Conditioning is still the order of the day at football workouts by Eastland gridgers under the direction of coach Wendell Siebert. Siebert said that most of the other teams would have an edge on the Mavericks in experience, so the local team would have to be in top condition to have any kind of chance in most games. So the prospects are working long and hard to get in shape for some real "head knocking" which is not likely until sometime next week at the earliest. Weather conditions have been favorable the first few days of practice, with the cool spell some good workout weather. The Mavericks first game is on September 8, so there is a lot of work to be done, and time is not so plentiful.

Meanwhile other high school and college students are preparing to go back to school and leave the freedom of summer vacation. For some of them, the summer has passed very swiftly, and for others a little slowly, depending largely upon their attitude toward school.

Most of the teachers have not been so lucky as the students. For the summer they have been taking some of their own medicine as students in various colleges, learning more about being teachers.

Boyce House addressed a large group of Rotary and Lion members at the Rotary meeting in the Connellee hotel, Monday.

House did not disappoint his audience, giving a laugh provoking talk.

He also included a few thoughts for his listeners in his talk on getting the most out of life.

Among the thoughts was the suggestion that people cultivate a good sense of humor which kept his audience in a state of laughter.

House said that despite the grave world conditions, there is a great deal on which we may base a feeling of optimism. Which is a good thought for today's world.

Schedule Made For Breeding Fine Cows Artificially

Dairymen and others wishing cows bred artificially should call from 7:00 a. m. to 10:00 o'clock on the day they wish to have the animals bred, L. O. Swindle, Cisco, artificial breeding technician said today.

After 10:00 o'clock makes up his route for the day and starts on his duties. To reach him call 605-W, Cisco.

The owner should have the animal in a stall or small corral near the barn, and the payment is due when the cow is bred, Swindle said.

Calves born to artificially bred cows may be registered if the cow is registered it was said.

Cows may be bred to bulls of either the Jersey, Holstein or Guernsey breeds. There is now 16 bulls on the North Texas Artificial Breeding farms near Dallas, where the semen is secured.

The artificial breeding service is sponsored by the Eastland County Dairy Association. A. Z. Myrick, Cisco is president of the organization. The breeding service has been available in Eastland County now for the past 19 months, Swindle, who has been the artificial inseminator for the past four months said.

The service is equally available to owners of one cow or twenty cows. The charge is $7.00 with two repeat services free if necessary.

COMMUNISTS GAIN GROUND AT MUSAN

By Ernest Hoberecht United Press Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (UP)—North Korean Reds filtered through American lines on the Northern front above Taegu today and cut off the 27th infantry regiment in fierce fighting.

An 8th army communique issued in Korea at 8:15 p.m. (6:10 a.m. EDT) said the enemy troops infiltrated behind the regiment and threw a road block across the highway leading south to Taegu.

"At last report," the communique said, "a U. S. force was engaged in reducing the road block."

A regiment normally is about 3,000 troops, but the communique gave no indication how many men were isolated by the Communist thrust. The 27th regiment, part of the 25th division, has been thrown into the hottest spots in the Korean fighting.

THE COMMUNISTS HAD shifted to infiltration tactics after losing four tanks, three self-propelled guns and scores of men in a futile frontal attack on the regiment some 13 miles north of Taegu before dawn today.

The Reds slipped behind the American lines from a two-mile salient they had hammered into the South Korean line just east of the Taegu road yesterday.

THE COMMUNIQUE SAID the 5th U. S. Regimental combat team launched a limited attack against 500 to 1,000 enemy troops to regain the lost ground, primarily a hill.

At the same time, a spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported that the Communists were stepping up pressure all around the 120-mile perimeter of the allied beachhead.

Nine depleted Communist divisions—perhaps 50,000 to 80,000 troops—were "in contact" with United Nations forces, he said.

Williams Says Nothing New In Hanging Case

Sheriff J. B. Williams said this morning that no new developments have arisen in the hanging of Martha Wendt, 58 year old woman, Saturday.

Williams said that Justice of the Peace W. E. Brown of Cisco is holding the case open for further investigation.

Two Bibles, one German and the other a family Bible, which had been owned by the dead woman, were recovered from a stock tank near the farm house where she was found hanging.

WILLIAMS SAID, HOWEVER that the Bibles offered no clue in the case. The Bibles had been thrown in the tank only recently he stated.

Brown has returned a verdict of "death by hanging by a person or persons unknown," in the case.

The body of Miss Wendt was found hanging by the neck from a tree limb in the yard of her farm home near Cisco, Saturday at about 8 p. m. by a nephew, Charles Wendt, and a friend, Erna Faye Graham.

WILLIAMS AND BROWN were unable to locate a suicide note in the house. Williams said that apparently nothing had been disturbed in the house.

Funeral services were held in the Thomas Funeral Home in Cisco Monday with burial in the Lutheran cemetery near her home. She is survived by six brothers and two sisters.

Mobilization

SECRETARY JOHNSON FIGURES IT WILL TAKE NEAR 25 BILLION TO KEEP U. S. FORCES READY FOR WAR WITH REDS; OTHER VIEWS

By W. R. Higginbotham United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (UP)—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson expects the Korean war to last six to eight months, it was revealed today.

Johnson made the estimate July 25, a month after the war began. If he is right, the fighting would end sometime next winter. But he emphasized that heavy rearmament would continue for another two or three years.

The statement was in the published record of closed hearings by the House appropriations committee on President Truman's urgent request for $16,000,000,000 in extra domestic and overseas military spending to fight Communism.

