Evan Alex, a Clay county, Kansas, poultry man, is a user of money-making methods in the management of his poultry farm, according to a report.

His eggs sell rapidly when displayed in grocery stores. The way they stand up in the frying pan and their mild taste bring customers back for more.

Alex's success is the result of his collection of ideas from Midwest poultry farms and his careful management. Sometimes the Fruit Cake The Cake-Mix Way!

Want to streamline your holiday fruit-cake making this year? Then try the new cake-mix method that makes 5 pounds of festive fruit cake from just one package of cake mix!

It's a fast-to-mix recipe, developed especially for all-purpose cake mix by Virginia Roberts of the American Beauty Home Baking Institute. And it's a beautiful cake with the accent of whole red cherries, pecans and white raisins. Bake it in a large 10-inch tube pan, in two loaf pans or use 3 one-pound coffee cans. Wonderful for holiday giving!

Cake-Mix Fruit Cake
1 package (20 oz.) All-Purpose Cake Mix
4 eggs, unbeaten
Combine cake mix, one egg, water, salt and flavoring and beat until smooth, about 2 minutes. Add the remaining 3 eggs, one at a time, and beat well after each addition. Total mixing time in second step—at least 2 minutes.

Fruit Mixture
1 lb. whole candied cherries
1 lb. whole pecans or walnuts
1 lb. white raisins
1/2 lb. candied pineapple, cut in strips
1/2 cup all-purpose flour
Combine nuts, fruits and flour and blend into the cake batter. Pour into one 10-inch tube pan, two loaf pans (4x8) or 3 one-pound coffee cans. Pans should be lined with a triple thickness of waxed paper and well-greased. Place a shallow pan, filled with one inch of hot water on bottom of oven. Bake cakes at 275° F. for 2 hours and 40 to 55 minutes. Cakes are done when toothpick, inserted, comes out clean. *For altitudes above 3,000 feet, add 2 tbsp. additional water.

ideas don't conform to standard practices.

His two 120 by 500 foot buildings run north and south with windows on east and west sides. That permits more natural lighting than the usual single south exposure. Double doors at both ends, overhead fans, ten 14-inch flues with dampers and windows provide ventilation and dryness in all weather.

To discourage early laying, he vaccinated his selected White Leghorn pullets for both Newcastle and fowl pox as the birds neared maturity. Three or four weeks later they were vaccinated for trachetis. When 7 months old they were brought to the laying house, healthy and heavy.

In three weeks, production jumped from 44 to 441 eggs in one pen of 532 birds. Several days later they produced 466 eggs—87 percent. Pullet eggs are scarce and blowouts negligible. No cullings was done prior to February, but laying rate ranged between 73 and 78 percent. Fresh water with chill removed and hand feeding of a 26 percent breeder mash and whole oats maintained high production. Pipes leading to drinking cups are warmed electrically in winter.

Alex interests buyers by mailing pictures of his eggs, handling equipment and laying house with a letter describing his product.

CAPITALISM IS NEW WORLD FORCE, SAYS C-C LEADER

What is the most revolutionary force in the world today—communism, socialism or atom energy?

Most people would say communism, or perhaps the terrible power of the atom bomb. But Clem D. Johnston of Roanoke, Va., a vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, believes none of these answers the question. Next to Christianity itself, he said in a recent radio address, competitive capitalism is the world's greatest revolutionary force.

Johnston summarized his reasoning this way: Capitalism is relatively new in the world. It is basically American. Europe distrusts capitalism and restricts its practice by government-sanctioned cartels. A cartel is an elaborate combination of independent enterprises in the same branch of production. It is designed to regulate prices and restrict competition. The inefficient or high-cost operator and the inefficient and high-cost worker are thus protected. The basic aim is security.

Capitalism has a radically different aim. It is free competition, governed only by the laws of demand and supply. It offers the greatest reward to him who makes or sells the best products at the lowest price.

This conflict between the old established order and America's competitive capitalism, Johnston said, explains in part why this country is in difficulty here and abroad. Capitalism contains the seeds of revolution. It threatens the old established order.

But another part of our difficulty, Johnston said, is the opposition to capitalism even in America. While we preach free enterprise, a startlingly large number of people in government and out of it, oppose capitalism. They too, prefer security to individual enterprise. Like the peoples of the old world they argue that government can do more for a man than he can do for himself; that security can be guaranteed by planned economy.

To show how misleading are these beliefs, Johnston told the following anecdote:

Once upon a time, two fleas settled down on a large, healthy dog. With an abundance of food and shelter, the fleas multiplied prodigiously. Finally, the dog, unable to maintain this extra tax on his system, crawled away and died.

