Wounded Tell Story Of Korean Debacle

By Charles Corddry
United Press Aviation Writer
A. U. S. AIR BASE IN JAPAN July 14 (UP)—Four sergeants carefully lifted a litter from a C-47 hospital plane today. The blanket was drawn over the soldier's face.

He had died en route from Korea. Virginia Pecan, 27-year-old flight nurse, had worked valiantly administering transfusions, but to no avail.

As the stretcher was placed in an ambulance along with the soldier's battle equipment and personal effects, a little group of air-men who assembled near the plane stood silently under the broiling sun, grimacing and shaking their heads.

Casualties are being evacuated from Korea by air at a rapid pace. At intervals during the day and night, C-47 transports land here with the wounded and stretcher cases.

The wounded tell almost identical stories. The Americans are badly outnumbered, urgently need more weapons and equipment, but courageously are carrying out a delaying action. Nurse Pecan, of Queens, New York, brought bad news. She reported that this was expected to be her last trip out of the American airstrip near the front lines.

If developments bear out the prediction, it will mean that casualties will have to be brought overland to a less advanced strip for aerial evacuation.

Lt. Pecan, who has been in the Air Force five years, is one of five flight nurses working around the clock. Patients average 15 per flight. There are 10 other nurses, she said.

She looked tired but was cheerful and pleasant with the wounded.

Nine litters debarked from her flight this afternoon, including one casualty who appeared to have been bleeding badly about the face. On the nurse's trouser leg were blood stains. Another soldier had a leg in a cast.

Among the walking wounded was Pfc. Albert Fisher, of Buffalo, N. Y., who was attached to a medical clearing station near the Kum River.

"They can't stand it much longer if they don't get some stuff up there," he said.

Fisher has his arm in a cast and said with a sheepish smile that he fell down and broke his wrist.

He said the North Koreans "are not taking any prisoners."

Another evacuated soldier said, "they cut my buddy's head off." As this is being written, a young private sits across the table trying to write a letter. He keeps looking off into space and his pencil won't seem to work.

"I keep thinking about those stretchers, that guy who died," he said. "I've never seen anything like that before. I've seen them in the movies, of course, but never the real thing before."

Defense Officials In Washington Say Russia Supplying Korean Reds

By Earnest Hoberecht
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO, Saturday, July 15 (UP)—Strong forces of Communist troops disguised in American uniforms have crossed the Kum river near Taejon and cracked the line of U. S. defenses along the South bank, U. S. field headquarters announced today.

Violent fighting was raging at midnight along the Kum in the Taejon sector.

The North Korean forces poured down out of the hills behind the Kum river valley and struck "in large force" at the American left flank Northwest of Taejon.

The break through foreshadowed another series of withdrawals by the American forces, United Press Staff Correspondent Rutherford Foats reported from Korean headquarters. He said the Americans were outnumbered four to one.

The South Korean government already had pulled out most of its sections from Taejon, the emergency capital to which it fled from Seoul, and gone on farther South.

Reports from the battlefield at first said the hard fighting Americans were holding the raiders in check after the Kum river was crossed in the face of a point-blank American artillery barrage.

But later dispatches admitted that heavy fighting was in progress on the South bank.

The North Koreans attacked after several days of infiltrating soldiers in civilian clothes under cover of darkness. The Kum was low and sluggish, and could be forded at some places in the U. S. sector.

Posts reported that another Communist stab across the river was expected on the right flank of the Americans to the East of Taejon where the U. S. and South Korean sectors join.

Heavy artillery duels across the river went on during the night.

The field green American uniforms worn by the attacking Communists threw the U. S. defenders off balance and gave the enemy an advantage.

The Korean Communists were fighting guerrilla style. U. S. officers at the front acknowledged the difficulty of dealing with guerrilla infiltration. The Americans were finding it hard to tell friend from foe, and the problem was complicated by the enemy wearing American uniforms.

Defense officials in Washington said today that Russia obviously is pouring additional supplies and equipment into the Korean war.

One said it would be impossible for the North Koreans to keep up their drive without aid from the Soviet Union.

He noted that the North Koreans need replacements for the scores of tanks knocked out by U. S. air and ground forces.