The record revealed for the first time in detail the mobilization rush precipitated by the Korean invasion. New revelations included the announcement that the Navy has called up 53,000 reservists, plans to call up another 35,000 and will take in recruits at the rate of 15,500 a month.

Johnson, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and the military chiefs who testified agree the money is only the first installment if trouble breaks out elsewhere. The fund includes $4,000,000,000 in emergency arms aid for our Allies.

After the current year's build up, estimated to cost $25,600,000,000 it will take just short of that amount annually to keep the forces on a "readiness basis," Johnson said.

Acheson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said the Korean war proved Communism can be expected to use force whenever, and wherever it thinks it can win.

"How speedily can we be prepared by this additional appropriation to cope with the world conditions that now confront us—six months or six years?" Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D., Fla., asked.

"I do not think that either figure is right," Johnson said. "I think this program is going to run across the next two or three years. The Korean situation, I hope, is a six or eight months' proposition."

Johnson said that one of the "imponderables is that this may be but the beginnings of larger things."

Bradley said that American troops sent to Korea were far short of their war strength. Infantry regiments, he said, had two battalions when they should have had three. Overseas units now are at 65 per cent of war strength, he said, while a "state of readiness" is 85 per cent.

The hearings disclosed the Army plans to "activate" one full division, bringing its total to 11, plus providing for two replacement training divisions.

The hearings also disclosed these additional details: The Navy plans also to build 139 new ships, mostly small vessels such as minesweepers, and convert 31 others. It is also putting snorkels on 19 submarines to enable them to operate long distances under water.

The Navy hopes to have a fleet of 911 ships by the end of the fiscal year.

The extra funds will enable the Airforce and Navy to construct 6,805 new airplanes, of which 2,377 will be for the Navy and 4,428 for the Airforce. This will bring the Navy's operating strength to 7,335 aircraft and the Airforce to nearly 15,000 planes.

House Urges Getting Back To Realities

Speaking on the subject of getting the most out of life, Boyce House, Fort Worth author, told the Eastland Rotary Club the need of "discarding the phony and getting back to realities—to the fundamentals on which this nation was founded:

"Economy in government, thrift on the part of the individual and the doctrine of a good day's work for a good day's pay."

He also urged people to cultivate their sense of humor and said that despite grave world conditions, there is much on which to base a feeling of optimism.

House paid tribute to the press and said that one of the things that distinguishes a town from a city is a daily paper, that regardless of population, if a place had a daily paper then it has the spirit of progress and enterprise which come into our minds when we think of a city."

AFTER RECOGNIZING THE important contributions which a weekly paper makes, the speaker said the faster tempo at which we live, the automobile, stream-lined trains and airplanes have geared us to a place where we require also a daily paper to give us the news as quickly as it happens.

Much hard work is necessary to keep a daily paper in a small city going, House declared, adding that he ought to know something about it, as he was editor of the former Eastland Daily Oil Belt News and later of the Ranger Daily Times for several years.

He was introduced by O. H. Dick, publisher of the Telegram.

David McKee, president of the club, presided at the Monday meeting which was held at the Connellee Hotel.

Several members of the Lions Club were guests at the meeting. Also attending were L. R. Pearson and Dr. G. C. Boswell of Ranger.

New Atomic Plant Opens For Business

Commission Says Most Powerful Built In States

By Paul F. Ellis United Press Science Editor UPTON, N. Y., Aug. 22 (UP)—The newest and most powerful Atomic furnace began operating for the first time early today.

It was exactly at 2:30 a. m. (EDT) when the critical size was reached in the pile of Uranium flux, thereby setting off a chain reaction which could keep the pile going on forever at Brookhaven National laboratory.

The new pile, construction of which was started after the war, is the sixth Atomic furnace now operating in the country. The Commission said it was "several times" more powerful than the Atomic energy pile at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

THE BROOKHAVEN ATOMIC plant is operated by several Eastern universities under direction of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Canada has one, two are located in England, and one in France. It is not known whether Russia has an Atomic energy pile. But it is believed the Reds would have needed one to develop the material for an Atomic explosion.

The Brookhaven pile here is designed to produce energy of 30,000 kilowatts which, if it could be converted, would be enough electricity to supply the needs of a small town on a 24-hour basis.

WHEN A PILE REACHES A so-called critical size, a chain reaction starts automatically, and if control devices were not available the chain reaction would get out of control, and the pile would no longer be a pile. It would become an Atomic bomb.

To get the chain reaction started, atoms of Uranium 235 must be split with the release of neutrons, heavy particles which come from within the nucleus of the atom. As the neutrons are released, they hit other Uranium atoms, causing still more neutrons to be released and eventually enough neutrons are being released from split atoms that the chain reaction is underway.

THE HEAT AND ENERGY that are released inside an Atomic energy pile are nature's own forces and will be used by the Brookhaven scientists in scientific investigation.

The main purpose of the new pile is to produce neutrons. The neutrons will be used inside the pile to make radioactive isotopes which are used today in medicine, agriculture and industry.

AMERICANS WIPE OUT ENEMY SPEARHEAD

American troops have wiped out an enemy spearhead near Yuchon (1) only 35 miles west of post of Pusan. In other sectors UN forces scored gains, while Communists massed troops in four areas (broken arrows) for possible major drives on Taegu (2) and Pusan. South Koreans captured vital high ground 15 miles north of Taegu, meeting heavy Red pressure all along line from Waegwan to Kunwi. On east coast, (3), South Koreans pushed spearheads north of Pohang and Kigye, easing threat to American airfield near Pohang. Near Changnyong (4), where Red bridgehead was erased, U. S. patrols crossed the Naktong, while Communist were strengthening their lone remaining Naktong bridgehead at Hyonoung. (NEA Telephoto).