The fleas were panicked. They ran from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail shouting, "The economic system is broken down." The fat, lazy ones were so overcome that they laid down and died. Some of the more enterprising fleas tried to thumb a ride on the back of a passing dog. But they had no luck.

Sing In Bathtub, Musician Advises

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Alvah A. Beecher, music director of the University of Florida, defends the bathtub singer and advises that you can literally sing away your troubles.

"Music is an emotional release," Beecher said. "When you're in love, angry, tired or blue, express your feelings in song."

"Radio and TV are making Americans a nation of spectators, who prefer to listen to someone instead of taking part themselves. Perfection is a fine goal for a professional, but it shouldn't worry anyone else.

"Whether you sing off key or on makes no difference. The important thing is to sing."

MURRAY'S SUCCESSOR?—With the death of CIO president Philip Murray Nov. 9, many labor experts are speculating as to who will succeed him as chief of the big labor organization. Among those prominently mentioned were Walter Reuther, left, head of the CIO United Auto Workers, James B. Carey, center, CIO Secretary-Treasurer and president of the Electrical Workers Union, and Alan S. Haywood, executive vice-president of the CIO and its organizing director.

Alcoholism May Get Attention Of Major Group

"Men of the cloth and members of the medical profession should unite in powerful and harmonious team to stem the mounting epidemic of anxiety and frustration which is filling countless of thousands of hospital beds with mental and emotional cases," Dr. Andrew S. Tomb, a member of the American Medical Association's Committee on Alcoholism and a director of the Texas Committee dealing with the same problem, told the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs at its annual convention in Austin.

"Mental and emotional disturbances, including alcoholism, represent probably the most serious health problem in our nation today," Dr. Tomb declared. "Because of their nature the preacher and the priest should march side by side with the doctor and the psychiatrist in combatting them and in the rehabilitation of their victims."

"There is nothing in the science or the art of medicine which is in conflict with the spiritual," Dr. Tomb insisted. "In fact, the psychiatrist and the general practitioner will often find the chaplain or minister an excellent and sometimes an invaluable association in handling some of the emotional disturbances of our fast-moving civilization."

Dr. Torib referred to an article in the Oct. issue of the Current Medical Digest in which he had condensed a bulletin from the Menninger Clinic which dealt with an exceptionally successful case of teamwork between a doctor and a naval chaplain.

"The physician and an understanding minister, as a team, may effectively solve a problem which neither could handle alone, and for the alcoholic patient the fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous is indispensable," Dr. Tomb concluded.

Dr. George A. Constant, a psychiatrist formerly with the John Sealy Hospital in Galveston and now practicing in Victoria, Texas, endorsed Dr. Tomb's views.

"It is my personal opinion, based on my own experiences, that there are strong spiritual factors involved in many cases of alcoholism and other mental and emotional disturbances, and that a minister or priest could often prove a valuable ally of the psychiatrist in the treatment of the patient," he told the club members.

Summer Dream By Irene Ernhart

VIII
STEVE, Laurie and her father had gone fishing. Louis French had left his daughter and Steve to fish up the river beside an old log. Steve sat with his hat tilted over his face and his head resting against the enormous trunk of an old sycamore tree.

"You know, Steve," Laurie said thoughtfully, "there's more to you than any man I've ever known. You're—so different somehow."

"I'll miss you, Laurie," Steve said. "You'll be leaving before long now I suppose."

She looked at him, reclining against the tree trunk, probably half asleep under that old hat and neither knowing or caring what turn the conversation took. You won't miss me," she said tonelessly.

"Yes I will, Laurie," he insisted. "There's more to you too than I ever dreamed. This summer has been wonderful. It's going to be downright boring without you around."

"You didn't mean those things you said that night, did you?"

"What things?"

"About my being a spoiled brat, and that I should go back to my own kind. What did you mean—'my own kind'?"

"Oh I don't know, Laurie. I've thought about that night a lot of times since, and I'm sorry I talked to you that way. If it's not too late, I apologize." He tilted his hat back and grinned at her.

"Do you remember the way you kissed me?"

Steve's grin faded. He got up suddenly and went over and began to reel in the line of his fishing pole. "Yes," he said after a moment. "I remember that too."

"Oh, Steve," she cried. He turned around to look at her. She had picked up a stick and was marking in the soft moist sand.

He stared at the three words. "LAURIE LOVES STEVE"

SHE had marked the words in the sand with the stick. It was a childish thing to have done.

"Laurie!" Steve stood looking down at her, shaking his head, but there was a look in his eyes that brought Laurie scrambling to her feet and into his arms.

Somewhere in the sycamore tree a bird flung out a few bright arpeggios of song.

Steve let her go. His face twisted a little. "It's all wrong, Laurie. You mustn't let yourself imagine—"

"That I'm in love with you?" she asked incredulously.

"The whole thing's just impossible."

