Ethiopia Keeps on Being Difficult

A few years ago the poverty-stricken, land-hungry people of Italy set out to get a break for themselves by taking over the rich lands of Ethiopia.

Obviously they needed a break of some kind. Italy is full of mountains and rocks—and some 42 million people. The ordinary Italian works hard and doesn't get any too much to eat; no wonder he went for it when someone told him that there were fat farm lands and general riches to be had for the taking down in Africa.

So there was a war, and peace-loving folk on this side of the water took what comfort they could in the reflection that when the shooting and the killing stopped, things at least would be a little better for the common people of Italy.

But now it begins to look as if these Italians had bought a gold brick.

A dispatch from Rome to a New York newspaper reveals that the Italian government has given up its plans for the colonization of Ethiopia—for the time being, at any rate.

In the first place, the country isn't fully pacified yet. It won't be pacified until the natives have been secured in the possession of their own lands—and there happen to be about twice as many of these natives as the Italian high command had figured.

In addition, the riches that Ethiopia possesses aren't the kind that can be gathered quickly. General Attilio Teruzzi, undersecretary for Italian Africa, remarks that it will be years before the country can be made ready for colonization.

So the colonization campaign is off, and the government is trying to get the people to think about colonizing Libya instead.

Which leaves the ordinary Italian who paid for the war sitting right back of the eight-ball, as nearly as it can be figured out from this distance.

It's easy to be wise after the fact, of course. But it doesn't hurt to point out that sort of thing is what a nation inevitably lets itself in for, when it gives up trying to think and turns all its problems over to a military dictator to solve.

The dictator is certain, sooner or later, to look for some "adventure" that will make people think that their troubles are being taken care of. And the adventure is very likely to end the way this Ethiopian conquest is ending—in general disillusionment.

The Japs and the Chinese seem to be applying old-fashioned industrial methods to warfare. The former go in for the speed-up, and the latter counter with the stretch-out.

New Packard Seen At Burnside Motor Firm In Eastland

Frank Lovett, at Burnside Motor company, West Commerce, today is introducing the new 1939 Packards to the public. Many improvements which the company says add comfort, driving ease, longer life, economy and beauty are listed in descriptions of the new Packards.

These models are the Six and One Twenty.

All of the 1939 models are characteristically Packard in appearance, carrying, basically, the well known hood and radiator lines. Outstanding in a long list of mechanical improvements, standard equipment is a new system of shifting gears. Speed changes are made while a small lever conveniently placed on the steering column just under the steering wheel. Packard has given this system the name, "Handishift."

With "Handishift," gears are changed in practically the same manner as with the old type of shifter lever so that, it is pointed out by the company, there are no new driving habits to learn. At the same time gear changing can be accomplished more quickly and much more conveniently and the floor of the driving compartment is unencumbered.

Transmissions of both the Six and One Twenty have been enlarged and improved. Gears are of larger size and additional anti-friction bearings are provided. All three forward speed gears are in constant mesh in this new transmission.

A new simplified fourth speed, or overdrive, called "Econo-Drive," automatically actuated by simply depressing and releasing the accelerator pedal, is available at low extra cost on the Six, One Twenty and Super Eight. Chief advantage claimed for Econo-Drive is that it reduces engine revolutions 27.8 per cent, saving greatly in motor wear and increasing fuel economy as much as 20 per cent. Oil economy is said to be improved to an even greater extent. Engineers explain that a button on the dash can make Econo-Drive available for operation or lock it out of service.

Packard this year introduces a fifth shock absorber, something new to motor cars, on the Six, One Twenty and Super Eight. Its purpose is the suppression of side-wise or traverse road shocks.

The well known Safe-T-Flex system of independently springing the front wheels is continued on all four lines with a number of important improvements. Safe-T-Flex rear spring suspension is also continued on the Six and One Twenty. One of the important improvements found on these cars lies in the addition of what has been called a transverse shock eliminator incorporated in the front suspension linkage. This is said to further damp any road vibrations.

Among the long list of other mechanical improvements are now carburetors on the Six and One Twenty, improved a u t o m a t i c choke, floating type engine oil screen, improved timing gear chain, improved hydraulic brakes with dirt and moisture resistant linings, improved rear spring suspension and shock absorbers, permanently lubricated and self adjusting water pump, new longer life connecting rod bearings on the Six and One Twenty, Neutro-tuned cooling fan and improved insulated mounting of the body to the frame.

Engine compartment cooling tunnels, automatic radiator shutters, automatic aluminum alloy pistons, oil filters, hardened camshafts, full pressure lubrication systems and other notable Packard mechanical features are continued.

Much has been done, it is announced by the company, in making the cars more attractive in both exterior and interior appearance as well as still further improving them in comfort, ease

A Statement of Public Policy by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

The Honorable Wright Patman, representative in Congress of the first district of Texas, has announced that he will introduce in the next Congress a punitive and discriminatory tax bill frankly designed to put chain stores out of business. In the past, Mr. Patman has been very successful in securing enactment of legislation which he has sponsored. He has demonstrated that he is a very able lobbyist and propagandist for his own bills. The management of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is therefore faced with the necessity of deciding upon a course of action in relation to this proposed legislation—whether to do nothing and risk the possibility of the passage of the bill and the resulting forced dissolution of this business, or to engage in an active campaign in opposition to the bill.

