THE NEW CONGRESS has accomplished a lot, and the Republican members have come exceptionally close to achieving their goals in their "First 100 Days Contract with America."

That is the feeling of Congressman Larry Combest, who reported to a few of his district's newsmen Thursday morning in a telephone conference call, following the passage Wednesday night of the nation's tax bill.

"I feel this has been a fairly historic time, and we have had excellent response from the American people. We have dealt with a number of controversial items, such as welfare, taxes, crime, a balanced budget, term limits and legal reform--things that in the past haven't even come up," Combest pointed out.

He hinted that the new majority in congress by the Republicans have allowed these things to be brought before congress, and that his party had been able to pass all of their bills except one (the balanced budget), and in that one, the vote was a majority, but it narrowly missed getting the required two-thirds majority.

There is no particular agenda for congress for the "next 100 days," Combest said. "We're going to continue with our same basic effort. Jima Monument. It was a beautiful We're expounding the philosophy of the people being able to keep their money at home, where they know how best to spend it," the congressman said.

People are seeing a chance to make some changes, he said. Combest had met with representatives of the Texas Cattle Feeders Assn. on Wednesday, and reported that this group was excited about the fact that they might be hampered their progress.

Smiths Report On Washington Trip

By SUEZY SMITH Billy and I left Amarillo on March 11, 1995. When we arrived at Washington National Airport, Don and Myrna Lloyd picked us up. (Many of you know Don Lloyd, son of Sid, and the late Travis Lloyd. Don is a cousin of Billy's. Also, his wife, Myrna 'Downs' graduated with me. We had a wonderful reunion with them.)

It was late, no actually it was early in the morning, but Don and Myrna took us to the mall, located near the Capitol. For any of you that are not familiar with the term "mall" that is used in Washington, D.C., it is the grassy area in front of the Capitol building. It leads to a beautiful fountain, on to the Washington Monument, then to the Lincoln Memorial, and at last to the Jefferson Memorial.

This was a breathtaking sight. All the monuments, as well as the Capitol, are brightly lit. The lights are strategically placed so the Capitol and the monuments are such a beautiful sight to behold. At one place on the Capitol grounds, you see the three monuments and the Capitol all in a line. This was one of the first sights we saw from the air as we approached D.C.

They also took us to the Iwo and humbling sight. The Iwo Jima Monument is a statue of six Marines, all enlisted men, raising "Old Glory" during one of the bloodiest battles of World War II. The statue is a three-dimensional bronze that is six times life size.

Don told us that a friend of theirs who was visiting from College Station said her mother told her to take a picture of all the monuments in Washington. You able to change some of the cannot imagine what a task that government regulations which have would be until you see how many monuments there are in the city.

on the grounds of the plantation. We even saw the room where Gen. Washington died. There was a gazebo built on the Potomac River so that Washington's friends could come see them by boat instead of traveling by land if they lived across the Potomac in Maryland.

On Sunday night, we went to visit my aunt. We stayed there the rest of the week and caught the Metro to see the sights we had not seen.

On Monday, we went to the National Air and Space Museum. We saw many of the famous early airplanes, one of The Spirit of St. Louis. We saw the inside of a space ship, satellites, early planes used for air mail, and one of the first commercial planes, built in 1924.

We went to one of the first Smithsonian museums. It was the Arts and Industries Museum. It contained many exhibits that were at the World's Fair in Philadelphia in 1876, during our Centennial celebration. One of the most impressive exhibits in that building was the pedal driven table saw. The table saw has not changed much since 1852 except now it has an electric motor.

Another enjoyable museum was the Museum of American History. This museum contained the tent of Gen. George Washington, the flag that was made by Betsy Ross and her helpers, the inaugural gowns worn by Jackie Kennedy, Lady Bird Johnson, Nancy Reagan, Barbara Bush and depicted several eras of American thought that any one from Texas history.

