OPS To Crack Down On All Violators

FORT WORTH, Aug. 25 The Fort Worth District Office of Price Stabilization has under way a campaign to force com pliance with OPS regulations in the 50-county district, Ellis H. Boyd, district director, announced Friday morning.

Enforcement investigators are checking on 12 slaughterers sus pected of cattle price ceiling violations

Preliminary reports indicated that 32 restaurants appear to e maintained inadequate OPS ords. The special agents are conducting a widespread investigation of many other restaurants suspected of not keeping prope records.

In addition to investigating cat tle and restaurant suspects, much of the business analyst staff is now checking on firms that have not filed the proped reports under the different OPS regulations.

"Every opportunity has been given to those under OPS regulations to comply with the agency's regulations," Boyd said. "Some have not complied and now we are going to force them to do so," he added.

"Businessmen, generally speaking, have been found to be in compliance and cooperative-our aim is at the violator."

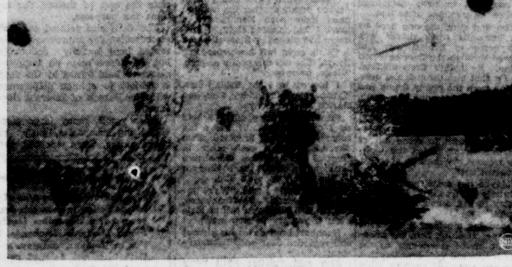

"The time has come to stop kidding about this thing of enforcement of all regulations-we are going to follow through on these investigations."

"We really mean business," Boyd reiterated. "We are going to check every business in the Fort Worth district," he added.

Boyd explained that cases have been filed this week by OPS in and Friday nights with every type building used for storage was wir- ber of citizens helping. federal courts in several states, including Louisiana, against firms who have not filed the necessary reports.

Boyd said the Fort Worth district is not ready to file such suits at this time, but it is rapidworking toward that objective.

TERRACING DOES NOT COST - IT PAYS

This was especially true for a West Texas farmer who rented a terracing machine for $5.00 per day, and using his regular farm tractor, built thirty miles of terraces in thirty hours.

Terraces hold back rainwater until it has time to soak into the earth; they will hold back soil and expensive fertilizers from washing away; and they will protect young crops from washing out. Terracing is a good investment.

Talk to your County Agent and the Soil Conservation Service about terracing. They will be glad to help you.
