, the syndical representative of the board of national missions in Dallas. He will speak on "Making the Venture."

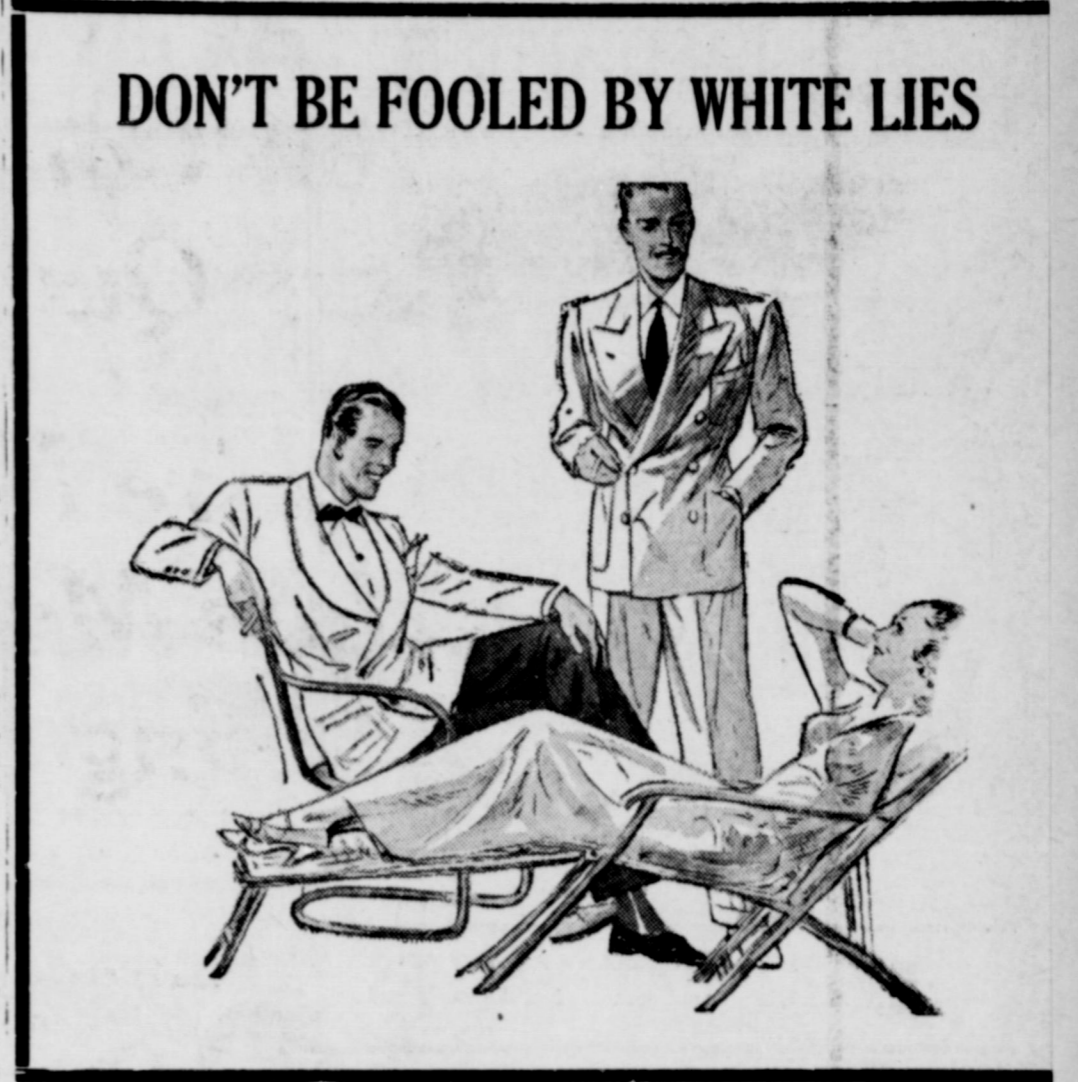

The scripture was taken from St. Paul's Epistle to the church at Corinth, chapter three, verses 10-23. The topic for the message was "The Poverty of Riches." The sermon was built around the thought that as Christ is the Son of God, and belongs to God, persons belong to Christ because He bought our lives when He died on the cross for us. The thought was brought out that most of us let material things control our lives as if we belonged to them, rather than them belonging to us. We strive on after man-made objects, always anticipating the happiness that will be ours on attainment, only to be disappointed and unhappy after gaining our goal. The sermon was concluded with the promise that if we take as our goal not political attainment or gain of worldly riches, but the final integration of God, we will be much happier. The benediction was given by Dr. L. B. Gray, visiting pastor from the First Presbyterian church in Ranger.—Reporter.

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade!

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising - made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however, favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

Our state law and the city ordinances of the respective cities of this county should be strictly enforced by the officers until such time as the highway accidents shall have been reduced to a minimum.

"We have made an inspection of the jail house and find that it is well kept and that it is in a sanitary condition. Mr. Ross Crossley is to be commended for his efficient service."

Durham had been in charge of that section of the huge ranch involved in the famous Blanton mystery—the disappearance last November of Luther Blanton and his son, John, who started on a duck-hunting expedition on the King holdings and were never heard from again. Until the doctors reported to the contrary it had been thought Durham's death might have been an outgrowth of the Blanton mystery.

Publishers Recognize Work of Zoologists

AUSTIN, Texas—The Zoology department of the University of Texas recently has received recognition from prominent scientific publishers, particularly for the work of Dr. E. J. Lund, zoology professor; Dr. Hilda F. Rosne, assistant professor, and Dr. Gordon Marsh.

A new general physiology textbook by Dr. T. Tuncliffe Barnes, Yale University, discusses Dr. Lund's flux equilibrium theory of bio-electric potential as one of the six principal theories which seek to explain the origin and nature of the electric energy produced by living tissues.

The American Journal of Botany, in June published an article by Dr. Rosene entitled, "Effect of an Applied Electric Current on the External Longitudinal Polarity of Douglas Fir." The article cited some 35 papers which furnished experimental confirmation of Lund's theory that organic polarity, bioelectric currents and cell oxidations are inter-related phenomena.
