

American Troops Stab Eight Miles North

RESISTANCE STIFFENING AS UN ADVANCE ON 40-MILE LINE

By EARNEST HOBEBRECHT United Press Staff Correspondent TOKYO, April 5 (UP)—U. S. tanks and infantry stabbed eight miles north of Korea's 38th Parallel today toward the heart of a Communist offensive build-up of 500,000 troops.

They rammed three to six miles north of the Parallel along a 40-mile front against stiffening resistance from Red forces screening the build-up of more than 500,000 Chinese and North Koreans.

which penetrated nearly six miles north of the pre-war frontier.

The Reds also threw three minor counter-attacks against the Western end of the line above the Parallel today. All were repulsed.

Four U. S. Divisions with attached UN units and one South Korean Division were stabbing into the enemy homeland on the Central Front. They captured the important Communist centers of Yongpyong and Yongong yesterday.

A sixth division—the South Korean capital—at the same time extended its bridgehead across the Parallel on the East Coast and captured Kangsong 10 1-2 miles North of the old border.

Still other Allied divisions were poised within a few miles of the Parallel all along the 140-mile front across the Korean Peninsula to strike into Communist North Korea.

United Nations Forces in Central Korea were across the Parallel in force at key points all the way from north of Seoul to north of Chunchon. Lt. Gen. Matthew H. Ridgway, commander of the 8th Army, flew to the front and crossed the parallel above Chunchon yesterday.

Americans, South Koreans, British, Canadians, Australians, Greeks and Thais (Siamese) were in the vanguard of this second battle of North Korea. Most crossed the Parallel yesterday.

They were trying to throw the Communists off balance, break up their troop concentrations and delay an expected spring counter-offensive.

The Reds still were bringing up supplies and reinforcements despite the UN advance and a non-stop aerial bombardment, however U. S. planes spotted more than 1,600 vehicles on the move through North Korea last night and attacked more than 470 of them. At least 70 were destroyed or damaged.

Northeast of Chunchon and just south of the 38th Parallel, UN troops stormed across the Soyang River in assault boats under a hail of Communist shells and seized strategic heights on the North Bank yesterday.

Although beaten back by the Communist barrage several times, the troops had taken all their objectives by nightfall. Five North Korean soldiers surrendered after being subjected to heavy artillery fire.

At sea, UN warships carried their non-stop bombardment of the enemy's east coast port of Wonsan into its 47th straight day.

Laredo Publisher Tells Grand Jury About Tex. Crime

AUSTIN, April 5 (UP)—State corruption "is either protected or guarded" by high state and local officials, Publisher William Prescott Allen of Laredo told a Travis County Grand Jury yesterday.

"With 9,000 slot machines in the state and Galveston... Houston and Austin running wide open, there must be negligence or complicity on the part of high state and local officials," he said. "There is a great feeling that this state corruption is either protected or guarded by the state authorities," he said.

Allen was subpoenaed to appear before the jury after writing a scathing editorial in his paper charging that Austin's crime situation was "a disgrace to the nation."

He said that since his front-page editorial appeared eight marble boards were confiscated in Austin. "That proves," he said, "That there is more to my statement than just conversation."

He said he would decline an invitation to appear before the Austin City Council.

YOU NAME IT

By Everett Taylor

April seems to be a month for doing things, at least this April. To begin with, the Eastland County Singing Convention will hold its annual Spring Singing at the high school auditorium Saturday night and Sunday.

Some of the best known quartets and singing groups in the state are to be on hand for the program which is expected to be the best of its kind ever held in the county.

Next Thursday and Friday, April 12 and 13, the Eastland Quarterback Club will put on its annual Minstrel.

Practice sessions have been held in preparation for the show for the last three weeks.

Several old timers with the show are back for this year's run. Tickets for the affair are now on sale at the Corner Drug, Eastland Drug and Davis-Maxey Drug. Several individuals are also selling the tickets. Admission price is 75c and 35c.

Saturday, April 14, is the date for the big horse show from which proceeds will go to the Hospital Fund.

The horse show seems to be shaping up in good fashion with a number of well known horsemen indicating that they will attend.

One of the best known is Wild Bill Elliott who is better known for his western movies. Elliott has indicated that he will be in Eastland all day Saturday, April 14, and Saturday night. Tickets for the horse show are also now on sale.

Basketball is cropping back into the picture with an All-Star tourney for independent teams at the Eastland gym, beginning tonight.

Lamb Motor Company's team will represent Eastland in the meet.

The Eastland county dairy will be held here, Wednesday, April 18.

With the increasing interest in dairying in the county, the dairy show seems to be also gaining interest and a large group of dairy cattle are expected to be shown.