A Private First Class in service with the local National Guard unit was transferred to inactive duty after his boss told him he would be fired if he didn't leave the field artillery unit.

Adjutant General K. L. Berry said in announcing the transfer of the 20-year-old Eastland mechanic that he was breaking an emergency policy.

"Although because of world affairs I have established the policy of freezing such transfers and discharges, I will have to make an exception in this case," he said.

"The Texas National Guard needs every man it has or can get. But I cannot deprive a man of his right to earn a living in the face of such threats.

"As long as this remains an isolated instance," the General said, "I can afford to make an exception. If employers continue to present this alternative to their employees who are members of the Guard, I shall feel it my duty to ask for the assistance of public opinion." Name of the employer or mechanic was not released.

BULLETINS

WITH U. S. FORCES IN KOREA, Wednesday, Aug. 23 (UP)—Army intelligence officers believe Maj. Gen. William F. Dean was stabbed to death by a Korean Communist while he lay wounded as a prisoner of war.

Dean, former commander of the U. S. 24th Division, has been missing in action since July 21. He went into the front lines when the American troops were making a rear guard fight just before they abandoned the city of Taejon.

HOUSTON, Aug. 22 (UP)—A Federal Marshal is expected to bring stock Morton Sobell, a 33-year-old electrical engineer who is charged with passing defense secrets to Soviet Russia, to Houston late today from the border town of Laredo.

DENVER, Aug. 22 (UP)—A passenger died of a heart attack and seven others were injured when a propeller of an American airlines DC-6 transport, with 57 persons aboard, tore loose and crashed through the fuselage while the plane was over the rocky mountains.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (UP)—North Korean Communists "still have the capability of putting on a major attack" despite their heavy losses, a military spokesman said today.

$50 Reward Is Offered Finder Of Derby Winner

A reward of $50 is awaiting the person who brings in horned toad 282, Lonely Hart, which was the first place winner in the Eastland Old Rip Horned Toad Derby.

The finder of the toad, which is marked with the number 282 on its stomach, may pick up the reward at the chamber of commerce office upon turning the toad in and having it identified as the authentic derby champion.

Mrs. Marene Johnson who marked the toads for the race, will identify the toad.

The reward is being offered by Marion Hart of Fort Worth, who visited with the trainer of the winner, A. B. Cornelius, in Eastland this week.

Mrs. Johnson said that the toads which participated in the race were put in five boxes after the race was over and distributed throughout the city.

End of a Chapter

THE STORY: Alice Pine, literary secretary to Muriel Halleck, a writer, is mystified at first by Muriel's husband, Brent, who is a painter. One night she hears Rick, the Hallecks' small, adopted son, screaming and finds Brent standing over the child and trying to kick a wisp under a rug. Alice down-grades by Molly Tremayne who has known him since childhood. And the night after the episode in the hallway, Alice sees bruises on Muriel's arm—bruises left by fingers. One evening Alice is left alone and she decides on a night swim. As she is in the water Brent appears on the beach. Brent sees her and there is nothing for Alice to do but wade onto the beach.

XIV
BRENT HALLECK waited quietly on the beach as Alice Pine shook out her hair. For once his eyes, gleaming in the half-light, did not appear sardonic. Instead, they seemed troubled.
"Sensible place to be tonight," he indicated the water.
She picked up her towel. "I thought you were out somewhere."
He shrugged. "I did take a drive. But I hadn't any place to go. So I parked down at the end of the road and then—he neered at her suddenly—"was that you singing?"
"Afraid so." She gave an embarrassed laugh. "If you call it singing when I can't carry a note."
"I liked it," Brent said.
She glanced at him quickly. But behind his pipe, his face was serious.
A moment passed, with Brent puffing silently. Alice reached for her robe. "Well, I think I can sleep now."
He took the pipe from his mouth. "Don't go just yet, Alice."
"Why?" She was a little puzzled. His voice had been unusual. Almost—well, timid.
"Because I'd like to talk to you." She hesitated, without understanding the hesitation. For days she had studiously avoided Brent.

"I don't know if I should stay," she said doubtfully. "Muriel may be back. She may want me for something."
He laughed. "You don't know the Garden Club. When those females get together, they're good for half the night. Besides, what if Muriel is back? We could still talk, I suppose."
"All right." She sat down, pulled on her sandals. "But not for long. What did you want to say to me?"

BRENT dropped down by her. "I want to tell you something," he said slowly. "Then I'm going to ask a favor. But I don't know just how to do either. I'm afraid it'll sound like doubletalk to you."
"Naturally, I don't understand. Why can't you just speak out?"
"This is one time when that's difficult. So I'll merely tell you, even if it sounds trite, that the way a thing looks isn't necessarily the way it is."
"That is doubtful," Alice said. "As well as clear as I can see."
"What's wrong with you, Brent?" she asked, puzzled.
"You, in a way," he said seriously. "That it you're not saying about anything. I'll stop it now."
She thought she understood. Brent had understood whether she knew the truth about what had happened in the hallway. And he was trying to find out.
Remembering, Alice felt a resurgence of her anger and disgust. For a moment she was on the point of accusing him of pouring forth a torrent of blistering contemporary words.
Unwittingly Brent forestalled a possible outbreak by saying, "You won't understand this either. But I could use a little help about now, Alice."

