Inflation's Ugly Facts May Haunt Republicans

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—If President Truman had any previous doubts about which was the worst Congress, they should all be gone by now.

For the brush-off which the Republican leadership has given to his anti-inflation proposals was really of hurricane proportions. It swept everything he laid on the table right into the wastebaskets.

If by so doing the congressmen think they can go home leaving clean desks and clear consciences behind them, they may be headed for unpleasant surprises. The facts and figures which administration leaders finally got together for presentation to Congress may rise like ghosts out of the scrapheaps into which they were swept, to haunt the homing congressmen in the months and years ahead.

President Truman pointed out in his press conference statement that Senate and House Agriculture Committees never even met to see if there was anything they might do to increase food supplies or cut down prices to the consumer.

House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees, which handle tax matters, did not meet to consider President Truman's suggestions for the return of excess corporations profits taxes.

The House Banking and Currency Committee went through the motion of holding hearings on the proposed anti-inflation bill. But this committee under Chairman Jesse Wolcott of Michigan refused to receive testimony from Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, Secretary of Interior Krug.

Wolcott, completely dominating his committee, went ahead in his own way to introduce his own version of a credit-control bill. It may be some good over the long haul. But don't expect to take a copy home, hand it to your wife and expect that she will ever buy with it any more groceries for any less money.

On the other side of the Capitol, Chairman Charles W. Tobey's Senate Banking and Currency Committee turned in the only praiseworthy record of the special Congress, not only on inflation, but in Tobey's effort to save the Taft-Elliender-Wagner housing bill.

From Brannan the Tobey committee heard that further increases in food prices—particularly meat prices which have already more than doubled in the last two years—are due this year. The time to have started building meat prices in line was six months ago, he said.

From Sawyer the committee heard that the problem confronting the country was of the utmost seriousness. It cannot be met by increased production, which is already at capacity levels. What is needed, said Sawyer, is limited control to hold abnormal factors of demand in check, and priorities to channel scarce goods to essential production.

FROM Keyserling the committee heard that inflation is now working hardship on millions of families. Industrial prices are being pushed to such heights that goods cannot be disposed of. There is danger of an economic explosion. The race upward between prices and wages is unsettling all business conditions. All such spiraling booms have in the past ended in busts.

To those congressmen and others who maintain that this is just a lot of scare stuff, the best answer was given by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, who cited what had happened to potatoes.

In November, 1946, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson wrote Congress that under the then-existing price-support law, 20 million bushels of potatoes would be grown for which there would be no market. Anderson asked that the law be changed so that the government wouldn't have to buy them up and destroy them.

Congress paid no attention, took no action. The result was that in 1946 and 1947 the potato price support program cost the government $130,000,000. It may cost another $20,000,000 this year.

THE SCOREBOARD: High-Jumping Winter Won Using Old-Fashioned Style BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Sports Editor

LONDON—(NEA)—J. L. Winter, a tall Australian, winning the Olympic Games high jump with six feet six inches was highly disappointing from an American viewpoint.

It was one of 12 men's track and field events the United States figured to win. America has failed to prevail in only one previous Olympic high jump.

In the trials, George Stanich and Vern McGrew tied at six feet eight and a quarter. Illinois' Dike Eddleman, steady and consistent, has done as well.

The best Stanich and Eddleman could do in the Olympics, however, was tie for second with six feet four and three-quarters. Faulson of Norway, with supposedly less misses at the same height, was awarded second place but a check and consequent revision by the judges gave our boys an equal share of the runner-up medal.

One of our blokes complained about the take-off being a little loose, but they simply weren't up to their ceilings.

An interesting feature of the high jump was that it was a remarkably comeback for the old eastern scissors, which was supposed to be practically obsolete. All of the Americans employed the western roll, as did most of the others.

Only Winter, a veteran, and the representatives of a handful of outlying nations that have not yet caught up with the roll, used the antiquated scissors. These included B. Singh, an Indian with a wrapped head and flowing beard. He had no style at all, and didn't jump very high, either.

