EASTLAND COUNTY POLIO FUNDS GETS $1,000 CHECK

The Eastland County Chapter of the National Foundation to fight infantile paralysis has just received a check for $1,000 to restore funds which have been depleted in the county through expenses incurred by six cases of the disease in the county.

R. V. Galloway of Ranger, county chairman, stated that the six cases which have received aid from the county had required the expenditure of over $1,600. The cases were two from Cisco, two from Eastland and two from Ranger. In each of the six cases treatment could not have been carried through without the aid of the county funds and parents in all cases stated that the assistance was timely.

Tracing Down People And Paying Them Money They Didn't Expect

If a visitor in Eastland should saunter into the Connellee Hotel lobby almost any evening after supper and look over in the corner, he would probably see a quiet, small, slender man with a snaw-white mustache and goatee.

subsequent fund raising appeals on any basis which your chapter considers fair. Please be assured that none of the officers or members of your chapter is personally liable for the repayment of these funds. It is the policy of the National Foundation to stand ready and willing to assist all chapters in financing the necessary costs for medical care during an epidemic and no victim of infantile paralysis must go untreated because of funds regardless of age, race, creed or color.

We appreciate your efforts in closely estimating your requirements and the careful expenditure of this advance. Should your Chapter request additional funds, please continue to include full explanation of miscellaneous expenses and prior expenses unpaid as this information is of vital importance to us and is required by our auditors.

Let me take this opportunity to thank you for your interest and help in the fight against infantile paralysis.

Very sincerely,
JOHN R. LOUGHLIN,
Executive Secretary.

New Barber Shop Is Open At Olden

I. E. Talley, for the past three years a barber at Ranger, has opened his own shop at Olden. Mr. Talley has had many years experience at the barber's trade.

I am well pleased with the reception I have received from the trade since opening my Olden shop," Mr. Talley said.

Attack Victim Released From Ranger Hospital

Travis Gregory of Fort Worth was released from the West Texas Hospital in Ranger this morning after being treated for wounds sustained when he was attacked by a 22-year-old negro worker at the Gulf Camp north of Ranger about 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Gregory sustained wounds in the side on the hand and head when Connell Griffin, in a fit of rage, attacked and beat him with a rock. Gregory, 27, and a foreman for the Fort Worth Sand and Gravel Company, was unconscious for five hours after being taken to the hospital.

According to Gregory, he had fired the negro because he refused to take orders. The negro became enraged and started cursing the foreman and then attacked him with the rock.

Police were notified of the assault and immediately launched a search for him. About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, T. K. Hardy and several other men were searching the woods around the camp and spotted the man. They notified police and Alfred Ames went to the scene and took the negro into custody. He offered no resistance to arrest. Later in the evening he was turned over the sheriff's department and is being held in the county jail pending the filing of charges.

Gregory is part of a crew of men working on construction at the Gulf camp.

Ranger Woman's Uncle, Former Eastlandite Dies

Funeral services for W. F. Hicks of Memphis, formerly of Eastland and an uncle of Mrs. O. G. Lanier of Ranger were conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Church of Christ in Eastland.

Mr. Hicks, 63, had been in ill health for many years and had been a patient in the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo for more than three years. He died in the hospital in Amarillo. He was a veteran of the Spanish American War.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. W. F. Hicks of Memphis, one son, Charlie Hicks of Oklahoma City and a former Ranger Junior College student and one daughter, Mrs. Brad Cook, the former Edna Lee Hicks, who resides on a ranch near Memphis and two grandchildren.

The Olden Hornets are scheduled to meet the Cisco Lobo pups at Chesley Field in Cisco Thursday night.

Star-Telegram Oil Editor Is Visitor Here

LeRoy Menzing, oil editor of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was in Eastland Tuesday to gather material for a news article on the benefits Eastland is deriving from the revival in oil activities.

He also visited Ranger and Cisco. While in Eastland, he talked to Fred Brown, Herbert Tanner and others in gathering data.

Menzing has many friends in this city, going back to the days when he was sports writer for the Star-Telegram and came here to write up golf tournaments and football games.

He spent last night at the Connellee and then resumed his tour, which will take him to several other oil-active cities of West Texas. Menzing is a native of Eastland County. He was born at Carbon though the family moved away when he was very young.