Also, he said, North Korea itself does not have enough gasoline to supply its extensive tank corps. He pointed out a medium tank consumes a gallon of gasoline in less than a mile and that the heaviest have an even higher rate of consumption.

Observers in Washington believe the Soviet Union is sending supplies to North Korea by an overland route from Manchuria. But a supply line by water was not ruled out.

There are three railroads running from Manchuria into Korea, according to defense spokesmen. A water route is possible since there are many ports under North Korean control that could land Russian shipments.

Hunters are in a dither over ducks because two groups can't agree on whether their population is increasing or declining.

Ducks Unlimited recently took issue with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service on a report that the duck census was down several notches.

After a session at the conference table, Ducks Unlimited, the U. S. agency and the Dominion Fish and Wildlife Service of Canada agreed the situation was not so alarming.

The agencies issued a joint statement which said "In spite of the drought in Western prairies of Alberta and Saskatchewan, the overall picture had shown some improvement.

An increase of waterfowl in Manitoba and parts of Northern Saskatchewan indicated many of the birds had winged North and Eastward to get away from the dry area.

It has definitely been established that the ducks and geese which went North in the spring of 1949 presented an encouraging picture as to increased numbers but encountered severe drought conditions.

The drought forced thousands of birds to seek other nesting areas, and there was a prevalence of females molting with the drakes. Subsequently, there were more pairs of adults per square mile than broods, giving the impression that production would not be great.

Fishing was good on Lake Texoma this week, although crappie were not biting as consistently as usual.

Joe M. Frank of Oklahoma City hauled in a four-pound, three-ounce lunker, as well as 25 good crappie and some white bass, in a recent venture.

Other good catches were reported by Hi O'Bryan, Tishomingo, Okla., and Edwin Culwell and his party of Denison.

The Tulsa district of the corps of Engineers said Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Graham of Maalister, Okla., caught a string of 66 crappie and white bass on the Oklahoma side of the lake.

L. J. Webster and his sons of Oklahoma City brought in 32 channel cats with trotlines in the Cumberland area, the Tulsa district said.

First Woman Ever To Fly Plane Tells How It Was In Early Days

By Harman W. Nichols
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Blanche Stuart Scott, first woman ever to get a plane off the ground, most likely was the first girl test-pilot.

Miss Scott—better known as "Betty"—told me about it over coffee. It was in 1917, and the test piloting was, to put it mildly, a little on the unusual side.

"I was working with a fellow named Glenn Martin out in California," she said. "We would take the planes up, circle the field a couple of times and then land. If we didn't hear any funny noises, we would go into the hangar and make up a blueprint. I understand they don't do it that way anymore."

Betty, a folksy little woman, made her maiden flight at Hammondport, N. Y., Sept. 6, 1910, seven years after the Wright brothers took wing.

She managed to keep her ship aloft for three minutes. That didn't set any records, but if you could get a plane off the ground and land with legs and arms and a head intact in those days, there were medals begging.

Later, Betty went into the air circus business "where we wore pants and spangles and you had to be nuts to fly an airplane."

The carnival folks made the fliers sign a contract guaranteeing they would hit the blue and stay there for at least 15 minutes.

"Planes in those days were made of bamboo, canvas, and wire," she said. "Airships were for exhibition only. And when we had to go any distance for a show, we'd take the wings off and send the planes ahead by freight. If we had any trouble, we'd patch it up with tape. Even to the point of substituting tape for bolts. Parachutes were no good; besides we didn't have any. It was safer to stick by the ship."

Betty, looking across happy years in the air, recalls some amusing incidents.

One was near Emeryville race track outside Oakland, Calif. A fellow named Horace Kearny, with whom she was working, advertised that he could catch fish from his airplane. This was in 1912.

"It wasn't strictly honest," she admitted.

It seems that Betty and Kearny had a deal with a messenger service to deliver a live fish before the plane took off, handy if the flier didn't snag any from the plane—which he never did.

One day, Betty was standing in the infield of the track waiting for her friend to take off when a messenger came rushing up looking for Kearny.

