Kimpo Airport Falls To US; Marines See Seoul

UN FORCES MEETING SUCCESS IN SOUTHERN Pincer ON RED FORCES HOLDING RIVER LINE

By Ralph Teatsorth
United Press Staff Correspondent
TOKYO, Tuesday, Sept. 19 (UP)—U. S. Marines plunged to the Han river just across from Seoul Monday and were probing for crossings under cover of fighter planes using captured Kimpo airport for the first time.

The Marines, within sight of Seoul, met heavy resistance from mortars, anti-tank guns and Communist "suicide" units.

One hundred and fifty miles to the south—the avilportion of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's blow to smash the invading Communist army—units of the American second division smashed across the Nakdong river at both their right and center on the road to Hyopchon.

An 8th Army communique reported general gains all along the Pusan beachhead perimeter, except at the extreme southern and northeastern ends.

United Press correspondent

Jack James, reporting the advance on Seoul, told of increasing enemy resistance as the Americans advanced toward the capital from their Inchon landing base.

One Communist soldier—in an act reminiscent of Japanese Kamikaze tactics of World War II—loaded his motorcycle with TNT and then crashed into the side of an American tank.

The American Seventh Division was moving into the combat area today from Inchon. The Division, now half and half American and South Korean, moved up to the front along roads lined with tanks and flame-throwers.

MARINES WHO CAPTURED Kimpo airport late Saturday, today had plunged on to the Han river seven miles west of Seoul.

It appeared the American strategy was to move forward on a broad front, cleaning up as the troops moved forward and possibly to envelop Seoul rather than hit it at once in a frontal attack.

It was estimated that one enemy division of 10,000 to 15,000 men was in the area, but had not yet had a chance to organize any all-out resistance.

The picture of Kimpo airport, biggest and best in Korea, was a tribute to the accuracy of American airmen. Buildings were burned out shells. But the runways, capable of handling the heaviest planes, mostly were intact.

THE FIRST AMERICAN AIRCRAFT to land at Kimpo airport Monday morning was a Marine helicopter piloted by Capt. V. A. Armstrong of Portland, Ore. With him was Lt. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, commander of the fleet Marine force in the Pacific. Three more generals arrived at the airport before 10 a. m.

Far to the south, on the Second Division front along the Nakdong, United Press Correspondent Jack Burby reported that five companies, or between 750 and 1,000 men of the Second, drove across the Nakdong in the first United Nations crossing of that embattled line since the retreat from Taejon late in July.

WHILE THE YANKS WERE pouring across the river south of Choijidong, other Second Division troops were still engaged in a hard fight for a hill three miles southwest of Changnyong. They had been trying to take the hill for four days.

Farther north, on the Taegu front at the hinge of the box-like southern perimeter, 40 "beautiful" B-29's unloaded 400 tons of bombs on Communist positions one mile west of Waegwan. The earth-shaking bombing, which could be heard and felt in Taegu 13 miles away, was observed by First Cavalry Division commander, Maj. Gen. Hobart Gay, and the word "beautiful" was his.

IT WAS THE SECOND CLOSE support saturation raid by superforts in Korea and it was staged in the same general area as the first one three weeks ago.

From Taegu east to the Japan Sea, South Korean troops were making excellent progress except at the ruined port of Pohang.

There, United Press Correspondent Robert Bennyhoff reported, the North Koreans apparently intend to hold Pohang as long as possible to prevent American

ATOMIC WAR TO HURT US

NSRB Warns Russia Can Blast U.S.

REPORT MADE TO CONGRESS SHOWING WAY TO DEFEND US FROM RED ATOMIC BLITZING

By Raymond H. Wilson
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (UP)—The government today unwrapped its long-awaited "master blueprint" for building up the nation's civil defenses against a sneak Atomic attack.

The 149-page document warned that Russia "has the power to attack our cities in force" and added that any Atomic blitz "would be partially successful."

To counteract the effects of such a blow, it called for a federal civil defense administration, state and local organizations, and "millions" of civilian volunteers to act as block wardens, rescue squad members, auxiliary police, fire guards, and shore patrollers.

The report, drafted by the National Security Resources board and forwarded to Congress by President Truman, said such a defense setup would enable the nation to recover quickly from an A-bombing and "fight back."

Properly administered, it said, civil defense could cut casualties by 50 per cent and keep the nation's industrial power intact.

Primary emphasis would be placed on defense of some 140 "critical target areas," including all major population and industrial centers of the nation. State Governors soon will be given maps showing which areas are in their jurisdiction.

