Brewster Denies Charges Of Hughes

That Reminds Me

BY FRANK R. JONES

The man who plants a tree plants for those who come after him. Look about your place and see if you can find room for one more tree.

Every board of directors and every committee needs at least one "No" man.

Most towns were laid out before the automobile days and sooner or later become faced with the problem of widening streets to provide more parking space. Fortunately Eastland streets are all wide, but even at that there is sometimes too little parking space in the downtown area. This is something that the city officials should be giving thought to for sooner or later it must be remedied.

There may be times when it is advisable for one to not let his right hand know what his left hand is doing, but it isn't advisable when one is driving in city traffic.

HE MADE THE BOAT— BUT IT WAS THE WRONG ONE

I read a story recently said Thomas Hastwell, in which a man of low character given to gambling, drunkenness and racketeering got on a Sunday school picnic excursion boat by mistake. He discovered his mistake too late to get off the boat and was forced to spend the entire day with a group of church and Sunday school people. In telling of it afterwards he said that everyone on the boat except him had a wonderful time all day but that he had spent a perfectly miserable day. It is easy to understand how he could not enjoy himself. He was in the wrong crowd. He was out of harmony in desires and thinking with those in whose society he found himself. There was nothing in common between he and his fellow passengers. I thought when I read the story what a splendid example it contained of the future life and its requirements. Those who think they can live worldly lives and then when they are called from this life into the future can take their places with those who have lived pious Christian lives are going to be disappointed. They will not be happy. They will be out of harmony with the scene in which they find themselves. They won't fit in. They will be on the wrong boat.

Protests Soviet Seizure of Oil Refinery Plant

By United Press

VIENNA — Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, United States military commissioner for Austria, protested "in the strongest possible terms" today the Russian seizure of the Lobau Oil Refinery near Vienna.

Armed Russian soldiers seized the refinery Saturday on grounds it was a German asset. The four-power Allied council for Austria still was considering disposition of the property.

Shower Made Practical
WAUKESHA, Wis. (UP) — When the new baby arrives at the William Hagenau home, the event will be celebrated by a baby bed shower. The idea was fostered by a neighbor who thought it would be a good idea for friends to chip in and buy a bed which was really needed, rather than the usual miscellaneous shower.

The Wyoming antelope population now stands at approximately 45,000.

BAHAMAS ATTRACT BRITISH CAPITALISTS TAX REFUGEES

NASSAU, Bahamas (UP) — Large sums of idle British capital are being transferred from English banks to Nassau to escape the present unsettled condition and the high taxes in Britain.

Being unable to buy dollars under exchange control regulations, the British capitalists must keep their wealth within the British colonies which use the sterling currency and they are particularly attracted to Nassau.

For many years a haven for tax-wary Americans, the Bahamas needs no income tax nor property tax to balance its budget—a system of import duties averaging 25 per cent has always provided ample revenue for the government.

As the wealthy new-comers seek investments for their idle capital, fantastic prices are being offered for tax-free Nassau real estate. Many old land owners have succumbed to the rising offers.

One large business property with a frontage on the main street as well as on the harbor, with an old one-and-a-half story shop building, has just sold for $300,000.

Another smaller lot, also with harbor frontage, and a large rambling old house brought $100,000. British interests this year have bought three of Nassau's half-dozen tourists' hotels — the Fort Montagu Beach Hotel, the Rosella, and the Shoreham. Barclay's Bank, the great branch bank of the British colonial empire, has bought a large building in the center of the business district and will open for business soon to break the monopoly so long enjoyed by a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Sir Victor Sassoon, millionaire banker of the Far East before the war, has set up an office in Nassau from which to control his affairs. Nestle's Anglo-Swiss Milk Products have moved their control headquarters to Nassau.

Sir Frances Peek is erecting a handsome new building and plans to bring out stores of English antiques to sell to the American tourists.

The light of a single 100-watt bulb matches the output of 129 candles.

