Knutson Fails To Get Tax Cuts On Agenda

That Reminds Me

BY FRANK R. JONES

HOW DEEP IS A WELL?

The following article was prepared for the oil industry by the American Petroleum Institute: In Caddo county, Oklahoma, drillers have sunk a well almost three and a half miles deep—17,823 feet to be exact—in search of oil. That's a far cry from 1,859, when America's first well came in at 69 feet.

Wells go deeper every year. Today they average 3,500 feet. More than a half dozen holes have been drilled below 15,000 feet, but so far the deepest production is from 12,778 feet. This year the industry plans to sink about 35,000 new shafts to an aggregate depth of more than 100 million feet. That's the same as drilling two and a half times completely through the earth.

Drilling for oil three miles down presents major problems. Hunting for a needle in a haystack is easy compared to the job of fishing a broken drill out of such a shaft. Sometimes it takes months. Or it can't be done at all. Then the well has to be abandoned. (Such wells often cost hundreds of thousands of dollars).

For another thing, the bottom a hole gets one degree hotter for each 60 feet of depth. In one three mile well a thermometer registered 380 degrees—168 degrees hotter than boiling water. Money For Mud

Naturally a deep-going drill gets pretty hot. To lubricate and cool it—as well as to carry it—oil won't do, and to carry it out the cutting, and to keep the well from blowing out if a high pressure gas pocket is struck—a force pump circulates thick goey mud in and out of the well. That mud is sometimes special mixed as carefully as the bread mother used to bake. Cost a mint of money, too. Last year the oil industry spent ten million dollars just for mud.

This year, America's 13,475 production companies plan to drill about 5,000 wildcats, or exploratory shafts. On an average, only one out of eight or nine of such wells turn out to be a producer. Thousands of geologists and geophysicists are scouting remote parts of the country to find where oil is most likely to be located. But the only way to find oil is to drill for it.

Oil men can be proud that, though the demand for petroleum products is the highest in history, wildcat drillers have seen to it that America's proved resources—deserves we know—are under ground—are larger than ever before.

The United States already has produced more than 24 billion barrels of oil. But we know we have 24 billion barrels more in the ground. And geologists say we can find at least another 50 billion barrels. Some of it will be at great depth, but modern deep drilling will reach it.

Drillers Throw Curves

It is now possible to sink an oil well which goes sideways faster than it goes downward! Originally, wells were crooked for the simple reason that drillers had no way of keeping them straight. That caused a lot of legal embarrassment when a hole would start on one lease and end up under another. Now a photographic device has been developed which provides an accurate chart of the straightness or curvature of the well as it is drilled. Normal as a die.

Ingenuity Pays Off

Intentionally curved holes are being used today to reach oil pools lying under marshes, rivers, steep hills or the edge of the sea. They also are employed to avoid disturbing church yards, existing buildings and the like. Such wells are expensive but they pay off by tapping rich deposits which otherwise might not be reached.

Drillers do not put kinks in their wells with out good reason—the six inch steel drill pipe prevents that instead they use special (Continued on Page 4)

Cries Out In Anguish

Richard and Robert Shafer, older sons of Mrs. Fellick, comfort their mother as Mrs. Michalek held her son, Gerald. (NEA Telephoto).

U. S. TOURIST DOLLARS SOUGHT TO BOLSTER LATIN AMERICA

MEXICO CITY (UP)—United States and Latin American business men are going into partnership to keep the flow of tourist dollars, diverted from Europe during the war, moving into Central and South America by promoting a "great circle tour" of the southern continent.

Impetus for the drive comes from the Inter-Continental Hotel Co., which is joining forces with Latin American capital to build hotels in 11 cities on the route of the "circle tour." Inter-Continental is a subsidiary of Pan American World Airways.

Fyron Calhoun, vice president of Inter-Continental, said money for construction of the hotels would be furnished by local capital in each city and the U. S. Export-Import Bank on a 50-50 basis. Each hotel will be leased to Inter-Continental, he said, until the Export-Import Bank has been paid off in each case. Inter-Continental will furnish the operating capital.

"We expect the investment in construction of the hotels in the only 4,241 women worked in 11 cities to total $75,000,000," Calhoun said.

He revealed that the project is one which originally was fostered by the late President Roosevelt as a part of his program to improve relations between the American countries.

"The Export-Import Bank is for it," he said, "because the plan will attract legitimately American dollars to countries which need them and, there fore, will reduce by that amount the necessity for loans."

He said the hotels will be built in Mexico City, Guatemala City,

Bogota, Caracas, Quito, Lima, Santiago, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. Work already has started in some cities, and negotiations for local capital still are in progress in others, he said.

Meanwhile, H. F. Dugan, president of the American Hotelman's Association, and his organization hoped to start a promotion campaign to encourage travel through out the Americas.

"Travel of any kind is to our advantage," he explained. "Our members in the United States benefit from travel abroad because, no matter where people are going, they must use our hotels before they leave the country and when they return."

The association includes members in Mexico, Alaska, Canada and Hawaii.

