DOG POISONERS AGAIN ACTIVE IN EASTLAND

A member of the Eastland county sheriff's department called us yesterday and said: "We have reason to believe that poison is again being distributed about people's homes in the southeastern portion of the County. Will you please call this to the attention of the public, asking people to watch for weiners and portions of meat lying about their premises, as a matter of precaution to prevent children from picking it up and eating it in which case we would more than likely have a case of murder on our hands."

Obviously the poison is being distributed to kill dogs. In fact we had a report a few days ago that several dogs had died in that vicinity lately and one, which a veterinary reached in time to save him, was found to have had a dose of strychnine.

THEY COULD BE COMMENDED

Peace officers, if they are conscientious, and we believe that by far the greater portion of them are, have a great responsibility these days and are working to better qualify themselves to meet that responsibility. This week here in Eastland a school is in progress at which Eastland county officers are being instructed in the latest methods of crime prevention, detection and apprehension by specially trained instructors from the United States Bureau of Investigation. These officers are to be commended for their efforts along this line.

And the deities were astounded at his words. But Jesus answered again, and said unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God—Mark 10:24.

The light of the lamp of experience enables one to see a lot further into the future than the light from the rainbow of hope.

For every school teacher in America there are more than seven criminals—F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover.

HE WROTE UP HIS OWN WEDDING

A Kansas editor recently was married and wrote up his own wedding. He disposed of the bride in a few words and then proceeded to devote the major portion of attention to the groom as follows: "The bridegroom, blushing prettily, was attractively clad in a three-piece suit of brown woolen material consisting of a coat, a vest and pants. The coat was charmingly festooned with a white flower in the left button-hole. The vest was sleeveless, closed in front and gracefully fashioned with pockets. It was held together in the back with a strap and buckle. His pants were neatly pressed for the occasion and he wore them with an air as if he little suspected it would be the last time he wore pants in that family. Hose and necktie added just the right dash of color to complement the effect. The shoes were genuine leather, laced with a string of the same, giving a chic appearance. The shirt was of white broadcloth material. It had an 8-button front, one back, two sleeves, two cuffs and one collar. The shirt was worn with the tail neatly tucked in the pants."

Wood's Condition Is Only Slightly Improved Today

Says Aid Plans Will Cost U. S. Billion Dollars

PARIS—Members of the Senate appropriations committee estimated today that the interim aid program for Europe would cost about 1-billion dollars and said that under it the United States would take over Britain's economic commitments in Germany.

Sen. H Styles Bridges, chairman, said the program would cover help for France, Italy and the British zone of Germany until June 30, 1948, when, presumably, the Marshall Plan is expected to be in operation.

Bridges estimated that interim aid for the British zone would cost 200 to 250 million dollars.

ESCAPED POLE WILL COME TO UNITED STATES

LONDON—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who fled from Poland because he said the Communists planned to shoot him, announced today he was going to the United States.

Mikolajczyk was flown to Britain yesterday from the British zone of Germany. He arrived there Saturday, after a dramatic flight across the Soviet zone of Germany.

Efforts Of Local Man Praised By Church Members

The following letter from the secretary of the Baptist church at Dumas, Texas, addressed to Rev. Grady Ellison of Eastland who recently closed a revival meeting there, is self-explanatory:

"The glow of the revival lingered on here. I've never seen the people so enthusiastic about a thing. They just keep talking about it—and wish you all could have stayed on permanently. Many have said that the youth revival was the best thing that ever happened to this church, and all are looking forward to another one next year.

Leans Chalk Up 23-18 Victory Over The Fats

By D. M. (Red) Collins
The "Leans" chalked up a 23 to 18 victory over the "Fats" last night at Fireman's Field, in the funniest ball game that you ever did see. The game was sponsored by the Eastland Jaycees.

It was reported, by one of the Fats captains, that the reason the Leans won was because they had all Lean umpires. Editor Merritt Dunn, the peanut grabber of Carroll, was one of the umpires, Bull Frog Fisher, and Blind Tom McCoy assisted Mr. Dunn.