WINTER, who competed in Berlin in 1936, if memory serves, was reminded of Johnny Murphy of Portland, Ore., who as a Notre Dame undergraduate should have won in Antwerp in 1920. As things turned out, Murphy slipped three times on wet turf, and didn't get off the ground. He used the old eastern scissors.

Until Stanich, Eddleman and McGrew fell short at Wembley's Empire Stadium, enabling Winter to raise the Australian flag, George Spitz was the last high jumper to get anywhere in particular with the old eastern scissors.

Introduced by George Horine of Stanford in 1912, the western roll was quickly adopted by nearly every coach in the United States and other countries.

The principal difference between the western roll and the old eastern scissors is that with the former the jumper takes off on the inside foot, which enable him to lay out on top of the bar. With the old eastern scissors, the jumper takes off on the outside foot.

But, as Australia's J. L. Winter demonstrated, it doesn't matter which foot the jumper takes off on as long as it is the right one. He'll be the Olympic champion for four years.

"Goodness! Is This All The Further I've Come?"

Ancient Canterbury In Rebellion As Traditional Horn Sounds Again

By Richard D. McMillan United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON (UP)—There is revolt in the "mother city of the English-speaking race," Chaucer's Canterbury.

The signal for the "rebellion" was the sounding of the Burghmote Horn at a civic ceremony at which the mayoress of the oldest cathedral city of England, Mrs. G. R. Hews, explained that the citizens were angered by attempts to rob Canterbury of its rights as a county in itself. The dispute was set off by decisions of a governmental boundary commission.

Rarely is the Burghmote Horn sounded in the city. Usually it is reserved for acclaiming a new mayor of the crowning of a new sovereign. In earlier times, as far back as the 13th century, its notes sounded to rouse the citizens to violence against the unjust or encroachment upon the rights of the populace whose town gave inspiration to the "Canterbury Tales."

Explaining the reason for the alarm note on the Burghmote Horn, the mayoress pointed out that Canterbury will lose some of the powers now held by the corporation if the suggestions of the boundary commission on the organization of local government be-com law. It is feared that if the pattern of local government is changed there may be danger of some of the devastated parts of the city, hit by bombs during the war, may be rebuilt without regard to the traditions and style of the surroundings.

The citizens' revolt coincides with celebrations commemorating 500 years of the mayoralty of Canterbury. In the course of the celebrations, the dean of the cathedral, Dr. Hewlett Johnson, spoke of old battles between civic and church authorities which had once spoilt the harmony of the lovely town and even invaded the sacred precincts of the cathedral.

He went on to describe how even that morning the mace and the sword of state had been lowered as it passed Christ Church at the head of a civic procession from guild hall to cathedral, in token of old struggles and bloodshed between church and city retainers.

Then occurred the ceremony of sounding the Burghmote Horn, after which the horn was put away among the city's treasures. Citizens and monks together prayed in the cathedral that this new strife between the hallowed town and the encroaching outside powers will be settled "without further token of struggle."

Gets High on His 82nd Birthday

Celebrating his 82nd birthday, Ivy Baldwin goes for a short stroll—300 feet across a wire stretched over a 125-foot deep mountain canyon. The octogenarian retired as an active trapeze performer in 1928, but has kept in pretty good shape. This was his 87th trip over the South Boulder Creek Canyon, near Eldorado Springs, Colo.