THE OVERALL PROGRAM carried no price tag but was accompanied by a warning that it would be expensive.

Paul J. Larsen, head of NSRB's office of civil defense, called the blueprint a minimum program and said it should be undertaken immediately.

Larsen, the chief planner, resigned his job today. He said he felt a person with a "broader administrative background" should take over the operating phase.

He estimated it would take at least two years to complete work on the program. The report recommended that federal and state legislatures get the ball rolling.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT'S share of the program would be limited mostly to planning and training, although it would buy some of the equipment needed to put the plan into effect. It will be up to Congress to decide how much money to spend.

Most of the operating responsibility would be given to state civil defense offices, which in turn would delegate local and area responsibility to city defense organizations.

NSRB spokesmen said they hoped that states would evaluate their needs and resources between now and the time Congress takes up consideration of the civil defense measure. In that way, Congress will know how much will be required to provide minimum safety for the nation's 150,000,000 civilians.

Republicans Want To Quiz Will O'Dwyer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (UP)—Sen. Tom Connally, D., Tex., today accused Republicans of "phony politics" in opposing William O'Dwyer's appointment as ambassador to Mexico.

GOP senators snapped back that Connally's foreign relations committee was only "half-hearted" in questioning the former New York Mayor about gambling in the nation's biggest city.

IF THE SPEECHES END in time, the Senate was to vote today on confirming the 60-year-old Irish-born lawyer and politician for his new role as a diplomat.

Connally hoped the Republicans would "lay politics aside" so the Senate could do so before nightfall.

SENS. KENNETH S. WHERRY, Neb., Irving M. Ives, N. Y., Bourke B. Hickenlooper, Ia., and Homer Ferguson, Mich., were among the GOP Senators lining up against O'Dwyer.

Ives and Hickenlooper thought the weekend arrest of 28 members of a Brooklyn gambling ring should be brought to the Senate's attention inasmuch as O'Dwyer recently termed the investigation a "witch-hunt."

THEY NOTED THAT JUDGE Samuel Leibowitz had said that an "honest" police force could stop New York bookmaking in 24 hours and could "clean out this scum."

Ferguson said any link between New York City politics and the gambling ring should be "clarified" before the Senate votes. The "causes" of O'Dwyer's sudden resignation to take the diplomatic post also should be examined, he said.

Wherry, GOP floor leader, said Connally's committee "rushed out" the nomination too quickly. He wondered if it had information about O'Dwyer's description of the investigation as a "witch hunt."

Ferguson Says

Quick Victory In Korea May Save World Peace For Several Years

By Harry Ferguson
United Press Foreign News Editor
A quick victory in Korea may save the peace of the world for several years.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's overall objective is to destroy the Communist army before it can retreat to the 38th parallel, the line that divides North and South Korea. If any sizeable part of the enemy's army gets across the parallel, the United States and the United Nations are going to be faced with a decision that could set the world in flames.

Our policy, and the policy of the nations that stand beside us in the U.N., is that we are in Korea to protect a free people from aggression. Technically, our obligation will have been discharged when there no longer is a single Communist soldier in South Korea. If we have to pursue the Communists across the 38th parallel, the Russians will be on their feet at the U.N. screaming "aggression" even louder than they do now.

The grave danger is that if the U.N. troops invade North Korea, the Chinese Communists and the Russians then will decide the time has come for them to resist aggression. That will be the start of world war III.

US Pilots Hurt Enemy; But KoReds Also Count Toll On US In Wounded

By Robert Vermillion
United Press Staff Correspondent
ABOARD CARRIER OFF KOREA, Sept. 18 (UP)—The pilot with the bloody face was matter of fact.

"I am losing quite a lot of blood," he said.
"Can you make it back to the ship?" a voice on the radio said.
"I hope so," the wounded pilot said.

The official communiques tell how many enemy tanks American fliers damaged and destroyed. But they only tell part of the story. You have to listen to the radio net that links the men in the air with their carriers at sea to get the rest of the story.

The story begins when we roar off the deck of our carrier in a Navy attack bomber and gather like pigeons above the home loft. Lt. Comdr. Richard W. Fleck of Independence, Mo., then leads the flight toward the beach and as he hears it he checks in with the ground control.

"Do you have a mission?" control asks.

"Anything you want to use us for," Fleck replies.

There is no assignment immediately so we circle for an hour waiting for one. Meantime, voices roar through the earphones.
"Pilot down south of Seoul," a voice says and gives the location. Then a rescue helicopter breaks in.

