Man Nabbed For Plane Theft Denies Charges

MT. CARMEL, Ill., Mar. 4 (UP)—A dapper young Oklahoman who carried a bayonet under his shirt steadfastly denied today that he stole an airplane in Amarillo, Tex., then played hide-and-seek with police in a cross-country flight.

The youth, who identified himself as Robert Pryor, 27, Tulsa, was seized yesterday in a hotel where he was traced after a police officer recognized the fugitive plane at a nearby airport.

Pryor had a razor sharp bayonet strapped to his chest when he was picked up.

The youth refused to answer any questions about the plane. He had come here by bus. But Sheriff E. H. Kennard said, "Oh, he's our man all right."

The plane, a two seater cream and maroon trainer, was stolen from an unlighted airport Saturday night.

Missouri state police chased the plane yesterday after it landed at several airports in Missouri. The highway patrol lost sight of it as it passed into a cloud bank of Sullivan, Mo.

Police Sgt. James F. Blair said he recognized the craft from warning descriptions flashed to Illinois police as he was driving past the Beckerman airport. He checked with airport officials who said the pilot had left for a hotel in town. Blair seized Pryor.

Don Lafalotte, the taxi driver who took Pryor to the hotel, and Stanley Beckerman, owner of the field, identified Pryor as the pilot who stepped from the craft.

A double barreled shotgun was found in the plane.

In addition to the bayonet, Pryor had a short length of rubber hose in his hotel room when he was picked up. The sheriff said Pryor refused to explain why he had the weapons.

The youth, handsome and dressed in a natty tweed suit, sat glumly in his cell at the county jail, shrugging off all attempts to question him.

The sheriff said he would bring in a court reporter today to question the youth.

The other outgoing Commissioner, W. W. Linkenhogger, had previously filed for a place on the ballot in the election to be held

French Ports Strike Bound

PARIS, March 4 (UP)—Communist led strikes closed all French ports today while the National Assembly beat down with the help of troops an all night Communist filibuster of fists and words.

The Red filibuster was aimed at paralyzing action of an anti-sabotage bill with which the government hopes to crack Communist resistance to the North Atlantic military aid program.

The weary assembly adjourned for a four hour recess at noon after calling in troops twice to clear the hall and ordering two Communist deputies expelled for one month each.

The bill that stirred the Communists to fist fights and seizure of the rostrum would provide prison terms in jail for Communist strike agitators and death sentences for sabotage against American arms aid.

The Communist attack against the government was carried to the floor of the assembly simultaneously with a 24 hour strike in all ports of France and Algeria.

The strike started this morning to test Communist strength among dockworkers for the coming battle against unloading American arms shipments.

It was part of a nationwide strike wave, partly political and partly for wage increases, which has made 300,000 workers idle in scores of industries and services.

Store Keeper Jailed In Shooting

JACKSONVILLE, Tex., Mar. 4 (UP)—A country store keeper was jailed here today as an aftermath of the fatal shooting of sawmill operator L. J. Pope during an argument about wartime "slackers."

Pope, 42, was shot six times with a .22 caliber pistol yesterday. He died in a Jacksonville hospital.

Police said murder charges were being drawn up. Investigators said the two men argued about "shirkers" of World War II military service. They said a fist fight ensued, after which the storekeeper, not a war veteran, returned with a pistol and allegedly began firing.

Coal Crisis Causes President To Cancel All Appointments

Eben Ayers, Assistant White House Press Secretary, writes "cancelled" through President Truman's engagement list of the day as reporters look on. Mr. Truman decided to devote the day to the coal crisis which has now reached a most critical point. (NEA Telephoto.)

EXPECTED TO MAKE SHORT WORK OF NEW AGREEMENT

By ROBERT E. LEE

WASHINGTON, March 4. (UP)—John L. Lewis and northern and western coal operators began mapping the legal details today of the basic agreement they reached last night for ending the nine-months soft coal dispute.

One operator predicted a contract might be ready for signing by noon, EST.

Lewis and his United Mine Workers aides and attorneys began a closed meeting with George H. Love, president of the Operators Negotiating Committee, shortly before 10 A. M. EST.