Several spectacular plays were made during the game, one was when District Clerk Roy Lane took a swing at a slow easy ball, and hit it so hard that it burst in his face. After a minute or two of confusion, and examining the ball, it turned out to be a grapefruit painted white. Fats Bill Harris also hit one, and received the same treatment.

5x5, 290 Fats Moser and Neil (Ox) Day were a little under the weather and had a dark shadow following them around all during the game and running for them, when they could hit the ball. They didn't even have to pick the ball up. It is said that they did have the energy to throw it, however. The dark shadow being named "Charley."

Lean player Sheriff J. B. Williams dislocated his shoulder while sliding into third base. A Fats spokesman said they didn't know how he got there, anyway the Leans won the ball game.

Among other players who played an outstanding game were Theo Lamb, pitcher for the Fats, and the tallest man of them all, Frank Crowell, did a good job of pitching for the Leans. "Wee Willys" Smith, the kid from Arkansas, played a wonderful game, also District Attorney Everett Grisham, played a bang-up defensive ball game.

The game was witnessed by a fair crowd, and the Jaycees hope to make the Fat and Lean ball game an annual affair.

Food Chain Reports Ample Holiday Fare After 5 Lean Years

After five lean years, Thanksgiving will once again live up to its tradition of a bountiful harvest and holiday foods in abundance. A & P Food Stores reported today on the basis of a nation wide survey.

A reported 16 per cent drop in the production of turkeys will be more than offset by a further reduction in military demands during the past year, the company said, adding that the 1947 production according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, would total 34,667,000 birds.

Citing the abundance of food for the holiday, the company pointed to Texas' crop of over 3,681,000 turkeys and adequate supplies of cranberries which will be available from producer states.

There will be no shortage of other foods the company added, for celery, nuts, citrus fruits, potatoes, squash, pumpkin and other vegetables are in good supply. Also plentiful, said the food chain are apples, mince meat and sugar.

Aviation Cadet Applicants Are Being Sought

The new Aviation Cadet Training class will start March 1, 1948, at Randolph Field, and applications are being accepted now, it was announced by Sgt. James Hendrick, Eastland Recruiting Service.

Each class starts with 500 cadets, and men completing the 12-month course are commissioned second lieutenants and assigned to flying duty with the United States Air Force.

Admission standards for cadet training are high. Only unmarried young men between the ages of 20 and 26½ are eligible. They must have completed at least one-half the credits leading to a degree from an accredited college or university, or be able to pass an examination given by the Air Force. Excellent character, a sound physique, and good health also are required.

Aviation Cadet training is open to civilians as well as to enlisted men now in the Service.

Each class lasts for 12 months and is divided into three courses; primary and basic is at Randolph Field. Advanced single-engine is at Williams Field, Arizona and multi-engine advanced is at Barksdale Field, Louisiana.

Application blanks may be obtained at the local recruiting station, located on the third floor of the Eastland County Court House.

In addition to the opportunity for pilot training, high school graduates enlisting in the United States Air Force may pick their field of technical training in Aviation. Qualified men, both in and out of the service may apply for Officer Candidate Schools.

ASK SPECIAL CONSIDERATION FOR LOWER INCOME GROUPS

WASHINGTON—The tax advisory committee today recommended to the House ways and means committee a reduction in individual income tax rates "for all," with consideration given to living costs for those in the lower income groups.

The committee's report was signed by nine of the 10 members of the advisory committee created by the House ways and means committee to recommend revenue law changes.

The full text of the report was distributed to the ways and means committee and reporters but publication was set for newspapers of Wednesday morning.

In presenting the report, Advisory Committee Chairman Roswell Magill, New York lawyer and former undersecretary of the treasury, read one paragraph from it to support the committee's contention that the equitable adjustment of tax rates and exemptions was "a number one federal tax problem today."

"We recommend," the report said, "a reduction in individual income tax rates for all, with due regard for the cost of living of those in the lower income groups, and for the needs of the balance of the economy."

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Disclosure that 12 employes have been dropped from the government's Federal Broadcast Intelligence Bureau, "for security reasons," brings into the open a battle that has been going on for months. The inside story is important, because it reveals what is happening in practically every branch of government today, in connection with the loyalty probe of federal employes.

