USES PROGRAM AIDS WORKERS TO GET JOBS

Several hundred Texas workers have been placed on jobs under a newly inaugurated USES program, E. J. Berry, Abilene District Supervisor, reported today.

The new regional clearance program is operated to assist employees who need special types of workers not available to close range as well as to benefit communities having high unemployment.

The plan involves shifting of unemployed workers in labor surplus areas into localities where employers indicate need for their skills. Each USES office in the Abilene district is integrated with all others in the region, which includes Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico, to provide a minimum amount of information on labor supplies and demands.

The local community is always given first attention in the placement programs as the process of matching workers and jobs locally is the primary aim of USES offices.

Examination of the applications files have shown workers with skill for which no jobs are open here in the Abilene district. This plan for clearing workers to other points in the state, region or nation will place workers in jobs where there is need for their skills and also help the local employers find workers with the qualifications which they want.

Explaining the workings of the clearance plan, Berry said that every two weeks the USES offices receive reports from the 9 local offices in the district giving the number of job hunters in its files having skills which cannot be placed. Also included are jobs for which qualified workers are not available locally and a list of occupations in which a demand for workers is anticipated.

This information is sent to all other USES offices in the region. In turn, each local office in the Abilene district receives a list of job openings and workers.

Following are examples of some of the clearance openings now listed with the local offices of the USES in various parts of the region:

TANNER GIVES THE HISTORY AND AIMS AND PURPOSES OF LOCAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Editor's Note—Following is an address made by H. J. Tanner, secretary-manager of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce before the Eastland Rotary Club, Monday, June 8.)

The Eastland Chamber of Commerce was organized in 1921. The secretary of State issued its charter on May 21st of that year. Those signing the application for its charter were Virgil T. Seaberry, J. F. Little, and W. B. Smith. At the outset its charter reads, its purpose of being is: To promote the interests of trade, to increase the facilities of commerce in transaction in the city of Eastland as between the merchants of the city of Eastland and their customers and to do such other and further things charitable in effect without pecuniary profit or gain to members of the association, except such as may come to the citizens of Eastland as a whole. Its governing board is composed of 20 citizens. Each serving a term of three years.

Before the Eastland Chamber of Commerce Charter was granted a group of men got together and called themselves the Chamber of Commerce. This group was headed by Col. Robert D. Gordon, whom many of you will remember. Their first project was the grading of Seaman street and the closing of the streets around the square. Eastland was an oil center at that time, with a population of some 12,000, and the square was a bee hive of activity, with a congested flow of traffic. The grading of seaman street, I believe was the very first instance, where the Eastland Chamber of Commerce got cussed. Its governing body felt that the ruts of the city main residential street should be rubbed out. At that time the water lines running from the mains into the homes were buried possibly two inches deep. As the grader passed, these lines were cut like straws and Seaman street presented the appearance of a flowing fountain. Home owners kept the phone to the City Hall busy, demanding of the City Manager, that he get that damn grader off Seaman street. So the Chamber of Commerce in its overall efforts to do good, got cussed, but the water lines were fixed, and the ruts rubbed out.

Many times you hear citizens voice a question, "What the hell does the Chamber of Commerce do?" That question is asked in 99 per cent of the cases by people who never come to a Chamber of Commerce office to find out what they are doing. A great many activities of the Chamber of Commerce are long drawn out programs, activities that can not be publicized, until they have been accomplished.

MORE PEACE PROBLEMS

The Italian government, in letting it be known that it will not sign a "disastrous" peace treaty, has added another complication to the long-delayed attempt of the Big Four to make even a beginning of formally ending the war.

There is a natural tendency to resent Italy's attitude. Granted that the country is in the curious position of having been both enemy and co-belligerent. But the Italian government seems to be remembering only the 20 months of co-belligerency, rather than the 39 months of active Axis partnership in Hitler's war.

Italy threatens to continue living indefinitely under the present armistice if peace terms are not to her liking. This would be extremely uncomfortable and embarrassing to the United States. Popular sentiment here is to get as many men out of uniform as possible. The Army is having enough trouble getting its needed complement of peace-time troops as it is.

But possibly Italy's desire is less to embarrass us than to protect herself. So long as there is no peace treaty, there will be a sizeable force of American and British troops in Italy. And with Marshal Tito's army milling around the frontier in menacingly large numbers, the presence of Anglo-American forces would undoubtedly be welcome.

It is hard to guess what Russia's attitude will be to all this. On the surface, a stubborn Italian refusal to give up Trieste to Yugoslavia might seem to be just what would please the Kremlin least. Yet the line of Russian policy and recent propaganda indicates that such a circumstance might be adapted to Russia's advantage.

The continued presence of American troops in Italy would not only add grist to the propaganda mill, but would give Russia an excellent excuse to keep troops indefinitely in Yugoslavia and elsewhere in Central Europe.