As the negotiating committees met, Chairman David L. Cole of the president's fact finding board reported to President Truman on the basic agreement reached last night. Cole went to the White House with other members of the board.

Lewis was flanked by Thomas Kennedy, Vice President of the UMW; John Owens, secretary, and Attorney Welby

K. Hopkins as he entered the conference room in the Statler Hotel. Love was accompanied by several attorneys.

It was generally agreed that a contract would be ready for signing before nightfall, bringing to a close an impasse that had plunged the Nation into the worst coal crisis in its history.

Government mediators said a new contract would send about two-thirds of the 370,000 strikers back to their jobs Monday morning. It was also agreed that it would forestall the need for congressional action on President Truman's request for power to seize the mines.

But industry spokesmen warned that the effects of the strike would not end with the miners' return to work. They said it would require two or three weeks to deliver any appreciable amount of coal to industrial and retail consumers.

The coal shortage already has idled 600,000 workers, forced dimouts in New York and other large cities, reduced operations in the automobile, railroad and steel industries; closed many schools and forced lowered thermostats in hospitals, jails and public buildings.

Lewis and the operators reached their basic agreement last night in a 60-minute bargaining session. According to industry sources, the new agreement provides for:

1. An increase from $14.05 to $14.75 in the miners' daily wage.
2. A 10-cents-a-ton boost in operator royalties to the Union's welfare and retirement fund, raising the total to 30 cents a ton.
3. Elimination of the "willing and able" clause in the old contract under which Lewis was able to call sudden strikes.
4. Limitation of memorial period work stoppages to five days a year; and
5. Revision of the administrative set-up of the welfare fund, including a new board of trustees.

The operators said the new agreement would run to July 1, 1952, with either party authorized to re-open contract talks on 30 day's notice after April 1, 1951.

The individual miners, who defied a "no strike" court order in order to continue their walkout, were jubilant about the new agreement. They agreed it was good enough to induce them to return to their jobs.

U. S. REJECTS DEMAND TO REDUCE LEGATION

WASHINGTON, March 4 (UP)—The United States today rejected Hungary's demand that the size of the American legation in Budapest be reduced.

The state department made public a note delivered to the Hungarian Communist government today. The note stated that Hungary's demands were "improper and irrelevant."

Hungary, in a note on Feb. 23 said the trial of Robert A. Vogeler, American businessman convicted of espionage in Hungary, showed that the chief purposes served by maintenance of the present U. S. legation staff was to facilitate spying.

The American reply stated: "The United States Government does not recognize the proceedings against Robert A. Vogeler, which were completely ex parte and were characterized throughout by demonstrably preposterous falsehoods..."

The United States said "in view of the character of this 'trial' and of the wholly groundless charges against personnel of the (U. S.) legation, the U. S. government considers improper and irrelevant the inquiries" made by Hungary.

Hungary also asked if the U. S. would reconsider its ban against travel by Americans in Hungary, and also its action in closing Hungarian consulates in this country.

These requests also were turned down.

"The U. S. government has no intention, in existing circumstances of altering its decisions prohibiting the travel of U. S. citizens in Hungary and closing the Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland."

The U. S. said "the sentencing of Vogeler to prison on false charges merely confirms this government's conviction that it is unsafe for American citizens to visit Hungary..."

The not said the closing of Hungarian consulates here was based on Hungary's "refusal to permit United States consular officers in Budapest to perform their normal consular functions."

Hungary had complained that the size of the U. S. legation in Budapest far exceeded its prewar size and that the total staff was several times larger than that maintained in this country by Hungary. The legation has 22 diplomatic and military officials; 48 American employees and 103 Hungarian employees, of which the Hungarian government charged the overwhelming majority were "fascists."