FBIB was created during the war as Federal Broadcast Intelligence Service, a branch of the Federal Communications Commission. It had no connection with J. Edgar Hoover's FBI. Its job was to monitor Axis radio broadcasts to see what like enemy propaganda was taking.

Its head was Dr. Robert D. Leigh, former president of Bennington College, Vt., and more recently one of the principal authors of the University of Chicago report on Freedom of V-J Day and his principal assistant, Russell Shepherd, was named director. Shepherd was a young government career man who, after graduation from Swarthmore had gone to work as an office boy and worked his way up to the U. S. Civil Service.

As soon as the war was over, Congress wanted to abolish FBIB to save money. An agreement was made to transfer the outfit to Army Intelligence, and it was renamed FBIB. When the organization came before Congress for its appropriation, all it had to do was cite some 50 pieces of intelligence it had picked out of the air, of value to the country.

When the new Central Intelligence Group was created, FBIB was transferred to that hush-hush organization. Young Shepherd was ambitious and naturally out to make a good record as an administrator. One of his acts was to demote four of his principal assistants and put them under men they had formerly supervised. The demoted men naturally didn't like that and protested. Shepherd then moved to fire them. That was last April. The four wrote a letter of protest to Lieut.-Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, who was then head of CIG.

General Vandenberg ordered an investigation by his executive officer, Brig.-Gen. E. I. Seibert. Shepherd was given a clean bill of health. The four complainants were then called in and allowed to resign.

The four men who had been let out took their case to Rep. Fred E. Duesby, Chicago Republican. He is a member of Rep. Clare Hoffman's Committee on Extrajudicialities in the Executive Departments. In the last session he was active in making charges against State and other government department employes who, he said, were Communists.

BUSBY called in Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, who had succeeded Vandenberg as head of CIG. The Admiral was told he would have to clean house and get the Reds out of FBIB, or CIG would be doomed. Among the charges made against FBIB, two were serious. First, that FBIB translators were faking their translations of foreign broadcasts. If Russia broadcast something nasty about the U. S., it said the translators would either tone it down, or write in "Unclear," indicating a bad reception they couldn't understand. The second charge was that the translators would hold up transcripts of damaging broadcasts during important diplomatic negotiations.

Navy Captain Walter Ford, now executive officer of CIG and the only authorized spokesman for FBIB, admits none of these charges and even denies that there has been any trouble in FBIB. But it is known that Shepherd has been allowed to resign, with clean record, but for the good of the service and to keep peace with Congress. As long as any member of Congress has anything against a government administrator, the future of his agency is in danger. The 12 other employes have been dropped "as bad security risks" as a further peace offering to Congress. There are no specific charges against them. That's what working for the government is like today.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Clubs that stand pat get nowhere in particular. That goes for pennant-winners. The principal difficulties of the Cardinals, Cubs and Tigers in 1947 stemmed from the fact that no fresh hands were brought in.

Branch Rickey didn't expect the Brooklyn to win until 1948. Brother Rickey tells his lieutenants that the organization hasn't a pitcher capable of going nine innings in the National League.

"We have the best second baseman in baseball," he says, "but have to play him at first. We have no first baseman. Our catching is fair."

JACKIE ROBINSON would be a stickout at second, but does not hit a long ball often enough to play first, where at the finish he was still on the weak side on balls hit to his right.

Mahatma Rickey and whoever manages the Brooks must make up their minds on Johnny Jorgensen and Carl Furillo.

Even if Spider Jorgensen were an accomplished third baseman, which he wasn't, as a freshman, he doesn't hit well enough to play the position, and he isn't fast.

Furillo, a remarkable center-fielder and thrower, was removed a good share of the time when a right-hand pitcher was working for the opposition. A club faces an average of one left-hander in four games, so Furillo must have swatted some right-handers along the route, for his runs-batted-in total of 67 compares very favorably with that of Lise Walker, who went to bat almost 160 more times.

Fred Walker had a good enough year, but the people's choice isn't getting any younger.