In arriving at a decision, the interests of several groups of people deserve consideration—the management, the 85,600 employees of the company, the consuming public, the millions of farmers producing the country's food, and labor.

1. The Interests of the Management

The interests of the management can be dismissed as of very little importance.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is managed by George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford under an arrangement made by their father, George Huntington Hartford, the founder of the business. George L. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 58 years, working generally six days a week, 52 weeks a year during that entire period. John A. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 50 years, working generally six days a week, 52 weeks a year during that period. Both of these men could, of course, retire without personal or financial inconvenience and live very comfortably if chain stores were put out of business. The record of the last calendar year shows that out of any money earned annually from the business, in the case of George L. Hartford, 82 percent is paid to government in taxes; in the case of John A. Hartford, 83 percent is paid to government in taxes. As neither of the brothers has any children, any monies left out of their earnings would accrue to their estates, and in the event of their death, inheritance taxes would probably amount to two-thirds of such accrued earnings, leaving approximately 6 cents on the dollar as a motive for continued personal service.

It is therefore apparent that the interests of management need hardly be taken into consideration in arriving at a decision.

2. The Interests of the Employees

The interests of the employees of the company are, however, a matter of very grave concern.

It is simply a statement of fact to say that the employees of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company generally throughout the United States receive the highest wages and have the shortest working hours of any workers in the grocery business, whether chain store or individual grocer. Many of them have devoted all of their working lives to the interests of the company.

The management, therefore, has a definite obligation and duty to defend the interests of these 85,600 employees against legislation intended to throw all of them out of work.

3. The Interests of the Consumer

Since this business has been built by the voluntary patronage of millions of American families, we believe that we must give consideration to their interests in this matter. Millions of women know how acute is the present problem of providing food, clothing and shelter for themselves, their husbands and their children out of their present income. When food prices go up it is not a question of paying more for the same food. They do not have the additional money with which to pay. Therefore, they must buy less and eat less. A & P Food Stores last year distributed at retail $881,700,000 worth of food at a net profit of 1%.

This food was sold to the public at prices averaging from eight to ten percent lower than the prices of the average individual grocer. Literally, millions of sales were made at prices twenty-five percent lower than those of the average individual grocer. This saving of eight to twenty-five cents on each dollar is of vital importance to these millions of families. If they were denied the opportunity to buy at these lower prices it would simply mean that in millions of homes they would have to leave meat on the table another day a week, eat less fresh fruits and vegetables, give the growing child one bottle of milk less every week or stint on butter, cheese, poultry, eggs and many other of the most nourishing foods.

In the last 10 years during the greatest period of chain store growth, the number of individual dealers has increased rather than decreased. We maintain that there is nothing wrong when these dealers charge more than we charge. They must charge these prices in order to make a fair profit. The average grocer will, upon request, deliver the groceries to the customer's door and in many cases extends credit to some of his customers. Delivery service costs money. The grocer must put this added cost in the prices to his customers. In the same way the extension of credit involves the expense of bookkeeping, the tying up of capital, and credit losses. There is nothing wrong in the higher mark up of the individual grocer, because he is rendering a service that justifies his prices.

If some customers can afford and voluntarily elect to pay a higher price for groceries and meats because they want credit or because they want delivery to their homes it is quite proper that they should pay an additional price for such service. However, the millions of families in this country whose income is limited and who can have more and better food because they are willing to pay cash and carry home their own purchases, should not be denied this opportunity. Millions of families of limited incomes can only enjoy their present standard of living through these economies and savings. These millions of American families have helped us build a great business because they believe we have rendered them a great service. The company, therefore, has an obligation and a duty to protect the interests of these customers.

4. The Interests of the Farmer

Eight million farm families are engaged in producing the food consumed by the American people. All of the farm homes in America, therefore, comprising one-fourth of all of the population of the United States, have a direct interest in the methods of distribution by which the products of their labor and of the soil are marketed.

Approximately 30% of their production is marketed through the chain food stores; about 70% through individual grocers. Their fruits, vegetables and other foodstuffs are sold through the chain stores at prices averaging 8% to 10% cheaper than the prices at which they are sold by many grocers. If the farmer sells a given product to both at the same price, the individual grocer must charge the public more to take care of his higher costs. Thus 30% of the farmer's products reach the public at low prices and 70% of his products reach the public at higher prices.

If the public cannot consume a given crop of apples, potatoes, berries or any other product, at the prices at which they are offered, these goods do not move from the grocer's shelves; a surplus accumulates and the farmer finds that he either cannot sell the balance of his crop or must sell it at a substantial loss. Only too often a situation arises when it is literally cheaper for the farmer to let his apples or his peaches rot on the ground than to expend the labor costs necessary to pack and ship them. Every farm economist knows that a 10% surplus does not mean 10% less return to the farmer but often more than 20% less return.