There is also the prospect of a "deal." Russia wants to administer the trusteeship of Italy's colony of Tripolitania. She also wants to see Trieste go to Yugoslavia. There is some possibility that Russia might give in on one demand for a free hand in the other.

Of course, there is the question of the Vatican, with its intense hatred of communism and its great influence in Italy. This would seem to be the greatest stumbling block in any get-together between Moscow and Rome.

What will be the eventual result of Italy's stand on the peace treaty cannot be foretold. But certainly it will neither improve international relations nor speed the final peace settlement.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By Boyce House

From my old scrap book, here's a favorite poem, "The Old Man In The Model Church," by John H. Yates: Well wife, I've found the model church! I worshipped there today! It made me think of good old times before my hair was gray; The meetin' house was fixed up more than they were years ago, But then I felt, when I went in, it wasn't built for show.

The sexton didn't seat me away back by the door; He knew that I was old and deaf, as well as old and poor; I wish you'd heard the singin'; it had the old-time ring; The preacher said, with trumpet voice, "Let all the people sing!"

My deafness seemed to melt away, my spirit caught the fire I joined my feeble, trembling voice with that melodious choir, And sang as in my youthful days, "Let angels prostrate fall; Bring forth the royal diadem and crown Him Lord of all."

The preachin'? Well I can't just tell all that the preacher said; I know it wasn't written; I know it wasn't read; He hadn't time to read it for the lightnin' in his eye Went flashin' 'long from pew to pew, nor passed a sinner by.

The sermon wasn't flowery; 'twas simple Gospel truth; It fitted poor old men like me; It fitted hopeful youth; 'Twas full of consolation for weary hearts that bleed; 'Twas full of invitations to Christ, and not a creed.

I hope to meet that minister—that congregation, too— In that dear home beyond the stars that shine from heaven's blue; I doubt not I'll remember, beyond life's evenin' gray,

The happy hour of worship in that model church today-

Bob Wagstaff Stresses Aid For Farmers

R. M. WAGSTAFF
R. M. (Bob) Wagstaff, Abilene, candidate for Congress from the 17th District, announces a platform in which he emphasizes support for agriculture, insisting upon the maintenance of a high level prices for farm products. Wagstaff charges that for many years the power of the federal government has been used to provide bonuses subsidies and other favors for the industrial and manufacturing sections at the expense of the agricultural areas.

"The protective tariff on industrial products has forced the farmer to buy in a protected market and sell in a free market," his platform reads "and has reduced the price of cotton and other export products."

FARM PROGRAM
He advocates tariff reform, a strong farm program, including payments for parity and soil conservation, increased appropriation for farm-to-market roads, extension of the REA, support of all government agencies which are designed to place agriculture on an equality with manufacturing and industry.

The Wagstaff platform also calls for larger appropriations for research to seek new uses for cotton, peanuts, milo maize and other products, as well as additional funds for the Agriculture Department to enable it to find new plants and crops for semi-arid regions.

"So long as we can maintain high agricultural prices this district will be prosperous," the candidate said, "and as a member of Congress I will co-operate and work actively with the farm bloc to accomplish this result."

"I will support the United Nations, adequate national defense, balancing the budget without further delay, abolition of unnecessary boards and bureaus, equality in freight rates, increase of payments to old age assistance to take care of increased living costs."

As to the labor problem, Wagstaff urges collective bargaining with a compulsory cooling-off period and federal mediation before any strike is permitted. The candidate, 53, years old, is a veteran of World War I, having served with the 142nd Infantry in the old 36th Division. He was a member of the 42nd and 43rd State Legislatures and was author of the oil and gas conservation statutes, laws affecting land titles, a water priority act and the act that created the Big Bend park. —Paid Pol. Six Submit Bids For Old Fort Clark

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)— Old Fort Clark, dating from 1852 and among the earliest built in Texas, may soon become the property of private interests.

The old military establishment, erected as part of a chain of such forts across Texas to protect the then new state from Indian raids, has been bid for by six concerns or individuals. Final action in the sale of the historic site consisting of approximately 3,737.2 acres will be made shortly by the Federal Works Administration in Washington, it was learned.

Fort Clark, for many years a cavalry post in the Army's border patrol operations, is situated near Del Rio and served during World War II as a combat training base for the 112th Cavalry Regiment of the Texas National Guard.

National Commander Steel in a radio address from St. Louis condemned the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan, stating "of all the strife breeding, un-American organizations on our country, the Klan is the most despicable, because it is of native origin, fostered by men bred in this country who ought to know better than to seek their own nation's disrepute."

After World War I the Klan taking advantage of the post war unrest, claimed a membership of 10 million members. It hit its peak in 1928 when Al Smith, a Catholic, ran for President, but in the early 30's began to crumble before the attacks of the churches, the press and enlightened civic leaders.

