Trade Peace In Europe Is Predicted

That Reminds Me - By FRANK R. JONES

According to Neil Day, president of the Eastland Quarterback Club, that organization has completed plans for sponsoring the erection on Maverick Field of a two story building, the upper story to be used as clubrooms for the Quarterback Club and the lower floor for shower baths for the football boys and rest rooms for men and women.

Every few days we read in the news that a will made by the owner of an estate has been changed or disregarded altogether for one reason or another.

However high a young persons grades are in school they get more education the first year they get out into the world on their own than they did in any three years in school.

Though in this country we have plenty, we live in a hungry world. Most of the people in the world today have less than enough to eat.

Spanish should be taught in the schools of the country instead of the dead languages. Our new ties with the South American countries where Spanish is spoken will make it necessary for Americans who do business with South American countries or who hold positions in South American firms to speak the language of the land—Spanish.

A woman reader called in to ask why we didn't do something about the epidemic of mosquitoes that have been pestering local residents recently. We have. We have batted the heck out of everyone we have been able to get a chance at. But it seems that where we killed one there was a dozen others to take its place.

How To Prevent Fire

CARELESS SMOKERS are a principal cause of fires. Have plenty of ash trays. Never discard a burning butt and make sure a butt crushed in ash tray is really dead. And never, never smoke in bed!

Mrs. H. G. Vermillion, yearbook chairman, presented the yearbooks to the club. Her committee included Mrs. W. D. R. Owen, Mrs. Frank Crowell, and Mrs. Hollis Bennett. The yearbook is unique this year in that it contains a poem entitled "The Floral Artist", written especially for the Civic League and Garden Club by Mrs. Maifred Hale Cullen, and that the cover was drawn especially for this poem and has the same title.

Nazarene Church Enters Fortieth Year October 12

On October 12 the Church of the Nazarene located at West Main at Connelley will join in a denomination-wide emphasis known as Renewal of Covenant Sunday. The following day, October 13, marks the beginning of the 40th year for the Church of the Nazarene as an organized Protestant denomination.

It was on October 13, 1908, at Pilot Point, Texas that a small group of ministers and laymen met to consummate the union of several groups of people from the East, the West, and the South sections of the United States. The guiding genius in bringing about this church union was Dr. Phineas F. Breese, then pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene in Los Angeles, California, and who was one of the three General Superintendents elected at this gathering to head the church.

From this small group numbering only 10,000 members scattered in 228 churches, the Church of the Nazarene begins its 40th year with nearly 3,500 established churches in the United States, Canada and the British Isles, and well over 200,000 members. The denomination is operating mission stations in twenty-three world areas with approximately 200 missionaries and 1,000 native workers.

Six major colleges are supported by the Church of the Nazarene in the United States, one in Canada, and one in the British Isles. The Nazarene Theological Seminary has recently been established in Kansas City, Missouri, international headquarters for the church, where graduate training is given ministers and missionaries leading to the Bachelor of Divinity degree.

During the period since its founding, the total property valuation has increased from $500,000 to $30,500,000 at the close of 1946. For a number of years the Church of the Nazarene has led all other denominations, reporting to the United Stewardship Council, in per capita giving for all purposes. In 1946 that amount was $82.33 per capita.

"Showers of Blessings" is the radio program sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene and heard each week over 115 stations, and by short wave around the world.

Report On Flood Damage In Area Sent Wahington

FORT WORTH, Oct. 9.—Flood damage in the watershed of the Little River, tributary of the Brazos, averages $7,421,000 a year.

This was reported today by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service after completion of a flood control survey of the five million-acre watershed a 200-mile-long rectangular area with corners at Ranger, Cisco, Taylor and Cameron. Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service, said that a report based on the survey would be submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture. If approved, the report will go to Congress which will decide whether funds should be appropriated for flood control work, Merrill explained.

