Abilene Woman Begins Classes Here Tuesday

Miss Norma Kniffen, baton-twirling specialist with the Hardin Simmons Cowboy band, will begin classes in twirling, drum majoring, military drill, strutting and flag swinging, in the Eastland high school auditorium Tuesday evening, October 28.

The classes will be held each Tuesday evening, beginning at 6 o'clock. Miss Kniffen said, and persons interested in taking the training may get in touch with the band director at Eastland high school.

Miss Kniffen holds a national championship, 19 medals and three trophies for her baton twirling abilities. She won the national championship for twirlers in Cleveland in September—a contest held by the VFW. Recently she was a member of the Gen. George W. Bell, Jr., Drum and Pledge corps of Post 450, VFW, in Chicago.

She had been an instructor in the Vanderhook School of Music, and visited the Hardin-Simmons campus during the summer. She was so much impressed by the school that she decided to remain as a student.

Prizes collected by Miss Kniffen include two Chicago high school championships in 1944 and 1945; first place at the national VFW convention in 1947; first at the Cook county music festivals in 1946 and 1947; second place in the national twirling contests held in Boston in 1946; third place in the National Music Festival held in Chicago, and special recognition at the St. Paul Winter Carnival last year. She was featured in a twirling exhibition at a band rally and festival in Waterloo, Iowa, in May.

Says Sabotage May Be Cause Airliner Crash

WASHINGTON — Sen. Owen Brewster, R., Me., indicated today he believed that sabotage by Communists may have been responsible for the Utah airplane crash in which 52 persons were killed and, in part for the vast New England fires.

A United Airlines plane crashed in flames in Bryce Canyon, Utah, Friday. The plane had broken out in its baggage compartment. Col. Rocco Turner, famed flying figure, already has suggested that sabotage may have been involved.

"It seems very extraordinary—most inexplicable," Brewster said.

"We know with the ideological war now being waged that tactics like that are to be expected."

COMMITTEE CITES WRITER FOR CONTEMPT

WASHINGTON — House Communist-hunters today cited film writer John Howard Lawson for contempt because he refused to say whether he was a Communist.

The citation was made by a House Un-American activities subcommittee after six capitol police removed the defendant and shouting movie writer from the witness stand.

The committee, in the second week of its Communism-in-Hollywood hearings, put documentary evidence into the record charging that Lawson was "one of the most active Communists in the Hollywood movie industry."

A committee investigator Louis J. Russell presented Communist party registration card No. 47275 which he testified was made out to "John Howard Lawson."

The contempt citation was voted unanimously by all committee members present. But because they did not constitute a quorum, the action was construed as taken by a subcommittee. The full committee and later the House of Representatives must approve the citation if Lawson is to be brought to trial.

The 52-year-old writer was called to the witness stand after the committee had rejected "defense" motions to quash proceedings and permit 12 "hostile" witnesses to cross "examine other Hollywood figures who had testified against him."

Jap Criticizes Allied Action

TOKYO — For the first time since American troops occupied Japan, a prominent Japanese publicist criticized Allied headquarters today for purging him from his government position.

The Japanese was Tanzan Ishihashi, former minister of finance and one-time publisher of the Oriental Economist, a financial paper. He called Allied newsmen to a press conference at which he distributed an 80-page "refutation" of the Allied headquarters order removing him from his cabinet post.

"I have been proud to put it in a word, because I am a liberal and not a yes-man," Ishihashi said.

Search For Missing Plane

JANEAU, Alaska — Search planes flew low over storm-ridden south eastern Alaska today seeking a Pan American Airways DC-4 missing with 18 persons aboard.

The four engine transport was due at JanEAU at 4:30 P. M., EST yesterday on a regularly scheduled flight from Seattle.

52 DIE IN PLANE CRASH

The broken tail assembly of a DC-6 airliner lie crumpled on the slopes of Bryce Canyon, Utah, a grim reminder of the tragedy which took 52 lives. This was the largest remaining piece of the giant 4-engine plane which crashed while trying to make an emergency landing. (NEA Telephoto).

PEANUT COUNCIL EXECUTIVE

Wm. F. Seals Is Peanut Council Executive

ATLANTA, Georgia — William F. Seals, Manager of the Middle Atlantic region of the National Association of Manufacturers, has been elected executive vice president of the National Peanut Council, trade association of the peanut industry with headquarters in Atlanta. Announcement of the election is made by Ralph McMillen, President, after a meeting of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Seals succeeds Modane Marchbanks, who has joined the staff of the National Margarine Association. He has been associated with NAM for three years, prior to that was for several years manager of the National Flax Association with headquarters in Washington.

In his new position, Mr. Seals will direct the public relations and advertising work of the National Peanut Council, as well as the Council's general activities. He assumes his new duties immediately.