This Is Happy

By PEGGY DERN

© by Peggy Dern, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Happy Brandon has just gotten a job as secretary to Steve Landers, head-shiten was correspondent and prophet of doom. Steve prefers working in Happy's one-room apartment to his own office. At a cocktail party, Happy meets George Harrell, southern aristocrat and gentleman farmer. Steve seems jealous when Harrell takes Happy to dinner. But Harrell's interest in Happy appears casual. The next day a number of Happy's friends are having a party in her apartment when the doorbell rings. One of the girls opens the door to an expensively dressed stranger.

VIII

"PERHAPS I've got the wrong apartment. I was looking for Miss Brandon," said the man at the door.

"Come on in," invited Grace cheerfully. "She's somewhere about." She turned and yelled loudly. "Hi, Happy, you've got company."

"Surprise! I thought I was all alone," Happy laughed, and then she saw George in the doorway and was instantly distressingly conscious of her heat-flushed face, her disheveled curls, her green plastic apron.

"Oh—Mr. Harrell," she stammered, and came toward him. "I wasn't expecting—I mean I thought you were going home today. Do come in."

"I had an appointment that made me miss the early plane," said George. "So I was shifted to the one that leaves at midnight. I tried to get you on the telephone, but was unable to, so I took the chance you might be free for dinner."

His look about the group was apologetic. "But won't you stay and have—well, it's going to be a buffet, sort of," said Happy when she had introduced him to the others. "We'd love having you."

"Of course, do stay," urged the others politely, but their voices hinted plainly that they'd enjoy it a lot better if he didn't.

he confided. "She's quite sure that you and I are about to start a high old battle royal about the attentions of the elegant Mr. Harrell—and she couldn't be more wrong, could she?"

Happy carved away at the roast turkey and Steve watched her for a moment.

"You like Harrell, don't you, Happy?" he asked at last. The carving knife slipped and Happy looked up at him.

"Of course I do. I think he's very nice—I had a grand time last night. He told me a lot about his place and Guale, the island."

"Parading his possessions and his ancient history, eh? There was a faint, not too pleasant edge to his tone, and Happy's eyes blazed.

"That's a hateful thing to say," she said hotly. "I asked him."

"Of course," said Steve mildly. For a moment she regarded him almost sternly. And then Steve reached into his pocket, pulled out a folded white handkerchief, shook out the folds, and waved it in silent token of surrender. Happy laughed at him and said helplessly, "Oh, you— and went back to her carving."

EARLY in January, the buzzer above Happy's door summoned her to the telephone downstairs, and the voice that spoke in her ears was George Harrell's. She was excited, breathless, and her voice shook a little as he identified himself needlessly.

"I came up unexpectedly on a business trip," he explained. "And I thought possibly you might have an evening free and we could do the town."

"I'd like that." "Then tonight? Or is that too short notice?" She laughed breathlessly.

"Oh, I'm not that popular; I quite often have an evening free without previous arrangement." "Good!" he said heartily; so heartily that her color deepened. "In an hour, then?"

"An hour," she echoed, and raced upstairs and into her own apartment, so excited that Timmy stirred from his contented slumber and eyed her suspiciously.

Huge Saint Bernard Dog Town's Problem

FARMINGTON, Con. (UP) — Humane officials at Farmington wonder what to do with their problem child—a huge Saint Bernard dog.

The lost animal put a big dent in town funds with his ravenous appetite soon after the dog warden brought him in. Advertisements have failed to find the owner of the good-natured monster, who shows his exuberance by bounding about in his kennel, breaking windows and shaking the foundation. Head Dog Warden William Christensen had only this comment: "How could anyone lose a thing like that?"

The nation's 1947 honey crop was about two per cent below that of last year and 10 per cent behind the all-time mark set in 1945.

FROM FILES OF THE TELEGRAM OF OCT. 4, 1928:
 The ninth annual Flower Show of the Civic League and Garden club of Eastland offered an unusual collection of ferns and flowers in competition for the prize money donated by the professional men of Eastland and the blue, red and white ribbons indicating first, third and second class handsomely lettered in gold with the Civic League's title, given by the league.