Rev. Emberton Speaks Tonight At Prayer Service

In making spiritual preparations for the revival which is to begin Sept. 28, at the Church of the Nazarene, Rev. William E. Emberton, announced he would speak at the prayer meeting tonight on the theme, "Standing in the Gap."

Rev. Emberton, says, "We are all fully aware of the lack of spiritual interest and power in the world today. Only proper living and proper praying, plus real interest will arouse people from their sin and produce a real God-sent revival of religion. Not beautiful prayers and the reading of essays, but soul burden and real straight Bible preaching, will get people converted. We urge you to attend our prayer meeting tonight at which time cottage prayer meetings will be announced for the rest of the week."

U. S. HAS POWER TO RULE ON ELECTION DISPUTE, SAYS JUDGE

FORT WORTH, Tex. Sept. 22—Federal District Judge T. Whitfield Davidson ruled today that the U. S. Court has jurisdiction in Texas' bitterly-contested senatorial race.

In denying Rep. Lyndon B. Johnson's motion to throw out the injunction proceedings filed by former Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, Judge Davidson said:

"If allegations of fraud are true (as charged by Stevenson), then the plaintiff has been wronged, the nomination as Senator taken from him.

"Here we are, admitting that he has been robbed and laughing in his face. There is a distinction between nomination and election. The issue here is the right of nomination."

This morning's proceedings and those consuming most of yesterday's session actually have no bearing on the petition, arguments on which were scheduled to be heard following the ruling on jurisdiction.

Johnson's attorneys have no witnesses in the court, but Stevenson's legal staff has several on hand who will offer testimony.

After Judge Davidson delivered his ruling, he declared a 15-minute intermission after which testimony of witnesses brought here by Stevenson from Jim Wells County was to be heard.

Johnson led Stevenson by 87 votes in official returns from the Aug. 28 Democratic party runoff.

After fighting through last week's Democratic State Convention here to stop Johnson, "Calcutt" brought his case to Judge Davidson.

Believe Dothan Man Died Of Natural Causes

Justice of the Peace Henry Stubblefield of Cisco, stated today that while a verdict in the death of Will McKinney, 71, who resided near Dothan, had not been returned, sufficient evidence had been found to justify a verdict of death by natural causes.

The body of the deceased was found in the front yard at his farm home near Dothan about seven miles west of Cisco. The body of the man was discovered this morning and after officers investigated it was believed that he had possibly died of a heart attack.

The body was clothed in night clothing and apparently McKinney had been dead for sometime. A neighbor had talked with him last Sunday and that was the last that had been seen of him. Monday morning's mail was still in his mail box, leading to the belief that he might have died sometime Sunday night. Relatives stated that he had heart trouble and often had to get out in the open at night to get his breath.

He was a bachelor and lived alone on his place. Earlier reports had indicated that officers suspected foul play, but after his purse and money, and three guns that belong to him had been found and no signs of violence were about, it was concluded that this supposition was wrong.

Sheriff J. B. Williams and members of his staff assisted in the investigation. The body was taken to the Thomas Funeral Home in Cisco.

VISHINSKY BLASTS MEETING AFTER WEST OUTVOTES EAST IN ORGANIZATION ELECTIONS

PARIS, Sept. 22, (UP)—Russia brought the East-West conflict into the open at the United Nations meeting today when Andrei Vishinsky accused "certain delegations" of trying to foment disunity in the UN ranks.

The Soviet delegate's expected blast at the western Powers came after the West outvoted the East in organizational elections. The attack was made in connection with a Soviet effort to take off the agenda a proposal to admit Italy and five other countries to the UN, despite a Russian veto.

Waving his arms and pointing repeatedly at Jose Arce, delegate from Argentina who offered the proposal, Vishinsky argued that it would violate the UN charter.

"But some nations do not seem to be interested any longer in abiding by the charter," he said. "Perhaps they do not want a United Nations, but a disunited nations. That is the conclusion one must draw from the activities of certain delegations."

The Western Powers meanwhile held up their plans to refer the Berlin crisis to the UN with a charge that Russia was violating the UN charter. The delay was caused by French insistence on sending the Soviets one more note in an effort to get the Berlin blockade lifted.

After two meetings of the Western foreign ministers, the French wanted to make one last bid for a settlement by negotiations. They proposed to serve notice on Russia along with the final note that if the blockade were not removed the western powers would try the case before the UN.

