Britain Wants Modified Little Assembly

That Reminds Me
BY FRANK A. JONES

From the interest being taken in the Ballinger - Eastland football game due tonight at Maverick Field, Eastland, there will be a capacity crowd present when play starts. Officials stated that many tickets have been sold to parties calling over long distance telephone.

You doubtless have received them—blank forms printed on postcards on which return postage was paid stating that if you would fill out the form, sign it and return it to the sender they would promptly send you a pencil or some such item. We received one, filled it out because we were really interested in an insurance policy. Sometime later when we were busily engaged on the job a salesman breezed in with our card and a proposition. We kept waiting for him to tender us the pencil, but it seems he forgot about that as he said nothing about it then or later. We forgot to consider his proposition, too, because we felt that if he would misrepresent so small a matter as that of a cheap pencil, we couldn't trust him on an insurance policy.

There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him; but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man—Mark 7:15.

Ice cream manufacturers predict that Americans will consume 21 quarts of ice cream per person next year. If this mark is reached the manufacturers of ice cream will rank among the billion dollar industries of the country. No country in the world approaches the United States in the matter of per capita consumption of ice cream.

To Sing In Eastland

Mona Paulee

MONA PAULEE TO APPEAR IN EASTLAND MONDAY

Unique in the staid history of Metropolitan Opera is Mona Paulee, a girl who made her way up through vaudeville and the five-a-week and is still doing the unconventional—this season by criticizing via plane!

Unlike most singers, Mona, who will appear in Eastland on Monday, October 20 at the high school auditorium at 8:15 p. m., was not a child prodigy. Her father managed a theatre in Portland, Oregon which featured community singing led by an organist with slides. Mona will spend her spare time singing from the pit in the darkness. Finally she won $10 at an amateur contest in a rival theatre with a song entitled "Reaching For The Moon." And she's been reaching ever since.

By working from 3 a. m. to 8 a. m. wrapping bread in a bakery, she paid for her first music lessons. Later, the serious lessons came out of her salary as a vaudeville and night club entertainer.

It was in a night club that she first met her husband, Dean Holt, then a bandleader and recently a Captain in the Air Transport Command. In the coming air-concert-tour which will cover the United States and Canada, Dean will accompany her—both as pilot and pianist.

In 1936 Mona was engaged by the San Francisco Opera Company understudy principals. Realizing where she sang minor roles and the need for a sounder musical foundation if she were to rise in the operatic field, within a year she had left for Los Angeles and serious study under John Patton, noted California voice teacher.

And in the fall of 1940 she finally headed for New York, bound to win the "Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air"—which she did, though not before collapsing on the audition stage with a terrific case of bronchial pneumonia.

McGraw NAMED PRESIDENT OF LOCAL C. OF C.

At a recent meeting of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce board of directors L. E. McGraw was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce, succeeding Fred Brown. John Turner was elected first vice-president; Theo Lamb second vice-president and H. J. Tanner, manager.

At a meeting of the directors last Tuesday night the new officers, who assumed office immediately upon their election, were extended a hearty welcome.

Jan Spalding Is Editor-In-Chief E-H-S Annual

Jan Spalding, it is announced, is to be editor-in-chief of "The Maverick", Eastland High school annual the contract for the printing of which has been let with delivery set for sometime in May.

Miss Spalding, popular high school student, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spalding. Last year she wrote high school news for the Eastland Chronicle under the heading of "On The Hill".

Eastland Rites For Butler Held; Body To Dallas

A change at the last moment in the plans for the transporting the body of Samuel Butler from Eastland to Westchester, Pa., made it necessary to take the body to Dallas and ship it from there by regular airline.

Sleeping Sickness Warning Issued To Texas Stockmen

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 16—A warning to stockmen about sleeping sickness among horses came from the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service this week.

JACKSON RESIGNS

John Jackson, member of the Eastland City Commission, resigned the position as of September 15, it was announced at a recent meeting of the commission. The commission probably will take no action towards holding a special election to fill the vacancy since Jackson's term would have expired in the spring. Jackson has moved away from Eastland.

Hotel Fire Smothered

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A general alarm fire broke out in the flue of the jam-packed 700-room Roosevelt Hotel here a few minutes before midnight last night but firemen kept the blaze isolated and put it out before anyone was injured.

VETS DEVISE PLANS TO PAY THEIR OWN WAY

DAYTON, O. (UP)—Time was that a man worked his way through college by washing dishes, waiting on table selling magazine subscriptions or doing other odd jobs.

The modern GI is changing that. He can use his war-time experiences as a background for more mature ventures.

Robert A. Harris is busy developing a unique sideline to supplement his monthly education check from the government. He and Narciso G. Santos of Manila, although separated by 9,000 miles, are business partners in the Manila-York Co., importers of fine oriental gift merchandise.

Harris, a former AAF captain, and Santos, a former lieutenant in the Philippine Air Force, both were pilot-weather officers in the 15th weather squadron in Manila. They conceived the idea of carrying their war-time friendship into a postwar importing venture.

