SYSTEM AND RESULTS

In his valedictory address as retiring president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Eric Johnston called for a "new national fervor" for the "new capitalism" which he advocates—"a human institution, vibrant and evolutionary, capable of constantly adjusting itself to new conditions."

This thesis, which Mr. Johnston argued with good sense and realism, is not new. But it hasn't been common of late to hear a man in public life urge a positive, aggressive pride in the capitalistic system, and at the same time admit its shortcomings.

There are many, of course, who will take an aggressive stand for the status quo, and who consider capitalism "a closed and perfect system of life resting on congealed and untouched dogmas," as Mr. Johnston put it.

There are others who are on the defensive, who apologize weakly for the system or, more extremely, charge that capitalism is fundamentally wrong, that it is getting worse, and that it might better be scrapped than overhauled. It is they who tell us that we must "show Russia" that capitalism works better than communism, or else adopt communism.

To be sure, capitalism is not at the top of the economic heap today. The British people have elected a government pledged to a modified socialism. And most of the liberated countries of Europe are turning either toward Britain's new course or toward Russia's communism.

But does that mean that capitalism is wrong in theory? Or have Europeans turned their collective back on capitalism because they blame it, as it was practiced in their own countries, for many of the misfortunes that befell them? If capitalism hasn't worked fairly and justly in China, for example, must we then call it wrong for the United States?

Let us look, then, at the material results of capitalism in America. They are imperfect, but what other system offers more in human comfort? And the imperfections are being remedied, though there is still a long way to go.

Today's capitalism is not the capitalism of the Jay Goulds and the Jim Fisks, the sweat shops and 12-hour days and "the public be damned." Gradually freedom of opportunity and advancement and realization for the many has been advanced at the expense of freedom of exploitation for the few, though some have fought all advancement bitterly.

By all the evidence around us, capitalism works in America—not perfectly, but well. It will probably work better with a little more of the "national fervor" Mr. Johnston suggests, and considerably less apology, selfishness, class bickering, and defeatism.

PRIVATE TAXATION

For some time now, James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians, has been collecting royalties on phonograph records and musical transcriptions for an unemployment fund. John L. Lewis has asked for a royalty on each ton of coal mined by members of his United Mine Workers. Detroit grocers are complaining that they can get food delivered only by "joining" the teamsters' union or getting a short-term union "permit."

All these are private taxes collected by private citizens, chargeable to the end to the public. They are used for purposes beyond the knowledge or control of the direct and indirect taxpayers. They are, in effect, taxation without representation.

But to write of such things brings the suggestion that there should be laws to curb this power of private taxation brings the accusation of favoring "anti-labor" legislation. All of which is nonsense.

Laws are drafted for the protection of society and its various members, as well as for the punishment of offenders. This includes the laws covering extortion and practices in restraint of trade. But those two operations have become extralegal rather than illegal when carried on by labor leaders within the scope of union activities.

To permit a citizen to practice extortion with a license, so to speak, issued by Congress and the Supreme Court, is as unfair as allowing a citizen to practice medicine without a license. In both cases, the public is the loser.

If Mr. Lewis is permitted to levy a private tax on coal and thus raise its price, or to shut down most of the country's industry and endanger life and livelihood if he is refused that permission, then the whole population suffers union labor along with the rest.

In defense of Mr. Petrillo and Mr. Lewis and their un-

Oops, Must Be The Wrong Address

employment and health and welfare funds, and in defense of the teamsters and whatever fund their "permits" and forced "memberships" go in, it is often said that these labor leaders are only "taking care of their boys."

Well, they do take care of the boys. But "taking care of the boys" is scarcely an excuse for squeezing the many to benefit the few.

Once upon a time, business was allowed to squeeze the many for its own benefit, and dishonest men took advantage of the privilege. But the consequent curbs on unfair business practices didn't ruin business, or interfere in the least with an honest businessman's conduct of his affairs. Laws aimed solely at curbing comparable unfair labor practices could and should have a comparable effect.