Her eyes flashed to his. She was suspicious of Brent Halleck. But, tonight, he seemed different. She had never known him in this subdued mood. Unconsciously, she leaned closer to him.
"I'll be very glad to help you, Brent. Any way I can."
His fingers touched hers in the sand, but went away immediately. "Thanks. You can, maybe, for the rest of the time you're with Muriel."
"There's something you want me to do?"
"Yes." He sat up, hugging his knees. "You've been wonderful to young Rick, Alice. I can't tell you how much I appreciate it."

COMING from Brent, this should have sounded insincere. Somehow it didn't.
"But that's been a pleasure," Alice said. "I'm crazy about you."
"Well, please go on being that way. I'm sorry I can't be more explicit. But sort of see to him, will you?"
"Certainly. But we all will, won't we?"
"No," said Brent. "I won't, most of the time. I've been dickering for a job, Alice, for some time now. It's come through. In Providence. That means I'll only be here week-ends from now on."
"But why a job?" she asked in surprise. "Isn't your painting a full-time job?"
"Full-time, yes. But not fully compensated. Frankly, I haven't done so well since the war. And now—a determined note came into his voice—"I've got to make money."
"But what kind of a job, Brent?"
"In Perkins and Grant, an advertising agency up there," he told her. "I'm to be an art director. Never did that before, but I'm hoping to get away with it."

GIs In Korea Find Girls Little Dirty For Enjoyable Fraterization

(EDITOR'S NOTE: What is the American GI's life like in Korea when he's not fighting? The same as it was in Normandy and Italy in World War II or in France and Belgium in 1917. War Correspondent Robert Bennyhoff, who spent most of World War II in England as combat navigator with the 4th Air Force, returned to Tokyo a few days ago from Korea after spending a month on various Korean battlefronts. In the following dispatch he tells about the human side of GI life in Korea.)

By Robert Bennyhoff
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO (UP)—In a lot of ways this Korean war is just like all the others to the American GI, but in many others it's a lot different. The Americans in Korea still curse the muggy heat and the steep hills as they did during World War II in the South Pacific and the Philippines.

They still complain about the mud and the dust and the eternal moving around—just like they did in Europe and North Africa.

They're still digging foxholes everywhere they go—with the difference that sometimes you don't have to dig your own. Frequently you can get a South Korean to do it for you.

This doesn't apply to GIs in the battle lines, but in areas close behind, where civilians have not yet been cleared out and which are frequently shelled, the practice is to hire a native to dig a foxhole for you.

For example, during a month in Korea I had at least 10 foxholes dug for me by South Koreans at a cost of about 500 Wan (about 30 cents) per hole.

Speaking of money, the U. S. Army will sell South Korean money to GIs at a rate of 1,800 Wan to one GI dollar. The Wan is larger than the American dollar and made out of sliger paper.

The GIs usually buy five bucks' worth, or 9,000 Wan, which makes a lot in your pocket the size of a pocket novel folded in the middle.

The biggest difference between this war and the others is the almost total lack of what used to be called politely "fraternization"—or romancing between GIs and native women.

In past wars this was almost immediate, whether the women were Allies or enemies, and caused great commotion in many places.

In Korea there is virtually none of this. During the month I roamed around South Korea I never saw one GI "fraternizing" with a Korean girl, or even anything remotely approaching it.

The Koreans are not clean like the Japanese and they always appear dirty and unkempt. This probably is because a large percentage of the South Korean population has been fleeing south for nearly two months now.

Nevertheless their appearance alone keeps the women and the GIs far apart. You almost never see a Korean girl between the ages of 14 and 21 along the roads or in the villages.

They must be somewhere, but you seldom see them.
Medics warn that the venereal disease rate is extremely high in Korea. But it's the girls' appearance rather than this warning that has stopped the GIs.

UP Correspondent Says Soldiers In Korea Figure It'll Be Two Months Before US Takes Offensive

EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press War Correspondent Peter Kalischer was one of the first American newsmen to reach the fighting front after the outbreak of the Korean war. He was cut off behind enemy lines with an American battalion in the early days of the fighting, but made his way back to safety two and one half days later. He recently suffered an ankle fracture at the front and has returned to Tokyo to recuperate.

By Peter Kalischer United Press Staff Correspondent TOKYO (UP)—New attacks by the North Koreans on the north and southeast fronts have sobered up the optimists who interpreted United Nations' victories of the past week as the kick off to a major Allied offensive.

Instead of readying for the great counteroffensive that will come in time, Allied commanders are bracing themselves for more convulsive efforts on the part of the Reds to make a last ditch try for victory before winter.

The best guess—and it's only a guess—is that the Allied counter-offensive is at least two months away.

Military sources point up the fact that the decisive but minor victories in the 1st Cavalry sector around Waegwan, by the Marines and the 24th Division in the Naktong bulge, and by the South Korean and American units at Pohang were chiefly "defensive triumphs."

The attacks wiped out enemy bridgeheads on the Naktong and held—temporarily—a major Red push on Taegu from the north. The Pohang drive, while it gained mileage, was not against a major Red force.

Top military sources credit American and South Korean successes in the past week to (1) a better understanding of the enemy's field tactics; (2) a steady increase in supplies and manpower, and (3) American air power.

