Tropical Storm Hovering Near U. S. Mainland

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 29 (UP)— A tropical storm lunged uncom-fortably near the U. S. mainland in an unpredictable northwesterly action Friday, menacing a heavy shipping route off three seaboard

The Miami weather bureau esti-mated the center of the swirling disturbance had moved within 370 miles of Ft. Pierce, Fla.

The 200-mile span of squalls packing winds up to 50 and 65 miles per hour was moving northwestward at 18 miles per hour, the weather bureau said, aiming a Georgia and the Carolinas.

Small craft operating in waters off these states were warned to remain in port until the storm

Weather forecasters predicted on the basis of the day's first appraisal of the lopsided, erratic tropical blow that it would continue along the northwesterly course at least a few more hours.

Morris note that the states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which have had inspection laws for more than 15 years, today have accident death rates nearly 30 percent below the national average In both states, also minimum safety standards for motor vehicles has produced a lower overall rate described tracts on Saturday, September 13, 1952, at 10 for all types of non-fatal traffic a.m. in the office of the City accidents.

"Here in Texas, on the basis of available statistics, mechanical defects in automobiles are responsible for an average of one traffic death every day," Morris said. "In addition, faculty lights, inadequate bakes, worn steering gear and similar defects cause more than 10,000 non-fatal ac cidents each year."

The safety council director emphasized that "these accidents are all beyond the control of the driver and caused solely by mechanical defects.

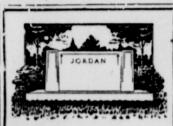

"Regular inspection of automo iles may not eliminate such ac cidents entirely but such inspec ions can materially reduce the toll," Morris added. "It is fundamental that no driver can be a safe driver if the car he drives is not safe.