Calhoun said the Latin American hotels planned by his company will "include the best of United States hotel ideas and the best of local ideas."

Final Draft Of Meat Ordinance Now Being Drawn

Final draft of the meat inspection ordinance passed last Tuesday night by the Eastland City Commission at a special session, is now being prepared by attorneys, City Manager Hari O'Brien told the Telegram this morning, and would be ready for publication within a few days.

Asked who sponsored the passing of the meat inspection ordinance, City Manager O'Brien said he could not say just who could be considered as sponsors. He said that among those present at the special meeting of the commission at which the ordinance was passed, were L. E. McGraw, president of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce; H. J. Tanner, secretary - manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. Kenneth W. Cowan, and Dr. Patterson. City Commissioners present, O'Brien stated, were Blevins, Uffelman and Lucas. No local butchers, or meat dealers, were present at the Tuesday night session, O'Brien said.

The live snakes George Sinclair ships to a southern company where the venom is extracted. Others he sends to taxidermists and skin collectors.

Sinclair uses the simplest equipment to trap the poisonous reptiles: a length of gas pipe with a coiled loop pulled through. Sinclair has taken as many as 100 rattlers in a day.

Robert L. English, Jr., until recently editor of the Brady, Texas, Standard, has purchased an interest in the Eastland County Record, weekly newspaper published in Eastland by H. G. Vermillion, and has entered upon his duties as advertising manager and reporter, Publisher Vermillion announced in today's issue.

A native of Brownwood, English is the son of a retired Baptist minister, member of the Baptist church, Rotary club and Junior Chamber of Commerce. He is married and he and his wife have one child, a two year old boy. He was in service during the late war and is a reserve captain in the Medical Administrative Corps.

Mrs. Durham Home From Austin; Will Return For Meet

Mrs. Harold H. Durham, who has been in Austin the past week attending a meeting of the Texas State Text Book Board, will be home today (Friday) and Saturday. She will return to Austin in time to be present at a dinner to be given at the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs home Sunday honoring the State Board of Education members.

Mrs. Durham is a member of the Text Book Committee.

Cant Sell 'Em, Cant Feed 'Em So They Ship 'Em

WASHINGTON — The battle of the poultryless Thursday was being fought with live chickens on the banks of the Potomac today.

But top diplomats from the poultry industry disavowed the whole thing as "unauthorized guerrilla warfare."

The squawking chickens were being killed almost as fast as they were being shipped in from irate producers in upper New York State.

Some 13 crates containing about 80 chickens were shipped to the White House and to Chairman Charles Luckman of the President's food committee with telegrams which said in effect—

"We can't sell 'em and we can't feed 'em. You can have them."

Within hours after the first chickens arrived, the most commonly heard slogans in Washington were "Hens for Harry" and "Leghorns for Luckman."

The White House sent its three crates to Walter Reed Hospital. The food committee arranged with express company officials to have all chickens addressed to Luckman delivered to the Salvation Army.

Band Boosters To Meet Monday Night At 7:30

The Band Booster Club meeting scheduled for Tuesday night, November 11, will be held Monday night instead due to the fact that Tuesday is Armistice Day.

The meeting Monday night will be held at the usual time 7:30 at the Eastland High School Auditorium.

The Eastland band was complimented recently in a letter from William H. Howard, former director and teacher of music at Daniel Baker College Brownwood and Texas Wesleyan College at Ft. Worth, who wrote:

"I was amazed at the amount of progress the members of the Eastland band has made in so short a time. Director Atwood has accomplished as much within a few weeks as might be expected in a year."

Locker Plant Has Order For Eight Hundred Turkeys

J. O. Earnest, owner and operator of the frozen food locker plant in Eastland, states that this week his plant filled an order for 800 Eastland county grown turkeys. The birds, he stated, brought raisers about $7 apiece, or a total of some $5,600.

Earnest stated that many people in this area had gotten out of the habit of raising turkeys and chickens for market because of the lack of sufficient market. But the market is here now he said.

The land surface of Asia is almost twice that of North America.

Dr. Glenn E. Snow, president of the National Education Association, will speak at the three-day meeting of the Texas State Teachers Association to be held in San Antonio, November 27, 28, 29.

Veterans Urged Meet At 10:15 A. M. Tuesday

The Armistice Day parade, which will be a part of the program sponsored by the American Legion, will be led by the Eastland High School band. The parade will form at the Connellee hotel, where the band will give a short concert and from there proceed to the southwest corner of the Eastland county courthouse lawn where a wreath of flowers will be placed on the Soldier's Memorial Fountain by a representative of the Eastland Civic League and Garden Club, sponsor of the fountain erected following World War I.

Rev. J. B. Blank, pastor of the First Christian Church of Eastland, will deliver an address at the Memorial Fountain following which taps will be sounded, closing the program.

Officials of the local American Legion Post stress the fact that all veterans of any and all wars, whether they belong to any veterans organization or not, are invited and urged to gather at the Connellee Hotel at 10:15 A. M.