NOT SO FRIGHTENED THIS TIME

Connie Joyce Radosta, 10, reenacts an early morning scare in which a hand reached into her room and grabbed her. Chicago police said the screen had been removed and Connie was slightly scratched. The hand shown is that of her father's, Frank Radosta. Connie's screams routed the would-be kidnapper and brought her family running to her aid. (NEA Telephoto).

CORN BELT SUFFERING FOR LACK OF RAIN

CHICAGO — Corn belt farmers crossed their fingers today and prayed for a drenching rain to save their struggling crops from serious damage.

But the weatherman gave them little hope. The corn crop, beaten down by some of the worst corn-growing weather in years, was in urgent need of heavy rains within the next few days.

The weatherman could promise only scattered thundershowers.

Already considerable damage was reported on the sun-parched prairies where corn, the nation's basic crop, is grown. Some farmers compared the hot, dry winds, sweeping across their fields with those of the droughts of the middle 1930's.

The same farmers hoped for rain today were wishing only a few weeks ago that the rain would stop. The cold, wet spring and the late June floods struck the corn crop a heavy blow.

Thousands of acres of crop land were washed out, and elsewhere the corn crop was set back as much as two weeks. Then came a cool spell.

Little Girl Hit By Car Said Not Seriously Hurt

Little Jeanette Chambliss, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Chambliss of North Amherman street and who was hit by an automobile shortly after 7:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in front of her home, was reported by Dr. Cowan, attending physician, this morning as not being seriously injured.

"It will be necessary to observe the child for a few days before we can be absolutely sure she has no serious injuries," Dr. Cowan said.

Jeanette, according to neighbors, had gone across the street to play with neighboring children, and was struck by a car driven by Jesse Riggan, who had just driven away from his home in the same block. The car did not run over the child but only knocked her down. Riggan said he did not see the child who suddenly darted out from in front of a car standing at the curb.

Jeanette was rushed to the hospital by her parents where she was given treatment by Dr. Cowan.

INDONESIA ASKS FOR U. S. INTERVENTION

BATAVIA — Indonesia asked the United States today to persuade the United Nations to appoint a special commission to arbitrate the Dutch-Indonesian dispute, the Indonesian radio at Jogjakarta reported.

The United States had offered its good offices to help end the dispute. The Jogjakarta radio said Indonesia was accepting the offer of the good offices, which should be used to get the UN Security Council to appoint an arbitration commission.

The Indonesian decision was made by the full cabinet, the broadcast said.

It came after U. S. Consul General Walter A. Foote went on the air twice to broadcast his offer of good offices directly to Jogjakarta. Batavia, however, had thought the good offices could be used for mediation or arbitration by the United States. Jogjakarta made it clear that it still wanted its case to go before a commission of many nations, not one.

Huge fires raged out of control in Java's largest oil fields at Tjepoe, eight miles east of Semarang, United Press Correspondent Peter Hill reported after a flight over the area last night.

Peanut Trading Reported To Be Light This Week

Peanut trading continued light this week with prices on shelled goods unchanged, according to the Production and Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Buyers began to show more interest in new crop peanuts, especially for future delivery, since the announcement of the 1947 peanut marketing program.

Oil mills had about finished crushing peanuts for the season, and very little farmers' stock peanuts changed hands. Peanut meal prices averaged slightly lower, with 43 per cent protein meal selling at $67 to $80 per ton at the mill.

Under the new government program, southwest farmers' stock Spanish peanuts get support at $201 per ton for base grade 70 per cent sound mature kernels.

Runner type draw $185 for base grade 65 per cent. For peanuts above or below base grade, $2.90 per ton is added to or subtracted from the base price on Spanish, and $2.80 on runners.

Other features of the support program are similar to last year's, except that dealers who wish to participate must agree to pay regular scheduled prices to farmers.

Many southwest peanut areas need rain. North Texas and Oklahoma continued hot and dry this week and some fields began to wilt. Good rains would materially improve crop prospects. Fairly good rains in South Texas have helped the growing crop.

Annual Melon Feast Is Slated For Friday Night

No program has so far been announced for the occasion.

