Church Worker

Mrs. F. L. Drago

Next to her home, Mrs. F. L. Drago loves her church better than anything in the world. Her love has found expression in continuous loyalty to the fellowship and activities of The Methodist Church. Her pastors classify her as a twice-a-Sunday, all-the-week, all-the-way, whole-hearted, church member.

Mrs. Drago united with the First Methodist Church of Eastland twenty-one years ago. During those years she has served two terms as president of the Woman's Missionary Society, one term of which was in the first phase of the construction of the present church building. Three years she was pianist for the church. For twenty years she has been superintendent of the primary department, prior to which time she was active in youth work. She has been an active member of the choir each of the twenty-one years. For several years she was a trustee of the church.

At present Mrs. Drago is a member of the Board of Education, a position she has held since 1930. She is superintendent of the children's division in the church, as well as superintendent of the primary department. During the last five years she has been the Cisco district director of children's work and active in conference wide children's work. One of Mrs. Drago's latest contributions to the life of the church was the organization of the junior church choir of which she is director. At one time this choir had a membership of fifty and has attracted state-wide attention.

Perhaps the greatest single gift she and her good husband have made to the local church is Miss Wilda Drago, who... but that is another inspiring Drago story.

Axis forces estimated at 300,000 which would include around 60,000 Germans taking part in defenses

Thursday July 15, 1943.

Allied success in the Sicilian campaign was declared certain in Washington today as the British Eighth Army struck up the east coast toward Catania and the American Seventh Army moved four miles closer to Agrigento, capturing an airdrome and dominating hills.

"There is no doubt about the outcome of the Sicilian operation," Robert P. Patterson acting Secretary of War, said in Washington.

The invasion has developed far more rapidly than anticipated by Allied leaders and casualties so far have been lighter than expected, Patterson said. He estimated the Axis defense forces at 300,000 including about 60,000 Germans.

North African headquarters announced that the Axis had struck what appeared to be the first major counter blow of the campaign, a thrust which penetrated the Allied lines to the August harbor before it was beat on back.

ing to be a popular type of service. We take the expressed points of view and problems of the people and examine what the Bible has to speak upon them. Our quartet will be with us. We guarantee you an interesting and helpful hour.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE The congregation last Sunday morning was about the largest for the summer. It is good to meet at ten on Saturday mornings. We are grateful to the many faithful children and youth who never miss. Many of them have parents who encourage them to share in this opportunity to serve and be served. We hope soon the junior choir will lead us again in worship, as it has done so well on many occasions.

see our people in the church. We had an excellent service. Sunday evening we did not double our attendance over the preceding Sunday evening but we held our own. We had a splendid service. We shall have another one Sunday evening. You are invited to help double that attendance yet. We are seeing many new "Sunday evening" faces. It would be a treat to see your face at that service. May we?

BOARD MEETING That was a grand Board of Stewards meeting Monday evening. We had a large attendance. We had one of our best reports. We lacked only a few dollars being up on the budget four days before time to pay it. Raymond A. McDaniel, J. M. Davis and Frank Castleberry were appointed to push it out. They did the month before N. A. Moore, Fred W. Davenport and Homer Smith had the job and they left a surplus in the budget.

YOUTH IN CHURCH The pastor was delighted with the presence in the worship service last Sunday morning of 22 senior young people. Youth in the services are an inspiration. We believe the services are of great value in the lives of our youth. Come on, young people, keep the good work going. For a long time our children have been attending church services. Our church is a family church made up of children, youth and adults. It takes them all to make it the best.

COOL SANCTUARY Sunday morning our sanctuary was cool. The north and south ventilation enables us ordinarily to have a breeze in it. You will find it as a rule, delightful. Those who feel free to attend church without their coats are urged to do so.

JUNIOR CHOIR The junior choir continues to meet at ten on Saturday mornings. We are grateful to the many faithful children and youth who never miss. Many of them have parents who encourage them to share in this opportunity to serve and be served. We hope soon the junior choir will lead us again in worship, as it has done so well on many occasions.

The Baptist Herald

First Baptist Church Rev. Homer J. Starnes, Pastor

The Infantile Paralysis scare has affected the church attendance. The Sunday School and Training Union were both down last Sunday some 50 percent. We do not blame parents for being cautious about such matters. We trust that we may soon be free from the threat of this dread disease and that our people will speedily find their way back into the churches.