Fraley Says

National League Clubs Start Worrying About Philadelphia

By Oscar Fraley United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK, Aug. 22 (UP)—The ever-present pressure on the league leader was beginning to tell today on the Philadelphia Phillies and while the "Whiz Kids" still were proving whizzes they weren't looking much like kids any more.

Not too long ago when they were darkhorses of the most Sepian hue, the club celebrated every victory with vociferous cries of triumph. That was during the days when the rest of the National League considered them summer wonders who would fold rapidly when the wire came in sight.

Then the National League war cry was "stop the Dodgers." But now, suddenly, the league has realized that the Phillies aren't going to beat themselves. And every club in the league has shifted its sights and put them on the "Whiz Kids."

Day and night bombings and strafings of behind the lines targets by superfortresses, light bombers and fighter planes have virtually wrecked Communist supply lines.

The North Korean forces are "hurting" for want of food and ammunition and have to use small convoys of humans or pack animals traveling at night to keep front lines supplied.

With all these factors stacked against them, the North Koreans—and presumably the Russians—must realize that their only chance for victory is to move and move fast.

For even a slim chance to knock out the Allied bridgehead, the Reds must keep pushing now at any cost.

It is this expected Red thrust—possibly a last major attack—that Allied commanders are preparing to meet before they think of a counter-offensive.

It has made a distinct change in the ball club, probably convincing them that they can win the pennant. So no longer do they celebrate the victory of the day with cheers and back slapping. It's a long-range plan now, one which ends brilliantly or miserably when the pennant races come to a screeching halt on Oct. 1.

Their game with the Giants yesterday was a case in point. Curt Simmons, the tall southpaw, flattened the onrushing Giants with a masterful foul hitter as Brooklyn beat Pittsburgh. That kept the Phillies' lead at 5 1-2 games over the Brooks, when a loss would have reduced the lead to 4 1-2 games.

But, in the dressing room afterwards, there was no great jubilation or mass descent on the calmly undressing Curt. Each man relaxed in front of his locker, the strain lines strong on every face, and the conversation was low and punctuated by only a few laughs.

The Phillies are a young club, truly "kids" among the many veteran outfits performing in the postwar major leagues. Of the regulars against the Giants only three of them—Andy Seminck, Eddie Waitkus and Dick Sisler—are 29 years old.

Two of them are 25, Del Ennis, and Willie Jones, while Mike Goliat is 24 and Richie Ashburn and Granny Maner are 23 and Simmons is only 21. That's an average of just over 23 years of age.

They realize fully by now that from here on in they will have to face the best of every team in the league, and conquer it if they are to realize their dream on sundown on Oct. 1.

"Sure, they're tense and tight," admitted Manager Eddie Sawyer, a fatherly man whose bland exterior doesn't quite hide the worry in his brown eyes. "But I'm sure that the kids can do it. And I believe that they, too, are more certain of it now than they ever have been."

Don't give up hope without at least giving HADACOL a chance. You owe it to yourself. You owe it to your loved ones. Get that wonderful, wonderful HADACOL feeling! THE MAN WHO GAVE THE WORLD THE GREAT NEW HADACOL Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc Senator Dudley J. LeBlanc—great statesman, and humanitarian—has always been a firm believer in helping his fellow men. He was the first candidate for Governor in Louisiana to advocate a specific Old Age Pension. As State Senator he introduced the law that pays a $50.00 monthly Old Age Pension in Louisiana. Senator LeBlanc has been a champion for the cause of the underprivileged. He has been in public life and has served his people faithfully since 1924. For a long time Senator LeBlanc had been aware that a number of men, women and children (even from the wealthiest families) were suffering untold ailments and sickness because they had deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin. And Senator LeBlanc after years of research created HADACOL—the product everyone is talking about—the product that is accomplishing such remarkable results for thousands upon thousands of men, women and kiddies who have such deficiencies.

Just a Few of Thousands of Folks With Such Deficiencies Who Have Been Helped Mrs. John Geary, 340 Urouline St., New Orleans, La.: "I been sick quite some time with a nervous stomach. I was unable to eat regularly and lots of times I was unable to hold the food on my stomach. Then I heard about HADACOL. After the first few bottles I could tell a definite improvement. Now my stomach doesn't trouble me at all." Mr. John Cox, 1224 Gonder St., Springfield, Ohio: "I had nervous indigestion and stomach bloat and gas. After taking HADACOL, I have no more stomach distress and sleep well." Mrs. Hilton Shuff, Rt. 1, Box 42, Ville Platte, La.: "My son Mark Wendell has stomach trouble for some time. He could hardly hold anything on his stomach. Then I started giving him HADACOL. He started improving in a short time, and gained weight." Mr. Link Robinson, steel worker, 519 Lindsey, Newport, Kentucky: "When your stomach is in bad shape as mine was, I couldn't eat, gas pains, stomach bloating and nervousness then your body doesn't get the proper food it needs. My boss told me about HADACOL, and I started taking it. After the second bottle I could tell a definite improvement. Now I eat anything."