Nobody Loves Forever By Margareta Brucker. XXXIV. JESSICA was cold, nervous and unstrung as she left the hospital and hurried toward a bus. When she stopped at Doris' cottage to pick up Betsy, Doris informed her that Tom had come to fetch Betsy home. Had anything happened? Doris did not know. Just that Tom seemed perturbed and said that he thought it time for Betsy to have her supper and go to bed. In concern over just how to explain her prolonged absence, Jessica almost forgot the disturbing events of the afternoon. As she entered the house she heard Betsy's voice in the kitchen and, tossing aside her hat and without removing her coat, she hurried down the hall. The kitchen door stood open. She saw Betsy seated in her high chair finishing a bowl of cereal while Tom sat by and encouraged her to eat her supper. They were quite unaware of her presence, the blond-haired baby and the big man she resembled so closely, the same stubborn chin, the same gray-blue eyes. Like Lucy's, thought Jessica, and suddenly her thoughts flew back to that moment when she had looked into eyes so similar and wondered if the girl whose face was disguised with bandages could be Lucy. How could she tell Tom? He was burdened now with the care of a helpless mother. She could not tell him now, thought Jessica, and hurried forward to be met indifferently by Betsy, who lavished all her attention upon her father. This was her opportunity to talk to Tom about Lucy. wondered where she had been or what had caused her delay, he gave no indication. He encouraged Betsy to drink her milk and then lifted her down from the table. "Have you had your dinner?" he asked Jessica. She slid out of her coat and started toward the door. "No." "Neither have I." "FOOD—that was a topic she and Tom could discuss safely, she thought with scorn. What they would eat, and Betsy—two subjects that caused no breaking down of the barrier between them which grew higher every day she remained here. Irritably she flung the coat across a chair in the hall and returned to the kitchen. She tied on an apron, opened the refrigerator and studied its contents. Guiltily she remembered that she had rushed off intending to pick up something downtown, a steak or chops. She turned to Tom who was on his way toward the door carrying Betsy. "Eggs?" she suggested. "Anything will do," he said indifferently. His manner hinted that he thought her incapable of skillful planning. Maybe he remembered Genevieve's skill in cooking, she thought, as she went about collecting material for a salad. When Tom offered to put Betsy to bed and stated that he could look in on his mother meanwhile, she said crossly, "Very well." She heard Betsy's low chuckle as they mounted the stairs. The bedroom door above closed upon them. She was tired and disturbed as she set the table with two places. Always before Betsy had been present to share the meal. Often Tom ate after she and the baby had finished. This would be the first time she and Tom had sat together like any ordinary married couple to share a meal. This was her opportunity to talk to Tom about Lucy. (To Be Continued)

OUT OUR WAY By J. R. Williams

Comic strip 'OUT OUR WAY' by J.R. Williams. A house manufactured in Denver's northern climate has gone on display in Bogota, Colombia. A 900-pound scale model of a pre-fabricated house was flown to the South American city. David Feldman, the maker, said he already has received orders for the tropical house of the future. He said it is of aluminum, is put on a concrete base, has five rooms and a bath, and sells for less than $5,000. "It can't rot, it's termite-proof, and it never needs painting," Feldman pointed out. But to the dismay of house-hungry Denverites, Feldman said the structure is not designed for North America. It makes no provision for snow or cold weather. Today's best ocean crossing, England to New York, is five days. In that time U. S. airlines fly half way around the world.

UNCLE SAM'S SELECTIVE SERVICE

(Editor's note: Below is one installment of a series of questions and answers on the second peacetime military training program. It has been prepared under the direction of the Texas Director of Selective Service, Maj. Gen. K. L. Berry.)

1. Q—What is the purpose of registration under the Selective Service Act?

A—To get a complete census of men 18 through 25 years of age. From among those 19 through 25 will be selected those most suitable for military training.

2. Q—When will registration take place?

A—President Truman has proclaimed the following registration days:

Aug. 30 for men born after Aug. 30 in 1922; Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 for those born in 1923; Sept. 2 and 3 for those born in 1924; Sept. 4 or 7 for those born in 1925; Sept. 8 and 9 for those born in 1926; Sept. 10 and 11 for those born in 1927; Sept. 13 and 14 for those born in 1928; Sept. 15 and 16 for those born in 1929; Sept. 17 and 18 for those born in 1930 before Sept. 19, 1930. Persons born on or after Sept. 19, 1930, will register on the day they are 18 years old or within five days after they are 18.