Its present membership is of poor quality. Its leadership is far from outstanding. Let's hope we can nip it before it flowers.

The most important post meeting of the year will be held on our first regular meeting on August 7th when the business of choosing our officers to guide the destinies of our post for the ensuing year. A lot of thought should be given to picking the right men for this year's officers. World War II members have had sufficiently post experience by this time and it is the opinion of some of the buddies that we have plenty of the right kind of commander material among our World War II buddies to serve our post and its members and keep it before the public with activities that give us the right to exist as a service organization to community, state and nation. It is a worthy job and a man's size undertaking.

Traveling Along the Highways and Byways - -

We have a chance to observe what is going on. It may be just a roadside collision or a modern farm home with every convenience. If within the city it may be the sight of a huge explosion that has rocked great buildings or a park with children playing everywhere. If one travels he cannot help but observe—he observes things seen and unseen. And back of all these huge material accomplishments stands Insurance which, as strong as Gibraltar, protects, preserves and makes possible rehabilitation and replacement, for better living.

Right Minister In Wrong Pew

GAINESVILLE, Tex., (UP) — The stranger was intently studying some papers at the Rev. John S. Rice's desk when the latter walked into his study at the Whaley Memorial Methodist Church.

Rev. Rice spoke to the man, and he returned the greeting and remarked: "I was just looking over my notes."

This was not particularly clarifying to Rev. Rice, and the stranger noticed it. So he explained: "I am to do the preaching today."

That was news to the regular pastor. He had prepared his own sermon.

"Perhaps you are in the wrong church," he suggested. He—Dr. O. L. Powers of Wichita Falls—was. It developed that he thought he was at the Grand Avenue Baptist church. Corrected, he hurried there by his sermon while the Rev. Rice sat down to study his own notes.

When Sound Films Were Born

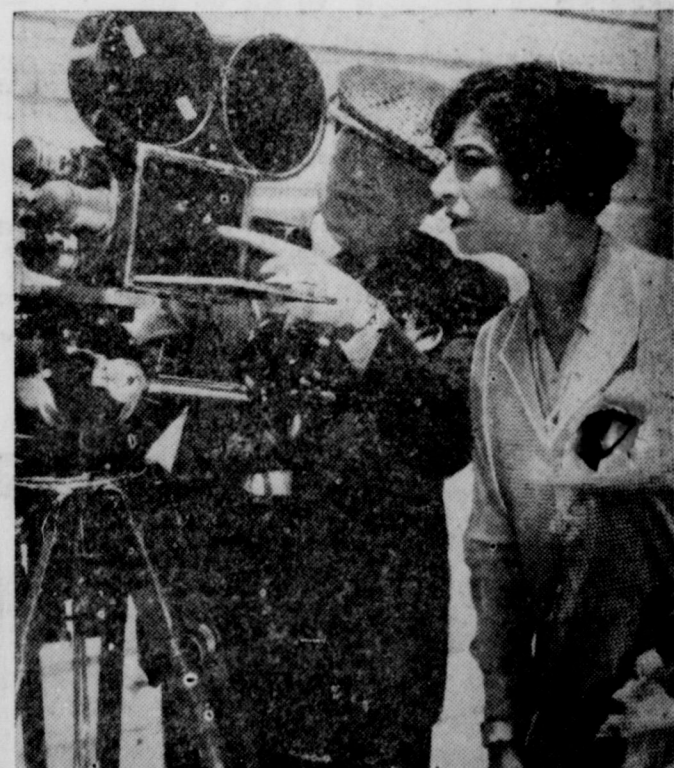

Silent Stars, Conrad Nagle and Dolores Costello, made even greater names for themselves in the new "talkies" when Warner Bros. first brought sound to films in 1926. The pair are seen here in Warner's drama, "Tenderloin."

Myrna Loy, as she appeared in an exotic role in Warner's "The Desert Song." The lavish musical was produced in the late twenties, shortly after the Warner brothers first brought sound successfully to the film public in New York on August 6, 1926.

Gun Moll Glenda Farrell, as she appeared in Warner's "Little Caesar," milestone in the early history of the talkies, first brought to the film public some twenty years ago by Warner Bros.

Fanny Brice, who starred in talking films beginning in the late 20's, after Warner Bros. had proved that sound was here to stay, is seen in this old photo with Archie Mayo, inspecting an early type of sound camera.

The Late, Great Profile. John Barrymore, was starred by Warner Bros. in "Don Juan," first commercially successful sound film ever presented. Mary Astor also was in "Don Juan," introduced in New York on August 6, 1926.