Banished Pole Offered Asylum

LONDON — Great Britain offered asylum today to Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, vanished Polish peasant party leader who a friend said was on his way either to London or Paris.

C. P. Mayhew, foreign undersecretary, told Commons that the government would "adhere to the traditional British policy of granting asylum in this country to political refugees."

India Rushes Troops To Capital

NEW DELHI — Reliable reports said today that the Hindu government of India, taking a direct hand in a bloody Moslem rebellion in the princely state of Kashmir, had rushed airborne troops to the capital to keep it from being stormed by 10,000 to 15,000 peasants and fierce tribesmen.

STAND TAKEN AS RUSSIA DEFEATED IN SMEAR EFFORT

LAKE SUCCESS — The United States and the other western powers split wide apart in the United Nations today over a compromise proposal for UN action to squelch war propaganda.

At the same time Russia conceded defeat in its battle to label the United States, Greece and Turkey as "warmongering" nations.

The Soviet defeat was symbolized by a Polish move to delete from the original Russian proposal directly indicting the United States, Greece, and Turkey for encouraging "inciters of a new war."

The move that split the United States and its usual western power supporters came when Australia, France and Canada submitted to the 57-nation political committee of the UN general assembly a compromise substitute for the foredoomed Soviet proposal.

The compromise asks the 57 countries of the UN to "take appropriate steps" to promote friendly relations between countries and would condemn all forms of war propaganda "in whatever country it occurs." American officials vehemently opposed the measure. One spokesman said it was "almost as bad" as the Soviet proposal because of what he termed its tendency to encourage "governmental interference" with the press and other information media.

Wholesale Meat Prices Down

Wholesale meat prices dropped sharply last week, but industry spokesmen and market analysts differed today on causes for the decline. They agreed, however, that it would be some time before the reduction is reflected in the housewives food costs.

The American Meat Institute said that the reduction in wholesale prices, which were off from four to 17 cents a pound from the peak reached last August, was due to increased seasonal production of meat.

However, market analysis at Chicago attributed the depressed trade mainly to consumer resistance against the current price levels.

For the 12 months ended in July, 1947, there were 33,700 traffic fatalities, the National Safety Council said.

Male Students Want Back Their Washing Machine

SAN MARCOS, Tex., (UP) — Male occupants of Harris Hall at Southwest Texas State College have set up a howl of protest because officials moved the hall's washing machines, irons and ironing boards elsewhere.

Harris Hall, which was occupied by girls during the war when male students were scarce, was recently turned over to returning men, complete with all washing facilities.

The boys, with a thought for postwar inflation, mobilized and started doing their own laundry. Shortly afterwards, the school moved the cleaning apparatus to Sallie Beretta Dormitory for girls. "We can get along without the girls," a spokesman for the men said, "but we've got to have those washing machines."

Son Talks Father Into Toils Of Law

MANITOWOC, Wis., (UP) — Joseph Kanugh wishes his son Gerald would learn that silence is golden.

Gerald was stalking pheasants in a cornfield when a game warden asked him if he had shot any. Gerald replied he had had poor luck, but his father had bagged five the previous day.

The official found the dressed birds in the Kanugh icebox.

The older Kanugh was fined $100 for shooting the birds out of season and $10 for hunting without a license.

10,000TH RADIOACTIVITY OIL WELL LOG COMPLETED

Magnolia Petroleum Company, A-246 Well in Jackson County, Texas was the location of the 10,000th Radioactivity Well Log run by Lane-Wells Company. Officials of both Magnolia Petroleum Company and Lane-Wells Company gathered at the well, Friday, October 24th, to celebrate the occasion as a milestone in the progress of technical oil field services.

Originally developed by Well Surveys, Incorporated and operated by Lane-Wells Company under exclusive license, the radioactivity survey utilizes a natural phenomenon of gamma radiation of the various elements to provide the oil operator with a continuous graphic curve which, upon interpretation, reveals the stratigraphy of the sub-surface in either open or cased holes. Having been operated by Lane-Wells Company for the past seven years it has become extremely useful in this vast industry of production and development to find sandstones and limestones that are

If You'd Like To Kiss A Cobra, Jungle Man Says It's A Cinch

By Jean Foggy
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOMBAY (UP) — Do you want to kiss a cobra?

Just look up John A. Royola, former associate of Frank "Bring 'em Back Alive" Buck, and now custodian of a deck full of animals and snakes which the American ship Flying Enterprise is carrying to New York.

Royola has caught more than 500 cobras bare-handed and has kissed at least one. He likes cobras.

"I feel sort of like an uncle to them," he said.

A Hawaiian-born Filipino and closely resembling Sabu the movie actor, he substituted for the star during the filming of Kipling's "Jungle Stories."

"My part was to give the cobra a realistic kiss," Royola grinned. "Easiest money I ever earned."