"Actually," said Harris, "I got the idea for the business after buying my wife some souvenirs from the Orient. She was so pleased and thrilled with them, that I figured others in the States would like them, too."

Harris' only outlet to date is a jewelry store in the college town of Hamilton, N. Y., where the former captain is a junior at Colgate University. But he is looking for new markets.

Santos, an official of commercial airlines in the Philippines, obtains the gift merchandise during his Oriental travels and ships them to Harris.

52 TERRORISTS ARE EXECUTED

ATHENS—Fifty two persons convicted of sabotage and inciting terrorism were executed at Salonika today after their applications for clemency had been rejected.

An extraordinary court martial last month heard the case which led up to the mass execution. The 52 were accused of membership in an organization which allegedly plotted a revolution at Salonika and the assassination of government leaders.

State Completes Case In Trial Of Dr. Ross

LA GRANGE, Tex.—The state completed its case against Dr. Lloyd I. Ross, San Antonio physician on trial for murder, at 10:45 a.m. today.

Only two witnesses, San Antonio police officers who connected the doctor with the murder weapon, appeared.

District Judge J. R. Fuchs then ordered court recessed until 2 p.m. when the defense will call its first witness.

Chief defense counsel Fred Blundell declined to reveal whether Ross would be called to testify in his own defense, but the unanimous opinion among close followers of legal strategy here was that he would not.

Barbara Ann Hague Is Honored at NTSC

DENTON (Spl.)—Barbara Ann Hague, a freshman student at North Texas State College, has been elected freshman representative to the publications council at NTSC, it was announced this week.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hague, 217 South Oak, Miss Hague is majoring in English in NTSC.

CIO GIVES PRESIDENCY TO MURRAY

BOSTON—Philip Murray of Pittsburgh was reelected President of the CIO by acclamation today after a noisy 20-minute demonstration by 600 delegates to the CIO national convention.

Murray, who has headed the CIO since 1949 when John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, stepped out, was placed in nomination by Jacob Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Potofsky described Murray as "the greatest labor leader in America and the world."

Once when Potofsky referred to this "great man who has dedicated his life to the cause of labor," a lone voice shouted from the floor, "John L. Lewis."

As soon as Potofsky had finished, delegates began pounding tables, clapping and cheering and parading around the hall. After 20 minutes, the band which had been playing Annie Laurie brought a halt to the demonstration by playing the Star Spangled Banner.

Brewers Curb To Add Grain For Relief Pool

WASHINGTON—President Truman's food committee added 3,000,000 bushels of brewers grain to its foreign relief "pool" today—and said it shouldn't cost Americans many if any steins of beer.

After two days of negotiations, the brewers agreed to cut the use of corn 25 per cent, turn back to the government 200,000 bushels of wheat and rice, stop using feed barley and stop buying grain sorghums.

Aggies To Present Sweetheart

Sweetheart of the Texas Aggies, brunette, 19-year old Laura Sessions will be presented Saturday (Oct. 18) at the A&M-TCU football game in Fort Worth. A junior at Texas State College for Women, Miss Sessions is from Waxahachie. Traditionally the Sweetheart is a TSCW student and is presented at the annual A&M-TSCW Corps Trip.

Says American Farmers Ready To Feed Hungry

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C.—Chairman Clifford R. Hape, R.-Kans., of the House agricultural committee said today that American farmers are "ready to feed the starving people of the world without any quibbling over fine-spun legal and economic theories."

Hope, a veteran farm-bloc legislator from the nation's breadbasket, said he was "convinced that the majority of farmers will support any reasonable and progressive plan to feed Europe."

But, he added, the farmer wants one assurance—that Europeans will do everything possible to help themselves.

He said he believed the farm state legislators in Congress would vote favorably on the European aid program, but that it did not mean that they were committed to the Marshall Plan.

Jaycees Plan New Activities; Name Committees

Eastland Jaycees at their regular weekly meeting and luncheon Thursday at noon, discussed a number of projects for the club to work on. The matter of organizing a men's choir was further discussed and Homer Smith and Arthur Earnest were named as a committee to work out plans for carrying out the undertaking.

The members voted to have a softball game between fats and leans within a few days provided arrangements could be made for the use of "Firemen's Field."

Proceeds from such a game would go to the club's funds for the promotion of worthwhile projects for the town and community.

It was pointed out at Thursday's meeting that quarterly dues are payable now and those who have not remitted are reminded of the fact.

MAKES BITTER ATTACK ON ATTITUDE OF THE RUSSIANS

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y.—Great Britain proposed a middle-way version of the American "Little U.N. Assembly" plan today to give the world a "safety valve" for the growing tension between east and west.

Giving modified support to Secretary of State George C. Marshall's plan for a year-round meeting of the 57 United Nations, Sir Hartley Shawcross of Great Britain denounced Russia's vehement opposition to the idea as "an exciting excursion into the realm of phantasy."