Drop In Farm Land Prices Reported Today

By United Press

WASHINGTON — A drop in farm land prices was reported today for the southeastern section of the United States.

It was the first regional reversal of a five-year inflationary spiral in farm real estate values, but government economists said it could not be taken as a sign that the national peak had been reached.

The southeastern decline—one per cent from March 1 to July 1—was more than offset by sharp increases in the value of wheat farms in the midwest and livestock range lands in the southwest and mountain states. The latter reflected higher prices for meat and grains.

As a result, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported, farm land values for the country as a whole increased two per cent during the four-month period. The two per cent increase boosted the national price level to 95 per cent above the 1935-39 level.

Defends British Government's Crisis Proposal

By United Press

LONDON — Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton defended the government's crisis plan today before an ill-tempered House which greeted him with growls and shouts of disapproval reflecting both Conservative and left wing Labor opposition to the program advanced by Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee.

Dalton told the House of Commons that in his view the American loan to Britain would be exhausted in October—a month or two earlier than previous estimates. Only yesterday Attlee said that the loan would be exhausted "before the end of the year."

Dalton said that Britain would halt purchases of foodstuffs in the United States and other "hard currency" countries immediately upon exhaustion of the dollar credits.

Dalton pointed out that the index of American wholesale prices had risen from 101.7 in January, 1946, to 150.6 in July, 1947. American farm prices in the same period rose from 129 to 182, he said.

"These are not the same dollars we borrowed," he said, in explanation of the rapid spending of the American dollar loan.

You Are Old, Father Andrew
FALMOUTH, Mass. (UP)—Andrew Anderson of Brocton celebrated his 83rd birthday by catching 11 perch and a 27 inch eel.

Story of a Lawbreaker

A driver who was not breaking any law, and two passengers with him, burned to death in this inferno when a reckless overtaking motorist tried to pass their car where the way was too narrow. His engine rammed into the gasoline tank, setting it afire, and the car was knocked off the road, end over end into a field, where it quickly turned into a molten furnace. The lawbreaker himself was not injured—such is the irony of highway accidents. National Conservation Bureau safety specialists report that improper passing ranked fifth as a cause of motor vehicle deaths last year; most often it was combined with excessive speed which accounted for at least 8,000 fatalities.

ADMITS TAKING FAVORS FROM PAN AMERICAN AIRLINES

By United Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Owen Brewster, R., Me., today denied as "absolutely false" a suggestion that he ordered a Senate investigation of Howard Hughes airplane contracts in order to further the interests of Pan American Airways.

Sen. Owen Brewster, admitted in reply to questions by Howard Hughes today that he accepted two "free airplane rides" and "ham and egg breakfasts" from Pan American Airways.

Hughes submitted the questions in the hope of showing that Brewster told a "pack of lies" when he denied under oath the millionaire plane-maker's charge that he tried to "blackmail" Hughes into merging his Trans-World Airlines with Juan Trippe's Pan American Airways.

Brewster countered with assertions that he went in for more lavish entertainment than did Pan-American.

The unusual question-and-answer session was conducted by a subcommittee of the Senate War Investigating Committee of which Brewster himself is chairman. The subcommittee is headed by Sen. Homer Ferguson, R., Mich.

Hughes questions were directed to Brewster by Ferguson, in whose hands the manufacturer reluctantly placed them after failing to obtain the privilege of cross-examining the Maine Republican personally.

Many of the questions were keyed to legislation, supported by Brewster, to consolidate U. S. overseas air service in one big company. Pan-American favors this proposal, Trans-World is against it.

Brewster said he had visited what Hughes called Pan American's "House on F Street" here but only for "ham and egg breakfasts." He said he went there three times in the past three months. He identified the house as a place where Pan-American quartered its executives and did entertaining.

BE SURE Your Electrical Wiring Will Efficiently Carry the Load...