During the war he caught cobras for the army in the Philippines. When snake-bite serum was scarce he cauterized a bite by emptying gunpowder into the wound and lighting it with a match. He said it was a sure cure for any venom "if it is done pronto."

It was in Koh Sichang, 50 miles from Bangkok, that Capt. Kai de Vermond, master of the "Flying Enterprise," turned over the forward deck of his ship to Royola—a "zoo," which he caught near the Ciam-Burman border.

Five baby elephants with one inch of tuck for each of their five years of age were chained on the deck. In between its use for the seamen, the 550 pound "babies" kept cool by spraying themselves from a drum full of water.

One hundred and fifty monkeys shrieked and chattered in cages across the deck from the 30 cobras, five pythons and a "red band" snake, a small reptile which Royola says is the deadliest snake in the world.

Three Malayan honey bears which look as if they came straight from a toy counter were caged across from a mandril monkey appropriately named "Killer." This vicious monkey, about 24 inches high, with angry red eye sockets and fiery eyeballs could kill a man easily, says Royola.

"I'd rather handle a thousand cobras than one mandril," he said. Paradoxically, Royola puts a de-venomed cobra into the "Killer's" cage when it becomes unmanageable, since the cobra is the only living thing the mandril fears. Besides a few wild cats, civet cats and one sea otter, there were two three-month-old aardvarks. These ant-eating animals with pink-tipped snouts are as affectionate and tame as the five gibbons which amused visitors and crew with their antics.

Royola will deliver the snakes to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The monkeys are going to the American Institute for Cancer Research. The other animals are headed for zoos throughout the United States.

Royola and his two Malayan assistants "milk" the cobras once a week. The venom is crystallized to preserve it for snake-bite serum and blood-clotting fluid for internal hemorrhages.

Royola, who claims the snakes know his footsteps at feeding time, pulled a cobra out of the cage with a short, hooked stick. He worried it a bit to anger it enough to strike, then seized it just behind the head and above the hood, and "milked" the venom into a small vial. Afterwards he squeezed open the cobra's mouth and fed him two raw eggs through a funnel.

Plane Wreckage Found

This Is Happy

THE STORY: Happy Brandon, walking cheerfully through the early morning rain, looks for an address given her by an employment agency. Finding it, she is about to enter the building when a grim-looking young man rushes out, almost bowling her over. Before she catches her breath, he takes her by the arm and wheels her into a nearby restaurant. "Nobody has any business grinning like a Cheshire cat before he's had at least a cup of coffee," he says. The young man turns out to be Steve Landers, hard-bitten war correspondent and prophet of doom. And—oddly enough—the very person Happy was on her way to see about a job. When Steve expresses dismay at the prospect of a cheerful secretary, Happy tells him: "I'm sure the agency can find you somebody grim and middle-aged and—scared to death of the future." Then she leaves before he can stop her.

HAPPY unlocked the door and pushed it open. Instantly a "hurry avalanche" struck her, and a plaintive voice scolded her for staying away so long. Happy's arms encompassed the big cat and held him close, soothing him until he rumbled gently, like a small dynamo in her arms. She put him down and he padded beside her to the small closet where she put away her hat. To the tiny bathroom where she hung her dripping raincoat and her umbrella. And then he sat down beside his feeding dish and ordered a saucer of cream; ordered it in no uncertain terms.

Happy filled the saucer, and when he bent above it, lapping it happily, she went back to the closet, slid out of her damp street clothes and into a red housecoat that did pleasant things for her thick brown hair.

The rain and the wind outside made the apartment seem very pleasant and cozy. Happy relaxed, curled into a big chair, and Timmy, replete with cream, leaped on

As Steve's hand reached out, a long furry paw, steel-tipped, shot out and raked Steve's hand from wrist to fingertips. "Why, the—the—" he stammered.

Steve dropped into a deep chair and looked slowly about the room, as though cataloguing its contents: the big sofa-bed, slip-covered in bright chintz; the two big armchairs, one in a matching

"None whatever!" said Happy.

"So then you found this place that was that?"

"And keep house for her. And Steve looked at her for a moment and said: 'You're a good one.'"

Hardy Peach Sought By Russian Craft

DURHAM, N. H. (UP)—A Russian peach crossed with other varieties may produce a hardy fruit that will grow in temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero.

That's the hope of Dr. A. F. Yeager of the University of New Hampshire, who already has bred a white peach from a hardy Russian strain.

Dr. Yeager says the Russian variety, which was planted in 1945, has grown eight feet tall and has borne as much as a bushel of peaches per tree.

Rare Lincoln Book Found In Illinois Store

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—An original presentation copy of the Debates between Lincoln and Douglas," personally autographed by Abraham Lincoln, has been found in a Springfield bookstore by King V. Hostick, collector of Lincoln letters and documents.

Published in 1860 in Columbia, O., the volume is inscribed on the title page in the hand of Lincoln to E. M. Elder.