The final decision had not been made, and probably will not be made until next week.

The Americans and British were understood to be reconciled to the conclusion that no progress with the Russians could be made, and the only recourse was a try at rallying world opinion behind the west. But signs were seen that they might go along with the French on another note, provided it sent the course to the UN in case of a rebuff.

Intense consultations among the western diplomatic chiefs were scheduled for the next few days. Besides the Foreign Ministers, the western envoys to Moscow were arriving to join the conferences which already included the big three military commanders in Berlin.

The jockeying behind the scenes overshadowed the formal procedure of the newly convened UN General Assembly. There, too, the dominant issue was East vs. West, but far it lacked the show-down gravity attached to the tug-of-war over Berlin.

The assembly completed organizational elections at its second session, with Russia and her satellites getting two of 14 seats on steering committee.

Not a single Russian or satellite candidate won yesterday when six committee chairmen and the assembly president constituting the other seven seats on the vital steering committee, were elected.

Because Russia and her satellite represent in area and population one of the largest blocks in the United Nations, the campaign to limit their representation in top assembly administrative posts was considered a stinging rebuff to Soviet world policy.

Russia blasted the delegates for their actions even before today's session opened at 10:45 a. m. Radio Moscow set the pace, charging yesterday's election were "sheer mockery," and Assistant Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky was expected to follow through as soon as he could gain the floor in today's session.

However, election of the two Soviet candidates for vice-president apparently mollified the Russians and Vishinsky passed up the opportunity to castigate the western powers.

A fluorescent lamp, the color of which matches incandescent light, is on the market. Its efficiency is said to exceed that of the standard white fluorescent lamp by 7 per cent.

After two meetings of the Western foreign ministers, the French wanted to make one last bid for a settlement by negotiations. They proposed to serve notice on Russia along with the final note that if the blockade were not removed the western powers would try the case before the UN.

The final decision had not been made, and probably will not be made until next week.

Hoover Study May Turn Up Good Ideas for Government

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

(Peter Edson is on vacation.)

The job of the commission is to make a report at the end of this year on how the executive branch of the government can be reorganized to operate more efficiently. There have been several of these commissions assigned to do the same job but they never accomplished much. Former President Herbert Hoover, who heads this commission, created one himself for the same purpose when he was in the White House and so did Franklin Roosevelt.

But this one looks like it might really do a good job, for several reasons. Most important, Congress had a hand in its organization and appointed eight of the 12 members. A fat bankroll of $1,938,000 was provided to hire plenty of competent help to insure a good job. There is bi-partisan support behind the idea. And the members appointed to the commission are pretty savvy guys in the art of good government. They include former U. S. Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming, Dr. James K. Pollock, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, former Under Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, Senator Aiken of Vermont and others of equal caliber.

The irony of the thing will be if what started out as President Truman's pet idea ends up becoming the basis of Dewey's reorganization of the government. If Dewey wins it will certainly be a boon to him to have a carefully worked out reorganization plan delivered on a silver platter.

Although the Hoover Commission has kept its work probably more secret than that of the Atomic Energy Commission, a few bits of reliable information on its plans have leaked out. It is well known that Hoover himself is making the study on how to improve the offices of the White House. Being the only former U. S. president still alive and a competent authority on the principles of management, he is well qualified to handle this end of the report.

Another pretty well-founded report is that a special Department of Administration will be suggested. It will be a sort of "housekeeping" agency and will probably also include the present bureau of the budget. A rumor goes even further to suggest that the head of it, if it is created, will be Governor Warren, if the Republicans win.

A BUREAU to run the bureaus isn't so silly when you look at the multi-function proposition American government has become today.

There are now between 40 and 50 major federal agencies, each with countless bureaus, branches, etc. George Washington started it all with only four, the War Department, Treasury Department, State Department, and an attorney general's office. At the time he was concerned lest the citizens think that he was creating an empire and overstepping his authority by having the new federal government perform too many functions.

The First President would indeed be shocked to take a peek at today's federal civil service list of jobs. It gives an insight as to just how much government activity has expanded over the years.

He would find that there is practically no limit to the sphere of federal activity on land, sea, or in the sky. Federal "astronomers" probe the sky and space. Federal "oceanographers" explore the bottom of the sea and the U. S. "mine inspectors" operate deep in the earth.