Agricultural property suffers 98 per cent of the total damage, the survey disclosed. Ninety-three per cent of the agricultural damage is done to crops and averages $6,595,000 a year. Floods wash out crops of cotton, corn, grain sorghums and small grains while they are growing and damage harvested crops still on the field. Other agricultural damage averages $328,000, this including damage to fences and farm buildings and injury to livestock. Damage to roads, bridges and public utility property averages $149,000 annually, scouring of bottomland fields, $305,000, and silting of bottomland, $25,000, according to the survey. No attempt was made to put a dollar value of the large volume of topsoil washed away every year by floods.

The average annual damage figures were broken down for the streams of the watershed as follows:

Upper Leon River (Ranger, Comanche, Eastland, DeLeon, Cisco, Dublin area), $678,000; South Leon (Comanche), $110,000; Lower Leon (Hamilton, Gatesville, Belton), $1,331,000; Cowhouse (Belton, Gatesville), $277,000; Lampasas (Lometa, Lampasas), $479,000; San Gabriel (Georgetown, Taylor), $475,000; Elm (Temple), $993,000; Brushy (Taylor, Roundrock), $1,794,000; and Little River (Holland, Cameron, Rockdale, Temple), $1,282,000.

Farmers were the major source of the facts on flood damage, Merrill said.

Begun in 142 and interrupted by the war, the flood control survey was resumed in September 1946. It was undertaken to find out whether intensive treatment of agricultural land to aid in flood control would be economically sound, Merrill stated. Congress, he added, will determine that point.

The Little River has a long record of damaging floods. The most disastrous occurred in September, 1921, when a day's deluge of 23 inches caused a flood that took the lives of 164 persons and caused property and land damage estimated at $12,640,000.

For more than two years Eastland county citizens headed by Fred Brown of Eastland have been working on securing flood control for the Upper Leon watershed, the main objective construction of dams to erase the damage from floods along the river, and at the same time furnish a water supply for several towns, including Ranger and Eastland.

JEWS REFUSE SETTLEMENT SUGGESTIONS

LAKE SUCCESS — Jewish spokesmen today denounced as "delayed tactics" suggestions that the Zionists and the Arabs try again to reach an agreement on Palestine outside the United Nations.

They pointed out that time and again during the last 10 years a settlement of the Holy Land problem has been sought in such negotiations and that the whole issue was tossed into the United Nations when the last attempt under British auspices failed in London.

There appears to be an overwhelming majority of the Assembly in favor of partition of Palestine between Jews and Arabs. But there is likewise almost unanimous agreement that such a decision would have to be imposed by force.

Thus, the major question is "who will bell the cat?"

Now that Britain has announced its intention to withdraw from Palestine, no other nation wants to take on those onerous duties.

The United States, meanwhile, facing at best only an indecisive vote, pressed the assembly for a verdict of "guilty of aggression" against Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Joe Kuhel, veteran former first baseman of the Washington Senators, today was named new manager of the club.

OBSTACLE NOT POLITICAL; IS CAUSED BY SHORTAGES

WASHINGTON— Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton said today he believed a resumption of trade between Russian-dominated eastern Europe and the countries of western Europe was logical and inevitable.

Regardless of political considerations and Soviet Russia's attitude, Clayton told a news conference he believed there could be no economic barrier between eastern Europe and the nations of western Europe.

It was Clayton's first news conference since returning from Europe, where he spent five months studying economic problems. He said there was very little surplus of food and raw materials in eastern Europe at present but he was confident that there would be surpluses in the future.

Asked whether he thought this lack of goods in eastern Europe was the chief obstacle to trade between the east and west at present, Clayton replied he thought it was. He did not think the chief obstacle was political. Clayton said the economies of eastern and western Europe are complimentary. He said the surpluses of the east were needed in the west and that the finished products of the western portion were needed in the east. He added that the only thing which might stop this flow of goods would be a cessation of production. In this connection, he said he believed Russia would use surpluses of food and raw materials for exports and imports of manufactured goods to raise her standard of living.