In this connection we have abandoned our plans for the boys and girls camp at Lueders next week. A number of our junior and intermediates were planning to attend this camp. However, its the feeling on the part of many parents that these plans should be canceled. It seems to be the feeling on the part of other towns in the district also that Eastland should not under the conditions have anyone at the camp. Our boys and girls will understand this necessary decision, and will be looking forward to the camp next Summer.

It doesn't seem that we would be justified yet in abandoning our plans for the Vacation Bible School as it is almost two weeks before it shall begin. Those with whom we have talked, think that if there are no further developments by then it will be safe to go ahead with the program of work. We want to see it carried out in the realm of sane judgement.

There is something about most men that enjoys fellowship with other men. A Bible class is a good place to satisfy that natural desire, and at the same time contribute to helpful Bible Study. Last Sunday the men entered the class discussion in a fine way. The sharing of opinions gives us new thoughts. We invite every man in Eastland who is attending no

MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

CAMP SANTA ANITA, Arcadia, Calif. July 12.—The medal of marksman in rifle shooting is now being worn by Pvt. Richard H. Brown formerly of Eastland, because of his accuracy on the range at the West Coast Ordnance Training Center.
Ordnance soldiers are classified as noncombatants, but the nature of modern warfare demands that every man know how to defend himself against attack. And even though Pvt. Brown has as his main job the servicing of the Line with weapons, ammunition, and the vehicles of war, he will now be able to fight the enemy wherever he will be met.
In compiling the score that enables him to wear the medal of marksman, Pvt. Brown fired for record from four positions, standing, sitting, kneeling, and prone. Half of Pvt. Brown's record shooting was done at slow fire, half at rapid fire.

Pvt. Brown was employed in civilian life by the Royal Crown Bottling Co. He attended school at Eastland High School. He is the son of L. H. Brown living at 320 E. Olive St., Eastland, Texas.

