Wives Waiting In Germany May Fly To Captured Men

ERDING AIR BASE, Germany, Dec. 27 (UP)—Two Air Force wives, their anxiety turned to joy, waited at Erding Air Base today to join their flier husbands imprisoned by Hungary.

up my hopes too much," she said. "I'm afraid to be let down again."

She breathed a sigh of relief when she heard the news and then immediately asked, "what time today?" Her tone clearly said she could hardly believe the news, and asked if she was ready to fly to her husband she replied, "I hadn't thought of flying anywhere to meet him, but I want to see him as soon as possible, wherever he is."

The other two men aboard the plane downed in Hungary were Capt. John J. Swift whose wife is in Glens Falls, N. Y., and Sgt. James A. Egan of Kingsland, Ark. whose parents waited his early return.

Daredevil Badly Hurt

LONDON, Dec. 27 (UP)—Daredevil British motorcyclist Arnold Wickbold was in serious condition today from a 70-foot fall suffered in a circus performance.

Some 7,000 spectators yesterday saw the 34 year old Wickbold's motorcycle motor fall while he was riding at full speed in a steel mesh ring suspended in the air at the Bertram Mills Circus.

TEXAS' 1951 LAWMAKERS WERE RECORD BREAKERS WITH LAWS

AUSTIN, Dec. 27 (UP)—Texas' lawmakers go into the coming year, trailing echoes of a historic-making session that will strongly shape the economic and political life of the state in 1952.

From five months of committee study, floor debate and bill-chewing the 52nd session brewed a $200,000,000 budget—the largest in the history of Texas—voted some $65,000,000 in new taxes; dusted off the state's antiquated election laws; invited voters to have their say on seven constitutional amendments; launched a pumping attack on crime, and—for the first time in 30 years—adopted a redistricting program for the House and Senate.

The lawmakers also took a long look at highway safety and enacted two bills, both of which were bitterly debated. One—the driver's responsibility bill, goes into effect Jan. 1 and requires that a driver be able to answer claims totaling $15,000 damages if he has a wreck.

Slot machines were banned, punchboards were outlawed, the policy racket was tagged with tighter penalties, sale of barbiturates was restricted, and bomb-making—aimed indirectly at the possibility of enemy-inspired sabotage—was specifically prohibited under a new law.

000,000 the veterans' land fund, and rejected the other four.

Two others will be voted on in November of next year. One authorizes the legislature to enact laws enabling cities, towns and villages to provide workmen's compensation for employes. The other establishes a program of state-supported scholarships for the professional education of medical students who promise to practice in rural areas for a specified length of time.

In carrying out a redistricting program, the legislature whittled out 30 new districts in the 150-member house of representatives and four new districts in the 31-member senate.

South and west Texas, as a result of the shift in population, gained in representation. East Texas lost.

Lawmakers left undone one major task—congressional redistricting. In passing the action, the legislature tossed to the voters opportunity to ballot in the coming year on a congressional-at-large, giving the Lone Star State 22 members in the national house and compared with 21 at present.

Ten minutes we were at the edge of the dust. As it lifted, Reno saw in front of him more mounted Sioux than his scouts had placed in the whole camp.

"Chief, we ain't got nothin'. If McDougall don't get up here with ammunition we ain't gonna be in this fight long enough to warm up our barrels. I got 50 rounds a man over what they're carryin'.

Reno was not a cool man but he was nerved and smart. Still he was in a tight, cut to squeeze a bigger man than he. He had his command mounted and firing, that was about all.

"I say, dismount. Get the men off the horses while we've got some men left. Then into those woods over there, on foot."

"Dismount! Dismount. Everybody down. Off the horses."

The men tumbled to the ground, hanging to the cheek-straps of their terrified, plunging mounts.

"McIntosh!" Reno's commands were terse. "We're going out of here. Into that clump of woods in that bend, right there off the right flank. Is everybody down?"

"We had 200 yards to make across open grass to the wooded river bend. We took six more casualties making it. Our refuge was a thick cottonwood grove in a very tight bend, water on three sides, the entire cover not over 75 yards wide, 100 long. Reno, McIntosh and I were the last three men in.

Before starting from Custer's camp the night before, Reno had gotten me an old uniform from supply. A sergeant's faded chevrons adorned the sleeves of the jacket. It had been a dark, hurried issue, the supply sergeant not caring whether he made me a corporal or a brigadier. This uniform had covered my identity at longer ranges but once the hawk-eyed Sioux got in close they spotted me.

"The howls went up from them like a pack of blue-tick hounds belling a dog-coon in a swamp hollow at midnight. White Bull, one of Sitting Bull's nephews and apparently in command on our front, lashed his pony forward.

Reno, either dazed or just too slow a man with a gun, got belted out of his saddle by an ax-blow from White Bull.

We pulled Reno in and bandaged his head. It had been a glancing blow but had laid the scap open to the skull. From that moment he was a blown man, and though he fought his command through to the bluffs, he was sick with pain the whole time.

"Clayton, listen," he rasped, as McIntosh left to fetch Moylan, the senior captain. "I can scarcely hear or see. Don't tell French or Moylan. You stay here with me, you hear?"