Commodity Prices Still Climbing

WASHINGTON — The agriculture Department reported today that commodity prices are continuing their third general advance since the summer of 1946.

"Although prices have climbed less rapidly recently than they did early this year and in the fall of 1946, the persistence of the increase shows that the danger of a faster and very serious inflation is still present," the Bureau of Agricultural Economics said in a report on the demand-and-price situation.

The largest Balsam fir on record in America is in Pocomoke City, Md. It stands 75 feet, has a spread of 41 feet and a circumference of 7 feet, 7 inches at breast height.

Current Drouth May Equal Any Of Past Years

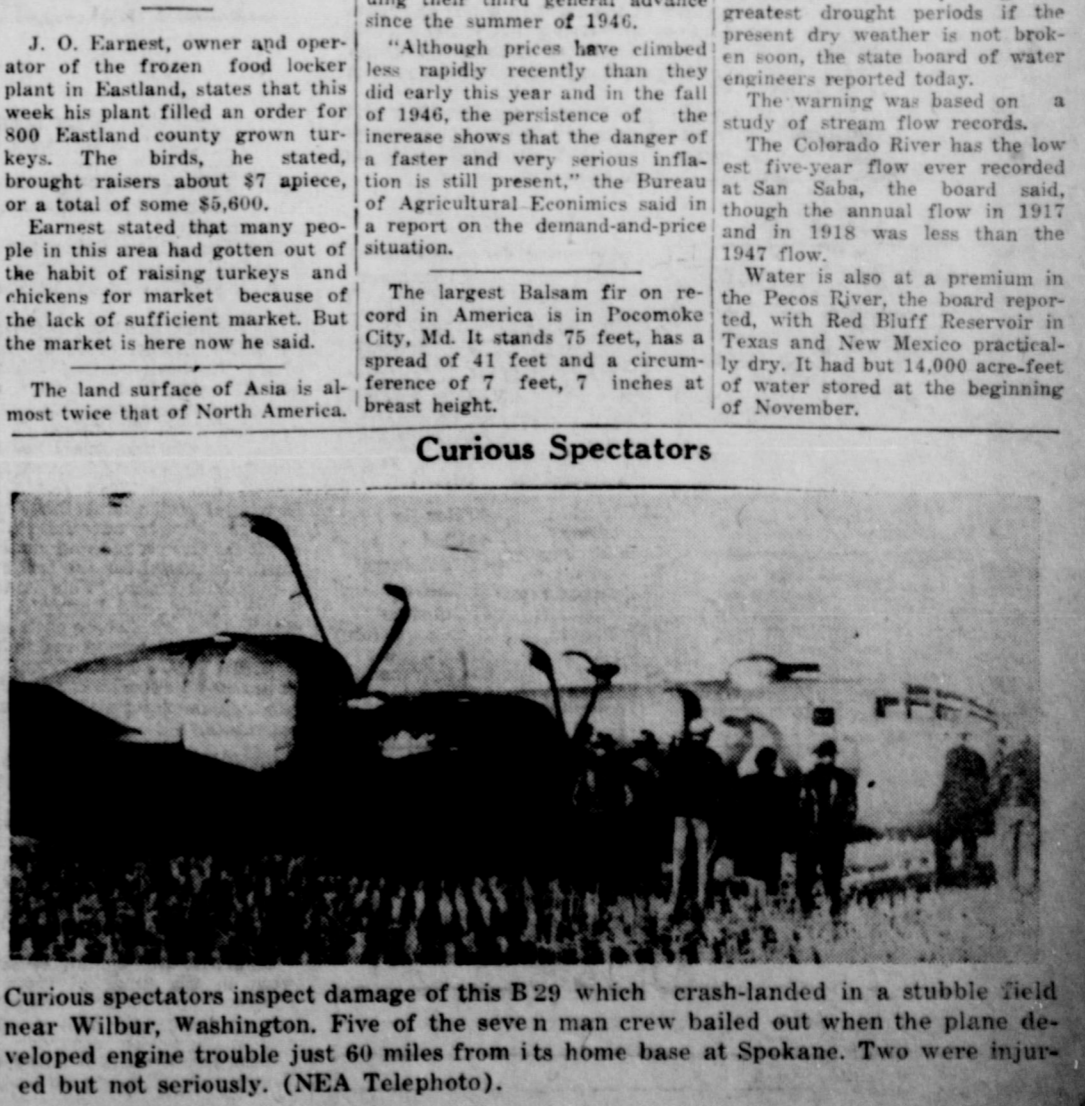

AUSTIN, Tex. — Texas is threatened with equalling its greatest drought periods if the present dry weather is not broken soon, the state board of water engineers reported today.

The warning was based on a study of stream flow records.

The Colorado River has the lowest five-year flow ever recorded at San Saba, the board said, though the annual flow in 1917 and in 1918 was less than the 1947 flow.

Water is also at a premium in the Pecos River, the board reported, with Red Bluff Reservoir in Texas and New Mexico practically dry. It had but 14,000 acre-feet of water stored at the beginning of November.

