THE LIFE STORY OF JESUS CHRIST

Copyright 1951 by Hellmark Productions, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Jesus, born of Mary, wife of Joseph, in Bethlehem, is taken to Egypt to escape the wrath of King Herod, who fears Him as an earthly rival. After years in Egypt, the Holy Family returns to Nazareth. When 30 years of age, Jesus sets out on His mission. He is baptized by His cousin and prophet, John the Baptist, spends 40 days fasting and praying and resisting the devil's temptations. He enlists His first four apostles, Simon Peter, Andrew, James and John, then, later, Matthew, a publican. John the Baptist is beheaded by evil King Herod as Jesus wins multitudes of followers and the bitter enemy of the Pharisees, who now plot to bring about His persecution and death.

CHAPTER 8

With John the Baptist already put to death and the Pharisees plotting His own end, Jesus now decided that the time had come when His disciples should go out and in God's name do the things they had seen Him do.

Accordingly, He sent them out, two by two, telling them, "As ye go, preach, saying the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give." Jesus told his disciples to follow the simple path. He in-

"Lord, give us always this bread," and Jesus answered, "I am the Bread of Life; he who comes to Me shall never hunger; and he who believes in Me shall never thirst."

Jesus dismissed the crowd, sent His disciples across the sea and went up into the mountain to pray. That night the boat was caught in a storm and Jesus walked out on the sea. Seeing Him, the disciples were afraid, but He reassured them. Peter, doubting, said "Lord, if it be Thou, bid me come unto Thee on the water." Jesus said, "Come." And Peter walked on the water, but soon was tossed about by the wind and cried out, "Lord, save me!"

Jesus put out His hand, caught him and said: "Oh thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt?" Jesus calmed the waters of the sea and seeing His power and compassion, His disciples worshipped Him anew.

Now the Pharisees tried to trap Jesus. They tried to make Him prove He was the Son of God. His disciples told Him people called Him many things—Elijah, one of the prophets, and John the Baptist returned to life. He asked them: "Who do you say that I am?" Peter stepped forward and proclaimed: "You are Messiah!"

Jesus told them they should tell this to no man and that they must soon go up to Jerusalem "and all things that are written about the Son of Man shall be accomplished. For He shall be delivered unto the Gentiles and shall be mocked and spitefully entreated, and spit upon; and they shall scourge Him, and put Him to death; and the third day He shall rise again."

Jesus took Peter, James and John up into a high mountain. There the three disciples saw Jesus as One transfigured. His face was shining and His whole figure appeared in a glowing light. In reporting the incident, the disciples said they saw Moses and Elijah talking to Him and the Voice of God saying "This is My Beloved Son, hear ye Him." Jesus commanded His disciples to tell no man about the vision "until the Son of Man be risen again from the dead."

Now Jesus took His twelve disciples and left Galilee for Jerusalem and on the way He found a blind man at Jericho who believed in Him and He restored His sight. More and more His followers grew, but ahead, in Jerusalem, were the Pharisees, still plotting, still determined to put Him to death.

Congress is now considering a postal economy bill that may do away with one of the nation's few remaining one-cent bargains—the penny postcard. But of some consolation is the knowledge that a penny will still buy, in most places, the items pictured above. In areas where none of these purchases can be made, the man with a penny is advised to win appointment to the U. S. Naval Academy, where coppers are tossed at Tecumseh's statue for good luck by Middies marching to their final exams.

Duet Irritates Neighbors, But Soothes Marriage Rough Spots

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—A duet with the husband playing the clarinet and the wife accompanying him on the piano may irritate the neighbors but it can smooth rough spots in a marriage, according to one musical couple.

It could be even a bass fiddle and a flute combination, explained the violinist, Maurice Wilk, while his wife listened attentively.

"It's just making music together that's important," he said. Wilk, who has been playing the violin since he was four years old, thinks his business of the family sitting in the living room watching a musician on the television screen is bad for the nerves. Nobody gets a chance to let off any steam but the person on the screen.

"People used to do things instead of listening," his wife, Norma, chimed in. "Two people can't work on a beautiful piece of music without hearing the beauty and forgetting their quarrels." She was playing the French horn when he met her.

Recorder Advised
If the budget really is cramped, Wilk suggests a flute-like instrument called the recorder that's easy to master and inexpensive to buy.

"A clarinet can be learned in six months, and it isn't expensive," Norma added.

THE STORY: Paul Twing, seeking to correct what he believes to be an injustice, kidnaps his niece Judy from her unworthy mother and flees to New York with May Jenkins, who believes in him. May and Judy separate from Paul for security, while Paul goes to contact a sea captain friend, Martin Jaboe, who can take Paul, Judy and May out of the country. Paul is tipped off that officers are waiting for him at the shipping agency and that he is to contact a Captain Cross. Cross gives Paul instructions how to meet him and Paul is light-hearted as he goes to a park to meet May. Meanwhile, May and Judy, after a narrow escape from the police dragnet, have left their rooming house. Judy is placed in a movie while May goes to meet Paul. But May is followed. At first she thinks her shadow is a policeman, then she discovers that he is simply a "wolf." But when she tries to run away from him, the man runs after her.

XVIII
THE dark man quickly caught up with May Jenkins. "Now wait," he implored. "You got me all mix up. First you like me, then you don't, then you do and then you don't all over again. What's wrong with you? You need a good drink. You all worked up."
"No!" May stormed.