A huge African elephant, the world's largest stuffed specimen of this species greeted us as we entered the Museum of Natural History. There were many dinosaur skeletons, some of them were found in Utah, Oregon and Colorado. The Hope Diamond is on display at this museum. The Hope Diamond is the world's largest diamond. It is a deep-blue, 40-karat diamond surrounded by sixteen 1-karat diamonds. On Tuesday, Billy, one of my cousins, and I went to see more of the Washington sights. We went to Union Station. It is so large that the Washington Monument could be laid down and still have sixteen feet left inside the building. Inside Union Station, there were sixty-three restaurants. One hundred trains leave Union Station each day. This is the headquarters for Amtrak. From Union Station, we went to the Postal Museum which is next door. The city of Washington, D.C. wanted to destroy the old Post Office, the building that now houses the Postal Museum, but they found out that it would take more money to destroy the building than it would to renovate it. It is hard to understand why anyone would want to destroy such a magnificent masterpiece but if it was not for the citizens of Washington and the surrounding cities, the building would not be standing today. Next on our agenda was the Capitol building. This is a grand old building. We saw the great cast-iron dome that was completed during the Civil War. It is one of the largest domes in the world and weighs approximately nine million pounds. Constantino Brumidi painted the scene on the ceiling of the rotunda. The painting is 180 feet above the marble floor. This painting was completed in 1865. We were privileged to sit in the House Chambers and listen to some of the House members. We went to the Arlington buried. One of the most patriotic moments I have ever experienced is thousand acre plantation. The the changing of the guards at the tombs of Martha and George were us proud to be an American.

On Wednesday, we went to the National Cathedral. It is perched atop one of the loftiest spots in Washington. It was finally finished in 1990 after beginning work on it more than 100 years ago. The building has many chapels that are used for weddings, funerals and baptisms, besides the huge sanctuary that seats at least 5000 people. This sanctuary is used for worship each Sunday. The stained glass used in the cathedral is as magnificent as any you have seen in pictures of the ancient cathedrals in Europe.

On Thursday, Billy and I drove up to Dover, Delaware. To get to Dover from Washington, D.C., we went to Annapolis, Maryland and over the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. This bridge is 21,286 feet. The land just past the Bay Bridge was farm land. There were lush fields of grain and very neat farm houses. The closer we got to Dover the more like home it looked. We finally saw one story houses again. In Washington and the surrounding cities, all we saw were apartment buildings, town houses, condominiums or three story houses.

While we were in Dover, we visited Jo Carol (Wiley) and her husband, Rudy Czeizinger. Many of you will remember Jo Carol, who was the niece of Katheryn Johnson, the owner of the City Drug on Main Street. Jo is also a cousin to Kathryn Gromowsky. Jo went to school in Bovina until 1959

Jo and Rudy took us to a steak Hillary Clinton. This museum house called the Lone Star. They needed to go to a "Texas Steakhouse." The thing that was different about this restaurant was, that as we went in the door, we picked up a pail of peanuts. The rule was that we throw the shells on the floor and if you tried to be neat, the waitress would come by your table and rake the shells onto the floor.

Dover is a relatively small town even though it is the capital of Delaware. We saw the Capitol building, the Governor's Palace and historic downtown Dover. to an end! So on Saturday, March Delaware is the oldest state in the 18, Billy and I had to leave that union so all of the old part of beautiful city of millions of people Dover was historical.

to Washington, D.C. It seemed odd a wonderful sight it was to see all to us that we could go all the way these friendly faces and only a few across the District of Columbia, cars. It is wonderful to return to a across the state of Maryland, into place where we get impatient if we Delaware, back across Maryland and have to wait two minutes at an to Washington again all in twelve intersection and people are really hours. It takes longer than that to glad to see you. You are not just get across the state of Texas.

On Friday, Billy and Don went back to the Air and Space Museum because the few hours we had to see the museum on Monday was not enough. They also went to the Library of Congress. This grand old building was built in 1897. There are over 900 libraries in the D.C. area but it is estimated that one-sixth of the library resources-collections and professional librarians--are here. Its collections are accessible to the general public.

Every good thing has to come and return to West Texas and the Thursday night we went back small town of 1500 people. What another face in the crowd.

Congr the "bad press" that the Republicans where people shop. There is a mall to cut out welfare," etc. "In many of the programs we are adding money to what they have received in the past. We just want to make sure that those who are able to truly needing assistance can receive it," he said.

"We're not going to debate the failed policies of the liberals, which have gone on for years and have failed. It will be, however, virtually impossible to tear down the bricks that have been stacked up over the past 40 years, but we can make a start," he promised.

Combest said that the tax battle was a class warfare fight that will continue to be fought.

He related the story of a Washington Post writer visiting one of the oldest restaurants in the city, and asking the question of the "blue collar" workers as to why they voted for the Republicans, who were more apt to give tax breaks to rich people. The response, by a longtime house painter was "I've never been hired by a poor person in my life!"

One of the areas that will occupy Combest's time in the near future

Combest is the fourth-ranking congressman on the Agriculture Committee, and is the only member of the committee who has been through two farm programs.