Curious Spectators

WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(NEA)—Four apparently unrelated things now need to be brought together for a closer look in proper perspective.

First is the "Freedom Train," now touring the country, pulling up on sidings to let the people have a look at the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights and other sacred documents which guarantee Americans their liberties.

Second is the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which is currently conducting a probe to determine the extent of Communist thought infiltration in Hollywood and the moving picture industry.

Third is the loyalty investigation of all government employees now being conducted by the FBI.

Fourth is a 178-page Blue Book report, just released by the President's Committee on Civil Rights, chaired by Charles E. Wilson of General Electric.

The Freedom Train and the Un-American Activities Committee are not mentioned in the Civil Rights Blue Book. But they fit in. Main purpose of this Blue Book is "to discover wherein, and to what extent, we are presently failing to live up to . . . the heritage of freedom and equality for all men, sometimes called 'the American Way' of life.

In general, the Blue Book finds that "Americans worship as they choose. Our press is freer from governmental restraints than any other world has ever seen. Our citizens are normally free to express their right to speak without fear, to assemble for unlimited public discussion."

But the President's Committee points out that the most immediate threat to these freedoms is indirect. It comes from two groups who refuse to accept democracy—Communists and native Fascists.

"The same zeal must be shown in defending our democracy against one group as against the other," says the President's Committee. But their Report on Civil Liberties opposes, without qualification, any attempts to put special limitations on these people to speak and assemble.

Now this is where the House Committee on Un-American Activities fits in. Out of a threat "of clear and present danger," as the late Justice Holmes called it, the House Un-American Activities Committee has moved in to stop the Communists from bringing about "the evils that Congress has a right to prevent."

A STATE of near-hysteria now threatens to inhibit the freedom of genuine democrats," the President's Committee declares. "Irresponsible opportunists who make it a practice to attack every person or group with whom they disagree as 'Communists' have thereby aided their supposed 'enemies.'"

The Blue Book recognizes the need for the government to have in its employ only persons of recognized loyalty. Because Communists and other subversives conceal their affiliations until they have done serious damage, it is necessary to have the loyalty of all federal employees checked by security police agencies.

"Yet our whole civil liberties history provides us with a clear warning against the possible misuse of loyalty checks to inhibit freedom of opinion and expression," says the Blue Book in another section. "An employee whose loyalty is questioned is not charged with a crime. But loss of job and inability to obtain another one is a severe punishment to impose on any man. Accordingly, provision should be made for such traditional safeguards as the right to a bill of accusations, the right to subpoena witnesses and documents where security considerations permit, the right to be represented by counsel, the right to a stenographic report of proceedings, the right to a written decision and the right of appeal."

To rally the American people to support and strengthen their civil rights, the President's Committee recommends a long-term campaign of public education. A visit to the Freedom Train should offer the best possible first lesson to such a course in liberty.

MAURELIO is optimistic, however, and why not, as long as he is being paid. "This is like the World Series," he says, "best four of seven. Lesnevich is three up on me now, but all I needed in our last fight at Ebbets Field in August was one hit by Cookie Lavagetta and I'd have copped the duke."

Sitts believed his reaction was not basically different from those of others who have found themselves in a like position . . . I am inclined to believe that all those outstanding figures of history who are reputed to have met death fearlessly, such as Nathan Hale and Joan of Arc, have in reality practiced a little deception upon their followers. They would have been able to do as well if they had been executed for the foulest of crimes . . ."

NEW YORK, Oct. 60—(NEA)—The rodeo having bulled its way out of Madison Square Garden, the fight game, or what is left of it, moves back.

The commission fining the 20th Century Sporting Club and its matchmaker and suspending the latter obviously hasn't helped a bit.

Sol Strauss, battling for the ailing Mike Jacobs, picks up right where the beak-busting business left off—with that old tried and true number featuring Gus Lesnevich and Tami Mauriello.

Had not the war interfered and sent light-heavyweight leader Lesnevich into the Coast Guard, the Roaring Russian and the Bronx pub proprietor by now undoubtedly would have a running start toward the record for the length of a pugilistic series. This is their fourth outing, and Lesnevich has grabbed the decision on each occasion.

The celebrated resident of Cliffside, N. J., knows Tami like he knows his favorite big punching bag, which the spaghetti burner resembles.

This Is Happy

By PEGGY DERN

By Peggy Dern; Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Happy Brandon has just gotten a job as secretary to Steve Landers, hard-bitten war correspondent and prophet of doom. Steve prefers working in Happy's one-room apartment to his own office. At a cocktail party, Happy meets George Harrell, southern aristocrat and cautious favorite. Steve seems jealous when Harrell takes Happy to dinner. But Harrell's interest in Happy appears casual until the day he brings his mother and sister to call on her. They invite her to spend the month of February on their estate in Guale. Happy accepts, Steve says he'll go on a lecture tour the month she is away.

A WEEK later, she was summoned to the telephone, to hear Mrs. Harrell's voice inviting her to tea; and she flew upstairs to dress very carefully, grateful all over again for the mink coat.