Clayton reviewed the course of trade negotiations at Geneva and expressed the belief that they would be generally successful in world trade barriers.

Nationally Noted Mason Herefords In Oct. 23 Event

MASON.— Mason County, when more deer and Hereford roams per acre than anywhere else in the nation, is approaching its "big" season" again—Hereford selling and deer hunting.

Because of its reputation for breeding fine Herefords and producing steers that win at the shows throughout the country, the announced sale date for this fall, Oct. 23, becomes a heavily-penciled date on the Texas cattle calendar.

Mason County steers have been champions at Fort Worth 11 times at Houston eight times, at San Angelo nine times, at Amarillo five times, at Kansas City three times, at Chicago International once and at San Francisco once.

County Agent E. S. Hyman, who is secretary of the Mason County Hereford Breeder's Association, believes the steer record is unequalled anywhere in the nation.

Consigners to the Oct 23 auction are the following Mason County breeders: Frank E. Jordan, August Jordan, Clarence Kothmann, Leonard Kothmann, Ernest Pries, August Willmann, C. E. Jordan, J. D. Jordan, Silas Kothmann, Adolph Kothmann, Francis Kothmann, Benn Kidd, Max and Lon Plueneke. Other members are: M. E. Grote, Perry Pries and E. W. Kothmann.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Members of Congress, U. S. State Department experts and Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman's Committee of 19 are all set to view with an extremely fishy eye the 19- to 22-billion-dollar Marshall Plan estimates dreamed up by the 16 western European nations' financial planners at the Paris conference.

The official summary cabled to Washington told almost nothing except the dollar totals on the estimated balance of trade deficits for the next four years. These dollar totals don't mean a thing, and it is unfair to try to judge how the Marshall Plan will work out on this basis alone. What's needed is a specific breakdown by commodities and by countries.

Full text of the Paris report, with all its supplements, gives more of this detail. But, before this business is over, it may be necessary to bring to Washington some of these teams of European fuel, manufacturing, transportation and food experts to explain how they arrived at their totals and to justify them.

For, out of the $3.75 billion loan to Britain, some valuable though costly lessons on postwar aid have been learned. Strange as it may seem, it is today impossible to get, from either British or American sources, any accurate breakdown on how the $3.55 billion of that loan, withdrawn thus far, has been spent.

Most complete report to date was in Hugh Dalton's speech to Parliament on Aug. 7, but even that didn't add up by $125 million.

BRITISH officials in Washington say that, of course, they have better figures, but nothing can be given out until they are reported to Parliament at the end of October. U. S. State Department and Commerce officials say that, of course, they have better figures, but they were received confidentially from the British. And it wouldn't be cricket to put them out ahead of London. The good old American taxpayer will just have to wait, if he wants to know how his money was spent on this project.

In the full exercise of their hindsight, American officials now see some of their mistakes—a lot of little ones, but two big ones. First, the money was turned over to the British on demand, with no controls, either British or American, on how it was to be spent. Second, the British had no advance plan for its spending—so many dollars for this and so many for that.

The whole $3 billion plus was simply dumped into the British Treasury, with normal receipts from taxes or other sources of revenue. And it was drawn on, as needed, for whatever was required at the time. That's why it is so hard to give any accurate idea of how the loan was spent. It was simply used to pay deficits as they arose.

As a result, it is possible to say that the American taxpayers' loan to Britain went to pay for things like these:

To the American authors of "Forever Amber," for royalties on the sale of her book in England; to U. S. movie moguls in Hollywood, for profits on films shown in British theaters; to American tobacco growers, for cigarettes that went up in smoke in England; to the Argentine government, which profited on the sale of foodstuffs needed to keep the British people from starving; to the Germans, who got the benefit from American food shipped to the British zone of occupation in Germany.

And so on. Not all of the loan was wasted in this way. Only a small part of it.