Ralph Crouch, John Mouser, and Harold Smith make up the committee to arrange the program to be presented Monday at the regular meeting and luncheon of the Eastland Rotary Club.

The hearing began in Dallas Friday before the director of motor transportation division of the State Railroad commission on the application of Frank Robertson of Eastland, operator of a bus line between Eastland and Dublin, to put on a second bus schedule to leave Eastland at 4:20 each afternoon, was continued until November 26, at which time the hearing will be resumed at Austin.

That portion of the City of Ranger's paving program which included West Main street to Mountain Avenue; thence to where the street joins the Eastland-Breckenridge highway, was blocked Saturday when Judge Elzo Peen of the 88th District Court rendered judgment in favor of the Hodges Estate, plaintiffs in a case naming the City of Ranger, and members of the City commission and W. E. Burke, paving contractor, as defendants.

The Eastland county commissioners, Monday, Nov. 12, will receive and open bids for furniture and fixtures for the new Eastland County Courthouse.

The following fifty persons have been drawn to service as jurors in the 91st district court

New Manganese Source Called World's Richest

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (UP)—The vast Hale-Etowah mineral properties in southeastern Bartow and western Cherokee Counties near here contain the richest manganese in the world, according to assay reports.

The surveys were made for one of the district's largest landown- ers, W. R. Hale of New York, who plans to open up mineral resources in this area backed by North- ern and Midwestern capital. State Geologist Garland Peyton calls the properties "a mineral empire" whose resources cannot be worked out or exhausted in 50 to -60 years.

The Car and it's Companion —
 The automobile is useless and harmless without the driver. With the driver it may become most useful but never harm- less. No operator of an automobile ever realizes his responsi- bility to the public until he has a wreck. Then it dawns on him that he is living in a world with other people who have plenty of personal and property rights. So if you drive, drive carefully but never without adequate insurance protection.

But Ike No Like

Peggy Frebault, secretary for the "Draft Eisenhower for President League," displays a poster-sized picture of the "I Like Ike" buttons expected to flood the country soon. But General Eisenhower, through Maj-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Army chief of public informa- tion, deplered the formation of "Ike-for-President" clubs, saying he "has no interests or intentions of entering political life or of being a candidate for any office."

Eyes Bigger Than Stomachs Cited As One Cause Of U. S. Food Waste

By Rounelle Martin
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 ATLANTA, Ga. (UP)— Mrs. S. R. Dull, for more than 50 years among the country's sharpest cooks, contends that one cause of so much waste in the kitchen is that our eyes are bigger than our stomachs.

She suggested a "table level" rather than a "White House level" food saving program.

Mrs. Dull, who at 84, is still queen of the kitchen wherever she goes, is not enthusiastic about the overall chances of President Truman's wasteless program.

"People are just selfish," she said in an interview. "Some of the folks will save, but there are enough greedy ones to grab what's left."

Food conservation, she said, must be an individual thing to be played like an exciting game like that, said Mr. Dull. Judicious purchases and wise preparations of food dishes are suggestions from the kitchen queen on how to pull back some of the dollars now going into the inflated food market.

Some free ideas from the lady who usually gets well paid for menu advice:

1. Several time a week, make it a point to shop for the cheaper cuts of meat (if there's any left by the time this is read.) Cook under a slow flame—that's the secret of making cheap cuts taste good.
2. Short ribs of beef is a good buy.
3. Call it what you will but try some old-fashioned hash on your family occasionally. It makes left overs disappear deliciously. To be tempting, hash must never be prepared white and pasty, but richly brown with a tangy saucy taste.
4. Black-eyed peas are rich in protein and provide one of our best substitutes for meat. Bean soup is delicious and nutritious.
5. Canned milk has not advanced in price as much as fresh milk. Cook with the canned variety—if you think it's not as good it's just an idea—and save the fresh for drinking.

Heartsease

WILL YOU WRITE ME?