Are you planning to build a home—add a room or wing to your house—completely electrify your kitchen—put in new laundry equipment—install an air conditioning unit? If you are, the first step should be to arrange for a complete checkup of your electric wiring system. Without adequate wiring facilities—enough circuits to provide plenty of outlets for your electrical appliances and electric wires large enough to satisfactorily carry the increased load—your whole plan for modernizing your home electrically may be upset. Electrical appliances can efficiently do their job of making housework easier and home life more comfortable only when they are provided with an adequate wiring system from which to operate.

When you plan to build, remodel or add new electric appliances, consult your electrical contractor-dealer about adequate wiring.

Letter 'K' Heard Over Enemy Radio Clue To Missing Officer's Safety

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The family of Cmdr. Richard O'Kane, American submarine skipper, never gave up hope that he was alive after they learned that his class at the U. S. Naval Academy had no midshipman whose last name began with "K".

The story of the O'Kane family hopes and their son's eventual rescue has just been revealed.

It began in November, 1944, when O'Kane's submarine Tang was reported overdue and presumed lost. No survivors were reported. O'Kane was believed dead.

But in March, 1945, rumors reached the United States that at least one member of the Tang's crew had lived.

In June of the same year, a prisoner of war speaking on a Japanese propaganda broadcast reported that "Jeff King, Battalion 34, is alive and well." O'Kane's family noted at once that "Jeff" was short for their son's middle name, "Battalion 34" they reasoned might refer to his class at Annapolis—1934.

Thumbing through his year book, they found no King or any other name beginning with "K". O'Kane was the closest approach.

the rambler

by Jack E. Brady

In visiting the various communities throughout Eastland County, it is found that esteem for the useful, progressive citizens, is County-wide; it is also noted that the condemnation of the "hinderer" of progress, is general in all sections of the County. . . . That individual who is of no service to his fellowman or his community, is "branded" by his lack of good deed toward humanity. Surely, one's failure to attempt doing something for the betterment of mankind is an example of a mis-spent life. . . .

Many of Eastland County's "old-timers" have requested "the rambler" to give some information regarding the County officials of the yester-years—As time permits, this column will give as much of such information as it is possible to compile. . . . For the benefit of Eastland County early-settlers, we wonder how many of them will be familiar with the names of the following, past Eastland County Judges. . . . J. H. Calhoun, Was County Judge from April 1876, until his resignation in October, 1877; A. Lawrence served as County Judge during 1877-1878; J. T. Hamons, 1878-1882; R. M. Black 1882-1886; J. T. Hammons, 1886-1888; W. G. Davenport, 1892-1894; G. W. Dakan, 1894-1896; B. F. Chastain, 1896-1898; G. W. Dakan, 1898-1900; J. R. Stubblefield, 1900-1902.

The ROMNEY community was first settled by A. J. Fembling and a Mr. Ballard, who were soon followed by E. J. Arnold, Dr. J. N. White and a Mr. Green, all from the state of West Virginia. During the disastrous drought of 1886 and '87, emigration stopped, but the natural advantages of the locality, held the first settlers and during the most trying period, P. N. B.

She's never gotten an Oscar, but Miss Josephine is one of Hollywood's veteran character actresses. The 41-year-old monkey, who made her screen debut in "What Price Glory" in 1922, is now appearing in her 100th film, "Ever the Beginning."

Danish Boy Shows How To Succeed

ALLIANCE, Neb. (UP)—Seven years ago, Bill Riis left a farm near Bornholm, Denmark, and migrated to Box Butte County, Neb., where he became a hired hand at the age of 16.

Today Riis owns 3,600 acres of land, rents another 1,000 acres, hires eight men who operate on a profit-sharing basis, is married and the father of an 11-year-old boy.

Bill spent his first year in the new country as a farmhand in western Nebraska, working for meager wages. The next year he worked for wages and an interest in the crop.

In 1935 he rented 560 acres of land. He borrowed money for implements and operating expenses. Despite drought years and low prices for crops, Bill managed to save. He started buying land.

