Thompson Again Urges Oil Tax Of Five Cents Barrel

AUSTIN, Nov. 8.—State Comptroller George Sheppard's report on gasoline tax collections for the fiscal year supports the proposal that oil tax should be raised to five cents a barrel, Col. Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, said today.

"If we would put a five-cent a barrel tax on oil all the gasoline that went into interstate and foreign commerce would bear its fair share of the tax. The figures show 84 per cent of the tax would be paid by people outside the state," Thompson said.

Holding it was without authority, 88th district court Thursday morning denied a application for a temporary restraining order against enforcement of the law prohibiting the sale of beer after Saturday midnight.

A suit contesting the election was filed last week in the court but has not been set for trial on its merits. Contestees are County Judge W. S. Adamson, members of commissioners court and Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr.

Two Senators Roll Back the Years

Seldom does the United States Senate provide more moving and impressive drama than that which was on display when Senators Norris and La Follette debated the merits of the La Follette war referendum proposal.

To listen to it was to go back to the spring of 1917, when a handful of senators fought bitterly to avert a declaration of war with Germany.

One of that handful was Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin—father of the senator who was now trying to write into the neutrality act a provision for a nationwide "advisory election" to precede any vote on a foreign war.

Another was Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska—the same Norris who, having stood shoulder to shoulder with the elder La Follette in 1917 and endured the obloquy that was visited on the "little group of willful men," was now opposing the younger La Follette's motion.

There was Senator La Follette—who remembered the trying days of 1917 when his father fought unsuccessfully against war, and who now was arguing that if the people could vote first there would be much less likelihood that the Congress would declare an overseas war. Recalling that never in American history has Congress refused to declare war when a president asked it to, he cried:

"Congress has only the power to write 'approval' across a foreign policy of a chief executive when that policy has finally culminated in a demand by the executive that Congress vote a declaration of war. Then, Mr. President, I find from my brief experience that it writes it with cheers, mixed with epithets and howls of derision against those few men who may oppose the resolution declaring a state of war."

A La Follette would know about those "epithets and howls of derision." . . . But so would a Norris. And a few moments later Norris rose—to recall that in the spring of 1917 it was pressure from the voters themselves which put the declaration of war through Congress.

"When the blood of many countrymen and the lives of men and women are at stake and in my hands," Norris said, "even if every man, woman and child rose up en masse and said, 'We want you to vote for a declaration of war, if I believe in my heart that a declaration of war would be wrong. I would vote against it. I did that once, and I am ready to do it again.'"

In the end, of course, the La Follette resolution was voted down. But its consideration had given the Senate a moment of most intense drama: two men, harking back in their memory to the things that had to be endured by those who voted against war 22 years ago, applying themselves to a measure designed to meet just such a situation as arose in April of 1917—and, in the end, coming out on opposite sides.

A Norfolk, Va., seaman is running his ferryboat to South America. While his enterprise is to be admired, commuters will find the clipper a bit quicker.

Hitler reminds us of a fidgety child. After only a month he tires of war and wants to turn to other things, like getting his colonies back.

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

And this is Los Angeles!

It all happened a bit suddenly, my being here. Because Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is planning a big Texas oil boom picture and because this chronicler has made something of a study of Texas oil booms, there comes a long distance call from California on a Sunday, directing me to be in Los Angeles the next morning.

There is the little matter of driving my car the 200 miles from Austin to Fort Worth and then boarding a big American Airlines ship that evening of thundering across West Texas (lights of twinkling and blinking like diamonds, rubies, emeralds and amethysts on a jeweler's black cloth, the orderly ranks of gas flames north of Odessa; a fried chicken dinner above the clouds; a few flashes of lightning, and it's El Paso).

Of course, getting out of Texas was the biggest part of the journey (or maybe it's because we're entirely used to flying by now) but, anyway, it isn't long till Tucson and Phoenix are left behind and then half a million lights flicker below. And so, whisked as if by the magic carpet of the Arabian Nights, we arrive in the Bagdad of the Twentieth Century.

It's a different land. Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos, as well as Mexicans and Caucasians; difficult street names, such as Calanga, Figueroa and La Cienega; none of the beers (so I'm told) that have made Milwaukee famous and Cincinnati jealous; brands of gasoline you never heard of, like Red Lion, Richfield, Blue Green and Elixir (maybe you drink it); an Oz-like realm where there are doll hospitals, a theatre where people sit in their cars, glasses of fig and pomegranate juices imbibed through pastel sippers, cigarettes lighted with perforated matches.

California's golden strand is fretted by the blue-and-silver Pacific for hundreds of miles—but the cafes serve Eastern oysters. The state is famed for its citrus groves—but the stands feature Arizona grapefruit. And a visitor from the Lone Star State needn't be lonely long for there's a sign, "Texas chili," and another, "Genuine Texas tamales."

New friends poke fun at my Southwestern drawl—though I talk as fast as a tobacco auctioneer in comparison to most of my Texas associates. But folks out here say "Doyouhaveyourcar?" as though it were all one word like "Mississippi" or "Mediterranean." (I guess that's telling 'em!)

I've been in the City of Angels a week and have seen just one policeman—and he was handling 45,000 people. (Talk about your one Ranger and one mob!) Have you ever seen 45,000 people at one time? They were at the U. C. L. A.-Oregon football game at the Coliseum. The place seats a hundred thousand and Chamber of Commerce envoys circulated among the visitors, apologizing for the slim attendance. And when those thousands rose with a shout of anguish, rage or joy, the roar of the crowd was indescribable.