But what it demonstrates is that in granting new credits to Europe under the Marshall Plan, it will not be enough to grant the 16 western European countries loans to finance their estimated $16 billion trade deficits in the United States as they see fit.

There should be first, a clear understanding of why every dollar is wanted and for what. And, second, there will have to be some hard-headed supervision of expenditures.

If the Harriman Committee of 19 recommends anything else, it will be falling down on its job.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seibert
Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Andrew takes out his anger on the head nurse, who tells him he is engaged to her. Andrew is determined to get himself out of the hospital before this happens.

NANCY had once told Andrew that Sunday afternoon was, by custom, open house in the Glenn home, and he was privileged to drop in whenever he liked; the inference being that she hoped he would do so often. So that Sunday afternoon, one of a chill wind, and skies grown heavy with clouds, he climbed the winding path and steps which led to the Glenn front door and rang the bell.

Jerry, whose leg was almost all right again, opened the door for him, yelling at Mac to get down! "How are you, Jerry?" Andrew said cordially, going in, laying a flat package upon the table, and smoothing his hair with his big hand.

Jerry led the way to the fire-lit living room where he seemed to be alone. Books were open about a deep white chair. "Histology," he explained wryly.

Andrew sank into the cushions of the soft couch. He reached for one of Jerry's thick books, turned the pages curiously. He lifted a quizzical eyebrow, drew down his placid mouth in mock dismay. "I'm glad I'm not boning this stuff," he told the young man.

Jerry ran a distracted hand through his light hair. "Boning is just what I have to do," he admitted. "There are times when I'm pretty sure I'll never turn into a born doctor."

"What are you studying medicine for, if you've that notion?" Jerry shrugged. "Oh-h, I've had medicine ahead of me ever since I can remember. I suppose it is because Doc's a surgeon, and—this may sound soft—but to me

"That, my dear, is what I mean. You're too open, too frank, in your adoration of him. Ask your brother; he'll tell you it isn't clever for a girl to let a man be too sure of his own power."

"Quite serious," he assured her. "Attractive as your young Lieutenant is, and as great a matrimonial catch as he must be, you should be more subtle, my dear." Andrew chuckled. "You may not be a jilt yourself, but you must know how deadly a jilt can be."

Nikki drew back in horror. "I wouldn't be one!" she cried. "You don't need to be one. All that's necessary is to be a probable one. The sort of woman a man can't be sure of, an exciting sort of girl who must be courted, won and kept, one always in danger of slipping away from the man. Try to be subtle with your Brian, Nikki. He'll be a lot happier—take my word for it!"

She bit at the end of a red-tipped finger. "Subtle," she repeated. Then she looked up brightly. "I'm sort of dumb," she confessed.

"Who's calling my child dumb?" Nancy's voice preceded her through the dining room and study. She had come into the house from the back door.

Andrew got swiftly to his feet, went to meet her, both hands outstretched. "Ah," he cried, "the lady of the house!"

"Are you selling vacuum cleaners?" Nancy laughed, dragging down upon the flowered love-seat, Andrew sitting beside her.

"No," he said deeply, "but I did come to see you."

"Have'n't the children done right by you?" "Very right. You're still the lady of the house, and I'm glad you've come home."

Nancy's cheeks were pink. It was flattering to have him turn his attention so obviously from Nikki to her, to be so very glad to see her.

Hurricanes Too Strong To Bust, Expert Says

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A veteran meteorologist doesn't give the Army Air Forces or any other "hurricane-bustin'" force even an outside chance to break up a major blow at sea.

Dr. Isaac Monrie Cline, who for 25 years was the chief U. S. forecaster at New Orleans said a first class hurricane was too big to freeze with dry ice. Cline, author of "Tropical Cyclones," said he didn't believe moisture could be precipitated by sowing dry ice to break up a storm "because the area is too big, often 15,000 square miles."

Cline said that unless the entire area feeding the storm could be coped with the hurricane would be potent.