Why HADACOL Comes In Special Liquid Form When you drink HADACOL'S precious Vitamins and Minerals (B1, B2, Iron and Niacin, with helpful Phosphorus and Manganese)—they are ready to go to work at once. There's no waiting for them to dissolve. They come already dissolved in pleasant liquid form so that they are more easily and quickly absorbed by the blood. That's why wise folks now drink these Vitamins and Minerals in HADACOL! HADACOL not only feeds deficient systems with more than the daily needs of Vitamins B1, B2, Iron and Niacin but also precious Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to maintain good health. Vitamins and Minerals to be readily absorbed must be in soluble or emulsion form. That's why HADACOL comes in special liquid form. The fact that HADACOL comes in liquid form makes it easier to digest, makes the Vitamins and Minerals more available, more quickly absorbed and assimilated than when the same essentials are offered in many types of pills or tablets. And the scientific blending of HADACOL'S Vitamins and Minerals intensifies HADACOL'S effectiveness. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES. THERE IS ONLY ONE TRUE AND GENUINE HADACOL. Trial-size bottle, $1.25. Large family or hospital size, $3.50.

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Alexis Smith does not mind playing a good girl on the screen. She does not see why she always has to be dressed like a missionary though.
 A plunging neckline now and then is welcomed by the best of men. Also, says Miss Smith, by women.
 "It's time Hollywood woke up and realized that good girls have sex appeal too," she said. "How the heck do you think we got our men? With a lasso?"
 The willowy Miss Smith put up this argument, and successfully when she was presented with what she called "a goody goody wardrobe" for her role as a policewoman in "Undercover Girl" at Universal-International.
Started Way Back
 "This is one of those ideas that got started in the 10-20-30 days in Hollywood," she said. "The second woman leered her way through nine reels and the heroine was too good to be true. The other woman wore all the alluring clothes and the nice girl was dressed for a tea party."
 Miss Smith won her argument. One street outfit she wears as a plain-clothes detective plunges just as low as the Johnston office

NAVY'S NEW EIGHT-BLADED AIRCRAFT PROPELLERS—One of the largest propellers ever developed for Navy aircraft is this experimental contra-rotating installation for use with turbine engines of over 5,000 horsepower, and is part of the Navy's continuing development program. The blades are 14 feet in diameter. The new propeller actually consists of two four-bladed propellers, placed one in front of the other, on a dual shaft and geared to turn in opposite directions. This eliminates the "torque" effect of propeller-driven aircraft. "Torque" is that force which tends to turn a plane in the opposite direction to that which a single propeller unit turns. will permit. "Plain-clothes" is not the word for it.
 The time has passed, she said when sex appeal indicates automatically that a gal is on the wrong side of the law.
 "Look at the girls in the women's division of the Los Angeles police department," she said. "They've got as much beauty and form per capita as any major studio. Some of them, in the line of duty, can pass for professional models."

Atomic Bomb Is Versatile Weapon; Can Wreck Cities, Damage Harbors

By Joseph L. Myler
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The atomic bomb is "a variety of weapons."

Its versatility is disclosed in the government's recent report on "the effects of atomic weapons."

It can be used to: Wreck cities and industrial plants, damage harbors and navy yards, sink fleets, merchant or naval; destroy fortresses, wipe out enemy bridgeheads, and smash off defenses before they get going.

Moreover, byproducts of A-bomb production, radioactive "wastes" from atomic reactors, theoretically could be used to poison large areas and make them untenable to an enemy.

Radiological warfare (RW) has not, however, been perfected. The other forms of atomic attack could be carried out now.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson said last April that the military is developing a "variety" of atomic weapons, "both tactical and strategic."

Whatever Johnson had in mind, the standard A-bomb in effect is a variety of weapons all by itself. The government's report lists several military uses to which it can be put. They include:

1. An atomic explosion in the air. Over land, it would destroy practically everything in a circle one mile in diameter. Over water it would seriously damage or sink the toughest warships in a circle 1.14 miles in diameter.

2. A shallow underwater burst. Shock and blast riding through the air would destroy harbor or other installations in a circle three-fourths of a mile in diameter. Underwater shock would do enough damage to sink or immobilize ships in a circle 1.14 miles in diameter. Its "base surge" of radioactive mist would poison a region roughly 6 1-3 miles across. High waves, generated by this burst also could damage ships and facilities.

An explosion about 50 feet underground. It would dig a crater 800 feet across and 100 feet deep, destroy everything in and near it.

Its "destructive earth - shock effect" would extend over a circle 1 1-4 miles in diameter. Underground fortresses like the magnet line and the Jap caves on two Jima, and massive above-ground structures like the fortress at Metz, would collapse under the hammer blow from a penetration A-bomb. The underground bomb also might spew forth a contaminating base surge.

4. An explosion some 1,000 feet underwater. Surface waves would damage ships in a circle four-fifths of a mile across. Shock damage would sink or immobilize ships in a circle nearly 1 4-5 miles in diameter. The worst damage would be to merchant ships. Multiple-bottom warships could survive as close as 2,000 feet.

An increasing number of military men envisage the A-bomb as a field weapon against enemy troops instead of solely as a city-killing strategic weapon.

An army spokesman told reporters at an official news conference on the atomic effects book that an A-bomb might have knocked out the Germans at Anzio in World War II. In German hands it could have knocked out the U. S. bridgehead.

One military expert asserted that the A-bomb would be more useful against Soviet armies invading Western Europe than against Soviet production centers far behind the front in the USSR.

It has been argued that A-bombs cost too much to warrant their use against any target smaller than a city or a vast industrial plant. But the military figures it costs $30,000 to put a single infantryman into the front lines. Suppose A-bombs cost $1,000,000 apiece. Kill 33 enemy soldiers with one and you have broken about even, dollarwise.

That, of course, is not the whole story. Even if they cost only a dime each, A-bombs are scarce. Recently published estimates put the U. S. stockpile at 350 to 400. So you wouldn't "throw away" an A-bomb on only 33 enemy soldiers. That would be "using a sledgehammer to drive a tack," as one army authority said.