"What's impossible about it? Steve, I know now that you're the reason I came here this summer. I just had to come and couldn't marry Fletcher. I was crazy about you that summer—that other summer—"

"You were sweet then, too, Laurie. And I want you to know that this summer has meant a lot to me, except that I've realized that I was beginning to think too much of you. That's why I went on that canoe trip—to get myself squared away."

"Steve I don't understand what you're trying to say."

"Just this Laurie." His voice turned grim suddenly. "It would be wrong for us to care too much about each other. It would never work. I'm older than you for one thing—10 years, and that's too much. Besides, your world and mine are two different places."

"Take me into your world," she whispered. She felt frightened at Steve's earnestness.

"My world wouldn't be enough for you, Laurie. I couldn't give you any of the things you're used to, like mink coats, and servants, and trips to Europe—"

"I don't need those things, Steve."

"Maybe you think you don't, but they're an ingrained part of you. You've never had to do without anything."

It was fantastic that she and Steve should be standing here saying these things to each other when all she wanted was for him to hold her, to feel his lips against hers, his arms about her.

"You'd better go back to New York, Laurie." He said it heavily. "You said once you didn't want to make a mistake like your mother did. Don't you realize this would be exactly the same sort of a mistake?"

It came over her like thunder. He really wanted her to go back to New York. He didn't really love her. She had thrown herself at him, and he felt terribly, terribly sorry for her because he was the sort of a person who would. He was good and kind and tender and he hated to hurt her.

"You see, Laurie," Steve went on, gently now. "Once you're back in New York this will all seem like a dream to you—a summer dream."

"No." The word fell like a wounded bird between them.

The sun went under a cloud and the world seemed dark.

"THIS is something you'll get over, Laurie. It's a crazy unreasonable thing. You know it as well as I do." He took his forefinger and tipped up her chin and got out his handkerchief and dabbed at her brimming eyes.

"Crazy or unreasonable, maybe, she thought, but she wouldn't ever get over it. "If you thought anything at all of me, Steve, you couldn't send me away."

He was patient with her, as he would have been with one of his pupils in school. "Our marriage would be wonderful for a while, but then it would start going to pieces."

After a long, long silence she gave him a wavery smile. So she'd made a fool of herself. She'd better pull herself together now.

"Okay. If that's really the way you feel about it."

She reached out the toe of a small yellow sandal and scratched out the words she had written in the sand.

New Varieties Spring Wheat Resist Rust

Agronomists are working at a feverish pace to increase new varieties of spring wheat which will reduce the ravages of race 15B of stem rust.

Plains states agronomists are obtaining two crops a year by using southern California and Arizona for a winter crop and shutting seed back and forth, according to a progress report.

Despite the high-priority tactics, it will take at least three years before new varieties resistant to 15B are available in sufficient quantities.

Meanwhile, wheat growers may profit by making wider use of Rushmore, say South Dakota agronomists J. E. Grafius and V. A. Dirks. Rushmore, developed by the two Dakotans, has proven tolerant to 15B when rust was severe.

Farmers with good seed of Rushmore should keep it for seed purposes, Dirks advises. He expects there will be a demand for seed Rushmore also outyielded Mida and Rival under heavy stem rust conditions in the eastern area of South Dakota in 1952. Rushmore produced 18.6 bushels an acre compared with 14.4 for Mida.

Test weight for Rushmore averaged 58 pounds a bushel, Mida only 55. The difference was caused by stem rust, says Dirks.

Nation's Fire Losses for 1951—

... are way up according to report of National Board of Fire Underwriters just released. Three quarter billion dollars went up in smoke, an increase of 12.3%, and more than 11,000 persons lost their lives. The causes are listed as about the same as previous years with careless use of matches and smoking accounting for 27%. Misuse of electricity, overheated chimneys and flues, lightning, spontaneous combustion and explosions are others in order.

Now the car of the year — the deal of the year!

And we're ready to back up that headline with appetizing facts and generous figures. For example, "the car of the year" is more than a glib phrase, it's a title that Mercury has earned by doing—by making news.

Mercury is the one car in its class that came up with something really new for 1952—styling so new it left other cars far behind. And, if that weren't enough, Mercury (with optional overdrive) again proved that pound for pound it could beat all comers for economy in the Mobilgas Economy Run.

But, we know, you're equally interested in "how much" for your present car. We can give you some idea if you just pick up the phone and call us. But we can do even better if you give us a chance to appraise it firsthand—so we can allow for extras and care you've given it.

So drop around. Our deals are now the best of the year. That means tops in town.

Standard equipment, accessories, and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice. White side-wall tires and full-disc hubcaps of extra cost.