HOME COMING AT T. S. C. W. TO BE JUNE 1

DENTON, Tex. — One of the largest gatherings of ex-students in the history of the college is anticipated at Texas State College for Women Saturday, June 1, for the first Commencement Homecoming since 1941.

The classes of '05, '06, '16, '26 and '36, as well as the five "forty year" classes who graduated during the wartime ban on TSCW Ex-Student Reunions, will be especially honored during the all-day celebration.

Two large brick dormitories, Houston and Lowry Halls, have been reserved for ex-students planning to stay on the campus overnight, with one floor assigned to those accompanied by their husbands, and visitors will be guests of the college for breakfast and lunch Saturday.

At the luncheon a special table will be prepared for ex-service women who will hold an informal meeting afterwards. A banquet at 6 p. m. in Lowry Dining Room and Pres. and Mrs. L. H. Hubbard's garden party from 8 to 10 p. m. Saturday, honoring this year's graduating class and visitors, will complete the day's social program.

A business meeting of the Ex-Students Association for election of officers for the next year, presided over by Miss Charlotte Cornell of Galveston, state president, will be held at 10 a. m. in the Science Auditorium.

Sunday, June 2, the Rev. Granville Walker, pastor of the University Christian Church, Texas Christian Church, will deliver the Baccalaureate sermon for the graduates, and the graduation exercises will be held Monday, June 3, with Pres. Hubbard as the commencement speaker.

HIGHEST OIL PRODUCTION DUE FOR JUNE

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — The Texas Railroad Commission today ordered the highest petroleum production for June that ever has been authorized for the nation's biggest oil state—2,293,092 barrels of crude oil and 170,673 barrels of natural gasoline and distillates per day.

During the war the highest crude production in Texas was 2,270,000 barrels a day during July, 1945. Current production of crude is 2,169,902 barrels a day.

The number of days for operation of fields during June was kept at 26 for the state generally.

'SPUDS' HAS OPPOSITION
LINCOLN, Neb. (UP) — Potatoes received their familiar nickname, "spuds," from a society which 200 years ago opposed their use as food, according to Leo Barnell, Dundee county extension agent.

The group, formed in England to protect others from the introduction of potatoes as a food, called itself the Society for the Prevention of Unwholesome Diet, Barnell said.

The rate of payment may be as much as $3.50 per acre, depending upon to amount of seed harvested, but cannot exceed $35 per farm.

If any producers plan to harvest hairy vetch in 1946, contact should be made with the AAA office, so that approval for harvesting these seed can be made. The approval must be issued before the seed are harvested, if payment is to be made through the government program.

FEATHERS OWN BED

EUGENE, Ore. (UP) — Mrs. Emma Talbot, 77, who retired recently as a hotel chambermaid, estimated she had made at least 300,000 beds at a rate of 20 a day. "Little Emma," as she is known to hundreds of traveling salesmen, businessmen and Eugenesians, was in the bed making business for 47 years.

RAINEY WILL OPEN RACE ON JUNE 4

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — Former professional baseball pitcher, Homer P. Rainey, today announced that he will open a campaign for governor of Texas June 4 at the Sherman-Denison ball park.

Rainey announced that he would try to strike out the "Texans Regulars," who, he said, jumped the Democratic league and helped the Republicans try to defeat the late President Roosevelt. But it is not only the baseball angles that Rainey will put into a Texas political race already featured by Texan music and a cow-horn. Beside his record as pitcher for the Galveston team of the Texas League, Rainey is an ex-president of the oil-rich university of Texas. A Baptist minister and former active leader in the American Youth movement.

Today at 50, he has built up a commercial radio audience that might rival that which carried W. Lee "Poppy" O'Daniel into the governor's office and the United States Senate.

SHERIFF KILLS 11 RATTLES

EUGENE, Ore. (UP) — Officers of the law in Lane County, Ore., believe in making every shot count—triple if necessary. Deputy Sheriff W. N. Carpenter illustrated the point recently when he went on a rattlesnake hunting expedition. He fired three shots into a coiled mass of the serpents and killed 11 snakes.

Farm land values throughout the U. S. are estimated to be 71 per cent above what they were in the 1935-39 period, according to the Wyoming extension service.