I nodded, smiling. Then, my lips to his good ear, I shouted, "You've picked an aide. Got my degree under Jeb Stuart. Postgraduate with Fitzhugh Lee."

He bobbed his head, dark pain stabbing his eyes at the movement. "I believe you. You took us into this cover like a professional."

"We waited for Moylan and McIntosh, the Sioux meanwhile slacking fire as they moved their forces into new positions.

"All right, Major," Moylan said. "Where do we go from here?" "God knows." But I say up to those bluffs is our only chance. Get up there and stay there. What do you say, eh?"

"We can't make it!" "Well, we've got to, Captain." I talked fast, before he could worry too much about my qualifications. "If we stay here they'll get the horses. I know Indians and their thinking. Right now they'll be sleeping in around French's flank over there on the right, trying to get in and stampede the horses. We can't handle the mounts if they get panicky. Not and have any men left to keep up a fire. If the Sioux get us afoot down here on the flat, we're dead."

"Oh, where is Custer?" broke in Reno, querulously.

"And Benteen," added McIntosh. "God knows about Benteen," I hurried on, "but I think Custer's tried to go around. He was convinced the Hunkpapa and Oglala were down south. He's gone around to hit them. We can't wait any longer, anyhow." I had to shout over the rising Sioux fire. "We've got to mount up and make a run for those west bluffs."

"Give the command, Moylan." Reno's instruction was decisive. (To Be Continued)

He conferred yesterday with Short and two other top aides, personnel adviser Donald D. Dawson and presidential secretary Matthew J. Connelly, immediately after they arrived by air from Washington.

Less than four hours later, he announced plans to appoint George F. Kennan, veteran career diplomat and expert on Russia, as ambassador to Moscow to succeed Ambassador Alan G. Kirk.

Short said Mr. Truman "reluctantly" agreed to let Kirk resign. He said the shift probably would take place early next year, provided Kennan is confirmed by the Senate.

The announcement was made by Short at the temporary White House headquarters at the Muehlebach Hotel in nearby Kansas City. It came as no surprise.

Mr. Truman said at Key West, Fla., last month that he was considering the 47-year-old Kennan as a replacement for Kirk.

Crime Buster To Wed Nurse

The chief executive got an early start at his desk yesterday in Kansas City, but he spent much of the day greeting a steady stream of callers.

He conferred by telephone to Washington with his legal counsel, Charles Murphy, about the steel strike negotiations and other problems including his forthcoming budget and state of the union messages.

Later in the day he traveled to Grandview, Mo., for a visit to the old family farm.

The President and Mrs. Truman along with daughter Margaret were honor guests at an exclusive dinner last night given by Elyvins Davis, wealthy theatrical producer, at his elaborate estate near Independence.

Connelly and Short planned to stay until the chief executive returns to Washington. Dawson left shortly after his arrival to visit relatives elsewhere in Missouri.

NE WYORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—Rudolph Halley, quizmaster for the Senate Crime Investigating Committee's televised hearings here last March, must supply the answers today when a judge asks if he will take a nurse as his lawful, scaddled wife.

Halley, recently elected city council president, was scheduled today his 'I do's' with Janice Brosh at 4:45 p.m. EST before a presiding judge of the supreme court's appellate division.

The lipslip, bespectacled crime buster: fell in love with Miss Brosh last spring when she nursed him through an illness after he had resigned as chief council of the Kefauver as Committee.

The home building boom continued through 1951, with production of slightly over 1,000,000 housing units. The Newschart above shows new-housing total for each post-war year. When all data are in, 1951 is expected to go down as the second biggest year in U. S. home-building history, in spite of the sharp cutback from 1950's record 1,400,000 units. Builders hope 1952 will boom, too, with at least 850,000 new homes and apartments expected to go up in the next twelve months.

EASTLAND TELEGRAM SPORTS BY SPECIAL SPORTS WRITER

TODAY'S SPORTRAIT

By Ed Feinen
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (UP)—Look back over your shoulder today and you'll see that sports had many big moments in 1951—and here are some of the best and worst.

Biggest upset—when Randy Turpin dethroned Sugar Ray Robinson as middleweight champion.

Greatest comeback—Jersey Joe Walcott winning the world heavyweight title at 38, or is it 41?

Most thrilling moments—Bobby Thomson's pennant-winning home run and Ben Hogan's bridge on the final hole to win the national open after being five strokes back of Bobby Locke with 18 holes to play.

Sadest moment—Joe Louis flat on the canvas after being kayoed by Young Rocky Marciano.

Funniest moment—when Bill Veeck's midget strode to the plate as leadoff man against Detroit.

Goat of the year—Ralph Branca whose two home run pitches to Bobby Thomson lost two national league playoff games.

Disappointment of the year—those Dodgers, who blew a 13 1-2 game lead to lose the flag they had virtually wrapped up.

Biggest surprise—the Giants, as they never gave up and wrote baseball history with the greatest comeback in the finals of the game.