Birth of 'Talkies' Rocked Filmland

Twenty years ago this summer all filmland was in confusion. The motion picture industry—that silent film entertainment enterprise that had grown from the infant of the nickelodeon to a super-feature colossus—had received a body blow.

great and new things into being, but for many months back there in the beginning there were many anxious hearts and faces. Movie moguls who had scoffed at the potentialities of the new medium were aghast at its success. Producers, directors, actors and actresses, writers, technical people were all fearful of the future.

A Few Short Words, spoken by Al Jolson (seen with Mae McAvoy) in Warner Bros. "The Jazz Singer," revolutionized the entire film industry. Jolson's famous words were: "Wait a minute! You ain't heard nothin' yet!"

Sanderfer Has Made a Success At Undertakings

Gib Sanderfer, candidate for congress from the 17th district, has always been a success at any task he has undertaken — large or small.

Even as a boy in his early teens, Gib's talent began to prove itself in fields of endeavor common to boys of his age. Like many an American lad, his first job was that of delivering his hometown newspaper. With the "cooperation" of a pony he purchased from his savings, Gib made this a profitable undertaking.

With money saved from his paper route, he explained his operations through purchase of some pigs and a few calves. He bought garbage from the dining halls of Hardin - Simmons university to fatten his pigs, and gathered bushes of mesquite beans from the college campus and nearby pastures to help feed his calves.

So well did he manage his projects that at the immature age of 14, Gib had amassed a young fortune of almost $4,000. His exploit were featured in a special article, including a picture of Gib and one of his calves, in the American magazine of July, 1922.

Following graduation in 1927 from the university of his late father, Dr. Jefferson Davis Sanderfer, served as president for 31 years, Gib remained as assistant to the president in the development of the institution into one of the leading universities of the nation.

As business manager of the school's athletic program, Gib was able to bring nation-wide attention to the university through repeated successes of the school's football teams in intersectional competition, as well as in contests with other schools of this section of the state.

It was as manager of the famous and colorful Cowboy Band of Hardin - Simmons that Gib proved his true genius at being able to "get things done." Given $100 by the late Will Rogers, "to buy some new tunes," Gib developed otherwise average college musicians into an internationally known band. It was through his ability to make the right "contacts," that the band toured 12 foreign countries on three continents, gave command performances before numerous crowned heads of Europe, and travelled some 500,000 miles spreading the tradition of the West Texas cowboy in music and spirit.

In 1929 Sanderfer bought a modest ranch in Nolan county, near Maryneal, and operated that property successfully until going overseas as a field representative of the American Red Cross in 1942.

Following war service in which he pitched his "fellowship tent" in Africa, Italy and in the China-Burma-India theater, Sanderfer has toured the United States as a lecturer. He recently declined a most lucrative radio contract in order to offer his services to the people of his district as their representative in the halls of congress.

USUAL CURSES ATTACKED FOR CROWDED AREAS

WASHINGTON (UP) — The widely prevalent view that increased industrialization, technical skills and public health measures offer a cure for the world's problems of over-concentrated population was attacked recently by the Population Reference Bureau here.

In one of its publications, the bureau examined the care of Puerto Rico, an island in the Caribbean acquired by the United States from Spain in 1898.

The bureau called Puerto Rico "a world population laboratory," because its population problem is "basically the same as that of three-quarters of the earth's inhabitants."

"It has been repeatedly proposed, by well-meaning diplomats and businessmen that the problems of high-birth-rate countries can be solved by industrialization, technology, foreign trade, and sanitation," the bureau said.

"On this point," it added, "world society can learn much from the experience of the United States in Puerto Rico."

All these remedies have been tried in Puerto Rico, according to the bureau's findings, and "have not only failed to solve the problem but appear to have aggravated it."

Despite the application of these traditional remedies Puerto Rico today is "establishing a world record in the rate of population increase," it was said.

Figures published by insular and federal government authorities show that in each five-year period since 1930 the rate of increase for Puerto Rico's population jumped.

In every year since 1940 the rate has grown larger, until in 1944, (the last year for which statistics are available) the increased rate of births over deaths was 26.2 per 1,000 people. Present population of the island is about 2,063,000.

According to a recent report of the United States Tariff Commission, the birth rate in Puerto Rico has changed little since the island came under the American flag, but the death rate has been cut in half.

The cut in the death rate is attributed by insular authorities to improved sanitation and public health measures sponsored by the Army, Navy, United States Public Health Service and the insular Department of Health.

An "almost insolvable condition of extreme over population would confront the world if the United States experience in Puerto Rico should be duplicated in such high-birth-rate areas as India, China and Russia, the bureau stated.

Large federal expenditures, estimated by the bureau as $1,000,

000,000 in Puerto Rico since the turn of the century, have not solved the problem there and do not point to a solution elsewhere, it was added.

A comparable outlay for world society for the estimated 1,750,000,000 persons who live in backward areas suffering from population problems would come to the "staggering sum" of $1,150,000,000 during the coming half-century, it was said.