In an impassioned plea for Soviet cooperation in the proposed "Little Assembly," Shawcross disavowed any western power plot to use the plan for an attack on the security council and the Big Five veto power.

Shawcross scoffed at Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei V. Vishinsky's attack on the American proposal. It was nothing, he said, but "a blood curdling picture of warmongers and Fascist beasts, gobling and ghosts engaged in some dark plot, some deep machination, to subjugate and set aside the UN charter."

"We really ought to try to get away, so far as we can, from these phantasies, these fears, these neuroses and try to picture international politics as something other than a perpetual struggle whereby one side tries to get the better of the other one."

Shawcross made a sweeping denial of any ulterior motives on the part of the United States in proposing the plan which would keep the 57 United Nations in session around the calendar for debates of problems blocked in the security council or submitted in advance for next year's session of the General Assembly.

He proposed for Great Britain, however, a modified version of the "Little Assembly" idea and emphasized that it would give the committee considerably more limited powers than that originally envisaged by the United States.

The British proposal would allow the committee to consider only 1, matters left for it by the current assembly session and 2, items proposed by UN countries for the 1948 assembly session.

Eastland Rites For Frank Dwyer To Be Sat. 2 P. M.

Services for Frank Dwyer, who died Wednesday, will be held at the Hamner Funeral Home Chapel in Eastland Saturday at 2:00 p.m. Rev. E. R. Gordon, pastor of the First Methodist church of Eastland will officiate. Interment, with Hamner's in charge, will be in the Eastland cemetery beside that of his son and only child who was killed in an airplane accident during the recent war. He was a trainer in the Air Corps.

Survivors include his wife, a brother, Jack Dwyer, and a sister.

Frank Dwyer was born in Bayonne, New Jersey, in April, 1895. He came to Eastland from West Virginia in 1919 and he made his home here, since, although he had worked at jobs in other states. Quiet and unassuming he was not a man to make friends readily, but when people learned to know him he was popular with them. He was known as a man who attended to his own business and never meddled with that of the other fellow.

ESCAPEE RECAPTURED

C. C. Dooley, who escaped from the Eastland county jail in August has been recaptured, the Eastland county sheriff's office has announced. Dooley, it was stated, was taken at Johnson City. He is facing charges here and reportedly at other places.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Increasing pressure is being exerted by advisers within the State Department to make the U. S. government's "Voice of America" foreign broadcast policy more aggressive.

Today, The Voice is pretty refined and gentlemanly. There is no checking up, no answering back when Radio Moscow, Warsaw or Belgrade fabricates some whopper about warmongering in the U. S. and expects the native listeners to believe it.

These radio tirades against the U. S. have been increasing in tempo since the end of the war. The Russian radio is, of course, the worst offender.

These radio tirades against the U. S. have been increasing in tempo since the end of the war. The Russian radio is, of course, the worst offender.

The Voice of America has never called this censorship but, in matter-of-fact manner, first told the Bulgarian people that their Peasant Party leader, Nikola Petkov, had been arrested on charges of plotting to overthrow the Communist-dominated government.

But, as the U. S. information services proved, it is possible to wage psychological warfare without distorting the truth. Ugly facts are convincing enough in themselves, without coloring.

With the end of the war, however, all ideas of carrying on psychological warfare were dropped from U. S. foreign policy. Peace was supposed to be at hand and the line was to quiet everybody down, not stir them up.

Dubious Congress cut appropriations, which eventually forced the government to turn much of the program over to the commercial broadcasting chains, to handle on a contract basis for the government.

ONE of the first complaints to be heard when that was done came from the American embassy in Athens, Greece. This was at the time when the Truman doctrine for Greece and Turkey was a highly controversial issue.

The State Department then shifted policy, so that the government transmitted its own programs to countries with which there were particular postwar problems.

But now a new phase of radio relations has arisen. As the volume of anti-American propaganda increases, there is a growing feeling that the U. S. should not sit back and take all this abuse without protest.

Congressmen who have been touring Europe during the summer may have something to say on this subject when they get back to Washington. One of their particular assignments has been to check up on how U. S. information services overseas.

Food Program, Women Have Bakers In A Quandry

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP)—The president's food program plus the housewife's temperament have the bakers here in a quandary.

Fort Worth bakers claim that Tarrant county hogs daily dine on good, fresh bread that would gladden the hearts of many a starving European or Asiatic.

The reason for all this waste, claim the bakers, is that it is impossible to guess when the housewife will decide to buy bread. If a sectional temperament strikes the ladies of the homes, out goes today's bread, for it can't be sold after it becomes slightly hard.

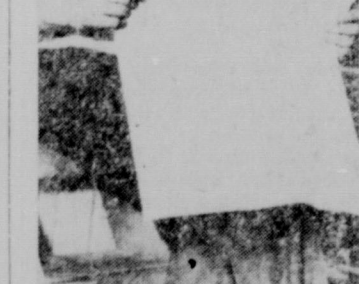

35-Cent Meal Making Profit

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Texas cafes and others in the nation can take a lesson in price controlling and low prices from Mrs. Ruth Wason, manager of the Austin YWCA cafeteria.