9 YEARS AGO TODAY FROM FILES OF THE DAILY TELEGRAM OF OCT. 9, 1928:

The real estate and brick store building at 308 West Main Street occupied for the past several years by Knight & Ladd, printers, has been bought by Moldave & Wolf from Ed Parsons et al. Wolf stated this morning that as soon as possession of the building was obtained the building would be renovated and possibly be occupied by a Clarence Saunders Store. He stated also that the building occupied by the Blue Ribbon Bakery was not been rented but that the one occupied by the J. H. Harrison grocery had been leased to the Murray Drug Store.

A splendid well was drilled in last night in the Gordon pool northwest of Eastland by the Bell Oil Company of Eastland. The well is on the Good & Beggs lease of about 285 barrels of oil and is making 2,000,000 feet of gas from the Bond sand.

Two Eastland county boys launched the Eastland County football spirit against the University of Indiana Saturday when they played the whole game with the University of Oklahoma, which Indians won 10 to 7. Buster Mills, pride of Ranger, played the entire game at fullback, while Bobby Garrett, former Eastland high school star, and winner of a numeral at Texas University in 1926, played the game at right tackle.

Oil operators are watching with interest the deep test well being set down on the Bothers Ranch, between Strawn and Wink City, by John M. Gholson and H. D. Conway of Ranger. It is being drilled by Gholson and Disney of Anger, and is miles from the nearest production.

Ex Governor Of Michigan Gives Park To Georgia

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP) — Former Gov. Chase S. Osborn of Michigan has deeded his 15-acre winter estate in Worth County to Georgia for use as a state park. The property, known as Possum Poke, in Possum Lane, was offered to Gov. M. E. Thompson with two strings attached:

(1) Osborn reserved a life right to the estate, where he has been spending his winters for many years, for himself and his daughter, Stella Burnt Osborn. (2) He said he wanted "to extend to two Afro-Americans, Ethel Lee Rhymes and Lula Mae Tolbert," the right to live in their present quarters there as long as they wished.

Truman Tells of Budget Trims

President Truman reports the U.S. budget for fiscal 1948 now has expenditures down half-a-billion and receipts up four billion over last January's original estimates. This means we'll have a $4.7 billion surplus this year if all goes well between now and July 1, 1948. Chart compares current budget with original estimates and previous years' expenditures.

Ocean Tossed Canteen Comes Home to America

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UP)—It's a big ocean but a mighty small world.

When Cpl. William G. Akanry tossed his army canteen, containing a slip of paper with his address on it, overboard from the deck of a Europe-bound transport, he didn't think he'd ever hear of it again.

But he just had an idea to try it that night, April 27, 1944. And more than three years later, Aug. 10, 1947, Curtis Hamm, port agent for the National Maritime union here, picked the bar-nacled object from among a pile of driftwood on the beach.

Hamm wrote to Akanry at his address in Ohio and received an answer mailed at an army post office in Germany. The corporal said the transport ship was about 1,000 miles east of the Bahamas when he threw the canteen in the ocean.

The bill showed up three days later in city hall in a tax payment. Assistant Treasurer Howard Scott gave Joe his bill back.

DRIVE ON TO FIND JOBS FOR 500,000 DISABLED

By Robert C. Goodwin
Director, U. S. Employment Service

(Written for the United Press)

WASHINGTON (UP)—Finding jobs for 500,000 disabled veterans and handicapped civilians now seeking gainful employment is the sober challenge confronting the American people this week as the nation holds the third annual observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week.

One out of four of the 500,000 handicapped workers seeking jobs is a disabled veteran of World War II. The balance are civilians injured by accidents or diseases or persons born with physical defects.

The problem of finding jobs for the handicapped is not new. It is only bigger. Swollen by war casualties, the ranks of the nation's handicapped are greater today than ever before in its history. It is estimated that there are 6,000,000 persons with physical defects in the nation's civilian labor force. Another 1,000,000 disabled potential workers are outside labor force because they need to be physically rehabilitated before they are ready to enter the job market.

