Prospects for Men Still Without Work

Before we can get finally straightened out on the problem of unemployment, we might as well face the fact that there is a lot of it which isn't really due to the depression. This kind of unemployment simply arises from a gradual tightening up in the world of jobs; a process which you can attribute to increased efficiency, to machines, to the increasing rigors of a more competitive business era, or to anything else you choose, but which is keeping a good many willing men off the payroll no matter what you call it.

Here is a sample case, which must be representative of a pretty substantial number among the annals of our unemployed.

There is a man of 45 or 50 in a large city in the middle west who lost his job a couple of years ago. It was neither a very good nor a very bad job—just an average white-collar position that paid perhaps $50 a week and kept the man in decent comfort.

It was partly the man's own fault that he lost the job. He made one of those blunders that average people make every so often, and the boss got sore and fired him.

Anyway, this man lost his job, and he set out to get another. He has been trying for two years, and he hasn't succeeded yet. He has failed, not because of that moderately black mark on his record, but simply because there haven't been any jobs open for him.

So he is still in the market for a job, and he would have starved to death long since if it had not been for the WPA. That organization has given him a series of jobs (if you can call them jobs) and has kept him alive. He is a sort of time-keeper on some WPA project now, and what he is going to do when the WPA finally is discontinued he has no faintest idea.

And the point is that this luckless chap must be representative of a pretty large group of the unemployed. He isn't such a terribly good worker, and yet he is nobody's dumbbell either; he is well past his youth, and yet he is capable of years of hard work; he is willing enough, and pathetically anxious to get the sort of job he is trained for—and he just can't land one.

That sort of thing hasn't much to do with the depression. This man wasn't fired because of the depression; it isn't the depression that is keeping him from getting a new job—except, perhaps, indirectly, in that economic pressure forces employers to demand more from job-holders than they used to.

What's the answer, for men like him? Are we going to have to have a permanent work-relief program, in good years and bad, to care for the people who drop out of the procession and can't find their way back in?

Owen D. Young says what we need today is inspiration, not irritation. This may be regarded as a fitting conclusion to the picnic season.

Gratitude Is Lacking Texas Woman Says

By United Press CLEBURNE, Texas—Mrs. Walter Mudge believes there is no such thing as gratitude. A shabby youth, who said he was from Texarkana, recently asked at her door for a meal. Kind-hearted Mrs. Mudge asked him in and set the table with a one-man banquet; including chocolate pie, doughnuts and apples.

Cut Alimony? No, Double It

When the husband of Earlene Garrett petitioned a Los Angeles court to reduce his $25 weekly alimony in half, the original "Bluebonnet Girl" of the Texas Centennial followed him into the courtroom with her young son, where she is shown above at the youngster's mealtime, and asked that the alimony not be divided, but doubled. Milk for the baby comes high, she said.

Texans Ready For Seasons To Hunt To Begin

Texans are oiling their guns these days for their annual junkets to the haunts to deer, squirrels, wild turkeys, ducks, geese and quail. Bountiful rainfall on the Texas Panhandle Plains and good fall grain crops are expected to bring ducks to this state in large numbers—larger possibly than during the previous five years. Will Tucker, executive secretary of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, said that deer and wild turkey hunting prospects were good and that an unprecedented number of hunters will go forth when the season opens Nov. 16.

Five Barrels For Amount of Pay In Phillips Firm Test

CISCO, Nov. 17.—A showing estimated at five barrels daily developed from the test of the Phillips Petroleum company's Cozart No. 1 in the Scranton area southwest of Cisco in the 1,600-foot sand which it picked up in its quest for deep oil possibilities.

As a result drilling will be continued to the deep pay, original destination of the drill.

The showing was incidental and was encouraged in a 12 1/2 inch hole at 1,661 feet. To test it more than 300 feet of open hole was underreamed, the pipe lowered and the hole bailed of water yesterday.

Late yesterday afternoon the limey sand was drilled through at 1,691 feet and the oil production possibilities rated at five barrels.

The showing found at this level was not disappointing in view of the intention of the test. It is taken to indicate that possibilities for profitable shallow pay exist in the area and it is not unlikely that extensive exploration of this level will be undertaken in the future with cheaper rigs.