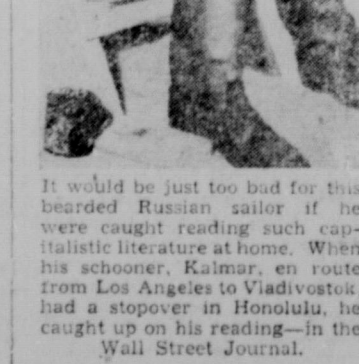

Although a 35-cent meal wouldn't have made news five or 10 years ago, today it is a different story.

Mrs. Wason said "the trick is careful buying and planning." She added "We're serving 35-cent meals at a profit. In September we cleared $159."

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION By Elizabeth Seifert

THE STORY: Woodward tells Malcolm he thinks he (Malcolm) is in the wrong job, that the strain of hospital work is too much for him and that his migraine makes him a dangerous surgeon.

MALCOLM gulped. "What are you going to do?"

"I don't need to tell her, or ask her. I don't believe she'd leave you." His dark face was bitter.

"That isn't right, Marty!" Martin's hand reached for the knob of the door. "You know well it isn't right!" he cried.

JERRY thought, "I'll bet I barge in on Doc just at the wrong minute." He really should have waited till he got home, but at home, there'd be Nanny, and the others to put in their two cents worth. The doctor of his was strictly between Doc and himself.

Still hobbling around with the help of a cane, he stumped through the hospital lobby, down the hall. At the office door, his father was talking to a departing patient.

Jerry stood aside until he had finished when, at Malcolm's nod, he went into the office.

"Sit down, Jerry. Is there something special on your mind?" Malcolm asked in an absent-minded tone.

Jerry marked out the pattern of the soft rug with the rubber ferrule of his cane. "It was something special, Doc," he said gruffly.

Malcolm sat down at his desk, took off his glasses. "Let's have it," he said, his tone kind.

Jerry's flat cheeks flushed. "Doc, I want to change over from the study of medicine to something else. There! It was out! Now he need just sit back and answer Doc's arguments.

He had not thought his father would look so stunned. As if Jerry had struck below the belt, "Doc, I—"

Malcolm rubbed his hand over his eyes. "This hits me pretty hard, Jerry. I had made some rather rosy plans for you and your professional career."

"I know, sir. I—it's just that I'm not sure I was meant to be a doctor. There are so many years of work ahead—and when you're not sure—why, I'd be too old to start anything else—"

"What else do you want to do?" Malcolm inquired.

"I'm not sure of that either—"

Jerry admitted unhappily. "Jerry," Malcolm said, "will you do one thing for me?"

"If I can, Doc," said the young man readily.

"I'd like you to finish this prescription. That will give you a little time to think over this idea, to see if it really is the decision you want to make."

Jerry looked thoughtful, then he nodded. "O.K., Doc," he said in a tone of relief. "I'll do that for your sake."

Malcolm smiled, as if he were very weary. "I was asking you to do it for your own sake, Jerry."

New-Fangled Typewriter Of 1875 On Display

HERKIMER, N. Y. (UP)—The first typewriter manufactured by E. Remington and Sons, a new fangled gadget which Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) found highly interesting, is in display at the Herkimer County Historical Association.

Invented by Christopher Soles Latham, the Model One "Type-writer" wrote only capital letters and sold for $125. It was made in 1873 and created a stir at the Philadelphia Centennial three years later.

Clemens first saw the typing machine in Boston, in a letter to his brother he said he was "greatly taken with it."

"It piles an awful stack of words on one page and doesn't mess or scatter ink blots around," Twain wrote.

NEWS FROM LONGBRANCH CARBON ROUTE 1

Mrs. G. W. Stowe, Cor.

LONG BRANCH, Oct. 16 — Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hastings were hosts at their home Sunday to a crowd of the latter's relatives. Most of those present had attended church services at their respective places of worship, while the gracious hostess put the finishing touches on the sumptuous dinner which was served about one o'clock. In the afternoon, while the older folk engaged in interesting conversations about new fashions, schooling problems, favorite recipes, stock - farming and current events, the youngsters were busy at "play-housing", sports, et cetera. At the proper hour in the afternoon all gathered and partook of a home grown. Those at the gathering were: Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ghormley and sons, Bobby and John of Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. V. G. Ghormley and children, Christine, Gladys, Betti Fay and James, of Romney; Mrs. Omer Hogan and daughters, Rudene and Nelda June of Carbon; Mr. and Mrs. Omer Hogan, Jr., and sons Wayne and Cecil from Carbon; Mr. and Mrs. B. Synthetic Jewels Produced In U. S.

NEW YORK (UP) — Star sapphires and star rubies, the first ever made by man, have been placed on exhibit at the American Museum of Natural History.

The synthetic gems, described as the greatest achievement yet in man-made gems, were created by the Linde Air Products Co. in Chicago and in Tonawanda, N. Y., in an oxy-hydrogen flame from powdered aluminum.