Gradually he built up his holdings, six miles north of Alliance, and began hiring men to work on a profit-sharing basis. The men receive high wages, cows for milk, and potatoes. They also receive a bonus, depending upon the yield of wheat, potatoes, and other crops.

His 1947 crop consists of 1,000 acres of wheat, 400 acres of barley and 400 acres of potatoes. Operating costs for the year will be around $125,000. But the profit will be a lot more.

Jet Race Track of the Future

Automotive designers have planned a speedway for jet-propelled racers in Detroit, and they've even suggested a site 30 miles north of Detroit. Above is the artist's sketch of the $5,000,000, eight-square-mile speedway. Lanes are separated by walls so that drivers will be protected from hot and blinding jet exhausts from other racers.

XXXIII
SPRING came late the next year, and I was a little bored, with Bill busy even in the evenings. So when Flora wrote me that Annabelle actually was coming home on her long-delayed visit, I decided to go home too, leaving Bill to take his meals at the Faculty Club. It was an easy drive from Ithaca to Odessa, and I got there early enough to run over and have tea with Flora before Father got home.

Flora Louise and Theodora had tea with us, and little Amy and Sam Junior were brought down for my inspection.

After the children had been sent upstairs I asked about Annabelle. Was she as pretty as ever? Did she seem happy? Did she ever talk about Frank?

"She says he is well or working hard when anyone asks about him," Flora said, answering my last question first, "but she certainly never talks about him. I suppose she seems as happy as most of us. I don't know whether she's as pretty as she used to be or not, she's so changed. And her clothes! You wouldn't believe it, but Sister, who used always to be dressed if she had so much as a length of calico, is now a regular frump."

"That's hard to believe," I said. "I know. Let's go over and see her. You'll have to believe your own eyes."

Annabelle was turning into the front yard, on her way home from a walk, and I had time for a good appraisal of her clothes and appearance before she saw us. She wore a severely tailored suit of brown and white herringbone tweed, stout brown walking shoes, and loose, well-worn gloves, a brown knit scarf, and a brown felt hat that shaded her eyes, and she carried a practical stick. I almost laughed out loud. From her rain-proof hat, worn a little too far back, to her woolen stockings and stubby brogans, she was a Boston grande dame.

ANNABELLE was friendly, cordial, but somewhat aloof. This aloofness, I discovered, extended to her mother and twin sister. I could not say she was actually condescending to the three of us, but her manner certainly smacked of the duchess putting the tenantry at ease. In the present case the tenantry were far from easy. We sat on the edge of our chairs in the library, the old friendly library where the four of us, as equals, had had so many good times together, and answered the duchess' polite interrogations. Yes, Mrs. Tolliver had had a nice nap. Yes, Flora's children were all well, for a change. Yes, I enjoyed living in Ithaca. No, I had no trouble finding good maids, since I lived in a five-room cottage and did my own work. The duchess lifted an eyebrow as she took this in.

"Indeed? How interesting," she said kindly, as if it were quite beyond her experience actually to know anyone without maids.

Suddenly the mantel clock gave six whirring strokes. Before I could open my mouth to say I must go Annabelle rose majestically. I would forgive her, she knew, but she barely had time for a bath before she changed for dinner. I must give her love to my dear father. She hoped to see much of me. And did we still have that quaint but delightful Negress, Letty or Lizzy or something like that, who used to be so devoted to me? One so seldom found those faithful old servants any more. . . . I said that Leah was still taking care of Father.

Annabelle said, "Oh, yes, Leah, of course," as if she had entirely forgotten, and made a stately exit up the stairs.

ANNABELLE stayed two weeks. Flora gave a large reception in her honor, Father and I gave a dinner, and other affairs followed.

At luncheons and strictly feminine afternoon parties, we found out by persistent questioning that Annabelle's husband was well and very busy, that she was mistress of a 12-room house, with a cook, maid, and gardener, that her four stepchildren had been something of a handful at first, but now that the two oldest were at Groton, she managed very well, though she was at the moment without the French governess their father insisted the two younger boys must have to perfect their French.