Mrs. Harrell was waiting for her when she arrived at the hotel, and apologized for Joyce's absence. When they were settled and had ordered, Mrs. Harrell said, smiling, "I'm so glad you are coming down to Guale, Happy. We're looking forward to it."

Happy beamed. "So am I, Mrs. Harrell. It's lovely of you to have me."

Mrs. Harrell smiled. "I thought you might be worrying about clothes, Happy. You'll need little except cotton dresses."

"Cottons in February! It sounds tropical!"

Mrs. Harrell laughed. "Well not quite that, though we are in a sheltered position where we miss the cold. Anyway, if you bring cottons and perhaps a light wrap for chilly nights, you'll be quite comfortable."

They chatted for a while on impersonal subjects, and then Mrs. Harrell said unexpectedly, "George is very fond of you, Happy."

Warm color stained Happy's cheeks, but before she could say anything Mrs. Harrell went on hurriedly, "I try to make it a practice never to meddle in other people's affairs, Happy, but George is—rather special. I hope you won't—hurt him."

"I hope so, too, Mrs. Harrell. I like him a lot!" said Happy sincerely and simply.

George's mother smiled at her, but Happy thought there was a hint of anxiety in her eyes.

"Good! Then we'll leave it at that—shall we?" Mrs. Harrell said briskly as she rose. "We shall expect you at Guale on Thursday, then."

It was odd, Happy thought soberly, hurrying home through the dusk; she had expected opposition and distrust from George's mother, but she was finding an almost eager cooperation. Mrs. Harrell wanted Happy to like George!

HAPPY never forgot her first sight of Guale. They had left New York very early that morning, and there had been a snow-storm in the night. The wind was bitterly cold as they walked from the taxi to the private plane that George had chartered, and Timmy, unhappy and irritable in his haste some traveling case, gave vent to a loud, angry "mooow" before the door of the plane opened to receive them. As the plane rose into the air, a snow-covered world beneath a gray, leaden sky, dropped away from them. And yet, only five hours later, when the plane circled in for a landing, she saw velvety green, the tops of tall green trees, a golden-yellow beach with the blue-gray water breaking in feathery whitecaps on its glistening surface. The sun was setting and the whole world was one vast panorama of golden light and green trees and grass.

She looked about her in wonder and delight as they alighted from the plane and crossed to the gate beyond which Mrs. Harrell and Joyce, in light summery dresses with soft white coats draped about their shoulders, awaited them.

There were warm greetings, and then Mrs. Harrell led them to a maroon-and-maple-finished station wagon. She slipped beneath the wheel, and Joyce got in beside her. George helped Happy into the back, placing Timmy's traveling case between them, and the car started off.

THE airport left behind, they entered a wide, paved road bordered on each side by jungle; ancient live-oak trees that lifted enormous branches the thickness of a man's body, most of the branches draped with long, silvery festoons of Spanish moss that stirred in the faint salt-tangy wind.

At a wide fork with a triangular park in the center, the station wagon turned left, and a moment later Happy saw a low white-washed brick wall and squat, substantial brick pillars on either side of a wide white drive. Atop each of the pillars there was an antique brass ship's lantern, and fastened to one pillar was a polished brass sign that said simply, "Sundown."

They drove through the open gate and along the white drive between a double row of the live oaks that were like guards holding back the thickly pressing jungle growth; and then the drive split into a circle surrounding a beautiful velvety lawn, in the center of which stood an ancient stone sundial. And beyond was the house.

Happy caught her breath, and Madeline Harrell slowed the car so that the visitor might look it in. For it was an unforgettable sight. The house was wide, two-storied in the center, with the wings curving slightly and only one story high. Painted white, glistening a little in the dying sunlight, it seemed almost to float in the golden air, so exquisite balanced in line and contour. Steps went up in a graceful circle from either side, meeting before the tall white door with its beautiful fanlight. Happy was enchanted.

"Oh," she said, "Oh, it's like something in a dream!"

Voodoo Still Scares New Orleans

By Charles Nethaway
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A New Orleans housewife who found three pieces of cake under her doorstep didn't even look back. She went straight to St. Louis Cemetery No 2 and scratched a sign off the cross on the tomb of Marie Laveau.

It was the only thing to do, she said. Her neighbors and certain policemen agreed.

The cake meant voodoo. The cake was gris-gris, or a manifestation of the kind of hocus-pocus brought by slaves from Africa. Police figured at once that since the housewife was a landlady, one of her tenants was trying to voodoo her because she had filed an eviction notice.

Marie Laveau practiced voodoo in the 1830s. But she was still a power in her tomb today, still able to overcome the power of a bona-fide gris-gris.

St. John the Baptist was still mixed into voodoo activity in New Orleans, though his connection with the mysterious stuff never has been explained. Gris-gris usually was traceable to Negroes, but at least one city detective said white practitioners had been found.

A genuine gris-gris can be almost anything. It can be a hideous monster made from candle grease and match sticks, or pennies in a circle. But whatever form it takes it bodes nothing but ill will for its victim, usually death.

