What would you have done with the four ton carass of an elephant laying right in the middle of the highway. Authorities near Abilene recently were faced with such a problem. And they did the simplest and most efficient thing to cope with such a situation. A telephone call to Central Hide & Rendering Company was all that was necessary. Workers came with a winch cable and moved the 8,000 pound body of Taffy, the circus elephant, to the Abilene rendering plant.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Lavinia Grenable's death, when her wheel chair plunged into a ravine, was murder—someone saved the brake, Lisa Farwell, fiancée of Lavinia's oldest son Court, witnessed the tragedy in company with Angus Kent, a young lawyer. Lisa saw her father, Henry Farwell, who opposed her engagement to Court, near the scene, but denies she saw anyone when questioned by the sheriff. Others are questioned, including Court's brother Andrew, both Lavinia's secretary, Bert Palmer, and when the sheriff writes an admission from the dead woman's sister, Elizabeth Stratton, that she was near where the saw was found, Henry Farwell admits that he was the man on the ridge.

apparently as an afterthought. "Who saw me on the ridge, sheriff?"

At first, the silence that drifted across the room was meaningless to Lisa. At length she felt, rather than saw, the heads turning toward her. She gasped. They were not looking at her. They were staring past her.

Court Grenable said thickly, "I told the sheriff. I had to tell him, Lisa. I thought . . ."

But Court couldn't finish when he saw the sickness in the eyes of the girl he had asked to be his wife.

"YOU accused my father?" Lisa's voice was almost unbelieving.

"No! No, Lisa. Don't believe that! I only reported what I saw," Court's voice was pleading. "Aunt Elizabeth was on the back terrace and your father was on the ridge. I told the sheriff just that. I was there too—I mean I was at home. I didn't have an alibi. I had just come in the east side entrance and I was on my way to mother's room when I heard her scream."

Court was appealing to Lisa, half begging, and Lisa didn't know which sickened her the most, the fact that he had cast suspicion on her father, or the tone of his voice.

LISA remembered well Court had been standing in the archway to the terrace, expressions of dark brooding and shock struggling on his handsome face. She remembered his gaze toward the ridge. Now she knew why Angus Kent had tried to warn her.

"How could you?" she whispered.

Sheriff Lane drew a deep breath, rubbed his face and looked at Angus who held a piece of paper from his pocket and handed it to the sheriff wordlessly.

Lisa was too confused at the moment to wonder too much over that silent exchange and Lane's next approach began before she had time to try to sort out her jumbled emotions.

The sheriff now began addressing Marion Carson for the first time. "Mrs. Carson," he asked, "you and your husband live in New York?"

Marion Carson, the daughter of the murdered woman, took a few moments to adjust herself.

"Yes," she said smoothly. "You already know, from what my brother Andrew has told you that this whole so-called holiday at home was a farce. Phillip, my husband, and I have never been on what might be called friendly terms with my mother. But we certainly didn't kill her."

"Where were you when . . . when it happened?" the sheriff asked.

"Upstairs in the guest bedroom. We were there all afternoon. We have no alibi other than that," Mrs. Carson spoke harshly but without excitement or nervousness. "Both of us were tired after our trip from New York. The night before we had tried to visit with Mother, but she was, as usual, quarrelsome."

In a few more years, thought Lisa Farwell, Marion Carson would resemble her mother.

Then Marion continued: "We had decided to leave early, and we were packing when the screams—came."

SHERIFF LANE dug his hands into his pockets a little more deeply. "I see," he said. He turned to his husband. "I understand you are planning to run for the Senate next spring, Mr. Carson."

A slow, terrible flush rose first in Phillip Carson's neck. It spread across his face. He glanced with a kind of torpid disbelief in his eyes toward his wife.

"Did Court also tell you that?" Phillip Carson demanded.

The sheriff smiled now.

"We have a more authoritative source for most of our information," he answered in an even tone. "You see, Mr. Carson, we have found Mrs. Grenable's diary."

Texas University Can Wrap Up Season

The University of Texas Longhorns can virtually wrap up the 1951 Southwest Conference Baseball title again this week.

With seven straight victories without a loss behind them, the Longhorns tackle second-place Baylor in the feature games of an eight-game card this week.

Baylor, which has won four out of seven starts, would need to sweep both games against the Longhorns at Waco Friday and Saturday, if the Bears hope to keep alive their title hopes.

The Bears will tune up for the crucial Texas series against Rice tomorrow at Waco in one of two make-up games carded that day.

It's Different Now

MARIETTA, O. (UP)—Baseball players, who now can make good money and earn public adulation once were rated no better than pickpockets and gamblers by officials of this Ohio River town.

An 1874 ordinance provided that a person "convicted of being a baseball player" was subject to a fine of $50 and 30 days of hard labor in the town jail.