Just that glance at the complexity of government today gives an idea of the size of the job which the Hoover Commission has tackled. If the former president manages to come up with a sensible blueprint for an economical reorganization of the government U. S. taxpayers should be very grateful to him.

Not Committed To War With Reds Says Bevin

LONDON, Sept. 22 (UP)—The western powers "are not committed" to war with Russia over the German problem Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons today.

"We have not reached that stage," he added. Bevin gave the assurance as he reviewed the Berlin crisis and the whole German situation in present government view in a foreign policy debate.

He charged the Soviet Union with deliberately plotting to starve the western powers out of Berlin. He said the Russians had estimated food supplies available in the western sectors of Berlin before they began their surface blockade of the city, and had believed the western powers could not meet the needs by means of the air lift.

Russia expected, he asserted, to be able to force the United States, Britain and France to give up their holds in the German capital within a few weeks.

The Western Allies, in seeking to end the Berlin crisis, agreed to accept the Soviet eastern mark as the sole currency for Berlin. Bevin said, but they insisted that it be under four-power control.

Chris's Beauty Shop is a new

THE STORY: A mysterious locked room on the top floor of Nana Farthing, a rented country house, fascinates dreamy 17-year-old Sabrina. Father and Aunt Effie tell her the room belongs to one of the owner's sons and they are not to have the use of it. Sabrina questions Mrs. Pilton, the housekeeper, who says the room "is not at home. One rainy day Nana picked the lock. She finds a comically furnished man's room, filled with books. The place enchants her. Mrs. Pilton surprisingly offers to leave the door unlocked henceforth. Sabrina gets to know the room so well, it is almost as though she knew its owner.

IN the beginning Sabrina kept to the middle of the road, as it were, and her invasions were made more or less on tiptoe. She would take a book from the shelf, carry it to the upholstered window seat where the sun fell warmly through the glass, and there, curled up among the cushions, sometimes with an extra one laid across her long silk legs for warmth, she would read, for as long as she dared be absent from below stairs.

But she had learned as time went on that the room was full of distractions. Her eyes would wander from the page to the mantelpiece or the top of the desk, or the great chest of drawers, or to the wall beyond the wardrobe where some framed pictures hung, or to the door beside the head of the bed—where did it lead?—what hung behind the carved panes of the wardrobe?—what was beneath the lid of the old oak chest?

The dominant masculine personality which had put its imprint on the room was a thing almost tangible, as real as the persistent odor of good tobacco which clung about the worn brown pipe left behind on the desk.

In the desk drawers there must be letters addressed to him, whose envelopes—one would of course never think of looking beyond the envelopes—would reveal the provoking secret of his first name. The family name was Shenstone, everyone knew that, and he had a brother George, but he somehow preserved without effort his own exasperating anonymity.

Could one look closely at the pictures on the wall, without prying? Could one tell by his clothes, if any still remained in the wardrobe, what sort and size of man he was? There must be clues—clues to the absorbing personality which had made this place its home, and which still pervaded the atmosphere like inaudible music. So much of him was here, under her hand, for the taking. Would it be an unpardonable sin to try to know him a little better?

SHE was sure that it would. And yet she could no longer resist the attempt. She had to know more about him.

One couldn't visualize him clearly, of course, he was just a vague tweed shape, a nice voice, and quiet laughter. His age was the first problem, perhaps, to be solved, and for that there was Mrs. Pilton's evidence. Mrs. Pilton had been with the family twenty years, she said, or more. Then twenty years ago he must have been a child, which meant that he couldn't be much more than thirty now. Not much less, either, because he was out in the world somewhere on his own.

They hadn't seen much of him here since he was grown, Mrs. Pilton said. What did he do while he was away? Where was he now? What would he look like? What did his brother call him?

The decision to try and find him somehow in his room was made at last, on another rainy day early in June when Aunt Effie was going to the local sewing circle, and Sabrina would have the rest of the afternoon to herself.

Each escape into the sanctuary was always an adventure, but this time she closed the door behind her and stood with her back against it, gazing at the room with a new excitement, wondering where to begin.

THE desk stood where the sun from the south would fall across the shoulders of the person who sat there.

It was a spacious, workmanlike desk, with rows of drawers either side of the knee-hole, and on its broad surface a book-blotter and a silver inkwell, with a few enticing small objects round the edges, such as an ivory carving of a mermaid with her tail pulled round under her chin. There was also a very modern fountain-pen in an onyx desk-stand.