Somebody suggested that the boy go back to the main office, but our girl was right there on the job. The fish would be dead by the time the red tape was cleared. So she got the boy by the ear and marched him and his package out to the spot where the plane was being revved for a take-off.

Everything Will Thornberg Ate Disagreed With Him Until He Took Hadacol

Found his trouble was due to lack of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Iron and Niacin in his system!

In case after case where people had given up all hope of obtaining relief from such stomach distress, simply wonderful experiences are being reported after taking this great new HADACOL for deficiencies of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Iron and Niacin in the system.

Everyone is talking about HADACOL and the wonderful good it is doing for weak, run-down men, women and children who have such deficiencies.

For instance, here's an interesting experience which Mr. and Mrs. Will Thornberg jointly write about. They live in Garner, North Carolina.

"My husband, 60 years old, had suffered with stomach distress for quite some time. Everything he ate seemed to disagree with him. A friend told me about HADACOL and how much it had helped her. I insisted that my husband give it a fair trial. He had tried so many medicines without any result that he had begun to think nothing would help him.

"He is on his fourth bottle now. He can eat anything he wants, and it doesn't hurt him. He says he can recommend HADACOL gladly to anyone suffering as he did. Thanks so much for HADACOL."

Many Doctors Recommend HADACOL

Ask your own doctor if this isn't so. A lack of only a small amount of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Iron and Niacin can cause much stomach distress—indigestion, heartburn gas, bloating, a "nervous" stomach which can't, and refuses to, digest your food properly.

So why punish yourself and keep on taking quick-acting antacids which give symptomatic relief. Be fair to yourself—relieve the REAL CAUSE of your trouble due to such deficiencies.

And thanks to HADACOL—it's now possible to do so.

Get That Wonderful HADACOL Feeling

HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with more than their daily needs of Vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, Iron and Niacin but also beneficial amounts of precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—so vital to maintain good health.

Know the joy of being able to eat a square meal. Be able to eat the foods you like and enjoy them without suffering gas, heartburn and painful indigestion afterwards.

And the best news, yet! Continued use of this great HADACOL helps keep such stomach disturbances from coming back! Truly one of the greatest blessings of the times! So start this very day—get that wonderful, wonderful HADACOL feeling everyone is talking about. Trial-size bottle, only $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50.

Navy Hunting For Reservists In Emergency

NEW ORLEANS, La.— Since Naval Reservists, both organized and volunteers, are desired for active duty, Rear Admiral W. K. Phillips, USN, Commandant of the Eighth Naval District, announced that the machinery has been set up throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico for processing applications of those who volunteer.

"The Navy needs additional male officers and enlisted men," the Admiral said. "Primarily it needs them for afloat and overseas duty."

The Navy requires a minimum of six months active duty from those who volunteer. Twelve months of active duty will be guaranteed to those who desire it.

Male officers should submit their requests for active duty directly to the Bureau of Personnel (Section Pers. B1), Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C. The Bureau of Personnel will issue all orders to officers. Aviation officers should include flight time and types of plane flown during the past year in their applications.

Enlisted men are to volunteer at their nearest naval recruiting station. There are 51 naval recruiting stations in these five states, 45 of these are sub-stations. Those who volunteer at recruiting sub-stations will be transported to main recruiting stations for final determination of eligibility for active duty. All those finally accepted will be given active orders immediately and sent on to receiving stations for further assignment.

All enlisted applicants must be physically qualified for unlimited active duty and have at least one year remaining in their current naval reserve enlistment.

Applications are not desired at this time from Chief Petty Officers, except in the rating of sonarman, radarman, fire-controlmen, fire-control technicians, air controlmen, mineman, communications technicians, yeomen and photographer's mates.

No volunteers are desired at this time from enlisted personnel in the recruit and apprentice grades.

Enlisted organized naval reservists, who intend to volunteer for active duty should contact their local naval reserve Inspector-Instructors prior to reporting to recruiting station.

The Navy's need for officers applies to those ranks of Lieuten-

"If elected I pledge my untiring effort to fulfill any and all tasks that come before me. I have but one promise to make and that is that I will always be on the job and will try to the very best of my ability to enforce the law and do what I believe is right."