"Okay. So you don't want a drink. It's all right. You are nice-looking kid, but you real skinny. Maybe you hungry. Okay. So I buy you big dinner."
"No!"
May broke into a trot. The man kept up with her.

"No drink. No eat. Maybe you just the kind of girl I like." He snickered. "You are very nice girl to get acquainted with. You are like no girl I ever know before."

Through her tears of anger, humiliation and anxiety, May Jenkins saw nothing ahead that might offer an avenue of escape from her tormentor.

The point had been reached when she was ready to risk approaching a policeman, but in the street she could see only an occasional pedestrian, and no uniformed patrolman near at hand.

But diagonally across the street from her was a large apartment house. A liveried doorman stood under the canopy which ran from the structure to the curb.

May, cut across the street and made straight for the apartment house.

THE doorman swung open the door for her and held it as she entered. May hurried inside, praying that her pursuer would not follow. He didn't.

She stepped into a waiting elevator. The operator, a boy, turned and looked at her.

"Floor please?"
"Is there a back way out—through the basement?" May asked.

The elevator boy's formality fled. He looked at her in frank curiosity. "Yeah. Why?"

"I'm trying to get rid of a fellow who's been following me for the last hour. He just won't leave me alone."

The operator grinned. "Why don'tcher call a cop?"

"I haven't seen one. Please, take me to the basement and show me the way out of here."

The elevator operator closed the door and started the car down.

"Ain't that always the way?" Cops swarm all over the place except when you want one."
May did not answer. The car came to a stop. The operator opened the door and secured the door with a nook.

"Follow me, kid. I'll show you the back way."

He too her down a long, dark corridor, at the end of which a door opened into a wide alley.

"Just go up the alley to your right and you'll come out on West End. Or, if you want, you can cut through that other alley over there and come out on 87th."

"Thanks! Thanks so much!" May breathed.

She ran into the alley and chose the way that led to 87th Street.

At Broadway and 87th Street May found a cab and directed the driver to take her to the park at 106th Street.

It was less than a mile but red lights and congested traffic seemed to conspire against her. May sat on the edge of the cab seat, her fists clenched tightly, her teeth playing with her lips in an agony of suspense.

IT was 10 minutes after 6 when she reached the park. She handed the cab driver a dollar and jumped out without waiting for her change.

The park was as Paul Twing had described it, just a triangular patch a block long and much less than a block wide. A statue dominated the center.

There was a walk down each side of the sparse greenery that justified calling the place a "park." During the day, the park was always filled with children, mothers and nursemaids with baby carriages. The benches were usually occupied by old people sitting on the benches sunning themselves.

At this hour, the park was all but empty. Only a few people lingered on the benches or along the walks.

May hurried along the path in one direction. She came back on the other path, making a complete circuit of the park. Her eyes scanned the benches and swept the park from end to end again.

Paul Twing wasn't there.

Jesus tells His Disciples: "As ye go, preach, saying kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Illustrated by actors and scenes in the motion picture, "Prince of Peace" structed them to take nothing with them on their journeys except a staff—no food, no money and no extra clothing. "And when ye come into a house, salute it. And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it." He told them if they were not well received to depart from that house or city and shake the dust off their feet, adding: "It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city."

The disciples went out in all directions, telling the people to repent. Using the power that Jesus had given them they healed those who were sick of body and mind.

When the disciples returned from their first journey, they heard of the dire plottings against Jesus and asked Him to leave the land which Herod ruled for a time. Jesus took the disciples into the desert to rest, but the multitudes followed and the disciples begged Him to send them home, because there was no food for them.

Here it was that Jesus took five loaves of bread and two fishes, blessed them and fed 5000 people. The people cried,

FORD WINS AGAIN!

V-8 TAKES FIRST PLACE IN CLASS "A" 1951 MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN

Both Ford V-8 and SIX Deliver more than 25.9 miles per gallon

Grueling 840-mile test proves Ford Economy

FORD V-8 with Overdrive DOES 54.587 TON-MILES PER GALLON*

Again this year... it's high honors for Ford! In the most important economy trial for American stock model cars... the famous annual Mobilgas Economy Run... a Ford 100-h.p. V-8 equipped with Overdrive took first place competing against all cars in its price class, making 54.587 ton-miles per gallon* and 25.994 miles per gallon. And its companion in quality, the new Ford SIX with Overdrive, was right up there with the winner. In fact, both cars averaged better than 25.9 miles per gallon.

Traditional Ford economy, for the second straight year, has been proved in open competition. Proved on the tough 840-mile grind from Los Angeles to the Grand Canyon... a course that included city traffic, below-sea-level desert heat and 7,000-foot mountain passes. Ford's Automatic Mileage Maker, standard equipment on all Ford V-8's and SIXES, contributed to this great achievement by squeezing the last mile out of every drop of gasoline.

Why not "Test Drive" the new Ford at your neighborhood Ford Dealer's? There's no better way to be convinced that "You can pay more but you can't buy better!"

*The AAA Contest Board determines the winner by a "ton-miles per gallon" formula to insure equal chance for all cars in each class regardless of size and weight. (Ton-miles per gallon equals the car weight, including passengers in tons, multiplied by number of miles travelled, divided by number of gallons of gasoline consumed.)

Auto Kills More Than War—

... according to statistics just published by the National Safety Council. Nearly a million persons have been killed by the automobile family since the advent of the auto in 1906 while total casualties for all of our seven wars including the Revolution have been only 845,000. We know of no way to stop auto slaughter, but we do know that careful driving will help and adequate insurance will pay the bills in case of accident.