How long since that fountain-pen had been used? Again her fingers itched. She lifted the pen from its holder and tried it on the blank side of the desk-calendar engagement-pad. The pen was quite dry, of course, and the calendar presented its large black figures for evidence: June 5, 1936.

For a moment she stared at it, paralyzed by the coincidence—for today was the fifth of June too. He had last turned the date leaf of that calendar exactly two years ago today. She held herself at once that it was no good feeling creepy about a thing like that.

The closed drawers were of course inviolate. But the blotter—people sometimes left letters in a blotter like this one—it had a lid of simple tooled leather—if there should be just an envelope addressed to him...

With cautious fingertips she raised the lid, exposing a closely written sheet with a signature, and another unfinished page which must be his reply, in his own handwriting. The letter written to him began: My dear Shenstone—and was signed Walter Thompson. The letter he had begun in reply to My dear Thompson was dated June 5, 1936—and had never got as far as a signature.

A glance at the waste paper basket showed that it had been emptied, and Thompson's envelope was gone. Defeat...

Awaits Meat Tests

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. Sept. 22—The city health department today awaited results of more than 60 tests of meat offered for sale by San Antonio restaurants before getting upset about a reported wholesale use of horse meat on cafe menus.

Dr. A. E. Wharton said that only one cafe had been closed, as a result of preliminary investigations, but that other action would be taken if results of the "60 to 100" tests still in the laboratory stage prove that other eating places are serving horse meat as beef or pork substitutes.

BIG STATE LEAGUE PLAYOFF

The Sherman-Denison Twins and the Wichita Falls Spuders meet tonight in Sherman for the playoff game for the championship of the Big State League.

The Spuders made the grade last night by nosing out the twins, 7 to 6, to square the best-of-seven series at three-al.

Ed Cole, who came in as relief hurler for the Spuders in the eighth, saved the game in the ninth after Don Stokes led off the inning for the Twins by belting a triple. Cole left Stokes stranded on a third-base sack as he got the next three batters out.

LONE STAR LEAGUE PLAYOFF

Kilgore will be out to make it four in a row over Longview tonight and a series sweep for the championship of the Lone Star League.

The Drillers won their third straight game of the final playoff series last night, beating Longview, 5 to 4. The drillers grabbed four runs in the fifth inning for the margin of victory, after taking a quick lead with a single run in the first frame.

The teams play in Longview again tonight.

WEST TEXAS-NEW MEXICO LEAGUE PLAYOFF

Amarillo was the champion today in the West Texas-New Mexico League, the winner over Pampa in the final series of the Shaugnessy playoffs.

The -oid Sox latched on to the title by beating Pampa last night, 9 to 7, to sew up the series at 4 games to 1.

Paul Halter started things moving in the mighty first inning, socking a homer with the bases loaded. Bob Crues followed with another homer to make it five runs for the Gold Sox in the first frame.

The Sox scored again in the fourth when pitcher Ray Panemann homered and then made three runs in the ninth which kept them ahead even when Dave Teyema hit a four-bagger for Pampa with one man on in the last of the ninth.

LONGHORN LEAGUE PLAYOFF

The Midland Indians staged a garnon finish in their home-town last night to even the final series with the Vernon Dusters at 3-all for the Longhorn League championship.

Trailing by one run and with two men out in the last of the ninth, the Indians took the game on a single by Eddie Mellillo which drove in the tying and winning runs. The two teams will meet in Midland again tonight for the payoff game.

TEXAS LEAGUE PLAY OFF

With hardly a pause to celebrate their semi-final victory, the Tulsa Oilers will meet the Fort Worth Cats tonight in Fort Worth in the first game of the final playoff for the Texas League championship.

The Oilers were victorious in Tulsa last night over Houston, 7 to 1, taking the semi-final series from the Buffs, 4 games to 2. The Buffs bowed out of the series under protest, and the game did not become official until so ruled by league president J. Alvin Gardner.

Cause for the protest was a lighting failure in the first of the fifth inning, when the lights went out while a batted ball was in the air. With two out and one man aboard, Solly Hemus hit an infield fly and second-baseman Johnny Lane was under it when the lights went out. The ball dropping safely, Hemus wound up on second, the first base runner going to third. The umpires conferred and ruled Hemus would have to bat again. The Buffs then were retired without scoring in the inning.