"It is my intention to see every voter in the county, personally, However, should I fail to contact some of you I take this means of earnestly soliciting your vote and influence with the solemn promise that I shall do my utmost to conduct the duties of the office in such a manner that none of you will have cause to regret having placed confidence in me."

Congress Gets Upset About War In Korea

WASHINGTON, July 13 (UP)—President Truman is expected today to confirm the nation's fear that we are in for a long, costly and bloody struggle in Korea.

But Truman's confidence of ultimate success remains unshaken. He is supported in that by the Pentagon high brass.

The president will discuss the Korean crisis with correspondents at a news conference scheduled for 3 p. m. CDT.

At the White House and at national defense headquarters across the Potomac river there is a gravely serious but confident atmosphere.

Among some members of Congress, however, there already are symptoms of war jitters. From various members are coming demands for immediate atomic war, for breaking relations with Russia, for censorship and for industrial and military mobilization.

Rep. Lloyd M. Benson, jr., D., Tex., won a salvo of house cheers yesterday with a proposal for an atomic ultimatum to North Korea. Republican and Democrats alike whopped it up when Benson said:

"I propose that our commander-in-chief, the president, advise the commander of North Korean forces to withdraw in one week or North Korea will be subject to atomic attack."

Sen. Owen Brewster, R., Me., told newsmen Truman should let Gen. Douglas MacArthur use the A-bomb "wherever he thinks it is needed."

An immediate end to diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia and all her Communist satellites was proposed by Sen. Pat McCarrren, D., Nev.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, D., Tex., told his colleagues that "minimum national security" requires that all the armed services be placed on a combat basis, enactment of industrial mobilization legislation and mobilization of National Guard and reserve units presently on a drill pay basis.

Houston and San Antonio. Announcement that the Marine corps had removed all quota restrictions was made by the Southern recruiting division of the Marine corps at Dallas. A spokesman said men heretofore rejected for lack of color perception or dental irregularities would now be reconsidered.

On the civil front, Braniff International Airways at Dallas announced it is chartering an undisclosed number of airplanes to the government during the Korean crisis.

T. E. Braniff, president of the airline, said the four-engine craft will aid in the transportation of military personnel.

Texas independent oilmen said they were calling a truce in their fight against Korean oil imports because of the Korean war. "We make no concessions in principle," said R. L. Foree of Dallas, president of the Texas independent producers and royalty owners association in a letter to 11 major oil importing companies. Foree said excessive imports for the past year and a half have injured the domestic economy. However, he said the American oil industry may be called upon to do a job that will require the mobilization of the entire resources of the industry.

"Dissension cannot be tolerated," he said.

Gov. Allen Shivers said he hoped this country will not use the atomic bomb, as suggested to Congress by Rep. Lloyd Bentsen, Jr., of McAllen. However, he said the United States should pour all men and materials necessary to win the Korean conflict.

The five induction centers in Texas were ordered readied following a conference between state selective officials and Fourth Army officials at San Antonio.

No hint was given as to when Texas' share of inductees under the new draft law would have to report.

LET'S GO FISHIN'

By Onous Dick

Reports to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission indicate increased water hazards in Texas from the common use of rubber life rafts.

According to the executive secretary several near tragedies have been averted because the standard collapsible rafts, as well as ordinary automobiles and truck inner tubes became deflated in deep water.

The Texas situation was pointed up by the recent news report from Grand Junction, Colorado, about two navy officers drowning in Cottonwood Lake when their rubber raft collapsed far from shore.

Safety experts have noted that most persons venturing into deep water on inflated automobile tire tubes cannot swim and thus are helpless when the makeshift preserver loses its buoyancy.

A Stephenville man paid a stiff fine for pursuing the old sport of catching fish with his hands.

In his report covering the infraction which occurred in the Colorado River, Bowers said the man "had caught several catfish under rocks with his bare hands."

This primitive means of catching catfish became so popular and so devastating to spawning fish that the legislature turned it years ago.

Southern Rhodesia, Turkey and Cuba supply much of the chrome oxide used in the colored glazes of clay tiles for bath and kitchens.