He said there would be hearings during the month of April, including one covering several states later this month in Lubbock. ****

Booster Club To Meet Mon.

The meeting will be to discuss the upcoming athletic banquet. All interested persons are encouraged to attend.

Of course, there are mails have received, in regard to "wanting called Crystal City Mall that is completely underground. The amazing thing about this mall is not the fact that it is so large it has a supermarket plus other stores that almost all malls have but on the work will do so, and those who are streets above it are office buildings. That is amazing enough, but underneath it is the Metro system which is approximately four stories high. Many people who work in Washington, D.C. use the Metro system because the traffic is just unbelievable. Besides the traffic being so heavy, there is no place to park when you finally get downtown.

All of Washington was very interesting but the underground Metro system was one of the most amazing things we saw. We would not imagine how many truck loads of dirt must have been removed from underground just to build the Metro. The Metro not only is in the city proper but it begins as far out as thirty miles so that more people can utilize its services. There are plans to have the service extended farther so that more of the people in the suburbs can take the Metro to work.

On Sunday afternoon, we rode will be working on a new farm bill. the Metro for the first time. Don wanted to show us how to ride it and how to change lines when we needed to. He also told us where to get off so we would be at the museums and various other sights that we wanted to see.

We got downtown and much to our surprise going down Pennsylvania Avenue was the St. Patrick's Day Parade. We saw many bands playing their bagpipes and there was even a dance club that performed its Irish dances. It was a long parade and after about an hour we decided that since it would be at least another hour, we would go on out to Mt. Vernon, home of George Cemetery where 20,111 people are and Martha Washington.

I have never been to the Holy Land. Someday, in God's time, I will go. Velma and I heard a fellow minister say this past week that he had been blessed to go to Israel three different times.

"Each time," he said, "as I stood at Jordon's Calvary, the most likely site of Jesus' crucifixion, I stood transfixed with tears streaming down my cheeks."

"What shall I do, then, with Jesus who is called Christ?" Pilate asked. They all answered, 'Crucify him!"" (Matthew 27:22). How do you answer Pilate's question today? "What shall I do, then, with Jesus?"

Pilate tried to be neutral. As Roman governor of Judea, he did not want to put to death a man he knew to be innocent. But neither did he want to buck the powerful Jewish leaders who wanted Jesus dead.

To exonerate himself of Christ's blood, he attempted to wash his hands of the entire affair (v. 24). But his cowardice before the crowd sealed his true decision. He allowed Jesus to die.

When it comes to Christ and his death on the cross, there is no middle ground. We either believe Jesus is Savior and Lord, or, we do

FLBA Sets Annual Meeting

The Federal Land Bank Association of Muleshoe will hold its annual stockholders meeting on April 10, 1995 at the Bailey County Coliseum, Muleshoe. The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

Updates on the association's performance in 1994 and plans for 1995 will be given by Board Chairman, Donald Christian and Association CEO William C. Liles.

Among other items of business, stockholders will elect two positions on the board. Billy D. Baxter of Friona and Norman Taylor of the Rhea Community have been nominated for Position I. Jim Pat Claunch of Bula has been nominated for Position II. Nominations for these positions will be opened to the floor at the meeting.

The FLBA of Muleshoe makes rural land and housing loans in Bailey and Parmer Counties. Currently, the association has 466 outstanding loans totaling $26 million. The office is located in Muleshoe.

Association stockholders are encouraged to attend the meeting. For more information, call (806) 272-3010.

Texas A&M.

Texas A&M is in its "Second Century of Greatness." Since 1867, Texas A&M has grown from a small Land Grant College to one of the leading research and educational institutions in the world, now holding the distinction of sea and space grants as well.

The Muster tradition is more than 100 years old. More than 400 Musters will be held around the world this year, wherever Texas A&M former students live or work.

During wars, Aggies mustered in foxholes, on the battlefield, aboard ships, in airplanes and in medical hospitals. In World War II, a Muster was held on Corregidor Island shortly before the Japanese captured it in 1942.

Every Muster ceremony is the same. Texas Aggies pay their respects to all those who are absent because of death since the last Muster. When the names of the honored dead are called from the Muster Roll, a friend of the deceased answers, "Here."

Golden Spread Aggie Mother's Club anticipates good attendance at the first Muster to be held in the Hereford area in quite some time. Any inquiries may be addressed to Denise Teel at 364-4561 or Jody Skiles at 578-4347.