But you might use it against many times that number of soldiers bivouacked on the eve of a major offensive by the enemy that could turn the whole tide of war in his favor, one A-bomb in such a situation might accomplish what miles of massed artillery couldn't.

But tactical use of the A-bomb would put a premium on accuracy of delivery. A weapon that can kill en masse at half a mile could hurt your own side if it fell short.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff said a while back that the military is working on atomic artillery shells which could be placed precisely where you wanted them to go off. Are such shells a practical possibility?

"From what the General said," an army atomic expert told the United Press; "I'd say they're practically a certainty."

25TH INFANTRY DIVISION

JAPANESE BOMBS at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, opened hostilities for the 25th Infantry division which occupied defensive beach positions and was charged with defending naval installations on Oahu island.

MAJ. GEN. KEAN

started a combat record for the 25th when the Japs on New Georgia, during the bitter fighting on Vella LaVella and on Luzon. When Guadalcanal was conquered the division spent five months in garrison duty, and in July, 1943, arrived off New Georgia island where the 161st Infantry regiment went into the fight for Munda air field. Later the division took part in the historic 19-day march through jungle mud to secure the important harbor of Bairoko. Units of the 25th helped to take Arundel island while other elements secured Vella LaVella island despite intense Jap air raids.

In February, 1944, the division moved to New Caledonia where experience in fighting the enemy in the open furnished valuable training for the eventual campaign for the liberation of the Philippines. In January, 1945, it arrived on Luzon and soon was engaged in taking the gateway to the Cagayan valley and three months of almost continual fighting followed. After the capitulation of the Japanese the division moved to Japan for occupation duty. The Distinguished Unit Citation was awarded to six components of the division and five of its personnel were presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The 25th is commanded by Major General William B. Kean who was born in Buffalo, New York, and graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, and was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in 1918. He was chief of staff of the II Corps in the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns in 1943 and served as chief of staff of the 1st Army from the Normandy landing throughout the European campaign.

The shoulder patch of the 25th is in the form of a taro leaf in red on which is superimposed a flash of lightning in gold. Use of the taro leaf signifies that the division stems from the old Hawaiian division. The lightning flash represents the speed with which the division carries out its assignments.

Finis J. Steffey Fatally Injured In Well Accident

Finis John Steffey, 36, Breckenridge, was fatally injured Monday while working on the plugging of a well a few miles east of Breckenridge.

Steffey was a brother of Mrs. Cyrus Miller of Eastland. Milton Decker and his sons, Robert and Davis were working with Steffey at the time of the accident. Decker said that Steffey was on the jin pole when it fell with him. The pole fell across Steffey.

Decker said that Steffey talked a little after he fell, but had stopped breathing when the ambulance arrived. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at the hospital.

Funeral arrangements had not been announced. Burial was scheduled for the Breckenridge cemetery.

Survivors include his widow, Wanda, and two daughters, Laydia Valeria and Donna Valois; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs.

Fred Steffey of Cisco; three brothers, L. D., Fort Worth; Fred, Jr., Austin; and Frank of Cisco; three sisters, Mrs. Cyrus Miller; Mrs. Wayne Stacy and Mrs. Laverne Smith of Abilene.

Kalischer Reports US Commanders Figure It'll Take Two Months More Before Offensive

By H. D. Quigg

WITH THE 1ST CAVALRY AT THE NAKTONG RIVER, (UP)—The four of us squatted in the cotton patch and sweated in the broiling sun. In the distance, we could see the shallow Naktong river, and we knew that across the river the enemy was concentrated.

The center of attention in our group was a young man named Kim, a 20-year-old North Korean soldier. He was captured this morning in a rice paddy, where he had been lying in hiding for two days after crossing the Naktong with a platoon of Communist soldiers.

"Nothing but a kid, is he?" a GI said.

"That's what you've been fighting," said Capt. William J. Cochrane, an intelligence officer, of Joplin, Mo.

"That's what's been doing all that shooting at you."

The little prisoner squatted with his buttocks against his heels, in the ancient manner of Orientals. He had cropped black hair, was bare waisted and wore long white trousers and black, semi-pointed oxfords.

He had been shot through the left hand, and someone had wrapped a big bandage around the wound. Gnats gathered about a small open sore on his arm.

The other member of our group was Sgt. Ted Kishishita, of Cullman, Ala., a Nisei who acts as an interpreter for the 1st Cavalry.

The sergeant found that Kim could not speak Japanese, so he called over a bearded South Korean who had been picked up behind our lines as a suspect, along with six other South Koreans.

The prisoner spoke in Korean. The suspect translated into Japanese, and the sergeant translated the Japanese into English. Thus we got Kim's story.

He said he was drafted May 25 in North Korea, but that in three months he hadn't learned the numbers of his divisions, regiment, batalion or company. He had crossed the river two nights ago, for one of the early morning attacks the Communists have been making on the cavalrymen. He said he had been given 200 rounds of ammo, but had thrown it in the river.

After he got across, he said, he found the clothing he was wearing.

"That's what they all say," Cochrane said. "You see those clothes. You can't tell these guys from the South Korean refugees."

Kim would not say how many crossed with him, but he said the platoon clasped hands and forded the river in a human chain.

Cochrane said they also had five ropes stretched across the river, so that those carrying machine guns on their backs could cross hand over hand.