Owing to the large and complicated stage-bridge unit with which the famous marionette company, a variety of scenery and many quick-change illusions have been made possible. THE STORY: The wealthy Wendell Palmer has been found dead in his library, his skull battered with a desk telephone. Police arrest his daughter's fiancé, a young sculptor Paul Moody. Palmer had opposed Paul's courtship of Azalea and had vetoed Paul's chance to sculpt a group for a new building. A short time before the murder witnesses had seen Paul entering the Palmer home. Police detective James Stevens finds fingerprints on the phone used to smash Palmer's skull and identifies them later as Paul's. Refusing to believe Paul murdered her father, Azalea goes to private detective Martin Queripel to ask him to clear Paul of the murder charge. Queripel is not sure Paul is innocent and tries to tell her to "let justice take its course."

to prove a very difficult, if not an impossible client. He knew that in times of hysteria, pouring out sympathy is like scattering oil on fire; so he spoke a bit sternly. "Before I could even consider taking your case, Miss Palmer, I'd have to make one thing plain—one proviso you'd have to accept." "I accept it! What is it?" "If, in the course of my investigations, I should find further evidence that your lover committed the crime he is accused of—I will turn that evidence over to the authorities. I am a private detective, but I consider myself a part of the machinery of justice. And no money—no, not even my sympathy for you—could bribe me into helping to frustrate justice. Perhaps I might even convince you that Paul Moody is unworthy of your love." "You could never do that, not in a thousand years." "He paused, a little dazed by the granite in so velvety a soul, dazzled by those diamond eyes of hers.

JUSTICE: Azalea Palmer's pretty lips curled in bitter scorn. "Human justice! A fine and noble young man, a great artist must be lynched as a final reward for all he endured. Justice, you say! Well, it's for you to see that justice, real justice is done to him—and to the fiend who actually killed my poor dear father. He's hiding somewhere now, while the law kills an innocent man. You're going to take the case! And I've got all the money in the world to pay you for your work." Martin Queripel put forth a hand, patted the high white knuckles and said with a smile: "Money is nice, my dear. But it isn't everything—not to everybody. If I should take the case, it would be only to persuade you to give up loving this man. He could not have loved you very well and done what he did." "But he didn't! He didn't! He didn't!" "Unfortunately a woman's faith is not accepted in our courts as a counterweight to legal evidence." "Legal evidence, my foot! What does evidence prove?" Queripel saw that she was going

HE made one last plea; for he was eager to escape from such a hopeless case: "Wouldn't you rather go to somebody with a more elastic conscience than I have—or a greater devotion to his client than to a mere abstract notion?" She stared at him and the diamonds between her eyelids turned to white ice. "I want you to take it. Just because you're so honest." "Well, since you think he is guiltless—" "I don't think. I know!" she cried. "All the fingerprints in the world wouldn't convince me. If you can convince me, you'll have earned anything you want to charge. But I dare you to try it." It was such a challenge as Quer-suspect him of trying to blackmail his father into giving him money, and then killing him, because my father refused to be blackmailed. And don't imagine that he wasn't threatened with it more than once. "Why don't people use their common sense? What good could it have done Paul to kill my father? It could only have meant that he would have been happy and contented. He would have been because he's suspected of it. He couldn't go on with his career. He couldn't have me—or anything. Oh, God, it can't happen so! I won't let it! What a miserable world it is! My poor dear Daddy is beaten to death, and now they want to rob Paul of his life and put an end to all the glorious works of art he has waiting in his soul. Killing Paul wouldn't be merely killing a man; it would mean murdering a whole world of beauty."

THE STORY: After Azalea Palmer found her father Wendell Palmer murdered at his home, police arrest her fiancé, the young sculptor Paul Moody. Palmer had opposed Paul's courtship of Azalea in many ways and a short time before the murder witnesses had seen Paul entering the Palmer home. Paul denied violence and said he left Palmer in good health. Police believe the case is straight against Paul because his fingerprints were found on the base of the desk phone which was used to batter Palmer's skull. Azalea goes to private detective Martin Queripel with a plea to clear Paul of the murder charge. Azalea's plea moves the detective to accept the case. He investigates, however, that if his investigation proves that Paul is guilty, he will not protect Paul or withhold the evidence from the police. He asks Azalea to tell her story.