It was to meet this challenge of large numbers of disabled veterans and handicapped civilians unemployed at a time of high national employment that the President on Aug. 27, issued a proclamation calling upon all governors of states, mayors of cities and heads of labor, employer, women's service, professional, civic and community organizations and groups to unite behind a nationwide sustained program to improve job opportunities for the handicapped.

The response to this proclamation was prompt and enthusiastic. I am happy to say that this year's National Employ the Physically Handicapped program promises to be the greatest and most intensive ever undertaken in the interest of promoting jobs and physical rehabilitation for handicapped workers.

The governors of the states have issued proclamations rallying all citizens back of the week program. Thousands of mayors of cities likewise have issued proclamations. More than 40 states have appointed special state-wide committees who are directing and co-ordinating NEPH Week activities. All local employment offices at the state employment services are conducting special job placement campaigns for handicapped workers.

This year leading employer, labor, women's, professional, service and professional organizations are participating in the program through a special National Employ the Handicapped Week Committee established by Secretary of Labor L. B. Schwelb at the request of the President. Included on this committee are representatives of the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, the National Association of Manufacturers, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the presidents of the Civitan, Rotary, Lions, and Kiwanis clubs, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans.

In thousands of communities local representatives of these organizations are co-operating with the local public employment offices in National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week programs.

A major goal of this year's campaign is full employer acceptance of the proved fact that handicapped workers make desirable productive and safe employees. To attain this goal, all campaigns are directed toward effecting the fullest public understanding not only of the job problem of the handicapped but their worth as employees when placed in jobs they can do.

Every effort is being made through localized employment service campaigns to reduce the backlog of unemployed handicapped job seekers. Handicapped workers are being urged to list their job applications with local employment offices. Employers are being asked to survey their establishments in search for job openings discovered with local employment offices.

The theme of this year's campaign is "Ability, Not Disability, Counts." This theme is based not upon guesswork but upon proved facts. The war demonstrated that handicapped workers are productive workers. Frequent official surveys compared the work of the disabled with the able bodied on the job. These proved conclusively that the handicapped are just as good and as safe and as desirable workers as the able-bodied.

It is sobering to realize that even during a period of record-breaking employment, the nation's employers have not been able to absorb all the nation's handicapped workers. It immediately raises the question of how the handicapped will fare in event of a business recession, even a minor one. Past experience indicates that in event of an increase in employment, the handicapped would be the most adversely affected of any group in the civilian labor force. Certainly, unemployed handicapped workers would face even greater competition for available jobs than is the case at present.

Remember they told us consumers that if the government would just remove the controls we would have lots of houses for the veterans and plenty of meat and an abundance of new cars and of course the newspapers would have all the paper they needed—also that prices would level off?

Hans Christian Anderson isn't the only one who could make up fairy tales.

At the recent Palo Pinto County old settlers' reunion, I met Sam Savage, who, when a boy, was carried off by the Indians and lived with them about a year before being freed.

Also at the reunion was Gib Abernathy, veteran peace officer. One day, while I was a reporter on the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Abernathy was a Texas Ranger, he walked into the office and asked for me. Told it would be several hours before I reported for duty, he declined all efforts to get him to talk but just said, "Tell Boyce to get in touch with me." I did—and obtained a "scoop", in fact a double one. A hermit who lived in a tent had been murdered and Gib not only told me about that but he also had the slayer under arrest—a quick cleanup of a mystery.

"Babe" Wins First Match

After winning the medal for qualifying at River Crest Country Club, Fort Worth, Texas, Mrs. "Babe" Zaharias, who has just turned pro, defeated Mrs. George Noble, Dallas, her first victim, to win the first match in the Texas Women's Open. Mrs. Zaharias won the medal with a 72. (NEA Telephoto).