Kim said he was in the last year of junior high school. One afternoon, when he was on his way home from school, a police truck came by and he was told to get in. He asked why, and was told, "You are going to join the army."

Kim said he wanted to go home and tell his folks about it, but the army wouldn't let him. The army, he said, gave him only two days' training—taught him how to shoot.

"I've questioned about 60 prisoners, and practically all of them tell stories like that," Sgt. Kishishita said. "We picked up a well-educated North Korean guerrilla the other day and he said the youth of North Korea is practically cleaned out."

"Yesterday, we picked up nine prisoners. All had been shot. They said their platoon leader had shot them from the rear when they were scared to go into battle."

End of a Chapter

By Edwin Rutt Copyright 1950 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Alice Pine, literary secretary to Muriel Halleck, a writer, is mystified at first, then infuriated by Muriel's husband, Brent, an artist. One night she suspects Brent of whipping his four-year-old adopted son. Later she hears Brent described as going down-grade by one of the women who has known him many years. The night after the whipping episode, Alice sees bruises on Muriel's arm. Still Alice cannot wholly believe that Brent is all bad when he surprises her while taking a night swim and has a long, heart-to-heart talk with her on the beach. He reveals that he is going away, to take an advertising job, and he asks her to look after Rick. "I've got to make money," says Brent.

XV
ALICE PINE thought of her own advertising experiences. She doubted whether Brent Halleck, with his strange temperament, would fit into an agency. Still, advertising was a logical place for an artist who couldn't freelance successfully.

Then, suddenly, she recalled Molly Tremayne's story. Brent's father, too, had been forced to leave Grosvenor Point. And now Brent.

Of course, it did not sound final in Brent's case. He was simply taking a job. But she had a shrewd idea that there was nothing voluntary about this step. Brent had impressed her as being devoted to, even jealous of, this particular spot. Moreover, according to Molly, he had paid through the nose for it; ostensibly to live here. And since he was married at the time, he must have done so with Muriel's approval. Why then, with Muriel coining money, couldn't some happier arrangement have been worked out?

She waited a moment thinking, somewhat fancifully, that a pattern might be repeating itself. And that, possibly, Grosvenor

Point held some sort of mystical allergy for the Hallecks. "I'm off tomorrow," Brent was saying. "Spending the week-end talking things over with people from the firm and looking for a place to live. And on Monday—" He chuckled, ruefully—"it's the salt mines."

Alice got to her feet. She was aware of having spent considerable time on the beach, far more than she had intended. "Well," she said, "I hope it all works out, Brent. The way you want it to."

Impulsively she held out her hand. . . .

BRENT arose more slowly. He looked at her, a peculiar glow in his eyes, and did not take the hand at once. But presently his fingers closed over it. The next instant he was drawing her gently to him.

Alice felt her feet move forward as though without her own consent. She shot him a half-baffled half-frightened glance.

"Brent! Please!"

But, head crushed against his shoulder, her voice was muffled and indistinct.

Brent did not try to kiss her. He held her a moment, tightly. Then, all at once, she was free, and Brent had stepped back. "I—I'm sorry, Alice. That wasn't in the original script."

"It's all right," she put a hand to a head not quite steady. "But I've got to go. Right away."

"I know. I—oh, confound it! I've got to say it. Why did I have to meet you, Alice—years too late?"

"Brent," Alice scooped up her towel and cigarettes, "I don't understand you."

But Alice knew, in a wild, dismaying flash, that it was not Brent Halleck whom she failed to understand.

"No?" Brent's eyes were lowered. "Perhaps that's just as well. Forget it, Alice. But don't forget about Rick. Please!"

ALICE PINE, still incredulous and rather breathless, turned to leave—just as Muriel Halleck stepped lightly from the lawn onto the beach.

At that moment Alice was grateful for only one thing, the darkness hiding cheeks which had turned suddenly to fire. She halted abruptly, the towel slipping through her fingers.

"M-Muriel!"

Muriel made a gurgling sound. "Alice, please! Don't look so abysmally guilty. I can't take it."

"B-but . . ." Alice had to stiffen her body. "Oh, Muriel, how long have you been here?"

"Not very long." Muriel's light-colored eyes were shining curiously. "But what does it matter? You wouldn't be the first attractive girl Brent's kissed on a beach."

"But he—he didn't."

"Oh? Well, I couldn't really see in the dark, not being that kind of cat. But he must be slipping."

Alice got herself together. "Look here, Muriel, I feel perfectly awful about this. And I don't know what to say. I don't know what possessed me, either."

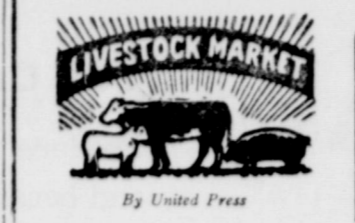

"Brent did," Muriel's laugh was like a splash of silver. "In a most gentlemanly manner, I thought."

"Oh, Muriel!" Alice's feeling of guilt was fading away before her intense annoyance at the woman's attitude. "You needn't be so—so darned gay about it!"

"How should I be?" The gleaming eyes widened. "Hysterical? Tragic? All right. I'll slip into my Duse mood."

"But it isn't funny. If you know how dreadful—"

• Most of the time when your family is spending a quiet evening at home, some or all are reading, writing or doing some other eye-work. Under good lighting, with your lamps so arranged that adequate illumination is provided for everyone, eyes are restful and comfortable— you can do close eye-work for long periods of time without eye-strain.