In other words, the farmer's problem is to sell his products at the cost of production plus a fair profit and to get them to the public with as few intermediate costs and profits as possible. It is therefore obviously unfair to the farmer to propose legislation which would, at a single blow, wipe out 30% of his distributing machinery—and that 30% the part which maintains the price to the farmer yet reaches the public at low cost because of economical distribution. It would be just as unfair to the farmer to propose putting out of business all of the individual grocers of the country who distribute 70% of his produce. Both chain food stores and individual grocers perform a distributive function vital to the interests of the farmer. If either failed to function the farmer would be faced with tremendous surpluses and heartbreaking losses.

For years the A & P has dealt with the farmers both as producers and consumers. We feel that we have a definite obligation and duty to oppose any legislative attack upon their best interests.

5. The Interests of Labor

Every business in this country has a vital interest in the purchasing power of labor. When labor has high wages and great purchasing power, everyone is prosperous. When labor's purchasing power is curtailed, all business suffers and the American standard of living is impaired. For many years it has been the wise policy of the national government to protect real wages and the purchasing power of the worker's dollar. Combinations or agreements to raise prices, thus reducing real wages, have been declared illegal.

It certainly seems strange that it should now be proposed to destroy a group of businesses for the frankly admitted reason that they furnish the necessities of life to the wage earner and his family at low prices. There are approximately 900,000 workers directly employed in the chain store industry. What course is open to us but to oppose the action of a man who, at a time when more than 11,000,000 wage earners are already out of work and 3,000,000 families on relief, proposes a bill that would add almost another million to the roll of unemployed, wipe out 30% of the distributing machinery of all of the farmers of the United States, and raise the cost of living of the wage earners of the United States.

We believe that our organization has rendered a great service to the American people and that it is as a result of that service that we have prospered. If we consulted our own interest it would be very easy to stop and enjoy whatever leisure we have earned. No one is dependent upon us except our fellow workers. However, after the fullest consideration of all interests, we have arrived at the decision that we would be doing less than our full duty if we failed to oppose, by every fair means, legislation proposed by the Honorable Wright Patman.

As we have said, Mr. Patman is an able politician, an able lobbyist and an able propagandist. In that field he is an expert. We are experts only in the grocery business. We believe the chain stores have a right to present their case to the American people. We will not go into politics, nor will we establish a lobby in Washington for the purpose of attempting to influence the vote of any member of the Congress. We expect only a full and fair opportunity to present the case for the chain stores as a great service organization for the American people.

Since the task we have set before us is one involving the widest dissemination of complete information to all of the American people, and since this is a profession in which we are not expert, we have engaged Carl Byoir & Associates, public relations counsel, to do this work. We realize that our views are seldom news. We know, therefore, that we must be prepared to spend a substantial sum of money in telling our story to all of the American people. We declare now that this money will be spent in the dissemination of information through paid advertising and every medium available to us, and in cooperating in the work or formation of study groups among consumers, farmers and workers, which provide open forums for a discussion of all measures affecting the cost of living.

We believe that when the American people have all of the facts they will make their decision known to their representatives in Congress. As Americans we will be content with that decision.

Crooks May Take Your Property If Deed Unrecorded

So you own your home? Don't be so sure. Your legal claim on that little cottage or homestead may not have ever been filed in the county clerk's office.

Maybe Grandpa Ezra forgot to record a deed back in 1890, thinking it was just as safe in the bottom of his old trunk. A young lawyer just out of the university perhaps could have you summoned and in the courthouse take away your rights if the legal claim had never been established.

Anyway, County Clerk R. V. Galloway, seriously speaking, recommends that a deed be filed quickly in his office following the purchase of property. If you buy a home, always be certain the deed is on record immediately to protect you from possible fraud of the man who sells it to you.

If you buy a piece of property, and fail to file the deed on record, maybe the fellow who sold it to you will turn right around and sell it to someone else. A court, in determining title, must look to the record to see who filed first.

In the case of chattel mortgages particularly on automobiles, they are necessary to show you have a lien on the property until the final installment is paid by the new owner. The mortgage protects you against third parties who might step in and buy from the fellow you sold it to.

Every marriage license must be returned to the marriage license bureau after the wedding, to put on record completion of the marital contract. Unless returned for recording, so far as the clerk's office is concerned, you were never married.

Modern laws and methods of filing legal instruments prevent much trouble arising from forgetfulness to record them, but a surprising number of them are lost or misplaced before ever being recorded.

WHERE ARE WE NOW?
 ... John Greenleaf Whittier once said that "of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: 'it might have been'". Whether we agree with the recent acts of our diplomats or not, we don't like to be quoted on what might have happened had a different course been taken.

America, with all of her unemployment, her staggering public debt, her rapidly changing trends of thought, and a growing feeling of insecurity among all classes is yet a great nation inhabited by a peace-loving people.

What makes her great? There are many answers. But the fact that the people have some voice in their government is one of the foremost answers. Still another is, we have some property rights left. We can own our homes and enjoy the fruits thereof. So long as we can, we are living in and are a part of a great country.

Home ownership marks a man—with his friends, his business associates, his employer. Own a home!