AZALEA PALMER was seated now in one of the chairs of Martin Queripel's office as the continued her story of her engagement to Paul Moody. "When Paul finished sculpting the head portrait of me—and it took him ever so long—I wanted to buy it," she went on. "I made my father send him a big check. Paul returned it torn to two with a very sweet letter." She paused. "That's the man they accuse of murdering my father." "And then?" Queripel asked. "Paul's act made my father more furious than ever. He said it was all a clever trick to get all of his money by winning me. Like a fool I told my father that money meant nothing to Paul except as a way of supporting me and his art. We had talked of marriage, but Paul was hesitant. He felt sure some day he would get a big commission that would pay enough to support us both comfortably. He didn't want luxury for himself, only comfort for me." "And now they try to prove him a murderer! They—even you—

"THE worst of it all is that it should happen just as everything was clearing up for us. For suddenly, out of a clear sky, there came the chance of Paul's whole existence. That big National Electric Company decided to put up a huge building to house all its western offices; and the architect designed a great arched entrance with a big bronze group of a dozen or more figures. "There was a competition, of course; and a dozen of the best American sculptors sent models. Everybody, even some of the rival sculptors, admitted that Paul's design was the best. Did you see it?" Queripel shook his head. "I don't go in much for art." "Well, even the Philistines would have loved it. It was inspiring—from Benjamin Franklin drawing the lightning out of the sky to the surgeon, and the soldier, and the young mother, the deaf

NEWS VIEWS

BY MACK WARREN

March is supposed to come in like a lion and go out like a lamb, and maybe March 15th has something to do with that. In fact, one of our readers claims March goes out like "a shorn lamb." Apparently he felt he has had a "beef" coming. Maybe that's because at this time of year some folks wonder how they can make both ends meet. However, if things get too tough you can still make one vegetable. And if you really want to get ahead, there's always cabbage. This all adds up to a reminder that Uncle Sam expects to hear from you in March... even though you owe him no more than a vote of thanks.

"Who, do you suppose, crushed all Paul's hopes and mine? Who, do you suppose, had the deciding vote and prevented Paul from having that commission awarded to him?"

Queripel gasped: "It wasn't—it couldn't have been—"

"Oh, yes, it was!" she cried. "It was my father. I begged him to see the model, how beautiful it was, how ugly was the very thought that it should never be made. But he wouldn't. He roared at him: 'That man shan't have the job. And he shan't have you!'"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
"Man" is the subject of the Lesson - Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 5.
The Golden Text is: "Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture" (Psalms 100:3).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson - Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace" (Psalm 37:37).

The Lesson - Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is the creator of man, and the divine Principle of man remaining perfect, the divine idea or reflection, man, remains perfect (page 470).

Lon Morris Wins A. & M. Tourney

College Station, Tex., March 4, (UP) Lon Morris College of Jacksonville wore the state junior college basketball tournament crown today after defeating Tyler Junior College, the defending champions, 73-71 last night.

Lon Morris won by coming from behind in the final seconds of play last night. Tyler had led most of the way, and had a 37-32 advantage at the half. Lon Morris gained a tie at 71, with 52 seconds to play, when Bib Ousley hit a field goal.

Jack Henderson threw in a jump shot for the victory when there were only 26 seconds left. Henderson barged 22 points to lead the scoring. Royce Ray paced Tyler, the 1949 champions, with 19.

Ray landed on the all-tournament team, while Henderson won a spot on the second squad. Other first-team members were O'Neal Weaver and Tommy Hancock of Tyler and Albert Renta and Auerillo Rameriz of Lon Morris.

Hancock was named the most valuable player of the three-day meet.
Amarillo defeated Wharton, 52-51, for third place in the championship bracket, and Lamar College of Beaumont knocked over Blinn 68-46, for the consolation championship.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)—Police reporters here covered a fire story without getting up from their chairs. The blaze was just outside the door to the press room. It started from a lighted cigarette.

WE LIVE IN A GREAT COUNTRY —

... and one of the things that has helped to make it so is insurance. In one particular at least the average American is unique in that he buys a lot of insurance. This means that he doesn't have to carry his own risk and the worries that go along with it. He just insures himself, his family, his property—everything—because it is good business to do so. Yes, it's American to be insured and insurance is typically American!

The Globe-Trotting Costume Is Versatile

Good foundation for a spring wardrobe is the costume that can double as coat or dress. Thin gray worsted makes the full-skirted coat-dress (left) which is styled with "lampshade" sleeves and is fastened with silver buttons. Checked wool coat-dress (right) has a double-breasted closure, slim skirt line and a convertible collar. Cuffed sleeves are set into a dropped shoulderline.