It's time that some of the old sayings which are foolish were exposed—for example, "What you don't know won't hurt you." It ain't so. If there was a fire and you grabbed up a bucket to throw the contents on the flames, you not knowing that it held gasoline, would there be an explosion? If a gun was loaded and you didn't know it and you pointed it at yourself and pulled the trigger, would it hurt you? All you have to do is read the papers and you'll see what "unloaded" guns do. The truth is pretty much the opposite of the old saying—when you know, you are on your guard against danger. Frequently, it's what you don't know that does hurt you.

"I'd rather know a little less than to know so much that ain't so."

Claims Seaweed Has Bacteria Killing Quality

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Edwin F. Murphy, an industrial chemist, has been making some experiments with seaweed solutions which he believes have pushed him beyond the frontiers of present day science.

Murphy, an expert on colloids (anything that jells) has worked for years with seaweed, and with marked results.

For example, he says he has partially conquered the chigger with a seaweed lequid and a seagreen. Several years ago he found that seaweeds when jelled with certain alkalis, developed violent destructive elements.

These radicals with the use reagents, could be controlled without losing strength. The "chigger" solution literally sucked out poison from the bite of the insect without harming the wounded tissue.

While conducting research at the University of Illinois, Murphy innovated a method of using seaweed solution to bind the ingredients of ice cream so that moisture would not freeze when the cream is frozen.

Then he performed some bacteriological experiments with "frightening" result. He said, "I neutralized on glass several types of virus and pathogenic bacteria with a solution of seaweed. The seaweed was treated with an alkali to activate the sell.

"Some other chemicals in sufficient concentration will do the same thing. The only difference is that seaweed solutions are absolutely harmless and neutral".

Murphy said he believes that as an industrial chemist he beyond his scientific depth in his latest seaweed experiments.

I know what I've done has been in a superficial way," he said. "But I think seaweed, with its unsurpassed affinity for organic matter, has the power to destroy any type of virus or pathogenic bacteria."

Lemons Can Grow in Iowa, Too

CEDAR FALLS, Ia. —A. J. Krough, veteran barber here, isn't worried about an early frost. Krough harvested his annual crop of lemons—two this year—from a two-foot tree in a large garden not in his shop.

The biggest lemon, which weighed 2 1/2 pounds and measured 1 1/4 inches in circumference, he harvested when the tree would no longer bear its weight. It now keeps it on display in a jar of formaldehyde. The other which grew to 18 ounces, was picked off accidentally.

The barber attributed the remarkable size of his fruit to "the best mineral plant food that I fed the tree."

1536 Bottles Of Scotch Whiskey Taken On Border

EL PASO, Tex. (UP) — Oh for the price of a drink!

Mexican customs officials in Juarez, across the river from this border city, announced confiscation of 1,536 bottles of Scotch whiskey, which, in reverse of the procedure of prohibition days, had come from the U. S.

The liquor, contrary to which to Mexico was a legal recently by the Mexican government's entertainment on all luxury items, was calculated to sell for about $15,000 on the black market.

Make a Note OF THESE Lightening Tips

For bright and cheerful living in your home, you need plenty of the right kind of light. Floor lamps, table lamps, decorative lamps and all sizes and types of lamp bulbs are available now—see your electrical dealer.

These timely suggestions will help you have better light:

1. Clean your new lamp bowls and lamp bulbs frequently. You'll get 25 to 30 per cent more light.
2. Select lamps with white shades or shades with white linings. Repair them or relace them when they become soiled. Dark shades waste light.
3. Sit close enough to the lamp to get all the help it can give your eyes. A difference of a few inches may mean 50 per cent less light.
4. Avoid direct glare from lamp bulbs or bowl by using shades that are deep enough and big enough.
5. Arrange lamps and furniture so each lamp can serve two or more people, if possible.
6. Place each lamp so it puts no glare in the eyes of persons using it.