War-time necessity resulted in development of the synthetic jewels. Although such gems have been manufactured in Europe for 40 years, the process is new to America. The company developed synthetic jewels for precision instruments for planes and other war machines and now is making them for the jewelry trade.

A star ruby weighing about 10 carats was shown in comparison with a natural star ruby of the same size. The natural ruby was worth $50,000 to $100,000, whereas the artificial ruby was valued in hundreds of dollars. The difference between the two was said to be indistinguishable to a layman, although experts can identify the synthetic jewel.

FATHER JIM'S TEEN CANTEN

On Saturday night October 4, the canteen was opened with a Paul Jones. Regular dancing followed after this. The square dance was conducted by your friends Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lawson from Cisco. Some of the boys are being taught to call square dances. The movies were shown and were very good. A Baseball quiz was held and many good prizes were given away. Everyone danced until 11:15. We want to thank Father Jim for his new enjoyment for teen-agers.

NEW STUDENT 5

We have some new students this year and are very glad to have them. They are Derbi Dority, La Vonne Peel, Dan Butler, and Norma Noble. Derbi Dority came from Camden, South Carolina. He has dark complexion, black hair, blue eyes, and is very nice looking. He is married. He has a pleasing speech and is well liked by all. La Vonne Peel came from Morton Valley. She went to Morton Valley one and one half years. She has pretty blond hair, blue eyes, and a good personality. She now lives at 410 South Ostrom. Dan Butler came from Olden High School. He is very smart. He has brown hair and blue eyes. Norma Noble came from Houston and lives at 1410 Harrold St. She has brown hair and brown eyes. She is very sweet and likes Eastland well. There are all Juniors and the Class is very happy to have these nice new members. The Freshman class also has some new members. There are Sara Pell from Morton Valley, Betty Grimes from Cleveland, Marie Woodward, from Cisco, Fern Shafer from Brady, Barbara Branton from Odessa, Barbara Dick from Olden, Lewis Hull from Scranton, and Gerald Poe from Scranton. We all wish good luck to these new Freshmen.

BOY'S HOME MAKING

This week the BOY'S HOME MAKING have turned from cooking to class discussion. They have studied the process of making yeast breads and they hope to get to cook some soon.

On Monday the class discussed the value of eating the right kind of foods; then they saw a picture show on foods and proper diets. It was very educational and held much interest to the class as a whole.

There are sixteen boys in home-making this year; they are the following: "The Gold Star Boys"—Drain Lusk, Wayne Lambert, Bob Blair, Johnnie Hicks, Dick Sparks, Jack Chamberlain, Bill Hardeman. The rest—Bill Arther, Alan Hunt, Mack Harris, Roy Ray Mitchell, Kenneth Bennam, Wesley Ward, Robert Miller, Bob Caraway, and Osoline Hogan.

HOMEMAKING NEWS

Saturday was a great day to most of the FHA girls as the long awaited day at the State Fair finally rolled around. The girls boarded a chartered bus at 5:00 a.m. and arrived in Dallas at 8:30 a.m. They were honored with a luncheon by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce. All the girls enjoyed the many methods of entertainment. It was so that the sponsor, Miss Morris, had as much fun as the students. Several girls visited friends and relatives and attended movies. Several Cisco girls accompanied the Eastland girls. Tired but happy and loaded down with souvenirs the girls arrived home at midnight. All's well that ends well with an exception of a few colds.

HOMEMAKING PICNIC

The second year homemaking class had a picnic at the park Friday. The girls prepared the food as they were studying picnic lunches. Sandwiches, potato salad, lettuce, tomatoes, lemonade, ice cream, and cake were served to the following: Betty Bennett, Joann Hardin, Pauline Harrell, Beth Hurt, Corrine Poole, Patsy Sartin, Neva Dell Ward, Jesse Whaley, Cuva Williams, Virginia Wright, and their teacher, Miss Loretta Morris.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

Stand by hail and hearty classmates! A report has just come over the wire on our allmighty secretary, Jan Spalding. If we look into the future we will see Jan as one of the most famous doctors in the world. Now folks, here is a review of the mighty Senior. Jan is about 5'6". She just refused to give her weight, but if you ask me she has a pretty neat figure. Her hair is light brown and she has beautiful green eyes. Quite often we see her in blue and sometimes green, which are her favorite colors. But you should see the pretty red she turns when asked about Eddie (he's in Tech)! Like all worthy students of EHS Jan's favorite sports are football and basketball. She plays guard on the basketball team and is one of our star players. When asked her pastime, she just sighed and said, "Loafing." Jan really swoons when she hears "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows". Since she stated no special food I believe that she just likes to eat. Jan is a member of the mighty Sub Deb Club. She was our nominee for Queen her Sophomore year. I don't think that we could have picked a more popular and perfect girl for the race. In our opinion she will always be queen. Well gang, time to close up shop for this week. Let's all wish happiness and success to a really swell and wonderful girl, Jan Spalding, who deserves the best.