Elder made speeches for Lincoln during the latter's presidential campaign. The book is one of 100 copies which were given to Lincoln by the publishers in payment for his supplying them with his text of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Lincoln used the books as political favors, giving them to his friends during the presidential election year.

Although many copies of the book are still in existence, the presentation sentiment, together with Lincoln's signature, makes Hostick's find one of some value, he said.

Heartsease

by Elsie Glenn

Come Back, Sad Heart. Come Back!

The lonely, lonely path of the human heart, strayed from home! Pulled loose from its moorings, wandering desolate here and there the Voice in the Wilderness, whispering across the moors of life:

"Lost! Bitter, cold, dark!" Hearts.

The path is long and the eyes are blinded. Stumble, stumble on. The realization that . . . after all . . . one is born alone, lives alone, cries and laughs alone . . . dies alone . . . steps from life to death . . . quite, quite alone.

Alone, amidst billions of human beings.

What does one human being know of another?

Really nothing.

What do we know of ourselves?

Really nothing.

Alone one clinches the hands and looks about. Where are we?

Why were we born? Day and night . . . lightness and darkness . . . coldness and warmth. Walking, sleeping, praying, eating.

With billions of others.

And quite alone.

The human soul walks its path without escort.

When the final step is made across the Great Divide perhaps the black curtain shall be lifted.

Perhaps the gathering of the strength gained from walking alone shall prepare us for understanding . . . for the Voice that may say:

"Come back, sad heart. Come back."

INDIA'S AIR LINERS SET SAFETY MARK

NEW DELHI, India (UP) — Indian air lines have established a new world safety record, according to statistics of the civil aviation department of the Indian Government.

Only two passenger fatalities occurred in nearly 5,000,000 miles of air travel.

The report showed an increase of 80 per cent in passenger traffic, with 121,000 passengers carried during the first half of this year. During the past six months, nearly twice as much air freight was handled by India's air lines as was carried during the whole of 1946.

The majority of the commercial airplanes in use are twin-engined Douglas DC-3's plus a few British Vikings.

All larger cities of India are linked with a network of air lines surveyed and supervised by the civil aviation department.

India's air lines played an important part in evacuating the refugees from the riot-stricken areas. Schedules were tripled and quadrupled in many instances to handle the heavy increase in passengers, most of whom had never been inside an airplane.

Wood From Amazon Found Fine For Violin Bows

By H. E. Minard

AGGIES DROP BAYLOR BEARS

The mighty Texas Aggies, playing on home ground, tore into the undefeated Baylor Bears and left them lying limping by a score of 24 to 0. Here, Dusek, arrow, of Texas A&M, goes over for a touchdown in the second quarter of the game played at College Station. Also in the play are No. 17, Sims, and No. 85, Hollon, both of Baylor. (NEA Telephoto).

ed, grainless logs are being sawed. ripped and delicately carved by 73-year-old Eugene M. Sherman, violin maker.

Pernambuco grows along the tributaries of the Amazon. Not much is known about it, but it is believed that ages ago its resilient limbs made fine bows. The bows were the kind that twang a deadly arrow into a human target.

Today, gentle, gray-haired Sherman was making bows, too. Only his bows, he hopes, will make the sweetest music ever heard.

Long ago in the 19th century the Frenchman Francis Tourte made a violin bow. It was an accident how he stumbled on Pernambuco. But nevertheless a Tourte bow never has been equalled.

"It's a mystery and a challenge," Sherman said. "Why does a Stradivarius violin improve when stroked with a Tourte bow?" Tourte discovered Pernambuco long after Stradivarius died, he said.

Sherman believes this country has sufficient talent to steal post-war European output. He said he hoped the Department of Commerce would find a way to increase his import of Pernambuco.

"How is it that an artist like Heifetz can tell a Tourte bow with his eyes closed?" he asked.

Maybe it's seasoning—or maybe it's cambre.

All Sherman is sure of is that it produces fine music.

Perry's 1812 Flagship Finds New Friends

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP) — Adm. Oliver H. Perry's flagship, the Niagara, has her champions.

A dozen old salts along the Atlantic seaboard offered to do the job after word got around that the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission lacked bidders for a contract to rig the ancient warship that made naval history in the Battle of Lake Erie, War of 1812.

The ship, being restored at Erie Pa., is awaiting finishing touches to its superstructure.

The commission said that when the state first asked for bids there was no response. After that was publicized, offers came right and left.

Any Tea Bags To Swap?

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Herald Tribune announced receipt of a letter from Mrs. John E. Jackson of Salem, N. Y., revealing that she is a tea bag tag collector and asking to hear from other tea bag tag collectors.

Mrs. Jackson said she had collected 1,300 cardboard tags from individual tea bags in the 48 states, Canada, Alaska and Bermuda.