Voodoo does not always deal with death, however. Big handsome, banana-colored Marie Laveau reportedly used it to round up a houseful of husbands.

Standing Pat on a Good Pair

Little Joe Marino, of San Francisco, doesn't seem a bit awed by Bob and Dick, giant Belgian draft horses that tower over him. The handsome team is an entry in the San Francisco Cow Palace's Livestock Exposition.

Along South Rampa street today, a man with a dollar still can buy a box of "stay at home" or "leave me" powder, each of which has voodoo beginnings. But on Bayou St. John, nobody there takes baths in the blood of a chicken, or mixes rum with wine, Marie did both.

Oldest Newsboy, 93, Weds Bride of 35

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UP)—The oldest newsboy in the world, 93-year-old George L. (Dad) Howe—is off on another journey—over the sea of matrimony.

Last fall, Dad left here on a trip to the West Coast, but he was stricken ill in Lafayette, La., and returned home with funds contributed by Savannah residents.

Now after a six-months courtship, he is married to Willie E. Lord, 35.

Soviet Scientists Turn Quicksand Into Stone

LONDON (UP)—Soviet scientists after long research have succeeded in converting quicksand into solid foundations for buildings or preventing its formation under existing buildings, Radio Moscow reports.

The method consists of introducing under pressure two solutions—the so-called "liquid glass" and calcium chloride—into the sand. The first, the radio report said, displaces water from the sand and envelops the sand grains, and the second, reacting with the liquid glass, forms a hard compound which solidifies the ground. Within ten days the quicksand is converted into artificial sandstone hardly distinguishable from the natural variety.

FAULTY BITE FOUND OFTEN CAUSE FOR POOR HEARING

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Approximately 40 per cent of the 10,000,000 persons in the nation suffering from impaired hearing could be helped by a visit to their dentists, Dr. David J. Goodfriend of the University of Pennsylvania believes.

Studies at the university's special ear and throat clinic showed that an abnormal dental bite can be an outstanding cause of faulty hearing, Dr. Goodfriend said in a report published by the American Medical Association.

The studies proved, he said, that dental malocclusion (faulty bite) directly affects the eustachian tube, connecting the inner ear with the throat.

Of a group of 25 patients with hearing complaints who showed no abnormalities of the ear itself, 23 were found to have an abnormal bite, he said. In another test, 55 per cent of a group of 168 dental students showed dental malocclusions and their hearing was 13 per cent less than those having normal bites.

The progressive adult type of deafness, responsible in 70 per cent of all cases, previously was considered incurable, but the studies showed that proper dental treatment will help even progressive deafness of short duration, Dr. Goodfriend asserted. In older cases, the rate of deterioration can be slowed.

NEW WAY FOUND TO RELIEVE HERNIA IN OLDER PEOPLE

CHICAGO (UP)—Science now has promise of permanent relief for elderly persons suffering from hernia.

Surgery still is necessary, but the repair job is thorough and effective, thanks to the careful experimentation of two Chicago doctors, Raymond W. McNealy and Jacob A. Glasman.

They discovered that in older persons particularly, the abdominal wall tissues near a hernia were worn to a point where repair became difficult.

Doctors for a time tried grafting skin, but the results often left a lot to be desired.

So McNealy and Glasman devised their own method. They employed a laboratory to make for them what are known as vitallium plates, which are stitched to live tissue.

Vitallium, they found, was one repair item which did not fight with the secretions or organs of the body, as do other unsatisfactory metallic substances.

Vitallium is the trade-name given to an alloy whose approximate composition is cobalt 65 per cent, chromium 30 per cent, and molybdenum 5 per cent.

It first was developed as a dental alloy which was resistant to the corrosive action of saliva.

The Chicago physicians explained that the new plates are designed for those hernias which do not offer themselves to the usual methods of repair.

McNealy explained that the repair is used in older persons only because the aged are less active. He doubted if younger persons would be benefited because extreme exertion probably would tear the stitches.

In a large number of cases of such surgery in older persons, he said, the rehabilitation has been complete and no additional surgery was necessary.

The Car and it's Companion —
The automobile is useless and harmless without the driver. With the driver it may become most useful but never harmless. No operator of an automobile ever realizes his responsibility to the public until he has a wreck. Then it dawns on him that he is living in a world with other people who have plenty of personal and property rights. So if you drive, drive carefully but never without adequate insurance protection.

Fifteen Thousand Teachers Likely To Attend Meet
Fifteen thousand teachers will meet in San Antonio on November 27-28-29 for the Sixty-ninth Annual Meeting of the Texas State Teachers Association. The three-day program will open Thanksgiving Day with services held in conjunction with the annual community service of the San Antonio Council of Churches.

Three general sessions for the group will present such speakers as Congressman Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer of the Washington Post, Dr. A. J. Stoddard of Philadelphia, Dr. L. D. Haske of the University of Texas, and Dr. Glenn E. Snow, president of the National Education Association.