JUNIOR SPOTLIGHT

The mighty Junior Spotlight shines upon their sponsor, this week. She has big blue eyes and brown hair. She is a teacher of sophomore English, Latin, and Biology. She was our sponsor our freshman year also. She has two lovely children, John, the boy, and Evelyn, the girl. She is married to J.C. Whatley, who works at the Eastland Post Office. Just in case you have not guessed by this time, she is Mrs. Whatley. She is a good sponsor and we all like her very much.

SOPHOMORE SPOTLIGHT

This week the sophomore spotlight shines on a brown eyed, brown haired boy who is 5'7" and weighs 120 pounds. He is Stanley Stephens. Stanley has many likes and among these are his favorite foods, fried chicken and pineapple sundae. His favorite singer is Bing Crosby and his favorite song is "Anniversary Waltz". His actor is John Wayne and actress is Ester Williams. Stanley is a good student and Latin is his favorite subject. Mrs. Whatley is his favorite teacher and Mr. Atwood comes as a close second. Stanley has an unknown girl friend. Here's wishing all the luck to a swell boy.

FRESHMAN SPOTLIGHT

The freshman spotlight this week shines on a cute brunette, Betty Grimes, who is 5 feet 2 inches tall, and has brown eyes. Her favorite colors are red and green, and chocolate malted milks are tops on the food front. In sports Betty prefers tennis, while horseback riding is her favorite way of passing off the time of day. Another rater on Betty's list is her 6 foot 3 1/2 inch boy friend, Herbert Pechatschek. She is a member of the Double Seven Club, and secretary - treasurer of the freshman class. The best of everything to a swell girl.

SUB DEB MEET

The Sub Deb meet Wednesday, Oct. 15, in the home of Mary Halkias. The meeting was called to order, and dues were collected. We decided to give a barn dance for all the students in the very near future. After other business matters were discussed, the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, and "Cokes" were served to Mrs. Andy Taylor, Sandy and Jan Taylor, Merrie Dawn Warren, Joyce Armstrong, Mary Witt, Patsy Sartin, Betty Harkrider, Shirley Pickett, Jerry Spencer, Shirley Frazer, Jan Spalding, Naomi Wood, Marilyn Witttrup, LaVerne Cornelius, and hostess, Mary.

Says Suspicion, Hatred Retard Wartorn Nations

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UP)—European nations today are as disrupted by hatred and suspicion as by the more tangible destruction of war, according to Mrs. Luta P. Eaves, accounting and finance professor at Texas Tech who recently returned from Germany. Mrs. Eaves recently returned to the Tech faculty from a year's leave of absence spent teaching commercial courses to American military personnel with the occupation forces. Concluding her teaching duties last May, Mrs. Eaves spent the summer traveling over the continent and in England. She visited Italy, Belgium, France, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Luxembourg and Switzerland. Most of the smaller nations are in terror of the Russians, envious of Americans and disgusted with British smugness, Mrs. Eaves declared. Russians in their occupation zone of Germany appear sullen and distrustful of outsiders, she stated, and their prison camps are reportedly more horrible than those of the Nazis. Commenting on European economic recovery, Mrs. Eaves said Belgium is far ahead of other nations on their return to normal. Austria and Czechoslovakia are fairly well off, probably because they did not suffer during the war as other nations did, she said, adding that France and the Netherlands appear to be recovering slowly with Germany training the other countries.

Rigorous Trip Gets Contestant There On Time

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—After a three-mile walk, a try at hitch-hiking and a 6:30 a.m. arrival at the State Fair of Texas, fair policeman J. E. Watkins of Dallas made it in time to take second place in the Rio Grande Valley lemon pie contest. Watkins, a cook of some ability, whipped up his entry one Saturday night after work, but due to bus schedules he had to endure a rigorous work-out to make the contest on time. For his trouble, Watkins won four bushels of valley fruit—with lemons thrown in to take care of his future pie making. International shipments by air express to and from foreign cities in the first six months of this year totaled 294,558, an increase of 33 per cent over the first six months of last year, according to Railway Express.

DOCTOR WOODWARD'S AMBITION

By Elizabeth Seifert
Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

NANCY was moving about the pretty pale yellow and lavender bedroom, being philosophical about a situation which led a wife to tell her husband she was divorcing him, and then let her pick up his discarded socks; Nikki knocked upon the door, and came into the room.

She was dressed as if she meant to go out, but she was pale, and carried her little blue beret in her hand. "Nancy, is Doc here?" she asked plaintively.

Nancy shook her head. "He's gone to a Staff dinner."

Nikki had dropped to the side of the bed, she ran her fingers through her hair. "I'd forgotten. Where'd you invited?"

"Yes, but I'm not going."

"Oh, Well, I wanted some medicine—I've a splitting headache."

Nancy closed the drawer of Malcolm's chest, came to her daughter. "You poor darling. Is it bad?"

Nikki nodded. "The kind Doc gets. I'm afraid. I feel pretty awful, Nanny."