Bud Lively pitched for Tulsa, giving up 9 hits, and winning his second game of the series, without a loss.

Two games will be unreeled at La Grave field, in Fort Worth, the first tonight and the second Thursday night. The teams then go to Tulsa for three games, if all are necessary, and then return to Ft. Worth for two more if the best-of-seven series still hasn't been decided.

Fort Worth entered the finals by bumping Shreveport in the semi-final series which concluded Sunday. Fort Worth took the series by a margin of 4 games to 2.

Cerdan Agrees To A Rematch

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 22 (UP)—Marcel Cerdan, the French slugger who wrested the world middleweight championship from veteran Tony Zale, was willing today to give the ex-champ a return shot at the title in Jersey unless Zale retires because of last night's beating.

The stocky, black-haired, gold-toothed Frenchman from Morocco gave 34-year-old Zale such a thorough battering that the semi-conscious "steel man" from Gary, Ind. was unable to come out for the 12th round.

Their bout, before 19,272 fans at Roosevelt Stadium, was scheduled for 15 rounds. Near the end of their 11th session, Cerdan was giving his exhausted and floundering opponent a severe beating against the ropes. Almost simultaneously with the bell, a flashing left hook exploded on Zale's chin. He hit to the canvas on his knees. His handlers rushed out and half-dragged Tony to his corner, where sponges of ice water failed to revive him completely.

Co-managers Sam Pian and Art Winel, told referee Paul Cavalier—former lightweight boxer of Paterson, N. J.—that Zale was unable to continue. Cavalier waved to the Cerdan corner that the bout was finished. All this happened before the bell could ring to start the 12th round.

Cavalier later disclosed that he had counted Zale out in his corner, before he waved to the Cerdan group. He said he had made the count-out with his right hand across his breast. He said the ending was "a knockout in the 12th round."

The New Mexico game department spends about $265,000 annually in its program of restoration, fish hatcheries and law enforcement.

Matty Still Moans As SMU Readies For Pitt Opener

Dallas, Tx., Sept. 22 (UP)—Southern Methodist University's probable starting lineup for its Saturday season-opener against Pittsburgh was about set today, but Coach Matty Bell was living up to his famous nickname of "Moanin' Matty."

Ineligibles running Pitt plays made the varsity defense look weak both on the ground and in the air yesterday and Bell and chief scout Red McClain predicted dire happenings at Pittsburgh Saturday unless the Mustangs tighten their defense.

The starting backfield will be made up of Don Walker, Paul Page, Dick McKisack and Klye Rote with David Moon subbing for Rote if the Mustangs kick.

Bears Work Hard For Tulsa Contest

WACO, Tex., Sept. 22, (UP)—Pass defense and perfection of offensive plays were on the docket today for Coach Bob Woodruff's Baylor Bears, with the team rounding into shape for its game Saturday with the University of Tulsa.

Woodruff put his charges through a two-hour drill yesterday with kicking and blocking getting most of the attention.

Clarence McGraw, a guard, back Cal Crews, both of whom have not been with the squad in several weeks, were the only two men on the injured list.

Boston Braves Can Clinch Flag With Win Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 22, (UP)—The Boston Braves, who needed a "miracle" to win the National League pennant in 1914, needed only one victory and a Dodger defeat to win the flag today.

Only a slight case of mathematics separated Billy Southworth's Braves from the flag after they swept a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday, 11 to 3 and 4 to 0, while Brooklyn dropped two games to Pittsburgh.

Boston, sporting a stylish seven-and-a-half-game lead, has nine remaining games to play, the same number as Brooklyn. Either two Boston victories or two Brooklyn defeats also will give the Braves their first senior circuit title in 34 years.

Johnny Sain, who registered his 22nd victory of the year in the opener, scattered nine Redbird hits while hurling his 26th complete game and sixth triumph in succession.

Pittsburgh defeated Brooklyn, 12 to 11 in the playoff of a protested game of Aug. 25 and then beat the Dodgers again 6 to 3 in a regulation game.

The Boston Red Sox increased their American League lead to a full game over the idle Cleveland Indians by thrashing the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 2.

In the only other American League game scheduled, the Senators and White Sox at Chicago had their contest cancelled because of rain and cold weather.