Aside from the thrills of the gridiron itself, such a game is a gigantic spectacle. On the opposite side of the vast concrete bowl, U. C. L. A. student body, using colored cardboard, created Donald Duck (the emblem of the Oregon Webfoot. From the loud speaker came the delightful quackings and frenzied ragings of Walt Disney's brain-child and I remarked to a neighbor:

"The fellow's good." "He ought to be" was the answer "because he's the same guy who's the voice of Donald Duck on the screen."

Political Science in the Baltic

The night before, I'd attended the Hardin-Simmons clash with Loyola and sat in amazement as thousands booed—not me, however, but an occurrence on the field. The act which called the outburst was not harmful to the home team—just the reverse. A Texas player, trying to get under a pass, was tripped by a defender, who also was attempting to catch the ball. The action was entirely unintentional but an army of Tarzans could not have registered more bellowing disapproval.

It was explained to me that the native sons are far outnumbered by people who've moved to California from other states, so the visiting team—whether from Hoboken, Keokuk or Woonsocket—is the peoples' choice; and when California teams go out of the state, of course the rooters there also are against them.

This made me feel sorry for them as I did for Lillian and Dorothy Gish in "Orphans of the Storm."

However, the California teams won both games.

Yes, it's a different land—almost a different world, but even in Los Angeles they play "The Beer-Barrel Polka."

News From The Court House

Rather electrifying in view of current war conditions was the sight of the name The Zero Hour Bomb Company seen recently in a list of instruments filed for record in the county clerk's office. No, it wasn't a company for war-time business filing a certificate for operating under an assumed name. It was just the record of the company, an oil-well rearing firm, securing a materialman's lien against an individual.

Friends of Clyde L. Garrett, former county judge and now a congressman, saw his familiar figure on a screen program recently. In the Cavalcade of Texas film made primarily for projection at the New York World's Fair but which is being shown over the state for Texas consumption is one scene showing members of the Texas delegation in Congress. Congressman Garrett showed prominently in the scene. Such is fame. From county judge with occasional pictures in black and white in newspapers to the movies, in technical!

Because of precinct, city, county, state and national elections, poll tax insurance for 1940 should reach a high figure before Jan. 31, last day to secure the receipt which will enable citizens to exercise their prerogative of naming their officials. Only 340 poll tax receipts have been issued thus far, according to figures from the office of Assessor-Collector C. H. O'Brien.

The cigarette "roll-it-yourself" trend appears to be widening in the courthouse. John White, district clerk, is one of the latest to follow that practice. In fact, many of the officials in the courthouse do not smoke "tailor-mades." Many use the more modern method of using cigarette rollers instead of using the hand.

Horses Are Still Important to Army

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Gasoline and machines are more important in modern warfare than ever before, but the old hay-burning horses and mules are still in demand.

Major Marion Voorhes, purchasing officer for the U. S. Army remount service in this area, started a two-weeks tour on Oct. 25 of West Texas horse and mule-raising centers to select animals for military service.

The requirements for army horses and mules have been raised. Major Voorhes said, but there still are many duties for them to perform. Horses and mules that once were barely within the army standards will not be bought now, he said.

The itinerary for the buying tour extended from Fort Worth to San Angelo, Sonora, Menard, Ozona, Fort Stockton, Marathon, Marfa, Fort Davis, Van Horn, Pecos, Midland, Lamesa, Big Spring, Snyder, Stamford and intermediate towns.

Mistakes Are Found In Registering Cars

AUSTIN, Tex.—Twenty-one automobiles of the same make have been registered under the same motor block number, State Highway Police discovered in checking the registrations under the new certificate of ownership law. They also discovered the same automobile had been registered three times with as many different motor numbers. All were found to be mistakes in reading the often faint numbers. The motor number is chief identifying mark.

Bride-Elect Honored With Luncheon in Abilene

Hosting a buffet luncheon in Abilene Wednesday at the Woman's Club for her cousin, Wilda Frost of Eastland, June Frost emphasized a gold and brown motif, colors which will be featured by Miss Frost at her marriage at Eastland Nov. 25 to Maurice R. Bullock of Fort Stockton.

Keynoting the theme was a colonial bouquet of yellow and orange chrysanthemums and autumn leaves shading into deep browns which centered the buffet table, overlaid with Venetian lace. Golden ribbons radiated from the centerpiece to smaller colonial bouquets at either end of the table, and repeating the color note were the salads and sweets served by Mrs. Lockett Shelton, who presided at the table.

Replicas of the buffet table flowers done at a small scale centered foursome tables where guests were seated, and sealed down even smaller were favor corsages. Ribbons were festooned from these centerpieces, to the corsages and place cards done in bridal theme.

The hostess' gift to the bride-elect was a copper fruit bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Castleberry of Shreveport, La., are visiting in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Castleberry this week. They will return to their home Saturday.

Home for the week-end will be Miss Helen Butler, Miss Jane Whittington and Jim Whittington, students of Texas University in Austin, Sam Butler of Dallas will also be in Eastland over the week-end.

Behind the Front Line Trenches —

... in every community are hundreds of just average people who rely on their daily tasks oftentimes only slightly noticed and very little appreciated. Their names never make the headlines nor their works praised for their real values. This is the class of folks who do most of the work that produces both labor and capital.

The common people own the most of the homes in this nation. They usually pay and have paid for these homes out of their daily earnings. Installment buying, when carefully planned, has been the medium by which thousands of homes have been bought and paid for.

Good luck to those who invest a part of their earnings in a home. Very few ever lose in dollars and cents and multiplied thousands have gained much in self-esteem, satisfaction and that feeling of security which is cherished possession in the lives of every aged person.