...of the great Southwest, carried in music and spirit the tradition of the Texas cowboy to the far corners of the earth.

Came the war and Gib soon found a place of service—as a field representative of the American Red Cross in combat areas of the world-wide conflict. Responsible for the entertainment of our troops, Sandefer pitched his "fellowship" tent in North Africa, India, Burma and China, culminating in a "round the world" jaunt that gave him further contacts in Italy, Australia and New Zealand.

In a personal conquest of Burma, Gib took his "fellowship" right to the end of the Ledo Road for the benefit of "our boys and the top hands running this war."

It was while serving in the China-Burma-India theater that Sandefer became even more convinced that only through world fellowship and through understanding of the other man's problems and way of life can the future peace of the world be assured.

Before the war Sandefer operated a small ranch in Nolan county—near Maryneal, where he was unofficial "mayor and fire chief"

Ted Miles
for CONGRESS

After returning to this country, following overseas service, Gib made a 42 state tour for the War Advertising Council in behalf of the National American Red Cross. Since the war he has been trying to further his worldwide fellowship and educational ideas as speaker for the National Dinner Clubs and the Associated Club Network, of which the Knife and Fork Clubs is a part. He invariably ends his talks about the different parts of the world he has visited and the world leaders with whom he has "fellowshipped" by saying, "It's always a pleasure to do business with you."

Speaking of the forthcoming campaign, Gib says, "It's going to be a pleasure to do business with the voters of the 17th district and I am looking forward to having a little fellowship with the people encompassed in these 12 counties."

Gib adds, like the great humorist, Will Rogers, once said, "Of the thousands of people I have met, I have yet to meet a man I don't like, and when this campaign is over, I'll still be able to repeat that statement."

Sandefer presents a concise, yet comprehensive, platform for the consideration of the people of the 17th District. It follows:

For GI Joe and his sister Jane — The help and encouragement of a grateful country, in every way that can be accomplished. For the war's disabled: All they need, at whatever the cost.

For the farmer and stockman — A legislative program geared to their needs, responsive to their wishes, and guided by their advice and consent, administered as far as possible by the farmers and stockmen themselves through boards representing their local and regional interests.

For the Small Business Man — Recognition as the mainstay of the American system, assistance and encouragement whenever he needs it, protection against the powerful forces that would destroy his existence, and a minimum of governmental interference in the conduct of his business.

Fog National Defense—An adequate and alert military establishment, backed by continuing research and experimentation, officered and manned by professional soldiers paid a decent wage, given an equal break in privileges, and made to feel that their career is as honorable as it is ancient.

Foreign Affairs—The principle of the Golden Rule, extended to all nations, all-out cooperation with peace-loving people who desire only the rights of mankind and the enjoyment of peace and plenty.

Labor—Maintenance of the principle of collective bargaining, with a sharing of responsibility by labor, industry and the government; the promotion of a live-and-let-live attitude between capital and labor, with the rights of the public to be recognized and protected.

Oil—Continuation of the practice of conservation through cooperation of state and federal government, and protection of the interests of producer, landowner, and consumer—which in the long run are identical.

Private enterprise — Government's chief concern should be to serve as umpire, to protect the young and weak against the strong, the honest from the dishonest, and the good from the bad—with as little government control and regulation as possible.

FISHING CRAFT FOR CHINA TO GET UNIQUE PAINT JOB

By JACK IVANS
United Press Staff Correspondent
SEATTLE (UP) — A fleet of eight fishing vessels being prepared here for the trans-Pacific voyage to China where they will aid in the reconstruction of the war-shattered fishing industry of China.

The craft are a Lake Union Dry Dock Co. yard employees said when finished would be the strangest lookups ever to leave the Port of Seattle.

The job of painting the vessels in the colors ordered will be like preparing gaily-painted toys for children on Christmas workers said.

Here are some of the colors being mixed in the yard: the eight boats: Chinese red the masts; canary yellow for funnels; red, white and blue for the stacks; white for the decks and upperworks; black top at the waterline and an orange band 18 inches wide extending around the hull.