3. Q—Where will registration points be located and at what hours will they be open?

A—At places designated by local boards. Watch your local newspapers and listen to your local radio station for announcement of registration places. Hours will be from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

4. Q—Who will be in charge of registration?

A—The Governor of the state will be the directing head, but the key men will be members of your local board.

I GIVE YOU TEXAS

By Boyce House

Henry W. Grady, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, was a great orator. His speeches, after the Civil War, helped to bring the North and South together in mutual trust and understanding. He was also a great editor. Just how great let this fact attest: the number of copies of the Atlanta Constitution printed each day was four times as many as the population of Atlanta! Furthermore, a large proportion of the inhabitants of Atlanta were recently-freed slaves and could not read.

The explanation of so large a circulation was that the paper was so well edited that it reached a wide territory. It is said that the law in Texas at that time provided that the newspaper having the largest circulation in the county should be the official newspaper of the county—and in several Texas counties, the official paper take place?

5. Q—How will registrars for registration points be selected?

A—Local board members will be appointed to complete registration in the required time.

6. Q—Where will registrars get instructions and material?

A—The State Headquarters for Selective Service at Austin will forward to each local board sufficient supplies and instructions. The local board will instruct registrars for all the registration points they establish.

7. Q—How many registrants can a registrar handle in an hour?

A—An average of about five an hour. On this basis local board members can make sure they have sufficient helpers.

was the Constitution which was published in Georgia.

The Civil War general with the oddest name was the Confederate, Brig. Gen. States Rights Gist. "States Rights" was his name. His father, looking forward to the day when that would perhaps be an issue on the battlefield, bestowed the name on him. General Gist was killed in the defense of Vicksburg.

Everyone of course knows about the Unknown Soldier—the hero of World War I whose name is known only to God.

Of the 17,000 Union graves on the beautiful slopes around Vicksburg three-fourths are the last resting-places of men whose identities are unknown: more than 12,000 "unknown soldiers."

The above excepted classes of persons shall not be required to register and shall be relieved from liability for training and service under the Selective Service Act of 1948.

A person subject to registration may register after the day or days fixed for registration in case he is prevented from registering on that day or any of those days by circumstances beyond his control or because he is not present in any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Territory of Alaska, the Territory of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands, on that day or any of those days. If he is not in any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Territory of Alaska, the Territory of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands, he shall within five days after such entrance present himself for and submit to registration before a duly designated registration official or Selective Service Board. If he is not in any of the several States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Territory of Alaska, the Territory of Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands on the day or any of the days fixed for registration but because of circumstances beyond his control is unable to present himself for and submit to registration on that day or any of those days he shall do so as soon as possible after the cause for such inability ceases to exist. Every person subject to registration is required to familiarize himself with the rules and regulations governing registration and to comply therewith and every person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of the Selective Service Act of 1948, as provided by law; and,

WHEREAS, the President of the United States has called upon me, as Governor of the State of Texas, to perform certain duties in the execution of the Selective Service Act within this State;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, BEAUFORD JESTER, Governor of the State of Texas, do hereby proclaim and give notice that every male citizen of this State and every other male person residing within this State within the designated age limits and subject to registration in accordance with the Act and President's Proclamation shall present himself for and submit to registration between the hours of 8:00 A. M. and 5:00 P. M. on the day or any days fixed for his registration before a duly designated registration official or Selective Service local board having jurisdiction in the area in which he has his permanent home or in which he may happen to be on that day or those days. I also urge all employers and State and local agencies to give those under their charge sufficient opportunity to register in accordance with this Proclamation.