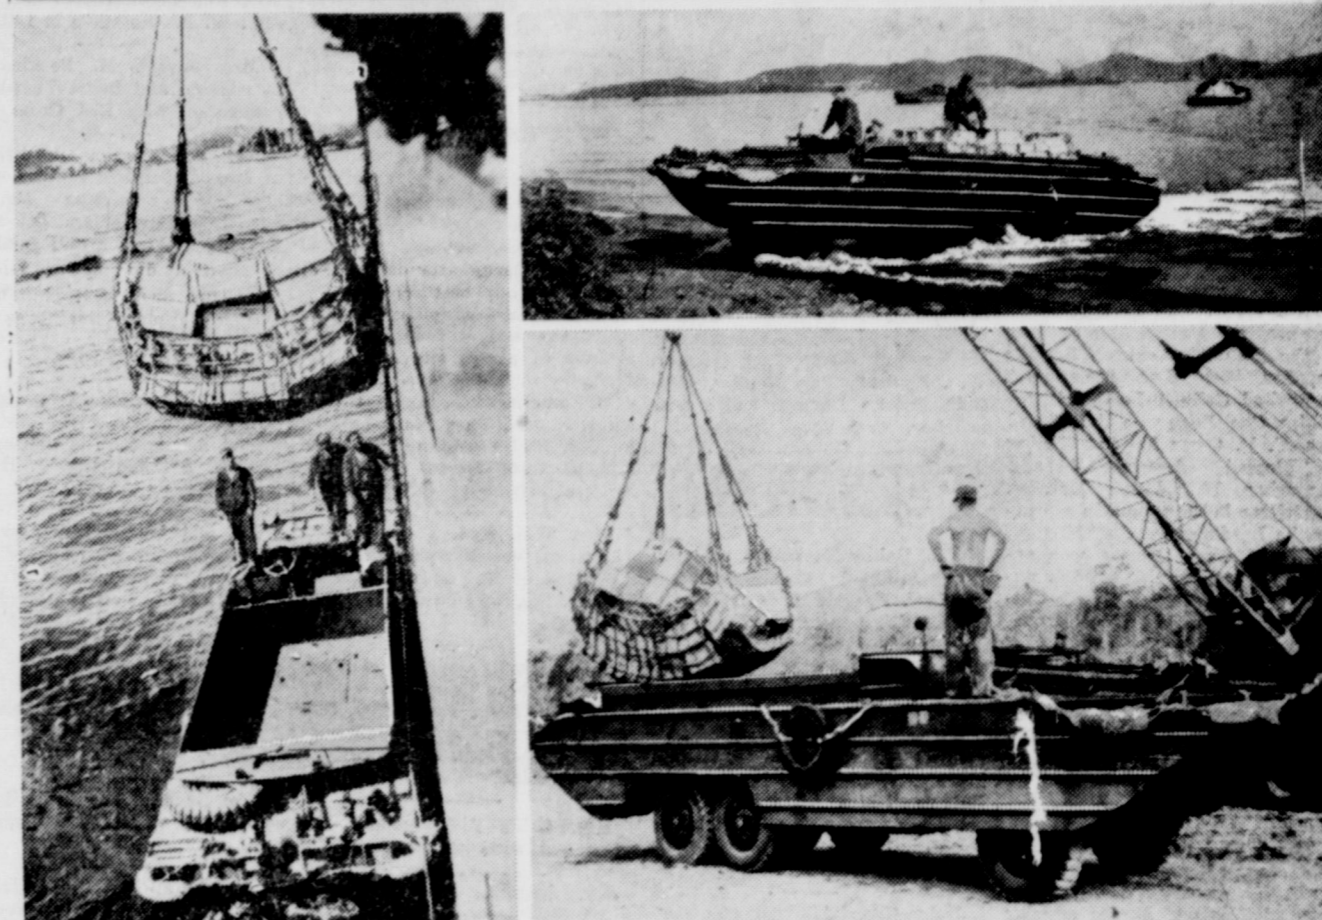

Altus Army Air Field, Altus, Okla. July 12.—Morris D. White, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. White, route 2, has reported to the two engine advanced flying school here to begin the last nine weeks of his flight training. When he has completed his course, here, he will be awarded the silver wings of an Army pilot and appointed a flight officer or commissioned a second lieutenant.
White was graduated from Cisco high school in 1939. He attended John Tarleton college at Stephenville for two years, studying mechanical engineering, before he was appointed an aviation cadet last October. His brother, 1st Lt. Homer D. is in the Army Air Forces night fighter command, stationed at the Orlando, Fla., Army Air Base.
White's training here will prepare him for service with multi-engine aircraft—heavy or medium bombers, troop carriers, or cargo planes. He will spend 70 hours flying two engine training planes and 70 hours on ground school learning the principles of military aviation.

FORT MASON, Cal. July 12.—Lt. Frank Bilderback of Eastland who was recently commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Transportation Corps, has reported at Fort Mason for duty at the San Francisco Port of Embarkation. He has been in the army for more than six years as an enlisted man and rose to the position of Sergeant Major before receiving his commission as an officer. Two brothers are also in the Service—John in the Navy and Charles in the Army Air Corps.
Lt. Bilderback is the husband of Mrs. Elisa Bilderback of Eastland.

The "Duck"... America's Newest Invasion Vehicle

This is the Army's newest, most unique military vehicle... the 2 1/2-ton, six-wheel, seagoing truck. Officially known as model DUKW, it has been aptly nicknamed the "Duck" by all who are familiar with its remarkable amphibian performance. While General Motors Truck and Coach factories have been producing quantities of this vehicle for some time, these photographs from New Caledonia in the South Pacific are the first to arrive from the fighting fronts.

Sue demonstrates her business ability when she has papers legally drawn and signed, making Roy and her father, Sam Bennett, equal partners in the "One-4-All" ranch.

CHAPTER TWO
Sue and Hildegard came down to the barn just after Jim Calvert pulled out. Sue's lovely eyes looked pretty serious this morning. And she wanted Roy to come up to the house with her right off, to go over a few questions about the ranch. Hildegard would excuse them for a few minutes. There was nothing to do but string along for Sam's sake.
"Dad depends a lot on you," Roy knew Sue was watching him close as a chicken hawk, as she climbed the rise. "He couldn't even find the insurance policies on the barn and the equipment we lost last night."
"Insurance?" Roy frowned. "We don't have any."
Sue exploded. "What! That fire might have burned all the buildings and stock on the place! Dad's getting too old to start over!"
In the ranch parlor, Sam sat, looking apologetic. As Sue searched on the arm of his chair, he shot his host a glance that spoke volumes. "She always was an inquisitive brat! Sue, you shouldn't bother Roy."
"I won't take long," said Sue. "I'd better look at the books."
"Books?" Roy blinked. "Accounts? We don't exactly keep accounts."
"Roy, you must! How do you keep track of your bills?"
"We just sort of pay 'em when they come in and forget about 'em."
Sue sneered like an angry filly. "The company I work for in New York has a monthly turnover of one-half million dollars. And I keep the books."
Roy groaned. No use trying to avenge a girl like that. So he began explaining. Whatever they made, they put in the bank; and whatever they needed, they drew out again. At the end of the year, maybe there was a balance.
You could tell she wasn't impressed. Even Sam could tell.
"Sue," he cut in at last, "you're supposed to be on vacation. Why don't you get out in the air and take a little ride?"
"Maybe you're right." But there wasn't any smile in those dark eyes. "No sense talking book-keeping if you don't understand, is there?"
San Antonio was all dressed up for company that week-end. A banner across Main Street read: Fiesta Week With The Calvert Brothers! Biggest Rodeo In The West! It sort of set a mood that spread as Saturday drew closer. Out at the One-4-All, all was peaceful.
The only inkling of anything wrong, so far, had been when Sue and Hildegard got out of a clear sky—and decided not to pull out for California, after all. But, tonight, as Roy ambled up the corral trail, father and daughter were having a heart-to-heart talk. Voices carried like bells.
"I don't mean to be so bossy," Sue was insisting, as Roy started to turn back. "But Dad, it's your money they're handling. The way the boys act sometimes, you'd think it was their ranch instead of yours!"