Eastland's track team traveled to Hamilton today where they participated in the district track meet.

Hamilton was the favorite in the meet, with Cisco rated second choice.

Finals in the meet will be held tonight.

Monday, however, marks the redder of all red letter days in Eastland for this April, or this year.

That is the kickoff date for the hospital drive to raise $100,000. Raising that amount is a tremendous undertaking and it will take the cooperation and help of every citizen of the city to make the drive a success.

Cage Meet Set At High School

An all-star basketball tournament begins at 7:30 p.m. today at the Eastland High School gymnasium.

Lamb Motor Company's team will be representing Eastland in the tourney and will clash with a Cisco team tonight.

Other games on the schedule tonight are Morton Valley against Desdemona, high school teams; and the Desdemona Independents against the Cisco night school team.

The tourney will continue through Saturday night with finals to be played on the Saturday card. Action will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night and will continue through three games.

Mangum Baptist Revival To Start

The Spring Revival of the Mangum Baptist church begins Sunday, April 8, and will continue through April 15. Rev. Lee Fields, pastor, will do the preaching at the services.

Mobilizer Wilson May Suspect G. E. Created a Frankenstein

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson faced a whole battery of microphones, floodlights, spotlights and flash bulbs set up by radio and television correspondents, still and newsreel cameramen attending one of his press conferences. Mr. Wilson objected. He didn't want to broadcast his answers to reporters' questions. And all the lighting effects focussed on him blinded him. He asked that the microphones be removed and the lights turned off.

"I feel like I'm before the Kefauver Crime Committee," he complained. "Oh! Don't mind those things!" cracked a reporter in the rear of the room. "They're only the result of research in electronics and lighting by General Electric."

Former Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal was asked to comment on Argentine President Juan D. Peron's announcement that his scientists had found a new and better way to release nuclear energy. "Do you think there's the slightest chance they have done that?" queried a reporter. Said Lilienthal: "Less than that."

MATS—the Military Air Transport Service—has just had what looked like its first bad sabotage scare. Gen. Omar Bradley was in Philadelphia for a speech. MATS sent one of its special transport planes from Bolling Field, Washington, to pick the general up. At Philadelphia International Airport, the plane's pilot discovered a broken rudder cable just before takeoff. It looked as if it had been tampered with. But after a thorough investigation, Bolling Field officials are now convinced it was just a worn cable, with no evidence of sabotage. In spite of this finding, rigid security regulations have now been clamped on all special mission planes operating out of Bolling.

DEFENSE MOBILIZATION organization in Washington is now said to be complete except for one man—a director of scientific research to head Mobilization Director C. E. Wilson's staff. It's proving difficult to find the right man for this important job, and to persuade any competent scientist to leave private industry for government service. The new man—whoever he turns out to be—will head a small staff, separate from the Department of Defense Research and Development Board under Dr. William Webster, and also separate from the new National Science Foundation, under Dr. Alan T. Waterman. Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of Carnegie Institute, had this job during the last war but doesn't feel he can serve again this time. Incidentally, Dr. Bush will soon emerge as a movie actor, starring in a dramatization of his recent book, "Modern Arms and Free Men."

There are two levels of bureaucrats in Washington—policy makers who issue directives, and operating officials who have to carry them out. William L. Batt, now head of the U. S. Marshall Plan mission in London, has a story which illustrates the difference. Early one winter, a grasshopper met an ant. "It's getting cold outside," said the grasshopper. "I wish I could find some way to go inside some house, where I could keep warm and stay alive till spring."

Ex-Cop Plans Escort Bureau

HOUSTON, April 5 (UP)—Handsome Dick Satterfield, the young ex-rookie policeman who was fired for running an elite call girl service as a sideline, said yesterday he planned to operate an escort bureau here for tired, but rich businessmen. A charge of procuring filed against Satterfield after the October "affair" was dismissed when the State's two chief witnesses failed to appear in court.

"It has been said that I can't associate with women except for immoral purposes," the former officer said. "I'm going to prove it's not so. I'm going to get me the prettiest girls in town—office workers, and so on, who'll work under strict rules. They'll behave or they won't work for me. "You know how it is when a businessman or an oil man comes to town. He likes to have a girl for dinner parties, or for a dance, or some local men entertaining out-of-town clients want a well-mannered, good-looking girl to be a companion for their guest."

Satterfield said his planned escort bureau would be strictly legitimate. "There'll be a curfew and the girls will have to report back to the office after their date," he said. "I'm going to get me a real nice office downtown." Satterfield said he will be out of the Navy in a month or so, then he is going to establish the bureau. "I'm going to seek vindication," he said. "I've always wanted to be a rich, but honest cop, but now I'm going to be the next best thing—a rich, but honest ex-cop." "At the same time I will bring joy and romance into the lives of tired businessmen."