Annabelle talked about the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which was attended weekly, and the superiority of Koussevitzky over all other conductors, including Toscanini, and about Art with a large A.

Often she did not bother to talk at all, but suffered our small-town chatter and gossip with a polite but superior indifference that made us want to spit at her.

I had never understood Annabelle very well. I understood her less after her visit. I understood her even less when Flora told me some months later in confidence that Annabelle had borrowed a thousand dollars from her mother and never paid it back, although she had promised to return it in a few months out of her house-keeping and dress allowances.

Annabelle told Mrs. Tolliver that she had spent extravagantly in laying out a new garden, and she didn't want her husband to find out about it.

Annabelle really took that thousand dollars and went abroad. All her mother ever got in return was a few postal cards and a collar of Maltese lace. Flora, in a fury, wrote Frank Hartwell about the thousand dollars, demanding that he repay it.

Frank wrote back what seemed a characteristic letter: "Dear Flora—Your mother's claim is just. It shall be paid. Sincerely yours, Frank Hartwell."

But perhaps characteristically, also, he never wrote again, and he never paid Mrs. Tolliver her money. We do not know, of course, what Annabelle told him.

Heartsease

by Elsie Glenn

Does Someone Have Faith In You?

It's a fabulous possession . . . the ability to cause others to have faith in you.

It means that there is something to you . . . something besides skin, and hair, and teeth, and eyes and ears . . . it means that the heart is performing its duty, not only to you, but to others.

I'm speaking of real faith . . . confidence . . . sustaining faith . . . trust . . . approval . . . it means that you're of some good to someone else . . . you aren't merely a parasite in this world.

Elliot Testifies

Elliot Roosevelt as he appeared on the witness stand before the Senate War-Investigating subcommittee in Washington. Elliot challenged the members to find any evidence that he influenced the late President Roosevelt in the awarding of war contracts to plane-maker Howard Hughes. (NEA Telephoto).

It means that someone else believes in you . . . in your integrity . . . it means that you're there when someone needs you. It means that you have something of the Rock of Gibraltar about you . . . something someone else can depend on and respect.

If no one has faith in you, it means you're a pretty lousy sort of guy. And it's sorta lonely being a lousy sort of guy.

There isn't any cut and dried receipt for causing others to have faith in you.

It's what you are . . . it's how much you give . . . it's how much you're willing to give away.

Victory Gardens Still Of Help

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Victory gardens encouraged during the war are still popular with steel workers here.

They are gardening on land set aside for the purpose by the Carnegie Illinois company during the war. Now they do it for a hobby and because of rising food costs.

The company still furnishes the eight-acre plot and five tons of fertilizer for the ground. In addition, it has the plots plowed and harrowed for the workers each spring.

A contest started during the war continues to flourish. U. S. savings bonds are issued to the three best gardens in the plots.

FAULTY VOTING BILL UPSETS CHICAGO'S ELECTION PLANS

By William Lovell
United Press Staff Correspondent
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP) — No one knows exactly how Illinois will elect its 26 representatives in Congress in 1948.

Discovery of a one-word drafting flaw in the congressional reapportionment act passed by the legislature June 17 put lawyers and politicians into a dither. As Gov. Dwight H. Green's administration moved for a speedy court test of the law, they foresaw these possibilities:

1. The state supreme court may throw out the entire law, ruling that the state must continue to elect one congressman-at-large and 25 congressmen from districts set up in 1901.

2. The court may uphold the whole law. Then the state could proceed to elect its members of the House of Representatives from 26 new districts, eliminating the congressman-at-large post.

3. The court may rule that the only constitutional part of the new law is the section repealing the reapportionment act of 1901. In that case, some lawyers said, all 26 congressmen might have to be elected by all of the state's voters, instead of one being elected in each district.

The outcome of the court test will determine whether the Cook County metropolitan area, including Chicago, will gain the three new congressional seats awarded it by the new law. The law gives 13 districts to Cook and Lake Counties and 13 to the state's other 100 counties.