Nancy pulled the pillow out from under the quilted lavender spread. "Here, lie down."

"Must my suit, Nikki murmured. "I just want some medicine. Aspirin isn't any good—"

"No, Oh, I wish your father was here, or Marty—What time is Brian coming? Perhaps I could phone—"

"Brian isn't my date," Nikki said slowly.

Nancy sat down beside her, rubbed the girl's slender wrist. "How does an engaged girl have dates?" she began in the tone of an anxious mother uses to divert a child in pain.

Nikki dropped her cheek against the shoulder of Nancy's yellow print dress. "I'm not an engaged girl," she said mournfully. "Brian and I—I gave him back his ring."

Nancy gasped. "Nikki Glenn!"

"You didn't!"

"Yes, I did, Nanny. Sunday."

"But, what on earth—Why did you do a thing like that?"

"I don't want to be married."

Nancy stared at her daughter. "Of all the crazy things—Of course you want to be married. You and Brian are wild about each other. He's a good man—I know you love him, Nikki. These times of doubt are part of being a bride, but you shouldn't have given him his ring—Why didn't you talk it over with me?"

Nikki sighed. "I didn't think I could talk it over with you, Nanny. You were so mixed up in it—"

"Did you and Brian quarrel?"

"No—"

"Then—what do you mean. I'm mixed up in it?"

"I don't know if I can tell you, Nanny. Maybe you don't realize what's happened to you and Doc. But I see it. And I know I don't want to marry a man, and raise a family—and then fall into the slump you and Doc are in."

"What on earth are you talking about?"

"I said I didn't think you realized—but you have slumped, you two. You and Doc—I suppose if I'd ask either one of you you'd say, 'Sure, you're still in love.' But you haven't any thrill for each other. There isn't any glow. You aren't even interested in each other. Doc thinks about nothing but his work—I mean that's all he really cares about. And you—well, you're bored, and have a silly affair with a false front like Andrew Woodward—"

Nancy stiffened, but Nikki was enthralled by what she was saying. "Brian and I did have a quarrel—fiddled to you. We printed Sunday, and we quarreled once before that. Sunday, it was about the way you act with Woodward. We saw you in the River Room. He was playing the charming snake, and you were being charmed. And I said you were silly, and Brian didn't like me saying that—In fact, he acted as if the way you behaved was somehow my fault—and we quarreled. And I gave him back his ring."

Below the window a car honked impatiently. Nikki scrambled to her feet, clutched at the little hat. "Wait, Nikki—" Nancy gasped. "And your head—"

"I'll get something for my head at What's," she called over her shoulder, the heels of her baby-dolls clicking against the stairs.

Nancy ran to the window which overlooked the front door and the walk. She saw Nikki get into a roadster between two strange young men. She heard their young laughter. The car lurched backward upon the bridge approach, whirled out again into the street, and sped away.

Slowly Nancy crossed the soft purple rug, sat down on the edge of the bed and picked up the telephone, dialing the number she wanted. Andrew's voice answered, its vibrant tones sounding out into the quiet room.

"Andrew, this is Nancy."

"Yes," Nancy thought, all doctors can talk over the phone without letting any chance listener know what the conversation is about.

"Andrew, I'm not coming to the dinner tonight."

"I see. I'm—sorry."

"No, you're not. I am not coming because I have decided the even in little things, I'll not be any longer as Malcolm's wife. I told him so."

"Oh, you did?"

"Yes. But if you want another reason to put before your mother, tell her that Nikki is ill. She really is; she has headaches like Malcolm's occasionally. This one was brought on by her breaking her engagement to Brian Cox—"

"Oh, that's too bad."

"Yes, Well—"

"Thank you. I'll give Mother your message. She'll be sorry, but she'll understand, as I do. Good-by."

PROSPECTORS TRAIL LOST GOLD MINE SEALED IN BLOOD

It started around the turn of the 20th century, when a lonely prospector found gold nuggets the size of walnuts near Pitt Lake. The prospector returned to New Westminster but failed to register his claim. He was found murdered a short time later.

The first attempt was made by helicopter when a city man chartered the aircraft. Although officials of the airline would not reveal the destination, hunters and fishermen in the Pitt area reported seeing the craft in their vicinity the day it was chartered.

The other attempt is being made by a Vancouver B. C. sign painter who is reported to have a map of the area, but he says he will not be going out until next spring.

The story of the mine is one of bloodshed, and the social attitude of an Indian who died on the gallows refusing to tell where the gold could be found.

It started around the turn of the 20th century, when a lonely prospector found gold nuggets the size of walnuts near Pitt Lake. The prospector returned to New Westminster but failed to register his claim. He was found murdered a short time later.

An Indian, Jim Slummock, who had been a guide for the old prospector, was tried for the murder and sentenced to be hanged. The location of the mine went with him to the grave.

The story of the mine caused much speculation and in 1903, a veteran Alaskan prospector, John Jackson, searched for the lost hoard. He brought back gold, but the ordeal of the trip was too much and he died without revealing the location of his find.