The 22-year-old ex-officer joined the Navy after leaving Houston and after his wife divorced him for his part in the call girl service. When he turned up for the trial, he had a new wife. She is the former Marilyn E. Cantrell of Birmingham, Ala., and she'll be 17 April 13. She and Satterfield were married, he said, Jan. 13 in Lyuke, Miss.

JUST A FIT—Worse than being over a barrel, thinks five-year-old Tommy Bremner, is to have a barrel over you and not be able to wriggle out. That was Tommy's predicament until Chicago firemen with a hacksaw sprung him. Here, Tommy shows how it was done.

TRIPLE THREAT—At 24 years of age, Craig Lewis Kaminski has accomplished a three-man job. He is one of very few who have been graduated from Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis., with a 3.976 average out of a possible 4.0. While in school he worked 39 hours a week as a telephone serviceman and still found time to acquire and maintain a family of four. He's pictured holding two-year-old daughter Linda, while his wife, Evelyn, holds Kathleen, 17 months, and Patricia, three years old.

Crimson Holiday

THE STORY: Lavinia Grenable, uncompromising and hateful old maid, has dominated her family for years from a wheelchair. Lisa, oldest of her two sons, has pushed Lisa Farwell to be his bride. Lisa's father, Henry Farwell, opposes the marriage, saying that Lavinia will make Lisa miserable. In her car, thinking out her problem, Lisa is startled by Angus Kent, who became lost while hunting for the home of Tim Hillsworth. Lisa offers Angus a lift, but as they start past the Grenable place, they see Lavinia Grenable in her wheelchair roll off a terrace and into a ravine. Lisa rushes to the scene with Angus. Then Lisa sees her father on a ridge near the house and her father hurries away. This was followed by a second strange incident.

VI
WHILE voices clamored from the house and footsteps hurried somewhere near, a lone, motionless figure stood silently in the doorway opening from Lavinia Grenable's den onto the terrace and forever afterward Lisa Farwell thought of that particular spot as the doorway to death.

The man moved then, and Lisa saw with another sense of shock that the man was Court Grenable. "Court, what happened?" she gasped.

"I... don't know," Court came out of the shadows, walking like a wooden man, stiffly, almost in a trance.

He didn't appear to recognize her or at least if he did it was unimportant at that moment. He walked slowly past her and Angus Kent, down the terrace and toward the darkening ravine where his mother had disappeared.

He stood there staring down in the pit of silence. There was something in his behavior that was more than strange, it was nearly sinister.

Lisa felt as if she were being drawn back from another world when she felt Angus put his hand on her arm. He turned her to face him.

THE day had settled into half darkness when Lisa climbed wearily out of the car at her home and waited for Angus to lock the garage.

He handed her the key and they went up the front steps together. Lights burned cheerfully through the picture windows and Martha's gray head was bobbing around the dining room table as she set the plates for dinner.

Lisa began to laugh hysterically. Court had planned to come over for dinner tonight and then they were going back to his place to see Mrs. Grenable. Lisa hadn't talked to her for years. And she wouldn't now, after all.

Court was at home, still talking to the police, and Mrs. Grenable's body, lifeless and broken at last, was being brought out of the ravine.

Lisa could see yet the lights of the searching party, the chief of police from Hilton and Dr. Hansen and Lavinia's son-in-law, Phillip Carson, as they came out through the underpass and probed the slimy floor of the ravine for the old woman.

Angus shook Lisa a little, not roughly, but urgently.

"Stop that," he warned. He pushed open the door and led her into the house. Her father came through the study door.

"Come in," he said quietly. "Elizabeth phoned."

HENRY FARWELL shook hands with Angus, searching his face silently. What he found apparently satisfied him, for he turned and looked at her then and if his face had not been so strained with tension she would have thought he smiled.

It was Angus's strength, she thought suddenly, she had felt it and now her father sensed, too, a kind of inner solidity that would never fail the young man.

"I'll hear that scream if I live to be a hundred," she murmured. "It was awful. If I'd been alone..."

Angus's hand came over hers, for an instant she permitted it to stay there, and then remembering Court, she took her own away carefully.

With all the terrible happenings of the last hour there was still the undercurrent of her awareness of this Angus Kent. It was an awareness that gave her both elation and confusion.

She should be thinking only of Court now, she should be back there helping him, giving him the courage of her love. But she couldn't seem to reach him, couldn't get through the barrier she had felt between them in the old house where the shadows of night and death crept through the rooms, where police questions and hazy insinuations touched each member of the Grenable family.

Even in those first minutes of horror she had sensed the animosity between the children of Lavinia Grenable.
