OLD WEAPON-NEW TACTIC

It used to be generally assumed that one of the chief purposes of a strike was to engage public attention and enlist public support for the striking workers' cause. Probably there also was an intent to do some economic harm to the employer by way of retaliating for greievances but that seemed to be a secondary consideration.

We don't happen to recall any employers who have been driven out of business permanently by a strike. That wasn't the point, anyway. The idea was not to cut off a source of jobs but to bring the froce of public sentiment to bear on an employer through planned and publicized

Strikes used to succeed in this mission, too. Usually they were undertaken reluctantly and as a last resort for striking was no fun. The public knew the economic hardships which striking workers and their families suffered. It became acquainted with intolerable wages and working con-

Whatever their reasons ,the results are unfortunate all around. For striking workers are losing their valuable ally, public support.

In almost every major strike in the last year the public has suffered. Usually strikes have been settled short of an actual menace to life and health, though some have carried such a threat. But the majority of them have caused

The fact that strikers and their families are putting up with the same annoyances doesn't count for much. For when people are denied some of the necessities and everyday comforts of life, they are less inclined to think of the the fish population is thinning. strikers' grievances than of their own.

Recent events are typical. The country's maritime commerce has been at a standstill. Relief shipments have stopped, spreading possible hardship to other countries. A paralyzing truck strike in New York City has resulted in empty store shelves and worse-than-wartime shortages. Business has felt the strike's effect from New England to

One of these strikes has been against private employers, the other against a government agency. But the merits have been largely lost on the public, whose reactions have anger. The general sentiment seems not to be sympathy for either party, but a feeling of "Let's get the thing settled charge of the project. It will be Rising Star and Lake Victor. on any terms , and then see if we can possibly make another stab at normal living."

The Jews, who enunciated as indicated in the Scripture passages in our lesson the law of kindliness and for the property of they did not occasion irrational, unjust and persecuting attitudes and actions. It may be of little moment whether my neighboriness and for the property of the property THE treatment of minorities ness and fairness toward the stranger, are the chief victims of this murderous inhumanity.

Even in the United States, and in a measure in Canada, where we have prided ourselves on the

we have prided ourselves on the democratic achievement of enabling persons of widely varied sorts in origin, race and creed, to live amicably together, the monstrous ogre of prejudice against minorities has raised its vile, denunciatory voice. The law of the stranger is something to be foster I, and instead we ought to study the ways of understanding and liking one another. Differences often become law of the stranger is something to be studied, not only in relation to a far-off time in Israel, but as something vitally affecting every modern community.

IT is interesting to note the ground on which the law of ground on which the law of the stranger in Israel was based, viz., that the Jews had themselves been strangers in Egypt. People do not commonly profit so well and favorably from their type of European immigrant! What rich, and as yet undeveloped resources are in the Negro cheerfulness and rhythmic beauty of music and song that have the survived many decades of slaventhese. own experience. It is often those who have been the victims of racial and social prejudice who are most relentless in their prejudice against others. In a Connecticut town some years ago, a local citizen remarked to me upon the fact that the most prejudiced against the Italian immigrants were the children of the "raddy Irish" where prepared to me the control of the contro the "paddy-Irish," whose parents had been subject to social taboo but fellow citizens" (Ephesians

India Protests Uequal Nuptials

BOMBAY (UP) — A bill discourging "unequal marriages" between men of 45 years or mere and girls of less than 18 has been moved in the Bombay legislative as sembly by Mrs. Lilavati Munshi, Indian author, reformer and one-time member of the All India Congress Committee.

In a letter to the press, Mrs. Munshi said that "the practice of persons over the age of 45 marrying minor girls is in considerable vogue in this presidency. The public conscience has been awakened for long against the inequity of COLUMPUS, O. (UP)-Battle such marriages.

"This act proposes to make such marriages penal," she said, adding that "legislative en lar to this have be legislative similar to this have be like sor, Baroda and Gatah." and Gotah." "Once a girl attains the age of majority she can choose anyone he likes for her husband," Mrs Munshi said, "but under this bill, so long as she is a minor she cannot be given away in marriage by her parents or guardian to a man who is very much shove her age." Mrs. Munshi explained that "this oill does not aim at the prevention of marriages of men of 45. A man of 45 can marry anyone he likes who is not a minor. A girl between the ages of 14 and 18 can be married to anyone who is below 45.'

Smoky City Inventor Discovers A Cure

PITTSBURGH (UP) - Bituminous Coal Research, Inc., has the "simple scientific answer" for elimination of smoke from coalfired stationary furnaces.

The organization announced its development in a publication entitled "Application of Overfire Jets to Prevent Smoke in Stationary Plants." The author, Richard B. Engdahl, said the jets prevent smoke and combustion by "forcing air into the furnace where it is needed and mixing it with unburned gases."

A REPORT on telephone progress in Texas

The first postwar year was the busiest year we've ever known, filled with work to give telephone service to those who are waiting and to improve service for

We have put in 240,000 telephones in Texas-nearly twice as many as in any prewar year. We are handling more calls per telephone now than in the rushed days of the war. And even this record-breaking performance has not been enough.

But we're glad to say we've been able to take care of most customers whose applications were held up by lack of facilities on V-J Day-and in most places, most of the time, service is fast and good. Operators are answering 9 out of 10 calls within 10 seconds.

Demand Up

On the other hand, more people than ever are applying for telephones-24,000 a month for the last six months. Prewar months averaged 11,000. Thus, as we go ahead on one front, there are increasing demands on another.

We want all those waiting for telephone service to know we are doing our best to get it to them. It is just as much an emergency to us as a hurricane-but this is country-wide.

Dell System factories today are working around the clock, three shifts a day. And-despite scarcities-are even breaking some records set in boom days years ago.

In Texas we're putting the new equipment to work as fast as we get it, and putting up new buildings to house it when necessary.

People Are Telephoning More

This first postwar year has also brought an extraordinary increase in telephone use. Local calls are now 71/3 million a day in Texas-nearly 11/3 million a day over last year. That rise would have taken several years in normal times. Toll and long distance calls are also at all-time highs.

We have increased our forces to handle your rising telephone needs. Now we have 48,000 employees in the Southwest-more than ever before. This is an increase of 11,000 since the war ended. About 6,000 are returned

It will take a great deal of money and some time to do all the things we have planned for your telephone service, but our 250-million-dollar 5-year expansion program in the Southwest is well under way. During the first postwar year alone we spent about 50 million dollars providing telephone

It all adds up to our desire to serve well everyone who uses the telephone. And to do it always with courtesy and understanding.