On his deathbed, he wrote to a man called Doctor Hall. A copy of that letter came into the sign painter's hands in 1922.

The sign painter says the mine is described as being less than 20 miles from the head of the Pitt River, where the river flows down a canyon and disappears. The canyon is guarded by three mountains standing sentinel over the hidden treasure.

The Vancouver man reports he found the three peaks this summer, but was unable to enter the canyon and river bed because of ice and snow.

Prices May Be High But History Shows It's Nothing Entirely New

By Harman W. Nichols United Press Staff Correspondent CHICAGO (UP)—So you think prices are high.

All right, so bread is high because wheat is selling for $2.50 a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade. Eggs soared toward a dollar a dozen. The price of a new car is way up.

But history won't record our times of record sky-high prices. Simply because it's an old, old story.

Part of the story is told by Edward L. Throm, an expert on that sort of thing with the World Book Encyclopedia.

He came up with some eye poppers.

For instance, back in Cicero's days—around 100 B.C.—people paid as much as $175 a pound for purple-dyed wool. Wool was all wool and a yard wide, too, in those days and there was plenty of it. But the dye was a scarce item. It could be obtained only from a creature known as Purpura Murex—or shellfish found in the Mediterranean.

Each fish was good for only a tiny squirt of dye. You know who dressed in wool in those days—the Roman nobles. That, as a matter of fact is where we got the expression "born to the purple." It's hard to believe, but Throm says that pins once were a scarce item in old England.

Along about 1100, the situation got so rough that parliament passed a law allowing pins to be sold only two days a year, one of them New Year's Day, when people probably didn't feel much like spending in line to buy pins.

English housewives saved their money all year for pins and hence we got another expression "pin money."

Throm says it is the old thing—then and now. Scarcity makes high prices.

In the days when folks traveled by stage coach, the fare from St. Joseph, Mo., to California was $225. A man in the west paid $9 to $10 for a barrel of salt.

During the gold strikes of the 1800s there was no rent control. Shacks rented for $100 and up a week. A night's snooze on a cot cost $15—and no shower.

In the Klondike, after gold was discovered in 1897 a man paid $10 for a plate of eggs and a slab of ham.

Miracles

Do you believe in honest to goodness miracles?

The Magic of Miracles? I do.

I've seen them performed. Magic Miracles have been worked on me.

Miracles of Faith. That's what I'm talking about. Miracles passed unexpectedly from one to another.

The kind of miracle I mean is the exchange of whatever passes between two human beings when something clicks . . . call it whatever you wish. The magnetic something for which I have no name and that lingers in the human heart . . . perhaps changing a life.

I know a Miracle Worker. Someone endowed with the power of bringing back hope . . . just by looking at you. It's nothing she says; she doesn't talk much, whatever it is lies deep within her eyes; in her rather shy smile. The way she walks . . . confidentially . . . easily . . . the way she sits . . . in her quiet hands . . . and low voice.

Everything about her is quiet yet strong.

And when you're with her, you become quiet and strong. It's something within her that gives you, whether you want it or not. It is too strong to resist . . . and after awhile you feel that same current running through you, and you are able to rest and even to forget.

I do not know whether or not the name is personality. I don't quite believe that it is.

There is another name, but I don't know it.

It is a nameless something possessed in greater quantity in some than in others.

It is a generous giving of the thing within the Miracle Worker. The Miracle Worker who understands people and life and who quietly gives away what she

Now for a Big Steak

This is a "poly poris" and a bonafide mushroom, according to H. I. Stalter, who found it on a farm near Medina, O. Stalter collects mushrooms as a hobby and plans to can this giant for future use. Just for record, Boy Scout Donald Hinks, above, applies a tape measure and finds the specimen is 19 inches in width.

Lowest this year since 1925, the United States' shorn wool output was 256.35 million pounds—8 per cent less than in 1946 and 29 per cent below the 1936-45 average.

The diameter of the sun is 864,100 miles. It is 93,002,000 miles from the earth.

Gladly . . . and willingly.

I believe in the Magic of Miracles.

I know . . . For a Miracle Worker once passed my way.

And one will pass your way, too, someday . . . when you need it most.

Believe in miracles. For they really exist.

"On The Square" Eastland, Texas

Hello:

Won't you let us come into your thoughts for the next few seconds?

Mrs. Hollifield and I have come into your town as strangers to you but we don't want to remain as such. Our future is now wrapped up in the interests of Eastland and Eastland County. We want to become a part of the things that make the community.

Mr. C. J. O'Connor of Breckenridge is known to many of you since he has resided in this part of Texas for many years. He will not be active in the business but will appreciate any courtesies extended in his behalf.

To mama (Mrs. Holifield) and me "Firestone" means quality merchandise, service, fair and competitive prices, and CUSTOMER SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. We have spent the past five years in Breckenridge operating the Firestone Store. We believe in Firestone and think it is the finest company there is. We hope to convince you too.

Come in to see us and say Hello.
