Before taking her home, Eric asks Jmice to go to his house with him and listen to some of his favorite records. At first she hesitates, then decides her fears are foolish. "You know it's all right, don't you, Janice?" he entreats. "Of course it's all right," she replies. "I'd love the music." Then she adds: "My head has just got clear of Michelle's special wine. Now I know why it is so special—it seems harmless when you are drinking it, but it creeps up on you so that too much might become dangerous—like smoldering, unseen fire." "If I had known that you got that big a surprise from Michelle's wine I'd have insisted on your taking more." the dector says. "It's not sensible to pass up anything that sets you on fire."

FFICE Nurse D by Adelaide Humphries, Distributed by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Janice Ibilary, pretty, efficient young nurse to popular and handsome society doctor Eric Holbrook, runs his office for him. Dr. Holbrook's beautiful, gadabout wife has just left for France to look after some property there. The evening of her departure, the doctor, lonely, asks Janice to have dinner with him. It is his birthday. Janice, after a moment's heaitation, accepts—although it means breaking a date with Hen Archer, childhood friend who is very much in love with her. Eric buys Janice a corsage, takes her to Michelle's for dinner. Later they ride through the park when lighted, like a museum, too, with its formal furnishings, old tapestries, oriental rugs, and mas-sive carved chests. Eric's favorites proved to be some of Janice's too: "Liebestod," from "Tristan and Isolde," the Paganini Violin Concerto, Tschaikovsky's "Sixth Symphony," Bach's "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," and nearly anything of Debussy's. Debussy's.

Janice was amazed when she glanced at a little French clock on the mantelpiece and discovered it was long past midnight. She said she would have to go. It had been delightful and she could have gone on listening much longer, but after all, as she said, she had to get up in the morning. in the morning.