That seemed to hit Sam hard. "Maybe—maybe it is."
Unconsciously, Roy had paused. Sue was saying fondly, "But you ought to be a little more firm with them. If it weren't for you—"
"Maybe I should have kept you with me when your mother died," Sam interrupted gruffly. "I thought I was doing what was best. But a man makes mistakes. And when he gets older, they're not so easy to fix. All those letters I wrote you, telling you how fine everything was—that I owned a big, prosperous ranch—Sue, they weren't true."
"I guessed that a long time ago," Sue answered softly. "Rockefeller couldn't show a profit with your kind of bookkeeping. Dad, why don't you sell out and live with me? Wouldn't you like to come east?"
"Sell?" Roy heard the older voice quaver. "I—why, I—"
"If you could find a buyer, you would sell?" She sounded triumphant. "Roy Sam needs help, and needed it bad! Roy rode up the trail before his one-time boss could get in any deeper."
"I've been looking for you," he hailed Sue. "Thought you might want to start my business lessons tonight."
It wasn't easy to get her away from her Dad, but somehow he did it. Saddling a couple of horses and heading her out across the silvery range, he felt as if he'd prevented an Indian raid.
It was another one of those nights, sure enough, Roy started singing, while they rode along side by side. The trail led along the rim of a canyon, winding into the night like a ribbon, and Sue listened well.
"Very nice," she said, smiling, between songs. "But off the subject."
"How can you talk bookkeeping on a night like this?"
"Evidently I can't!" She was mighty pretty, sitting so straight in her saddle. "But tomorrow morning, we're going to have a serious talk."
Roy figured from that it was all right to forget about cash books. So he talked about the west, instead. Not that Texas couldn't speak for itself, tonight, with the moon casting shadows down the gully below them, and the flat plains stretching endless as time on beyond.
Just when it was he reined in hard, he couldn't tell. Or even if Trigger hadn't stopped first, of his own accord. But either way, Roy was fast in the saddle suddenly, and listening hard. Sure as shooting, that dull faraway thunder was stampeding hoofbeats!
Sue heard it, now, too. She cried out: "What's that?"
Instead of answering, Roy spurred Trigger forward. From a point that commanded a long view up the canyon, he could see them coming. A madly charging herd of horses, with other horses—horses and riders—galloping behind and urging them on.

Soft Drink Hauls Made By Barges

The bottle barge each one of which releases for the haulage of Navy supplies fourteen large trailer trucks which formerly made wholesale deliveries of soft drinks, has joined the commercial flotilla of New York Harbor as a result of the gasoline shortage.

Walter S. Mack, Jr., president of the Pepsi-Cola Company, said yesterday that the idea of floating his bottled goods upon the water was a brainstorm a few nights ago as he wrestled with the problem of meeting the truck mileage and delivery cuts ordered by the Office of Defense Transportation.

There are now six barges, towed by coal burning tugs, which deliver the bottled soft drinks, 7,000 to 8,000 cases to a boatload, from the East River Bottling plant in Long Island City to piers in the Bronx, at Coney Island and other points in the metropolitan area, where the local distributors pick up their orders for short haulage to stores and fountains.

Already, said Mr. Mack, he has cut his truck mileage and gasoline consumption by 25 per cent, and he thinks the barge delivery system may be extended up the Hudson River many miles.