The eight sturdy vessels include the Sunset Aldona, G. A. Stella, Polaris, Pacific Ocean Queen, and Bergen, among the most widely known Puget Sound vessels.

The work of preparation consists of drydocking, cleaning and painting as well as drawing of tailshafts, engine repairs and equipping them with the most modern fishing gear available.

Altogether, 20 such boats have been purchased on Puget Sound by the UNRRA by the procurement division of the Treasury Department. There are 12 others at the Port of Tacoma piled up at Elliott Bay from Seattle.

Details of the arrangements for sending the 20 ships to China were worked out in Seattle. They will move under their own power and will be manned by crews American fishermen, Thomas Pollett, assistant regional director of the Treasury Department, Seattle, said already there have been more than 500 applications for jobs aboard the craft.

The American fishermen who take the vessels to the coast will remain in the Orient several months instructing Chinese on the methods and use of modern fishing and the use of American fishing equipment.

and the Paris exhibition in 1937 in "esthetic excellence and personal appeal." It said "no money or effort should be spared to guarantee that it will surpass any previous international event of the same character."

The committee also recommended an international convention to limit the number of international exhibitions in the postwar era with the understanding that the United States and Russia would participate in it.

Quinine Tract In Hilo Nears Full Growth
HILO, T. H. (UP) — Quinine-producing cinchona trees, nurtured from seeds flown from Bataan to Australia in one of the last American planes leaving the Philippines in 1942, are reaching maturity here. Carefully protected by federal and territorial governments, 6,000 of the young trees are growing in a 20-acre plot on the Hamakua coast of the Island of Hawaii. Experts are reported satisfied with the progress of the project, but must wait until the spring of 1947 before the cinchona bark can be tested for its quinine content.

From Australia, the seeds were flown to Washington, D. C., and the Department of Agriculture exterminated them at the Beltsville, Md., experiment station. They were then planted at Glendale, Md.

After a year's growth, the seedlings were flown to Hawaii for study and transplanting. After investigation, the Hamakua coast tract was selected as the best possible site for maturing the seedlings.

Transplanting was done in five days, under the direction of Robt. Pahu, superintendent of the Kona Experiment Station of the University of Hawaii. Elaborate preparations included treatment of soil with tear gas and other chemicals to insure safe planting.

The capture of cinchona-producing areas in the Far East by the Japanese, and severance of Allied supply lines, resulted in a military crisis for the quinine-short Allies. Faced with a long war in tropical areas, research for quinine substitutes was intensified and resulted in development of atabrine.

Nationalists At Changchun Gates

NANKING (UP) — Field dispatches said today that Chinese Nationalist forces had reached the outskirts of Changchun and some signs were seen that the Communist troops were pulling out of the Manchurian capital.

SALEM, Ore. (UP) — Twenty-nine sawmills in the Corvallis-Philomath are cutting approximately 250,000,000 feet of lumber annually, A. P. Collins, district forester of the Department of Interior, Salem office, said.

Horatio Of The Fish Pond Woos Consuela From Afar

SEATTLE (UP) — Zoology students at the University of Washington have adopted a pair of marine lovers as their between-class pets.

The young zoologists discovered two exceptional Gallus canis (a type of fish the scholars challenge anybody to identify) snuggled beneath vegetable life in the limpid waters of the University's Fresh Pond.

The larger of the two, bewhiskered but bashful, the students named Horatio. The smaller, coy and graceful, is Consuela.

Each morning, according to coed Gladys Seidelhuber, Horatio arises, meticulously trims his whiskers and swims to the surface for a breath of fresh air and a nip of chironomus.

"After selecting a choice stem of Vesiculosus," Gladys reports, "he swims proudly to Consuela, deposits the sea weed with her and swims bashfully away."

With spring in the air and Consuela at the Romantic end of the cool pond, Horatio should be quite happy. But Horatio is what psychology professors regard as an introvert. Much as he'd like, Horatio cannot bring himself to woo Consuela with sea-wolfish tactics and bold advances.

And so the days go by. Consuela, unaware of Horatio's secret love, circles gracefully at the far end of the pond blowing bubbles. Horatio pines for her beneath a small gray rock at the bottom of the pond, spouting love rhymes to himself by the hour.