Even a columnist has her doubting moments! Right now, I'm wondering what you think of me? You out there... I'm always wondering about you. Some of you I know, but it isn't possible to know all of you. I wish it were. You know how it is to wonder, don't you? You understand why I want to know what you think of me... this column... the words I write. Are we good friends, as I hope we are? I like you a lot more than you know anything about. I'm wistfully wondering if you like me, too. Do these words mean anything to you? Had you rather I wouldn't write them? Would you like me to write something else? I'm asking seriously. I'm just like you are... curious... sometimes a little timid... and right now badly in need of a word from you. Will you do something for me? Will each and every one of you, when you put this paper down tonight, go over to your desk and write me a card or a letter? Don't pull any punches... if you like this column, say so; if you don't like it, tell me. Please... I'll be waiting. Will you write me? Tonight or in the morning? "Elsie Glenn, Eastland, Texas." I want so much to hear from you.

SOCIETY

Former Eastland Girl Marries At Anson, Oct. 23

Anne Harrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Harrell of Anson, formerly of Eastland, became the bride of Robert Pence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Pence of Anson, Oct. 23 in the First Baptist church.

The pastor, the Rev. H. M. Chambers, read the double ring ceremony before an altar before an archway banked with huckleberry leaves and western fern. Trailing from the archway on either side were draped garlands of plumosus fern to the white and gold candelabra, which held tall white tapers. The garlands connected to matching upright baskets which held arrangements of white gladioluses, huckleberry leaves, and plumosus fern.

Floor baskets containing arrangements of white chrysanthemums were beneath the garlands. Preceding the wedding, Mrs. Eugene Pittard, pianist, played a medley of love songs, including Moonlight Sonata, Ava Maria, and To a Wild Rose. As the candles were being lighted she played the Rosary. Mrs. Pittard accompanied Mrs. Lester Morton, who sang Because and One Alone.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length dress of white crepe with satin peplums and mitts, and white sequined colot with shoulder length veil. She carried an arm bouquet of snow white gladioluses with white satin bow and steamers.

Mrs. John C. Hays of Graham was her sister's matron of honor. Clara Jane Harrell, sister of the bride, and Ruth Michaels of Brownwood, were bridesmaids. The bridal attendants wore velvet dresses of brown, rose and aqua with matching mitts and head bands.

They carried white bouquets of yellow pom pom chrysanthemums showered with yellow satin streamers. Bill Pence, Jr., was his brother's best man. Ushers were Charles McCreight and Bill Hawkins.

Mrs. Pence, a graduate of Anson high school, received her degree in home economics last June at Texas Technological. She is now teaching in the Anson public schools.

Mr. Pence, also a graduate of Anson high school, attended John Tarleton college and the University of Texas. He served in the Air Corps for more than two years.

Immediately after the wedding, a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrell.

Mrs. A. L. Stell greeted guests, who were received by Mrs. George Harrell, the bride and bridegroom Mr. and Mrs. Bob Pence; Mrs. John C. Hays, Ruth Michaels, Clara Jane Harrell and Mrs. Will Pence.

Mrs. Eugene Pittard played piano selections during the reception. Mrs. O. D. Weathersbee of Rotan and Mrs. W. B. Hagens served the three tiered cake. Mrs. E. M. Pittman ladled punch. Others assisting in the dining room were Mmes. Joe Freed, Wesley Beasley, Henry Fry and Tula Sanders.

Mrs. W. C. Saladin presided at the bride's book.

Immediately after the reception the couple left for a short trip to San Antonio and Austin. For traveling the bride wore a brown stripe suit with brown accessories and yellow corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Pence are living in Anson.

Rock City's Wonders To Be Re-Opened

OLEAN, N.Y. (UP)—One of the world's most breath-taking natural rock formations—Rock City, five miles south of here—will be reopened to tourists next spring for the first time in 35 years.

The rocks, said to have formed 160,000,000 years ago, were visited by thousands of tourists at the turn of the century. The park on the site fell into disuse, however, when street car excursions to the area were abandoned.

W. J. Finch and C. W. Allen, both of Erie, Pa., recently purchased the park and are planning a highway into the area. They said they would illuminate the rocks at night next year.