Gallagher and Lawson, Cisco, are drilling contractors on the well.

Farm Income In September Higher Than Last Year

AUSTIN, Texas.—Farm cash income in Texas during September was estimated $101,000,000, compared with $87,000,000 during September last year, an increase of more than 15 per cent, according to Dr. F. A. Buechel, assistant director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas. The average September farm cash income during the sixty months base period, 1928-32, was approximately $114,000,000, so that the September index—percentage of the base period income—was 88.4 this year and 76.4 last year.

"The wide variations in the indexes, shown in the table below, as between the different crop reporting districts during September, and also as between the same district this year and a year ago are attributable to the marked differences in production of the main sources of cash income, and to the changes in prices of major crops and of live stock enterprises compared with last year, and with the base period, 1928-32," Dr. Buechel said. "It should be added that government benefit payments

Return of Cards In Survey Begins

Postmaster Frank A. Jones stated Wednesday that returns are already being registered in the unemployment census begun Tuesday with distribution of cards to the wholly unemployed and partly employed.

Jones stated that a total of 2,250 cards were distributed. Distribution was by rural carriers, city carriers, at the general delivery window and boxes at the postoffice.

Carriers, in addition to leaving the cards to patrons in their regular territory, left cards at homes outside their district.

The cards are to be returned to the postmaster by midnight Saturday Nov. 20.

Tattoos In Many Languages to Be An Aid to Identification

By United Press
MARSHFIELD, Ore. — Claiming to be the only man in the world who "cannot be lost," T. D. Rockwell, of Portland, carries his name tattooed in 34 languages on his legs.

Rockwell said he conceived the idea of the tattooed names to provide him identification for cashing checks no matter what part of the world he traveled in. Languages include Russian, Italian, Spanish, Japanese, as well as the symbols of the Morse telegraph code, the Continental code and the Braille system. Rockwell said he had several Indian languages he planned to add to his investment—which, he said, already has cost him $50.

Connie Davis, E. P. Crawford, and E. J. Poe have been appointed by County Judge W. S. Adamson to appraise the estate of George Sawyers, who died Nov. 24, 1927, without leaving a will.

Roslyn's Old Mill Wheel Still Grinds After 236 Years

Priceless American Relic Stands with Few Changes Save for New Roof

By MARION CUNNINGHAM

ITS water over the dam, all right out in Roslyn, Long Island, and has been since 1701.

Ceaselessly for more than two centuries the old mill wheel has been revolving, marking with every turn the slow passage from pioneer simplicity to a modern America.

Long before George Washington saw the light of a Virginia dawn, tall-masted schooners were tying up at the landing in the little inlet of Hempstead Harbor to unload their burdens of Connecticut corn. With the nineteenth century steamers nosed into the dock to feed grain to the hopper. By 1916 even the mill wheel that still turns conceeded to progress by giving its power to generate electricity.

It was in 1701 that Doane Robinson built the old grist mill, and until 1916 it operated continuously for business. In that year its last private owner, Isaac Hicks, gave it to the town of Roslyn to be restored and cherished as a "Museum of Industrial Arts."

America's three great wars are represented by a frayed British red coat, a drum carried by a little English boy whom the soldiers of the Civil War called "Johnny Bull," and the gas masks and bayonets of the World War. There are symbols of peace too, of life continuing in spite of war—a yellowing marriage certificate, a baby's christening dress, a colonial wheat cradle, even a hand-made tooth extractor among countless other objects.

Such mementoes of early American history, it was decided years ago, were too valuable to be risked under a roof which might be prey to sparks from a chimney or a nearby burning building.

When in 1916 the mill became public property, Harold Godwin, a grandson of William Cullen Bryant, was appointed trustee in charge of the restoration and donated an old Dutch door from his grandfather's study for the entrance. It was he too who asked Miss Alles Titus to come there and serve tea for the visitors.

It was about that time that a modern roof was constructed to protect the fine old building. In color, the mineral-surfaced asphalt shingles were planned to harmonize admirably with the mellow surroundings, while sheltering against possibility of roof fires the priceless objects of Americana beneath. It is a concession to modernity which, while adding beauty and safety, sacrifices nothing in atmosphere.