It added that if the population of these areas should double in the next 50 years, as Puerto Rico's has done, the areas would "still be in desperate economic condition" at the end of that time.

The bureau saw a single hopeful note in the Puerto Rican situation in the passage by the island legislature, in 1937, of a measure legalizing birth control information.

It also applauded the recent request of the Puerto Rico planning board for an appropriation of $1,500,000 from the insular legislature "to pay annually for the stabilization of Puerto Rico's population."

Restaurant Omits Checks Friday Nights

BOSTON (UP) — There's at least one restaurant in Boston where patrons may eat heartily on Friday nights and leave with only a promise of payment something in the future.

Even if customers at the Young Israel K kosher restaurant wanted to pay, they couldn't — because there's no cashier on duty.

Largest of its kind in New England the restaurant is operated under the New England Council of Young Israel whose function is the perpetuation of traditional Judaism.

Under laws governing the observance of the Sabbath, money must not be transmitted. Therefore, in order that patrons may still be served food prepared according to the dietary laws, the restaurant is open Friday nights, but no money is taken.

Instead, non Jewish waitresses get a bonus for taking the customers' names and addresses so that bill may be sent for the meals. Manager David R. Cohen says no money has been lost by this method and that remittances have been received months later from service men at distant points.

The restaurant's profits are devoted entirely to further the activities of the sponsoring organization which does educational work among youths and adults.

CHEYENNE SET FOR ITS 50TH CELEBRATION

By Jud Dixon United Press Staff Correspondent CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UP) — The resounding smack of high-heeled cowboy boots and horses hooves will be heard on the modern, paved streets of this western city during the last week in July.

That's the time the "Daddy of 'Em All" — Cheyenne's annual Frontier Days celebration — comes vigorously to life, awakening with rip-roaring whoops and hollers.

This year, it's the Golden anniversary, and that means, according to R. J. Roffman, program chairman, that the only strings attached to the Western extravaganza will be the lassos which settle over the heads of the wild little doggies.

In other words, Hoffman declares, the 50th annual celebration this year will be the best in the country — bar none. The Frontier Days observance, which hasn't missed a performance during three wars will be held the last full week in July, when weather conditions are best in this capital city.

Cowboys and cowgirls — many of them the world's top rodeo performers — will start arriving in Cheyenne well in advance of the opening of the event July 23. Indians in full, colorful warpath dress, will arrive with their squaws and papposes to take part in the parade.

Parades and Indian tom-tom dances will be held in the streets Monday night, July 22, but Frontier Days proper will not open until the next afternoon.

At precisely 1:59 p.m., Tuesday, July 23, an aerial bomb will explode things into action, and the range-hardened voice of Edward T. Storey will tell the men who man the chute gates to "Four 'em out."

Storey will be announcing the rodeo events for his 21st year and those three booming words of his will result in some of the West's meanest and roughest, toughest, prize animals being turned loose.

On the daily program at the arena will be bronc riding, bulldogging, calf roping, steer roping, bull riding, barrel racing, trick riding and fancy riding and roping, bucking contests, and all sorts of relay riding and race, including the always dangerous wild horse race, eliminating each show.

After each afternoon performance, the dust-begrimed cowpokes may be found standing around on downtown street corners in little groups, talking over the day's performances, maybe quietly discussing a partner who was hurt in a fall that day. Visitors and tourists jam the short "Main Street" of Cheyenne, as Indian braves and touring bands wander around giving impromptu performances. Military personnel from nearby

Ft. Francis E. Warren also will take part in the afternoon and evening performances. Speeding jeeps, narrowly missing each other cut precise figure eights in the dusty arena. And then there's the mechanized bucking horse, which hasn't been ridden yet.

It's a jeep with a barrel and saddle on the back. Even the most experienced cowhand has a tough time sticking on the back of the weaving, bumping iron critter.

Beauty also is evident at each performance. Miss Lois Hoffman, daughter of the program chairman is Miss Frontier this year, while Miss Ann Dinneen is Miss Lady-in-Waiting, and will take over next year.

WEST MAIN STREET (Next To Postoffice) Eastland

When it became known they contemplated a move, a committee was immediately appointed, working in connection with the City Commission, a site of 2 1/2 acres of land on the T&P Railway was offered them, another site of 30 acres of land on the EWF&G Railway was offered. At a joint meeting of the Board of directors of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce the city commission and the directors of the Peanut Growers Association the question was asked, would the City of Eastland declare a moratorium on taxes for a period of years? Obviously, and rightly, that could not be done. If such tactics were entered into any corporation, business, or individual, would be perfectly within their rights, to request tax abatements from the City.

There is not a day that some Eastland citizen doesn't drive to Fort Worth. When he does he goes by way of the cut off from West of Strawn through Thurber to Weatherford. The Eastland Chamber of Commerce was a leader in getting this road built. Committees attended many meetings with the Highway Commission in Austin, law suits were fought, considerable money expenditures were made. After 8 years of effort, that road became a reality.