Best loser—Ted Collins, whose New York Yank pro grid team dropped $90,000, but who announced that he'll be back at the same old stand in 1952.

Blackest incident—the collegiate basketball scandal.

Rookie of the year—Kansas Charley Burr who, as a 17-year-old apprentice rider, became the seventh jockey in racing history to pilot 300 winners.

Most courageous performance—by Irish Bob Murphy as he kept boring in against Joey Maxim even though heavyweight champion was cutting him to ribbons.

Best bet to attain greatness—Maureen Connolly, who at 16 equalled Helen Wills Moody's feat of winning the national tennis title.

Most tragic event—the West Point cribbing scandal, which put a black mark on the record of nearly 100 fine boys.

Most startling moment—when young Mickey Mantle dropped to the outfield turf during the world series as if shot through the head and lay there motionless as 70,000 puzzled fans held their collective breath.

Most changed personality—Leo (the silent) Durocher.

Most disgraceful incident—Oklahoma A&M's deliberate slugging of Drake's Johnny Bright.

Sadest Farewell—seeing Joe Dimaggio call it quits.

Most embarrassing moment—asking an old favorite, Charley Keller, what he would do after being released by Detroit, and finding out he didn't even know he had been fired.

Yep, it was quit a year, and the little feller marching front and center will find it rough living up to the old gent who is joining history.

Cowhands Today In Rodeos Are Getting Better

FORT WORTH, Dec. 27 — Cowboys who take part in the rodeos today are better riders than the cowboys of earlier days, declares Verne Elliott of Platteville, Colo., who will be the producer of the rodeo of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Jan. 25 through Feb. 3.

And Elliott ought to know because he himself was a cowboy riding the range and was a champion rodeo rider and, as the foremost producer of rodeos for more than 30 years, he has seen the best performers.

The reason that present-day rodeo riders are superior to the cowboys of years ago, Elliott says, is that, in the early days, about the only rodeos were at Cheyenne and Pendleton besides a few strictly local shows. So the only other opportunity for a star rider was to tour the country with one of the Wild West shows, of which Buffalo Bill, Pawnee Bill, the Miller Bros., of 101 Ranch fame and Zack Mulhall were the best known.

Rodeo contestants then were mainly actual cowboys who came from the range. But today, rodeoing is a career. Many contestants go from one show to another and are busy the year 'round. They get much more practice in riding wild horses than their predecessors did and so are better riders.

Is he alive? That's the sixty-four dollar question for every person who sees the world-famous "Man or Image", lifelike reproduction of a Japanese artist who pulled his own hair, toenails, teeth and fingernails to use them in creating his image, to which he willed all his worldly possessions upon his death. This is only one of many amazing curiosities and oddities to be seen in Eastland on Sunday, Dec. 30, when Texas State Disabled American Veterans brings a touring exhibit of Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not" museum pieces to this city. The exhibit will be open to the public, admission free.

Elliott says. A top-notch performer in the rodeo world can make from $10,000 to $25,000 a year. Contrast that with the $30 a month and chow which the rider on the range used to get!

"Many of the present-day riders were never actually cowboys at all and are really athletes," Elliott declared.

When asked whom he considered the greatest cowboys in rodeo history, "Mr Rodeo" pondered, then said, "I wouldn't want to say Leonard Stroud, who was at his peak around 1918, could do everything well. So could Hugh Strickland, who came along afterward" In recent years, I would rank Gene Rambo, as the best all-around cowboy."

Among rodeo stars of the present, Elliott considers Bill Linderman the best, although Bud Linderman is probably the equal of his brother in ability but Bill takes the work more seriously, the producer said.

Both men will be seen in the Fort Worth stock show rodeo (greatest indoor rodeo in the world) as will nearly 400 other top-flight artists of the lariat and saddle.

New Advances Reported On Medical Work

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., —

Reporting recent advances along clinical frontiers, Lois Mattox Miller says in the January Readers Digest that arthritis, shock and certain skin troubles are now being relieved by new treatments.

Postpartum (after birth) plasma, made from blood taken from mothers within 72 hours after childbirth, has been successfully administered to arthritics. Twelve patients receiving a half pint plasma weekly for six weeks were rid of pains, stiffness and swelling. After the treatment was discontinued, six patients remained well for a year; one for two years. Relapsed cases responded quickly to a second course of treatments. Postpartum plasma has advantages over cortisone and ACTH: it is cheaper, its benefits last longer, and the patient needs no preparatory hospitalization for tolerance tests.

A first aid treatment for shock resulting from severe burns or injuries is now recommended by the Surgical Study Section of the National Institute of Health. The simple formula, to be taken internally, is one level teaspoon of table salt and one-half teaspoon of baking soda, mixed in a quart of water. Easy to administer by anyone, it may save the lives of many shock victims before the doctor arrives.

Acne, our commonest skin disorder, has been "arrested or greatly improved" by easy diet restrictions, the avoidance of greasy cosmetics, and the application of a flesh tinted preparation containing resorcinol, sulphur and alcohol in a non-greasy base. The prescribed diet forbids chocolate and cola drinks and allows only moderate use of fried foods.