"May I have fighters to follow me in?"
A fighter pilot cuts in and says he and his wingmate will escort the helicopter into enemy territory.

"After you get him strafe and destroy the aircraft," ground control says.

"Roger," the fighter pilot says. An hour later, the helicopter cuts in again.
"The pilot has been picked up. He's been hit badly. Is Kimpo (airport outside Seoul) ours?"
"I'll check," control replies.

"No. Kimpo is not ours. Repeating—Kimpo is not ours."

"The pilot is hit pretty bad. There's blood all over his face."

"Can you make it back to the ship?" control asks. Then there is a pause.

"I hope so," the wounded pilot says.

And he did make it. He was in the carrier sick bay when we returned.

Infantry Moves Up Seventh Division, Almost Half South Korean Lands At Inchon

By Rutherford Poats
United Press Staff Correspondent
INCHON, Korea, Sept. 16 (UP)—People of this burned and blasted city began returning home today as the battlefront rolled eastward with the spectacular Marine advance on Seoul.

Many found their homes destroyed by the naval and air bombardment of their liberators. Some found relatives and neighbors dead in the still smoldering port city that only yesterday was in Communist hands.

But they are not bitter, according to Rear Admiral Sohn Won Yil whose South Korean Marine brigade had the job of mopping up and distinguishing friend from foe in the path of the American advance.

"The people seem happy," Sohn Won Yil said. "They knew this was coming. They are glad to see the Communists driven out."

The Admiral, chief of naval operations for the spunky little republican sea force, said Inchon people he had talked with told of the tragic error many citizens had made.

"People began evacuating three days ago," he said, after the American bombardment squadron started its softening up attack on Communist coastal defenses.

"After two days (Friday), they began coming back."

Friday was D-Day. The returning refugees walked right into the air, sea and ground attack and crossfire between Americans and North Koreans.

"Many were killed," the Admiral said.

To estimate that two-thirds of Inchon had been destroyed or burned, "mostly by shelling."

The American and British naval forces tried to concentrate on Red gun positions but the guns were all over the hilly peninsula on which the city is built.

Chinese Nationalist flags were fluttering over several shops and buildings still standing down town.

The big colony of Chinese residents apparently were using the same device they employed during the American liberation of Inchon in 1945. Then they wanted to be distinguished from Japanese—and today from the Korean Communists.

As South Korean and Chinese Nationalist flags went up, Red propaganda posters and portraits of Joseph Stalin and Kim Il Sung came down.

Stalin's billboard size portrait already had become the most common souvenir for the Americans.

AUSTIN, (Special)—At least four different types of radioactive detection instruments and computers are available for measuring radiation particles if and when an atomic bomb is ever exploded over a Texas community.

This encouraging bit of information was revealed by the state's chief health official, Dr. Geo. W. Cox. He's state director of health and emergency medical services, part of the Texas civil defense setup.

Radiation is one of three principle harmful effects of atomic explosions. Others are blast damage and burns. Using RADIAC instruments, it is possible to know what areas are safe from the tasteless, odorless, colorless radioactive particles.

All RADIAC instruments are designed for use by radiation monitoring squads. Squad members might be soldiers, or the could be civilians trained by the State Health Department's radiological division. In either case they would be trained for immediate action in atomic disasters.

"Planning emergency medical and health services in an atomic disaster has been one big mess of confusion," Dr. Cox admitted. "But we're beginning to see light now. Our radiological division is going to go right to work, now that we have it set up."

Radiac instruments got this official explanation:

Film badges can be pinned onto the lapel, strapped onto the wrist, worn in a ring, etc. They consist of a piece of photographic film, and are used to show the amount of radiation to which the monitor has been exposed. Radiation particles affect the film like light. Dozens of "tracks" are visible when the film comes in contact with heavy concentrations of radiation.

Film badges are a permanent record of the exposure to which the monitors have been subjected. Dr. Cox says they show whether or not the wearer has received the "maximum allowable lifetime dosage."

Pocket dosimeters, like the film badges are for the protection of the monitors. They look like fountain pens, and gauge on-the-spot amounts of radiation.

Geiger counters and ionization chambers actually count the number of radiation particles—gamma rays, and alpha and beta particles present in the area. So

 The automobile is useless and harmless without the driver. With the driver it may become most useful but never harmless. No operator of an automobile ever fully realizes his responsibility to the public until he has a wreck. Then it dawns on him that he is living in a world with other people, some very peculiar, who have plenty of personal and property rights.