For 16 years the Eastland Chamber of Commerce put on the annual Eastland County Fair.

For 10 years the Eastland Chamber of Commerce conducted a weekly Trades Day Event.

Through Chamber of Commerce efforts we have here, the Internal Revenue Office, with five people employed; The USES office, which office brings to Eastland each week veterans from all parts of the County. Through early Chamber of Commerce efforts, it has recently been announced that a Veterans administration contact office will be located here.

Early in the war period the Eastland Chamber of Commerce working in conjunction with the Chambers of Commerce of Ranger and Cisco, and the City Commissions of the three towns, labored to secure a war industry in this county. Later an effort was made to secure for Eastland a Veterans Administration Hospital.

Still later delect efforts were made to secure a Methanol Plant in the County. Many committees were sent to Washington. In the archives of several government departments and agencies there rests today some 50 perspectives showing the advantages of Eastland and Eastland county.

Later the Chamber of Commerce was busy in war efforts, assisting soldiers and their dependents, Red Cross, Selective Service, Bond Drives, etc.

These briefly are some past Chamber of Commerce efforts.

What of the future? The Chamber of Commerce has been actively working since 1934 in trying to get a dam built on the Leon River. An engineering survey was made on a site near Mangum. Specifications and blueprints were gotten up, and they were checked on two occasions by the Army engineers, at a public hearing held at Hamilton. Prior to the war a brief was filed on the Mangum Dam Project.

Some six months ago a Chamber of Commerce committee attended a public hearing at Belton, and a supplemental brief was filed, and the flood conditions on the Leon affecting Eastland were brought out.

The Army engineers recommended, an expenditure of $82,800 to be expended here in Eastland, to correct this flood condition. This recently was OK'd by the House of Representatives. The relatively small drainage area of the Mangum Dam project may not warrant the expenditure of government money. With this thought the Chamber of Commerce has combined its efforts with the Chamber of Commerce of Ranger, in trying to secure government help in the building of a dam below the junction of the Colony Creek and the Leon. The dam would have a drainage area of some 315 square miles, and would back up, in a lake close to the present Leon Power lake.

The Chamber of Commerce is working in connection with seven towns up and down the Leon to secure joint help in the construction of a series of dams primary purpose of which would be to prevent soil erosion and flood conditions.

A Chamber of Commerce committee attended a meeting held last week in DeLeon, of representatives from the various towns down the river. Preliminary figures were turned over to a firm of engineers, who will prepare a brief to present to the Army engineers, requesting that a public hearing be held. Before this brief can be completed more definite figures must be had, as to total acreage of land along the Leon, in Eastland County, subject to overflow, number of acres abandoned by reason of floods, kinds and value of crops damaged, etc. This means each land owner along the river, will have to be contacted to secure this required information.

Since 1939 the Chamber of Commerce has been actively engaged in promoting Clay Products industry for Eastland.

We contacted the Bureau of Industrial Chemistry of the University. They replied stating that a Department of Ceramics was in contemplation. In 1940 this department was instituted with Dr. F. K. Pence as its head. We sent to him 9 samples of our local clays. These were the first clay samples of our local clays. These were the first clay samples tested by the new Ceramic department. He replied that the samples tested possessed very unusual characteristics. Shortly after Dr. Pence made a trip to Eastland, at which time he stated that Eastland should at some time be the major clay products manufacturing center of the South West. We have consistently through these years, worked to that end. Samples of our clays have been sent to all parts of the country. Recently we have broken the ice in this long drawn out program. In the location here of two new Clay Products industries, namely the Texas Aggregate Co., and the Horton Potteries. They will employ 35 men.

When I say "broken the ice" I mean just that. There are some other projects along this line in the process of development. I firmly believe that some day Eastland will be a major center for the making of Clay Products.

The in and out mail of the Chamber of Commerce is quite heavy. People seeking information on Eastland address the Chamber of Commerce. As a consequence we receive daily inquiries and frequently long questionnaires to be filled out. We make it a point to answer all inquiries.

The Chamber of Commerce is now conducting a series of group meetings. The purpose of these meetings is to get your suggestions. Letters were sent out to all members, and others. If through an oversight there are any present who did not receive a letter, please let me know. We are asking you citizens of Eastland, "What can the Chamber of Commerce do to help you in your business?" "What can the Chamber of Commerce do to promote the welfare of our immediate area?" "Will you, whether a member of the Chamber of Commerce or not give a part of your time, in bringing about the accomplishments of your own suggestions.

Upon completion of these group meetings, the suggestions made, will be gone over by the committee, and presented to the board of directors for approval. This will then constitute a definite work program for the Eastland Chamber of Commerce.