"We have the greatest harbor facilities in the world, and it seems we might take fuller advantage of them during a high-way transport emergency," Mr. Mack said. "Maybe some other businesses can do something like this, not only here but in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Chicago and in other cities which have waterways."

A delivery by barge from the Long Island City Bottling plant to a Bronx pier at 188th street and the East River took one hour, Mr. Mack said. This was the same time which a truck used to take for the overland route. Mr. Mack said his company used trailer trucks of the Motor Haulage Corporation for its highway deliveries, and that all trucks taken from the soft drink runs because of the barge deliveries were used by the haulage concern on other contracts involving Navy work.

Wiring Materials Now Available To "Food" Farmers

Extensions from existing power lines are authorized.

"The War Production Board has authorized the re-release of wiring materials and line materials for farmers producing needed foods, says A. C. Thomas, superintendent of the Comanche County REA. The authorization extends until July 31.

Farmers applying for the line extension or priorities on wiring materials must obtain approval from USDA War Board. Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, explained that the new attitude does not represent a lessening of the critical material situation in the metal fields, but rather a decision to make the best possible use of materials on hand.

Proper Refrigeration Important Requisite In Food Conservation

In one year America wastes enough food to supply the armed forces for a year or Greece for two years, Albertine Berry, home economics director for Lone Star Gas Company said in urging home makers to prevent food spoilage through proper refrigeration.

Food conservation hints given by Miss Berry include wise use of leftovers, planning market lists and menus carefully, and serving moderate size helpings. She has the following suggestions about storage of food in the Servel Electrolog gas refrigerator:

Don't cut down circulation of air by covering shelves with paper or oil cloth. Remove bulky wrappings from all foods. Don't over crowd shelves. Don't place food on top of freezing unit. All liquids and moist foods should be covered before they are put in refrigerator.

Place milk and cream near chilling unit on upper shelves. Keep butter and cheese wrapped in waxed paper or in a covered dish on top shelf near chilling unit.

Meat and poultry should be wiped off and stored in the meat keeper under the chilling unit. If there is no special meat tray, wrap meat lightly in waxed paper and place in defrosting pan under freezing unit. Cooked meat can be stored on any convenient shelf in a covered container. Fish should be wrapped lightly and stored in a freezing compartment or evaporator.

Remove eggs from carton and store in wire basket or open bowl. Don't place near strongly scented foods.

Wash vegetables, shake off excess water and store in deep storage tray or covered vegetable fresher, ranges, lemons, limes and grapefruit should be chilled just before serving. Canteleupes and other strongly flavored foods should be wrapped in waxed paper.

Frozen foods should be stored only in freezing compartment. Never try to refreeze frozen food which has thawed.

Place cooked left overs in covered containers, or wrap securely in waxed paper and place on any convenient shelf in refrigerator.

Don't soak prepared vegetables in cold water. Clean them, and place in the refrigerator until ready to cook.

In hot weather, store bread, well wrapped, in refrigerator to prevent molding.

VACATION NEAR HOME
According to the Office of Defense Transportation, railroad passenger cars have gone to war in a big way. More than one-half of the pullman sleepers and nearly one-fourth of the day-coaches in the country are engaged all the time now in organized troop movements involving more than 2,000,000 men a month. Frightrough travel and troop travel are due to increase during the summer months.

At the present time there are 3,000,000 civilian passengers traveling every week for non-essential reasons. If you are one of these persons, try to cooperate with your government now by staying at home as much as you can. No American citizen wants to take away a soldier's right to a furlough. Unnecessary traveling by bus or railroad will do just that. The government is asking you to eliminate pleasure travel for the duration.

Here are a few substitutes this year. Try working in the Victory Gardens and enjoy your local recreations. If you must leave town, take your vacation somewhere near home. Instead of starting your vacation at the beginning of the week or on the weekend, take it at the middle of the week. Three day Army passes are issued over weekends to avoid interference with training.

Here's your chance to be patriotic with little effort. Give America's soldier boys the right way.

HEALTH IN A LUNCH BOX

It's no military secret that millions of Americans today have left private business to help win the war by doing defense work. As a matter of fact a recent survey reveals that over 8,000,000 lunch boxes are packed each day throughout the country for war workers. As important as the work of our armed forces or our factory workers are, equally important is the role of the homemakers who pack those lunch baskets.

There's no waste on the table of the American family today and there surely must be no waste in the lunch boxes carried by our war workers. That means that every morsel of food that goes into a packed lunch must be nutritious as well as tasty. The happy family pictured below never has any waste in its lunch boxes. Mother knows exactly