Fifty section meetings are scheduled for groups of specific interests. Colorful entertainment is being planned for the visiting educators by the San Antonio teachers. Business of the Association will be conducted by its Executive Committee and its House of Delegates.

Supt. Frank M. Jackson of San Angelo is president of the Texas State Teachers Association, and B. B. Cobb of Fort Worth is executive secretary. O. L. Stamey of Cisco is a member of the House of Delegates.

SPORTLIGHT

"Exercise! 1-2-3-4!" That's right, folks, you guessed it. Those words very often spoken by none other than our own assistant coach, Wendell Seibert.

Seibert is an ex-student of EHS Class of '34. Following his wonderful and memorable days in Eastland, he entered the University of Texas. (Yea Longhorns!) While there he majored in Physical Education and minored in the Social Sciences. So you see, folks that is why he is such a super, duper coach and knows his history, science, and especially Civics, Science being his favorite. After his graduation in 1939, he taught and coached at Lamesa High School for a year. Later he was a Recreation Supervisor and then a Civilian Physical Training Director for an A.A.F. Base. During the war Seibert served four years as Physical Training Officer in the A.A.F. Flying Training Command, 3rd Air Force. I tell you, folks, he really has a swell record, both in the service and at home.

While in the University, he was on the Varsity Track team, captain one year, Intramural tennis, played basketball, and football. OK! OK! folks! Here is what you've been waiting for a description of this swell guy and what he likes best.

Seibert is about 5 ft. 11 in. tall, and makes the scales jump to 150. He has black, wavy hair and hazel eyes.

It seems that he likes to "swing and sway, with Sammy Kaye." Red is tops on his list in the field of color.

Food! Food! Oh! how he likes to eat a nice, juicy, tender barbecued steak. Can't you just taste it now.

If he hears that "Butch" Jenkins is on at the movie, he'll be there in a flash right on the front row.

Most men have a hobby that they really enjoy and like to do in their spare time. Seibert is quite interested in hunting. Listen, boys, if you want some good pointers on the latest game in season and on how to find it, I'm sure he can help you out.

Another one of his hobbies is officiating football games. He is really good and a fair guy in any man's game. He is really an honest fellow.

Naturally, football is his favorite sport. He knows his business and is doing out the exercises that keeps our boys in such good shape.

When there is nothing else to do, he likes to sit back in a nice, comfortable chair, smoking his pipe, and reading a good book, be lazy.

His "girl" is the former Mary Lou Harbin. She is an EHS ex, too. Seibert, and Mary Lou have the most adorable little boy that you have ever seen. His name is "Mike". I imagine that very few of us students have seen him, but, you know, it would be nice for Mr. Seibert to bring him to school for a visit. More fun!

Yes, folks, he is really a wonderful person and a real friend to everyone who knows him. His friendship is one to be long treasured and remembered. When you are up on the hill just look around you can't miss him. Just look for a gang of kids, pipe smoke encircling a dark-haired man, and a deep voice chatting merrily with them. Let's wish all that this world can give to one who really deserves it, Wendell Seibert.

Yes, folks, he is really a wonderful person and a real friend to everyone who knows him. His friendship is one to be long treasured and remembered. When you are up on the hill just look around you can't miss him. Just look for a gang of kids, pipe smoke encircling a dark-haired man, and a deep voice chatting merrily with them. Let's wish all that this world can give to one who really deserves it, Wendell Seibert.

use of twirling. She has approximately six taking now but we hope more will become interested in it and come out and learn. She has won National Championship in Chicago twice and is very good with the baton.

HOMEMAKING

This week the homemaking girls have been learning how to really cook. We have had several laboratory lessons, and we have learned to cook breakfast muffins, made griddle cakes (hot cakes to you) and how to make tea. Also now to make good coffee with different utensils. This year all the Homemaking students are really enjoying the laboratory which was given a complete "going-over" this summer. Each table is equipped with a good supply of utensils and the stoves are wonderful. We all appreciate the work done, and we are all going to try to keep it in order at all times.

BOYS' HOMEMAKING

On Wednesday of last week in Boys' Homemaking Miss Morris gave a demonstration on how to make pie crusts and fillings properly. On Thursday the laboratory fairly hummed with boys laboriously preparing some pie crusts of their own. Friday they baked the pie crusts and fillings. The pies came out with golden brown meringue on top of them and with a taste fit for a king.

The boys all enjoy cooking and eating in homemaking and they agree that it will be a great help to them.

WORLD CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

The homemaking girls have contributed to the World Christmas festival again this year. This is an act for creating a friendly feeling between our girls and children of foreign countries. Nineteen Christmas wrapped packages were brought which contained forty-six gifts. They consisted of such things as crayons, mittens, sweaters, pencils, and scarfs, combs, mirrors, soap, and shoes.

Friendly letters were enclosed in many of the packages and we hope the people who receive the packages enjoy them as much as we did preparing them. We asked that our gifts be sent to the most needy country. This is the third year that gifts have been sent to the World Christmas Festival.