San Antonio Is Leading

The San Antonio Missions, atop the Texas League standings, strengthened their position by taking both games of a Sunday doubleheader with Houston.

The Buffs got plenty of hits, but their fielding was atrocious. They committed nine errors—four in the seven-inning first game.

which San Antonio took 9-6, and five in the regulation-length wind-up, which the Missions won, 7-3.

John O'Donnell, who relieved in the third, was the first game winner, over Louis Ciola, the last of three Houston pitchers who appeared.

In the second game, John Pavlick went the distance, allowing 10 hits, for a victory. His San Antonio mates got 11 off Al Papai, the starter and loser, and Tom Keating, who appeared in a late-inning relief role.

Three Beaumont pitchers allowed Shreveport only four safeties, but the Sports ganged up on Jim Schneible and Walter Snider for three runs in the sixth inning.

That was enough to give them a 4-4 victory. Gale Pringle was credited with the victory.

In other Sunday games, John Walters limited Oklahoma City to five hits as Tulsa waltzed to an 11-1 victory and Walt Lanfranco tossed a six hitter at Fort Worth as the Dallas Eagles trimmed their hottest rivals, 5-3.

HORSE TALK

NEW YORK, April 23 (UP)—He'll probably be named as the new winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby as a result of his Wood Memorial triumph, but turf experts still aren't sure Repertoire can win the rose run.

Confusion, rather than a clear picture was left today in the wake of last Saturday's running of the Wood at Jamaica.

Repertoire, the misspelled colt owned by Mrs. Nora Mickell, captured that race the same way he won his three previous stakes races this year—an eyelash. He hasn't won by more than three parts of a length all year.

And that's what leaves the experts stumped—they can't figure out just how good he is.

Battle Morn, owned by the Cain Hoy Stable, drew a lot of attention with his closing rush, good enough for second place over Intent. This colt went around the field coming into the stretch and might have won, except for being so far out.

And fans note, too, that Eddie Arcaro was aboard Battle Morn—the same Eddie who already has won four derbies, more than any other rider.

Uncle Miltie went to the post at close to an even money favorite and never did a thing. Jockey Hedley Woodhouse complained that he "had a rough trip, including trouble with Nullify on the first turn," but Uncle Miltie showed none of his noted speed at any time. It was the second straight eighth place finish for the J. J. Colando colt.

Intent set most of the pace, drifted out in the stretch, and then held on gamely for third.

Students Invited To View Famous Originals

Mrs. D. L. Houle has arranged a window of the famous M. T. Hummell figurines and has invited the school children and anyone else interested in the famous originals to see them.

Mrs. Houle bought the collection in order to obtain the "Flower Madonna" for herself. Each little figurine is so perfect in detail and coloring that they are much in demand and very difficult to obtain, Mrs. Houle said.

Mother Hummell, a famous nun and originator, died in a concentration camp during the reign of Hitler. Exclusive rights to the figurines have been purchased by a German Merchant and Mrs. Houle was able to buy the collection through a Boston importer.

Other famous originals in the collection are "Silent Night," "Adoration" and "Telling her Secret."

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Stuffed Sweet Potatoes
Choose sweet potatoes of uniform size and similar shape, so the baking time will be the same for all of them. Allow one medium sized potato for each person. Scrub thoroughly and place in a shallow baking pan. Bake in a hot oven 425 to 450 degrees until tender when pierced with a fork, about 30 to 45 minutes for medium sized potatoes. Cut potatoes in half lengthwise, scrap out, mash and season with butter, salt, and peanut butter. Allow 1-3 cup of peanut butter for 6 medium sized sweet potatoes. Whip until well blended. Fill lightly into the potato shells, sprinkle with chopped peanuts, and return to the oven until surface is browned.

It makes your dollars talk great good sense!

When you look at the times we live in... and then take a look at this new Chrysler Windsor... you might almost think we'd had advance information and special-built this car just to fit these times!

Certainly it treats your hard-earned and tight-stretched dollars with a respect that's hard to find in a good many things you buy!

To begin with, the Windsor line is the least-priced of the three lines of cars we build at Chrysler. To buy one gets you all the basic goodness Chrysler engineering means, at the very lowest cost. That's good sense in itself.

In powerplant, your Windsor brings you Chrysler Spitfire... one of the truly great engines in the whole bright history of America's motor cars. Time-proved and owner-beloved, it would be hard to put your money on a sounder friend than this to live and travel with you through the months ahead!

As to comfort, Windsor brings you the amazing travel bonus all Chrysler owners get this year... the revolutionary new Oriflow shock absorber. With more than twice the shock-absorbing power of any other in the world, this amazing new device keeps wheels steady on the road, and riders steady in their seats.

As you can see, it is no idle claim that this car makes very special sense in these unusual times. But why not get the whole good story at first hand? Why not go see your Chrysler Dealer, very soon?
