Ten Years of the Higher Hypocrisy

It is just 10 years ago that President Hoover proclaimed effective the Kellogg Pact, designed to outlaw forever war as an instrument of national policy among the 59 nations which signed it.

With Aristide Briand, France's great postwar peacemaker, Kellogg hoped and believed that they had helped put the nations of the world on a new track toward peace and amity.

The world hoped so, too, weary with postwar wrangling and the failure to make good on the war promises that means were taken to make it the last war.

But what was ushered in with the Kellogg-Briand pact was not the higher statesmanship, but the higher hypocrisy. What was outlawed was not war itself, but the world war.

In 1931 when Japan seized Manchuria and turned it into Manchukuo, the United States, Britain, China, and other powers called Japan's attention to the fact that they had all signed the Kellogg-Briand pact. Japan returned a diplomatic shrug and grinned that this was not war: this was merely the suppression of unreasonable opposition to Japanese influence in Manchuria.

When Italy invaded Ethiopia in 1935, the attention of Rome was called to the fact that both nations had signed the Kellogg-Briand treaty. But this wasn't war, the Italians insisted. This was a mere colonial expedition aimed at pacifying Ethiopian tribesmen who could not understand the benefits of Italian influence in their country.

By the time Germany and Italy were sending their troops to Spain, and China and Japan became locked in a three-year death struggle everybody was too tired to call attention to the fact that they had all formally renounced war as an instrument of national policy. The million dead in Spain, and millions dead in China had died in something, but not in a war.

Thus the high spot of all time in international hypocrisy has been quickly and neatly achieved. The 59 nations solemnly agreed not to wage war, and not one of them has dared to denounce the pact or withdraw its signature. They just go on waging war, and calling it something else. It is the higher hypocrisy in action.

Yet there is something significant in the fact that none of these warring powers has formally denounced its signature or formally withdrawn from its agreements. It is because they all know that deep in the hearts of their people lies the wish for peace. And while they do not give the peoples peace, they dare not formally and officially say that they care nothing for this desire.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

Newsboys are among the most interesting of all people to me. Of course, not all of them are boys; some are middle-aged, some are stooped and gray. A few are women—there is a blind woman in Fort Worth who chants alternately the headlines and passages from the Bible.

One newspaper vendor in Cowtown has long, curly, white hair and a distinguished mustache. He occupies a folding chair and has the demeanor of a Congressman—er the demeanor that we think of a Congressman as having. Then there is another "newsboy" there who is the double of the late Andrew Mellon.

Several years ago, this chronicler wrote a poem about Fort Worth, in which it was referred to as "the city of infinite noise." One reader commented:

"You didn't mention the chief noise—the yelling of the newsboys. But then, I suppose, since you are a newspaper man, you didn't want to knock your own line of business."

Truth to tell, I hadn't thought of the newsies' cries as noise. Their shouts are music to one who grew up amid the smell of printer's ink and makes a living rattling a typewriter in a busy news-room.

If it were not for the newsboy, the reporter would gather his facts and write his stories in vain. And vainly the mats of the linotype would click and the big presses rumble, were it not for these patient heroes plodding through the ice of winter and summer's heat to place your paper on your porch or those others who cry their wares a hundred times to make a single sale.

Another favorite story (don't stop me if you've heard it). A negro man, pursued by his angry wife (who was armed with a club), took refuge under the bed.

"Rastus, come out from undah that bed," she yelled.

"I'll not do it," he replied. "I'll show you who's boss around heah."

District Official In Lion Activity Describes Meeting

The International Lions convention held recently at Pittsburgh, Pa., was the biggest convention ever held by the organization, according to W. H. LaRoque, incoming district Lion governor, who was in Eastland Saturday.

LaRoque, with Mrs. LaRoque and their son, Truett, of Odessa, returned from the convention and other points Friday.

After the convention was concluded they visited the New York

World's fair. In Washington, D. C., Congressman Clyde L. Garrett and his secretary, J. W. Cockrill, were seen. Clyde Garrett, Jr., son of the congressman, took the party on a scenic tour of Washington.

Other places visited included Mount Vernon, cities in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. In all, they traveled through 20 states going and returning.

The Lion official said that the Texas delegation was the strongest at the convention. "Texas is looked upon in Lion work as the most outstanding," said LaRoque. George Jordan of Dallas was elevated to the second vice presidency at the convention, added LaRoque.

DON'T STRIKE THAT MATCH!

Electricity Costs Less Than Matches

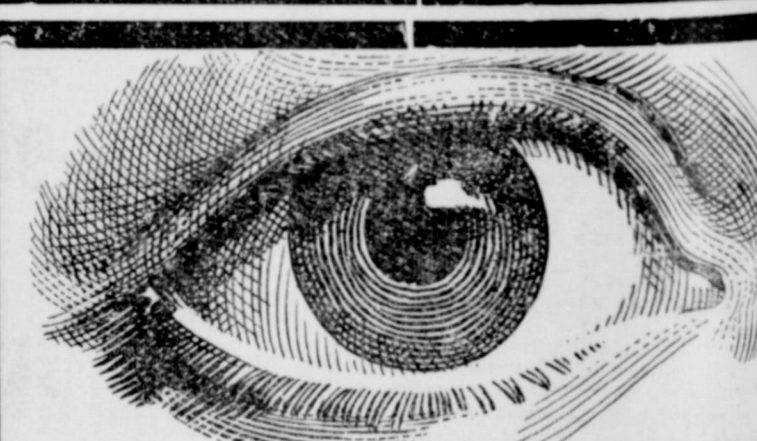

Don't think you are saving money when you strike a match to find something in the closet, rather than turning on the light. Matches are cheap, but still they aren't as cheap as electricity. For what a single match costs, you can burn a 25-watt electric light for about 6 minutes!