BIOLOGY FIELD TRIP

Miss Morris took her biology class on a field trip to study the ways living things protect themselves against other living things and the way plants prepare for the winter.

Animals which were found that resembled their surroundings and are thus protected were grasshoppers, rabbits, turtles, frogs, and butterflies.

The cactus has spines and some trees and bushes have thorns. Some of the plants are annuals and will live next year only because they have produced seeds that will come up next spring.

The class hoped they could get lost so they wouldn't have to come back for the next class, but they could not manage it.

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

"Oh! Oh! Oh!"—please stop. When you hear that screaming through the halls you know that someone has just tickled Marilyn Wittrup. Poor girl, she really does get it, but it's all in fun. Really, it is.

Marilyn reaches into this great world at the height of 5 ft. 3 in. She is really a very lovely and a d charming girl. We all just adore her.

Football is naturally her favorite sport, as is all loyal students of EHS, and she never misses a game. When we think of football, we next think of a band, and our new band is tops on her list, as well as ours.

Her hobby is going to the picture show, never misses a one, and Dana Andrews, swoon! and Ester Williams, hubba-hubba! are tops on her list of stars. Tommy Dorsey, that man with the trombone, playing "I Miss You So" is her dream song. Oh yes, her past time is day-dreaming. Of whom, we don't know.

English and P. E. are her favorite subjects and "Teach" Johnson is tops on her list of teachers. She just can't decide which she likes best, red or green. Marilyn looks wonderful in either color. Just any kind of food suits her fine. She can cook, too.

About four years ago Marilyn moved to Eastland from Missouri. Of course she likes Texas best, her "P" owns and operates "Wittrups' Flowers". "Say it with Flowers". (Plug).

She was herad in the coronation last fall and assistant business manager of the annual. This year we elected her as our Senior editor of the swell new 1948 Maverick. She is a Sub Deb, too.

Next fall Marilyn plans to go to college, where she can't decide, and study to be a laboratory technician. By then the right man will have come along and soon! she's married.

Well, folks, let's wish all the luck there is to a girl who deserves the best. She has personality, a plus. Best of luck always to our pal, Marilyn Wittrup.

Mrs. T. E. Richardson, president, presided over the business session and gave a report on the district federation convention in Abilene last week. Mrs. I. M. Herring gave the Junior Music day report.

Among those attending were Meses. Bob Vaught, Allen Dabney, T. E. Richardson, W. E. Wheeler, I. M. Herring, E. L. Whitcup, Fred Davenport, I. C. Inzer, W. F. Watkins, Joseph M. Perkins, D. L. Houde, Hollis Bennett, Prentiss Jones, Donald Kinnaird and new members: Mrs. W. J. Walters and Mrs. Murdock.

himself . . . to look as nice as he could?

But, of course, in our society, as constituted by us, there are those who have no shoes to polish, or if they have shoes, no money with which to buy polish. There are those of course, who do not brush their teeth because no one ever taught them to . . . those who no longer care enough to run a comb through their hair . . . or even to wash it.

But, even so, I say again: It does matter how we look. However we look represents what we are . . . what sort of people we are.

To glance at the people on the street of a town . . . a city . . . a hamlet . . . shows its rate of progress . . . its poverty . . . its hope . . . ambition . . . its wretchedness.

And someone is always looking. I give you my word: it matters terribly!

How we look. I looked at you yesterday. And somehow, I felt you were looking at me, too.

Arabian-American Oil Involved

Mr. D. E. Bodenschatz, a former Navy officer, testified before the Senate War Investigating Committee that the Arabian-American Oil Co. adopted a "take-it-or-leave-it" attitude in selling oil to the Navy at an excessive price during the war. The committee currently is studying the sale of oil by the Arabian-American Oil Co. (NEA Telephoto).

Good For Moving Trees Successfully

KENT, O. (UP)—Tree moving, like the oyster, is good in any month with an "R." It's even better than the oyster, because trees can be moved in May, as well.

But scientists of the Davey Tree Expert Co. here say it's best not to move trees during June, July, or August because of the difficulty of getting the newly-moved tree through this most torrid period without serious injury.

Hot weather usually spells lack of water and a tree has large, tender growths at that time. More than 50 per cent of its roots have had to be snipped off in the moving, and it cannot, therefore, drink sufficient water to slake its thirst.

HOW DO YOU LOOK?
Oh, yes, it does, to! It matters a whole lot. The way you look is registered in approval or disapproval, even in a stranger's eyes. And what do you care for a stranger's eyes? You care a great deal . . . and you know you do. Everyone wants and needs a probation, commendation, and above all, acceptance by the human race. It is a basic need . . . approval by one's fellows. That's why our desires and impulses are constantly check-reined by the society in which we live. Wouldn't it be pleasant if we lived in a world where everyone we met was spotlessly clean . . . scrubbed . . . if everyone had polished his shoes before he left home . . . if everyone took care of his nails, brushed his teeth, combed his hair? If everyone was thoughtful enough of everyone else . . . and above all . . . of