The New York Giants won the first game of a day-night doubleheader by beating the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 2 on Johnny Mize's three-run homer, his 38th of the year, in the sixth. Chicago, however, broke its 10-game losing streak by winning the nightcap, 3 to 2, on Andy Pafko's three-ran homer in the ninth. In another day-night doubleheader, Cincinnati beat the Phillies, 6 to 5 in the first game while Philadelphia took the second game, 6 to 1.

Yesterday's Star—Johnny Sain of the Braves for beating the card's 11 to 3, chipping in with two timely hits, notching his 22nd victory and hurling his 26th complete game of the year.

It was estimated that 400 wells had been drilled to the shallow sand around Sipe Springs. While the flush production of these wells would not compare with the giant gushers which were being brought in at Ranger and Eastland, neither did the cost; for the expense of putting down one of the deep wells at Eastland or Ranger was $50,000 while $1,500 would cover the cost of drilling a well at Sipe Springs. A five-acre lease there, with four wells, sold for $80,000.

The shallow field attracted many legitimate operators and some promoters. One of the latter had an office, consisting of two rooms, in a Houston skyscraper. On his stationery, he printed the picture of the towering building as the "home" of his company.

Several thousand men swarmed into Sipe Springs. A few brick business houses were built, chiefly for occupancy by banks, but an idea of the flimsy construction of most of the buildings may be gained from an incident which took place alongside a drug store. A bully who had been drinking struck a griller and the latter grabbed his antagonist by the ears and banged his head repeatedly against the wall of the building until he was subdued.

But the owner of the drug store rushed out and demanded payment. The jolts through the wall had knocked $22 worth of patent medicine from the shelves and the bottles had broken on the floor.

Most of the newcomers slept in tents or shacks. But they did not have to do without the luxuries of civilization for a barber-ship sign read, "Baths, 50 cents; Thursday, Ladies' Day."

One of the busiest establishments was a gambling hall, right up in the center of town. One day a holdup was attempted but the proprietor resisted and, when the gun-smoke lifted, one of the robbers was dead.

In an effort to identify the man, his body was placed on display and hundreds filed by but no one could identify him—or, at least, no one did and he was buried in an unmarked grave.

The first time that this chronicler visited Sipe Springs was in 1925, six years after the discovery of oil, but the place had subsided to a village.

The best known figure was "Happy Jack", an early settler who made a modest fortune by leasing his land for oil. He put his money into residential construction but when the boom faded tenants moved away, leaving the houses in a sad condition and with months of rent unpaid.

So the old fellow obtained an

Another factor is deeper drilling. By going below the boom-day Ranger sand, production has been found in the Mississippian and the Ellenberger.

And so there is a strong demand for leases in the county. In some instances, an oil man, in going over the books in the courthouse, finds a record of one of those old mineral interest transactions. So, in order to lease the land, he has to get in touch with someone who was only a visitor in the county and that was almost 30 years ago. Even if his old address is known, he may have moved half a dozen times since then. If the individual was a woman—and there was one woman investor who spent $100,000—she may have married or re-married. After such a lapse of time, the investor may have died, in which case the heirs must be found.

And that is where Johnson comes in. He sets out on the search and at last finds the person he is seeking and astonishes him with the news that he is going to get some cash, with the chance that there will be a lot more if oil is struck on a tract that the individual had long since forgotten all about.

Johnson was born in Ohio, came to Texas in '97 to become connected with a bank in Cisco. In 1914 he moved to Eastland because he had bought an abstract business—here, C. U. Conneliee, the founder of Eastland, owned the other abstract company and they decided to merge, with Johnson running the consolidated business.

For three years I worked for nothing and boarded myself," he says, with a twinkle in his alert, blue eyes—meaning that the abstract business had almost no business.

He personally posted the records on all land transactions—and then oil was struck in Eastland County! Two major oil companies employed him to get up leases. He could tell from memory whether a piece of land had already been

Pension Party Seeks Spot On November Ballot

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 22. (UP)—The Pension Party of Texas, headed by Bearded Cy-lone Davis of Dallas, moved into the tangled political muddle in Texas with an application for a restraining order to force a spot on the Nov. 2 general election ballot for the party's representatives.

The party filed its application for a restraining order in federal district court, naming Secretary of State Paul Brown as defendant.