Once, according to the student chroniclers, Horatio did gather enough courage to swim close to Consuela. She had just swished her tail and blew him a giant bubble when a clumsy freshman stumbled into the pond and broke up the budding romance.

During the afternoon, while Consuela flirts shamelessly with juicy bugs and then snaps them up, Horatio nestles close to a nymphaea wistfully watching her. And at sundown, Horatio swims to his little gray rock at the bottom of the pond, there to sigh and blow bubbles, for spring is here, and Consuela is at the far end of the pond and Horatio is bashful.

At least that's what the zoology students explain.

FLUSH KIDNEY URINE
Benefit wonderfully from famous doctor's discovery that relieves backache, run-down feeling due to excess acidity in the urine.

People everywhere are finding amazing relief from painful symptoms of bladder irritation caused by excess acidity in the urine. DR. KILMER'S SWAMP ROOT acts fast on the kidneys to ease discomfort by promoting the flow of urine. This pure herbal medicine is especially welcome where bladder irritation due to excess acidity is responsible for "getting up at night." A carefully blended combination of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, balsam; Dr. Kilmer's contains nothing harsh, is absolutely non-habit forming. Just good ingredients that many say have a marvelous effect. All druggists sell Swamp Root.

London Plans World Exhibit To Pass All
LONDON (UP) — Plans are underway for an international exhibition in London in 1951 to stimulate postwar export trade and celebrate the centenary of the first international exhibition.

R. A. Marquand, secretary of the Overseas Trade Department, told the House of Commons recently that the exhibition must be "a dynamic success and surpass the New York and Paris exhibitions."

Marquand said recommendations of a government committee headed by Lord Ramsden had been accepted by his department. His report urged an international exhibition "at the earliest practicable date, preferably in 1951."

Marquand planned to start soon preparatory work, including the choice of a site. Spaens Hyde Park in the center of London was suggested but Marquand said definitely the government would not approve the park's use for the exhibition.

The government committee report called for efforts surpassing New York's 1939 World's Fair in scale and technical achievement.

Tension Greater In India Today Than Ever Before, Writer Says

NEW YORK (UP) — India is now seething with tension and discontent as it has at no other time during British rule, Indian author-newspaperman Krishnalal Shirdharani warned today in his book, "The Mahatma and the World" (Duell, Sloan & Pierce). "Unity has become the watchword of Indian leaders, and the lack of unity has become the most oft-repeated phrases in the mouths of British bureaucrats," Shirdharani, author of "My India, My America," said. The Nationalists, he said, charge that "the British are fomenting religious, regional and class differences as never before." "India is seething with countless unacknowledged civil wars as a result," he added.

On the other hand, he declared, British apologists assert that "the tenuous unity engendered by the existence of the common enemy—the British—is evaporating in the thin air of a scramble for power and the seeking of sectional interests." While the Hindu is the most tolerant and catholic of religionists, Shirdharani said, his social behavior is that of exclusiveness, especially as indicated in the Hindu caste system. But the case of the Moslem is diametrically different. Unlike the Hindu, Shirdharani said, the Moslem is democratic socially, but "but religiously he is highly exclusive, holding little hope for the salvation of the non-Moslem unless he is converted to Islam." "It is out of such exclusivistic doctrine, fundamentally, that the Moslem League's proposal for Pakistan (an independent state with Shirdharani said. "But it will be shortsighted to assume that such tendencies of Islam affect India alone, and that they have no bearing on the world at large." "For, in the theory of Pakistan, based upon the tenet that the non-Islamic world is the abode of war, are to be found all the rudiments of a new lebensraum, which, in the Nazi ideology, had same to mean, not a 'place in the sun,' but all the space in the sun." However, Shirdharani contended, differences in culture, although they may prove "shocking," are not dividing. "The thing that divides mankind in irreconcilable groups is the attitude of the 'exclusiveness.' And exclusiveness is totalitarian and monopolistic. It does not make for peace and understanding. We should be tolerant of everything except intolerance," he said.