In order to carry forward this enlarged Chamber of Commerce program, the question of finances arise. The committee has been working diligently. The cooperation and response encountered has been splendid. Present members have been asked to increase their dues, and many new members have been coming in. Eastland we feel is on the threshold of a solid expansion, not built on the quick sand of a mushroom oil boom.

SIX GIANT PUMPS TO AID COULEE WATER SYSTEM

GRAND COULEE, Wash. (UP) - Six water pumps—the most powerful and largest ever built—are planned to be installed to pour out a life-giving stream of over 400,000 acres of sage brush and dry-farmed land in south-central Washington.

As work is rushed on Grand Coulee Dam's irrigation system, two California firms have begun manufacture of the pumps, a job they bid on jointly. Costing $1,062,575, the giants will be built by the Pelton Water Wheel Co., of San Francisco and the Byron Jackson Pump Co., of Los Angeles.

They'll be driven by 65,600 horsepower electric motors, Commissioner of Reclamation Michael W. Straus said. Each pump will be capable of lifting 12,000 gallons of water per second to the height of 270 feet.

In designing pumps of such unprecedented size, the bureau had the help of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. Its engineers worked with those of the bureau at Denver in conducting the scientific research, experimentation and laboratory tests required in perfecting the design.

The six pumps, forming a battery, will be installed in a plant built on a rock shelf of the canyon wall, upstream from the dam. Each pump, with its motor installation, will be approximately 50 feet high. Ten of them operating simultaneously for 18 minutes could pump the equivalent of a gallon of water for ever man, woman and child in the United States.

The first two pumps are scheduled for delivery early in 1948, and the remaining four later that year. Because no pumps approaching the size of the Grand Coulee equipment have ever been constructed the manufacturers will build a reduced scale model which will undergo extensive hydraulic tests. The performance of the model as indicated in the tests will be used as a basis for approval of the pump designs. The pumps will be an integral part of the water distribution system for the Columbia Basin Project now being developed by the Bureau of Reclamation to harness the Pacific Northwest's mightiest river for irrigation, power production, and flood control.

A million acres of arid land will be irrigated with water stored in the 150-mile-long reservoir of the dam when the project is completed. Work on the irrigation system was stopped by the war, but the bureau now has launched an expanded construction program aimed at providing facilities for the irrigation of the 400,000 acres by 1950 or 1951.