Although the Democrats have their main Illinois strength in Cook County, political effects of the new law—if it is upheld—are uncertain. The Republicans who drew the law and pushed it through the legislature said frankly that it was not designed to give aid and comfort to their political enemies.

Green signed the redistricting bill despite the opinion of Attorney General George F. Barrett that the drafting flaw made it unconstitutional. The governor said inclusion of the words "village of Stickney" instead of "township of Stickney" in the description of the new fifth district was a "minor technical error."

A literal interpretation of that section of the law would mean that voters in the Cook County township of Stickney, except for those in Stickney village, were in no congressional district and therefore disenfranchised.

The governor announced that a "friendly suit" would be filed in a lower court with the hope that it could be advanced to the supreme court in time for a decision before the primaries next April.

If the law is thrown out, reapportionment backers will have to begin a 32-year-old battle all over again. They have fought in the courts and in the legislature since 1915 for redrawing Illinois' congressional districts. With Greek's backing, they beat down a week-long filibuster by reapportionment foes to pass the law this session.

Negro Asks For New Draft Card

BRYAN, Tex. (UP) — The Second World War is over, but the Selective Service Act is dead, but one Woodrow Wilson of Corpus Christi isn't taking any chances.

The careful negro recently wrote to Travis B. Bryan, onetime chairman of the Bryan Selective Service Board with this request, "Will you please send me a new registration card. I have wore this one out. My age is 30. My weight is 222 pounds."

Ex-chairman Bryan replied, "Woodrow, you don't need a new card. The Selective Service Act has expired, the office is closed, and I have been released from duty."

"In fact, Woodrow, the draft act is as dead as the former president of the United States, whose name you bear. Just forget about the draft, the registration card, and consider it ancient history. You seem to be holding your weight even though you are 30 years old."

Pasteurized Milk So Much Slop Georgia Rebels Claim In Court

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP) — Pasteurized milk is generally accepted as wholesome and healthy in most parts of the country, but Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder says a lot of it is "slop."

"It has 24,000,000 dead bacteria to the level teaspoon," says Linder, "and that's enough to kill anybody who drinks it."

Some Georgians were inclined to agree with Linder.

His outburst against supposedly innocuous pasteurized milk wasn't considered as fantastic as his recent book in which the dignified commissioner prophesied the coming of the millennium in 2008 A.D. a conclusion researched through Biblical numerology.

There was no numerology involved in a recent injunction granted by an Atlanta court which prevented enforcement of a new city ordinance requiring all milk sold in the city to be pasteurized.

Linder was one of the most vociferous supporters of the injunction which was granted to Frank H. Neely, a wealthy Atlanta department store executive. Neely believed Atlantans, including himself, shouldn't have to buy pasteurized milk if they preferred raw milk.

Neely's suit resulted in the injunction and in Linder's blast at pasteurization methods in Georgia.

Linder said his fight wasn't against pasteurization, but against "selling slop in grade A milk bottles." He contended that was exactly what would be allowed under the Atlanta ordinance.

He said "pasteurization" did not remove bacteria. "It merely kills it." He added that the dead bacteria would rot.

The state milk control board stood off in a neutral corner and said nothing. W. W. Lively, chairman of the board explained, "I don't think we would consider it our business."

Dr. James F. Hackney, head of the Atlanta health department, refused to be so passive. He countered that "dead bacteria are not dangerous to anyone."

Atlanta's neighbors in DeKalb county watched the feud and fussed "and with interest. They were stinging under a pasteurization ordinance that went into effect July 15.

A DeKalb supporter of the pasteurization edict, health commissioner J. R. Evans admitted the ordinance would not be strictly enforced at least until dairies in the county obtained pasteurization equipment.

Several dairymen argued that pasteurized milk didn't have the flavor of raw milk.

They hinted that there might be some bootlegging.

In the last 10 months of 1946-47, $160,000 worth of show dogs left Britain, more than half of them to American breeders and exhibitors.

Col. W. H. Bright introduced the equal suffrage bill in the first territorial legislature in Wyoming in 1869.