That is why we say that electricity is one of the smallest items of expense in the average home. Whether for lighting, for refrigeration, or for radio entertainment, the electricity you use so many times a day costs only a few pennies.

- Q. What is this?
- A. This is an eye?
- Q. What is an eye?
- A. The eye is the organ of sight.
- Q. Is it an important organ?
- A. Yes. Practically everything you do depends on your eyes. Work or play, you are constantly using your eyes.
- Q. Do people take care of their eyes?
- A. No! Too many ignore such danger signals as headaches, nervousness, bloodshot eyes... the warning signs that something is wrong. This can lead to serious eye trouble and even to complete blindness.
- Q. How should you take care of such an important organ?
- A. A periodical examination by a competent optometrist can determine the exact trouble and remedy it with correctly fitted glasses.
- Q. Is that expensive?
- A. No! Dr. E. A. Beskow offers 21-point analytical eye test and complete examination, and recommends glasses only if needed. His store is at West Main Street, next to Penney's Eastland.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN CLYDE L. GARRETT

ADJOURNMENT.—The Seventy-sixth Congress, is definitely expected to adjourn its seven months old session between August 3rd and August 5th.

LABOR RELATIONS INVESTIGATION.—The House of Representatives has created a five member committee to investigate the National Labor Relations Board. This investigation is expected to determine whether a new board should be created to administer the act and what effect the board's rulings and practices may have had on employer-employee relations.

THE HATCH BILL.—The Hatch Bill which is designed to take relief out of politics was passed by both the House and Senate and was forwarded to the President. The House vote was 242 to 133. This measure makes it a crime for any person to "intimidate, threaten or coerce" so as to interfere with the right of any other person to vote as he pleases. Makes it a crime for any governmental administrative official to "use his official authority for the purpose of interfering (1) affecting the election of any candidate for Federal office. Makes it a crime for any person "directly or indirectly, to promise any employment, position, work or other benefit" made possible by any act of Congress as a reward for any kind of "political activity." Makes it a crime for any person to "deprive, attempt to deprive, or threaten to deprive, by any means" any person of "any employment, position, work, compensation or other benefit provided for or made possible by any act of Congress appropriating funds for work relief or relief purposes, on account of race, creed, color or any political activity."

SUPPLEMENTAL PASTURE.—Having one grazing crop to turn up where another leaves off such as Korean lespedeza following Kentucky bluegrass in mid-summer when the bluegrass becomes dormant, means more and better beef cattle gains as shown by experiments carried out by the United States Department of Agriculture. As the bluegrass started its mid-summer dormancy, 30 head of steers were taken from the bluegrass pasture and allowed to graze on Korean lespedeza for 8 weeks. Another group continued to graze on bluegrass for the same period. The group of steers pastured on lespedeza graded one grade higher than those remaining on bluegrass. Department pasture specialists report. In addition, the steers on the supplemental pasture produced 38 per cent greater live-weight gain.

GENERAL OUTLOOK.—Not contributions of Federal spending have been running rather steadily at about twenty million dollars per business day, while those of State and municipal financing have averaged about four million dollars a day. It now seems reasonable to expect that there will be a well sustained inflow of funds from Federal spending from State to municipal financing during the remaining months of the year, but there is little basis for judging how large the contribution from new corporate issues will be. Agricultural prospects are good. Retail trade is holding up well and particularly in rural districts. Building construction is making a distinctive better record than last year or the year before, although there was a decline in residence building. War threats are still the greatest business deterrents.

F.S.A. HOUSES COST LESS THAN $1,500.—The Farm Security Administration announced that contracts were awarded during the past fiscal year from the construction of 2,784 of its specially designed low-cost farm homes for an average cost of only $1,474.20. The Farm Security Administrator, characterized this as the lowest cost at which substantial homes of comparable quality had ever been built in this country either by public or private agencies. This is the culmination of our four year effort to develop a really substantial, low-cost farm home. We have shown that liveable farm houses can be built in the South for less than $1,400 and in the North for less than $2,500, including profits for contractors and suppliers of materials and paying prevailing wages to labor. The 2,784 homes contracted for by the Farm Security Administration during the year included 1,645 Southern farm buildings of frame construction, without bathrooms, costing an average of about $1350. It also included 800 fully modernized units, with bathrooms, costing slightly over $1500 each. Prefabricated steel houses in the South, and northern farm buildings, fully equipped for heating raised the average cost. The steel units, built on an experimental basis in the South, in cooperation with a lead-

New System For Cooling Installed At Majestic Cafe

An air-conditioning system, described as one of the best in this section, has been installed at the Majestic Cafe in Eastland, it was announced Saturday. The system consists of two units installed near the front of the cafe. Each unit displaces 3,500 cubic feet of air per minute. The system is manufactured and sold under the trade name of Shasta, product of General Electric corporation. The units mounted overhead, are quiet in operation and the entire cafe is cooled greatly. Water is utilized in the cooling system. The owners of the Majestic, George Karantonis, Ernest Halikas and Sam Diamond, said that customer and employe comfort is greatly increased because of the installation.

Eastland Man Is Given Suspended Term In Forgery

Roy Stallew of Eastland has been given a two-year sentence, suspended, on a charge of forgery, according to 88th district court records Saturday.

Stallew pleaded guilty to the offense, which was said to have occurred in February, and waived a jury trial. The sentence was suspended during good behavior. The charge was in connection with the forgery of a signature to a $12.50 check.

In another case in which he was charged with forgery of a $24 check the defendant was released on personal recognizance in the sum of $1,000 pending final disposition of the first case.