The Congress of the United States by proper proclamation decreed that, by means of a Selective Service System, administered by local citizens in the interest of all, the United States shall prepare itself to insure the security of this Nation by the achievement and maintenance of an adequate armed force. THEREFORE, on the days designated by our President let every loyal Texas and true American, within the specified age, present himself at the appointed place for registration and imbue himself with the determination that he will truly represent this great State and Nation by the manner and spirit in which he will resolutely undertake any assignment which he may receive. Though we all devoutly hope that circumstances will never again demand it, this determination and resoluteness may some day be called upon to form the basis for a successful defense of the ideals of freedom, justice, tolerance, and opportunity upon which our State and Nation so solidly rest.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and cause the seal of the State to be affixed at the City of Austin, this 10th day of August, A. D. one thousand nine hundred and forty-eight. (S) BEAUFORD H. JESTER GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

GOOD NEIGHBOR WEEK IN TEXAS IS PROCLAIMED

ABILENE.—Following an official request of the Latin-American Relations Commission of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Gov. Beauford Jester has proclaimed the week of November 15, as Good Neighbor Week in Texas.

At the same time he has issued an executive order to the heads of all state departments and institutions in Texas, calling for furtherance of the Good Neighbor Policy, now officially being promoted by the Texas Good Neighbor Commission.

Such action was urged by the WTCC in an effort to bring about the lifting of the embargo on Mexican seasonal labor in Texas, which will prevent cotton pickers from South of the border coming into Texas this year. Included with the WTCC request were letters and telegrams from most of the mayors and Chamber of Commerce managers in the West Texas cotton growing area.

The organization now is asking Gov. Jester and the Good Neighbor Commission to take these pledges of cooperation with copies of the governor's official proclamation and executive order, directly to the highest officials in the Mexican government. According to General Manager D. A. Bandeden, of the WTCC, Texas has showed by its official action its desire to be good neighbors, and he believes the Mexican government will respond by lifting the so-called economic sanction which prevents Mexican seasonal workers being brought into the state. Bandeden has pointed out that available labor will be inadequate to harvest the heavy yield of cotton in West Texas, in an area sparsely populated and a heavy producer of cotton.

"Undoubtedly there are many positive acts of good neighborliness in your office, or known to your office, which would be valuable in giving a fair picture of the growth of good relations in this state," Governor Jester wrote. "It is a part of our job as the government of the state of Texas to see that the progressive side of our state is known as well as the items requiring correction."

In designating the Good Neighbor Week, Gov. Jester urged solidarity and friendship.

"Because of the proximity of Texas lands occupied by Latin-Americans and the enormous potential of modern industry for the development of the resources of the earth, we have this choice; either to work out our destiny in mutual happiness and prosperity, or to cast away opportunity for unfortunate and unnecessary divisions that keep us in stagnation and fear."

Bandeden has urged Thomas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Good Neighbor Commission to take this official action directly to Mexico City.

"We do not believe the repub-

MOVING-BELT STORE TAKES PUSHCARTS OUT OF SHOPPING

RAHWAY, N. J. (UP)—Four brothers who have been in the neighborhood food business here for 22 years are planning a new "supe-duper" market that may make the grocery store pushcart vanish from the American scene like the horse and the Indian.

In early September they plan to open the first store using the new "So-E-Z system" invented by Hollis Wooten, Memphis radio executive. It uses a system of belts moving along counter tops to carry the items selected by the housewife and marked with an identifying number.

The four Dembling brothers, Benjamin, David, Bernard and Irving, are planning to open the store in a 38 by 50 building now under construction. They believe that they can operate it without additional help.

Here is the way the system operates:

A housewife enters the store and selects from a rack a pencil stamped with a number. She shops through the store, selecting her items, writes the same number as is on her pencil on the price tag of each item and places it on the moving belt.

The system of moving belts is simple. One belt reaches along a center counter the entire length of the store from the meat market in the rear to the checking counter in front. Other belts feed into it from right angles at convenient distances along the room.

The items selected by the housewife are carried along the belts to the checking counter, where a clerk picks them up and places them in a tin bearing the same number as the shopper's pencil. He removes the numbered price tags and puts them on a spike for rapid adding when the housewife has completed her shopping.

She surrenders her pencil, pays her bill and is given the packaged items.

The moving belts are powered