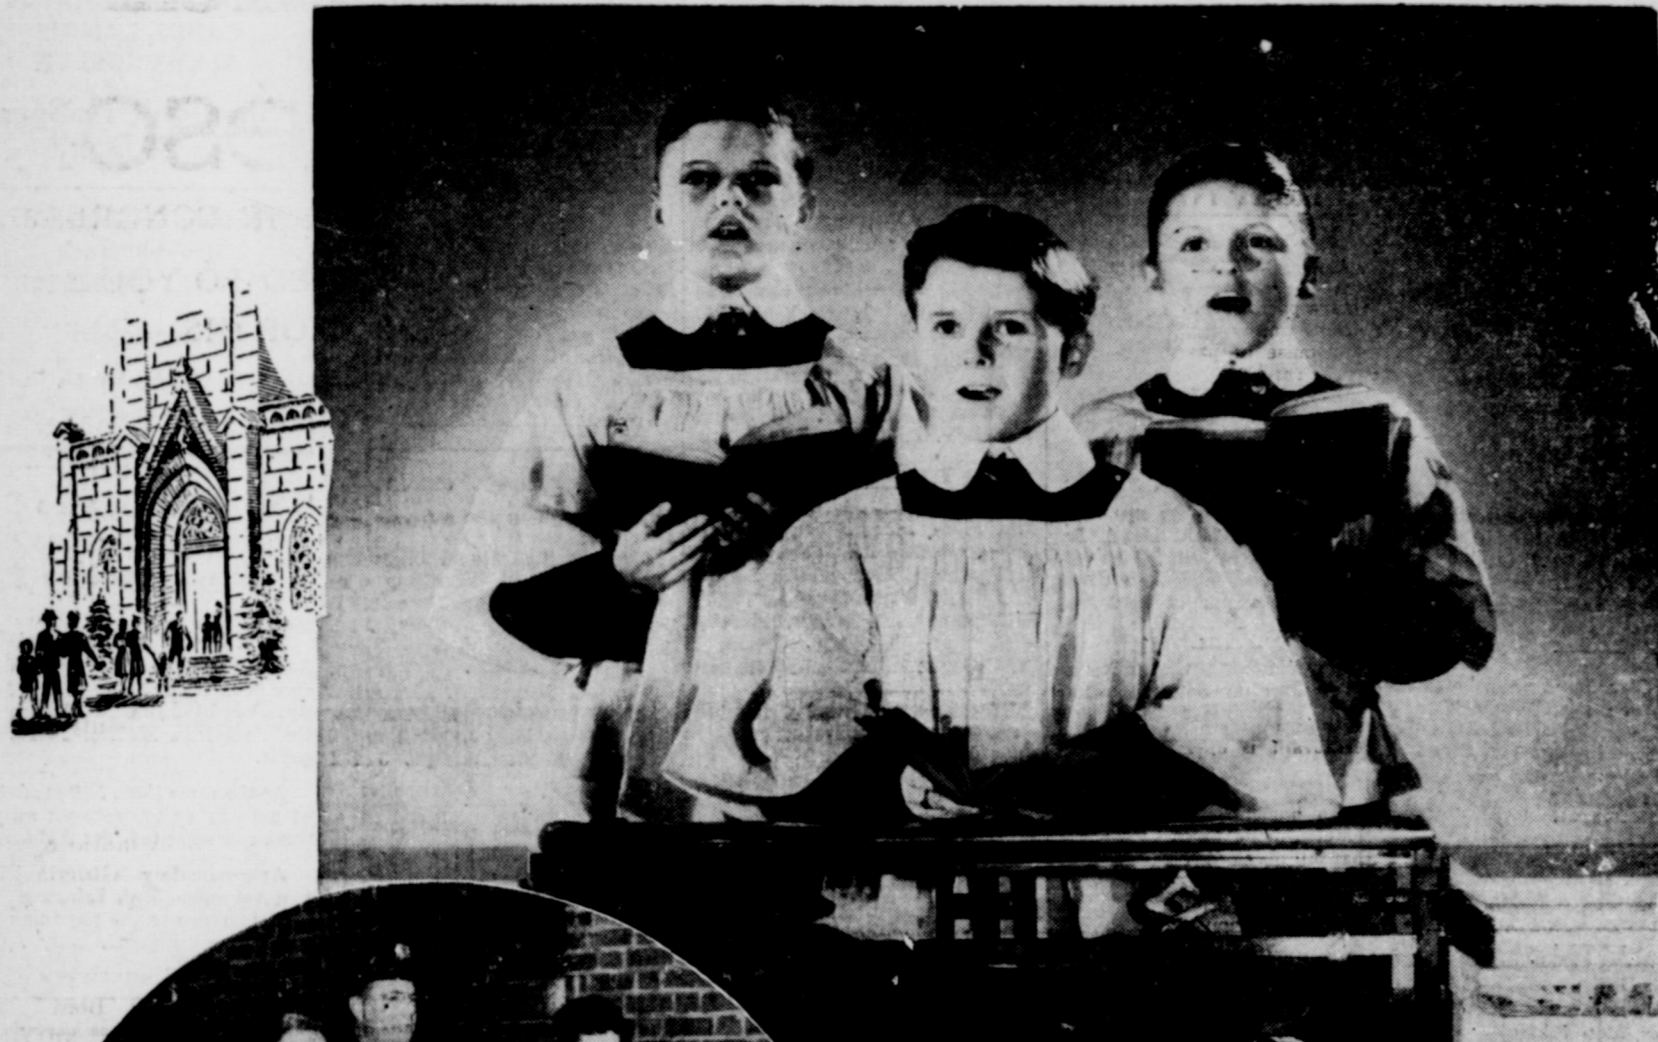

Grand Coulee was nearly completed in 1942 and its partially completed plan helped tremendously in the power output for war industries.

Advertisement for 'The Church for All' with a diagram of a church and text: 'THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH. The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend and support the Church of his choice. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to Church on Sunday.'

There is mischief as well as piety in the faces of these choir boys. Can you resist them? Boyish voices singing praises to God! What a far cry from gamin shooting craps in back alleys and mouthing vileness and curses in corrupt places! Are you concerned about juvenile delinquency? Negative programs will never correct the defects in which youth problems breed. The Churches have the answer in positive programs, in worthwhile things to do in boy choirs, scout troops, clubs, Sunday School classes, and other church-sponsored activities which build character. But activities are not enough in themselves. There must first be a training in reverence and worship. And then there must be the development of Christian comradeship and unselfish service. Activities laid upon such foundations in the church program are the things which save. Church choirs need leaders, clubs need sponsors, scouts need scout-masters and troop committees, classes need teachers. The church of your choice has a place for you to serve in its program for the young folks. Many of those who have been helping are in uniform. Offer your services this week to your home church. You will have the time of your life, and share in the saving of America. Our youth of today will be America's citizens tomorrow!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICE
"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientists, on Sunday, July 14. The Golden Text is: "The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? The bread which we break it is not the communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Corinthians 10:16).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson - Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For we are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 3:26).

The Lesson - Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science demonstrates that none but the pure in heart can see God, as the gospel teaches. In proportion to his purity is man perfect; and perfection is the order of celestial being which demonstrates Life in Christ, Life's spiritual ideal" (page 337).