BY EPSIE KINARD
NEA Fashion Editor
NEW YORK—(NEA)—Destined to be as popular with the spring traveler as a cruise ticket is the coat-dress. Even if "traveling" is no more than a trip downtown, this versatile costume combines the easy-fitting comfort, good fashion design and adaptability to changing wardrobe needs which a would-be globe-trotter prizes.

This accommodating garment can serve as a lightweight coat over slim dresses, or buttoned up the front it makes a trim, tailored dress. Variations on this design theme are seen in most of the collections. Fabrics used are usually wool ranging from tissue sheer worsteds to heavier checked weaves.

Monte-saho, for example, uses a silk-thin French worsted in dark gray checks for a handsome coat-dress in his collection. An unusual sleeve treatment of double "lampshade" flounces ending above the wrist sets off the simple styling of fitted bodice and full skirt. Belted in gunmetal leather, this coat-dress is fastened from its white linen collar half way down the skirt front with bright silver buttons.

NEW HEARING DEVICE HAS NO RECEIVER BUTTON IN EAR

Chicago, Ill.—Deafened people are hailing a new device that gives them clear hearing without making them wear a receiver button in the ear. They now enjoy songs, sermons, friendly companionship and business success with no self-conscious feeling that people are looking at any button hanging their ear. With the new almost invisible Phantomold and Beltone you may free yourself not only from deafness, but from even the appearance of deafness. The makers of Beltone, Dept. 40, 1450 W. 19th St., Chicago 8, Ill., are so proud of their achievement they will gladly send you their free brochure (in plain wrapper) and explain how you can test this amazing device in the privacy of your own home without risking a penny. Write Beltone today.

Following the program the group adjourned to the cafeteria for a social hour during which the mothers of the second Grade were hostesses and served a refreshment plate to about 40 mothers attending.

BUSINESS REVIEW SHOWS UP AND DOWN TRENDS

DALLAS, Tex., March 4 (UP)—Production of crude oil in the five-state eleventh federal reserve district has shown a persistent downward trend during 1950, the month business review says in its March issue.

During January, the overall demand for petroleum products exceeded production with a resulting drop in stocks on hand at refineries, the magazine said.

Crude production in the district during January amounted to 2,214,000 barrels, a cut-back of about 377,000. Total cutback over the entire nation for January was 492,000 barrels.

The eleventh district includes Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

The review reported that demands for department store goods continued high through January and the first half of February. Sales during January were five per cent greater this year than in 1949.

The value of construction contracts dropped seven per cent under those reported in December, 1949. These contracts were more than 44 per cent greater than the small volume awarded in January last year.

The review reported that heavy rains over most of the district greatly benefitted winter crops, pastures and ranges but had held up field work. Only in the winter wheat belt are crops still suffering from inadequate moisture.

In a summary on industrial development in the southwest during the past decade, Keith W. Johnson, industrial economist, reported that the value of manufactured goods produced in this district had jumped from $789,000,000 in 1939 to $2,921,000,000 in 1947, an increase of 270 per cent.

Civil War Not Forgotten

DES MOINES, Ia. (UP)—Iowa's last Civil War veteran has answered the final roll call, but the adjutant general's office still receives regular requests for records of Civil War servicemen. The office reports most requests come from grandchildren of war veterans who seek records to qualify for entrance to auxiliary organizations with Civil War connections.

Every fifth male person 14 years of age or over, enumerated in the United States population census starting April 1, will be asked if he is a war veteran.

Johnson said that the natural advantages which induced industry to the southwest during the war would undoubtedly remain an attraction in peacetime. These advantages he listed as climate, open spaces, and the availability of petroleum and natural gas.

In 1947, 58 per cent of manufacturing located in the five-state area was in Texas. At that time Louisiana had 24 per cent, and Oklahoma 13 per cent. Arizona and New Mexico accounted for five per cent between them, Johnson said.

A characteristic of manufacturing in the southwest has been the predominance of industry built around developing natural resources. About 63 per cent of all manufacturing in the district is of this type as compared with 40 per cent over the entire nation.

Quoting the U. S. Bureau of the Census, Johnson said that the number of workers employed in manufacturing had increased 79 per cent during the period 1939-47