Texas Farm Youth Bid For Garden Awards

AMHERST, Mass. — A Texas boy or girl may be the nation's 1952 national "junior vegetable growing champion and win the top share in a $6,000 scholarship fund. Officials of National Junior Vegetable Growers Association Headquarters in Amherst, Mass., announced today that 13 of the state's farm youth are enrolled in the organization's 1952 production-marketing contest.

Entrants in the 46-state competition for boys and girls aged 12-21, vie for a $500 national championship, four $200 regional awards and a number of sectional and state awards. The fund is provided by A&P Food stores as part of its program of farm youth sponsorship.

Winners, selected by a panel of leading national agricultural authorities, will be announced on the final day of the association's

Summer Dream

LOUIS FRENCH did not seem surprised at his daughter's abrupt decision to return home at once. "I hate to see you cut your visit short, Laurie, but I'm grateful you came. I don't suppose there'll ever be another summer like this, with just us two together."

"No," Laurie answered. "There won't ever be another summer like this." But she wasn't thinking of her father. She was thinking of Steve, who was fond of her, but not in love with her.

All the way up to Capitol City her thoughts flew in dismal circles. How could Steve have kissed her that way if he didn't love her? And he did love her how could he let her go like this, knowing he would never see her again? The thought of never seeing him again was like a wound inside her.

"Laurie," her father said, "I hate to see you go away feeling like this."

"What do you mean?" He gave her a quick sympathetic look. "It's quite obvious that something happened between you and Steve. I was afraid all along you were going to be hurt. I've watched you together and seen it growing—all summer long. I'm sorry it had to turn out like this."

"How do you know how it turned out?" "Steve didn't even come to the house to say goodbye. And you look as though the whole world has fallen to pieces."

"I think maybe it has," Laurie said. They pulled into the airport, and her father parked the car. He carried her luggage in and checked it, found Bruno in the waiting room and brought him back out.

"Have a nice summer, Laurie," Bruno asked. "There was a catch in Laurie's voice as he answered. "Wonderful, Bruno."

1952 convention which will be held in New York City, Dec. 7-11.

The NJVGA program, according to its chief adult advisor, Prof. Grant B. Snyder of the University of Massachusetts, is designed to encourage farm boys and girls to master more efficient methods of producing and marketing vegetables.

"Texas boys' and girls have always made a commendable showing in our national contests," Snyder said, "I feel sure this year they will again claim high contest honors."

JOB COSTS $10,000 The average cost to industry in creating a single new job today is somewhere between $10,000 and $11,000, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"Yes, Mark. Just lovely." "I don't think she looks wonderful at all, Mark," Emmy said when they were in the car and driving toward the apartment. "I don't know how we'll ever get your skin in shape by October, Laurie. And what has happened to your hair? You look positively unkempt."

"Don't badger her, Emmy. She looks fine to me," Mark interrupted.

He changed the subject, for which Laurie was grateful. It had started to rain and the windshield wipers made little clacking noises above the murmur of Mark's voice as he talked to her mother in the front seat.

Looking at herself in the mirrored foyer of the apartment house as they waited for the elevator, Laurie saw that she was very pale. She did look different somehow. Older? Wiser? Or just sadder?

SHE waited until Mark had fixed them each a drink before she told them she had decided not to marry Fletcher. She knew it would precipitate a scene. And it did. She did not tell them about Steve. And in the end her mother said, "It's all Louis's doing. I know it was a mistake for Laurie to go out there this summer. He's responsible for this. He did it to hurt me! He waited all these years!"

"Nonsense, Emmy. Louis couldn't hold a grudge 10 minutes and you know it," Mark put in. "Dad had nothing to do with it," Laurie said. She flushed and gulped her drink.

She was glad when she could escape and go to her own room. She went in and shut the door and went to the window and stood looking out. The rain had stopped now, but the trees were dripping. She watched the traffic go by, the lights of the cars sending long yellow pennants across the wet pavements.

It wasn't peaceful like the country. She missed the sound of tree toads in the woods, and water going over the rattle in the river. She missed a lot of things. Most of all she missed Steve. (To Be Continued)

Texas A Danger Spot in Case Of An Atomic War

Sprawling Texas is famous for having at least a little of everything, a word which includes lots of industry and military installations.

John Trenfield, Follett, Tex.; R. A. Halbert, Miller, Mo.; Joe Green, Pomeroy, Wash.; E. E. Moore, Senatobia, Miss.; Paul V. Partridge, Golden, Colo.; John H. Royer, Jr., Woodbine, Md.; W. C. Grover, Anderson, Calif. and Gentry Adams, Allendale, Ill.

Practically the only blight on this picture is that an atomic war, lots of industry and military installations mean that there would be lots of danger for Texans. That's one of the major reasons that civil defense officials have been saying that now is the time to get a sound civilian protection system organized.

William L. McGill, state coordinator of civil defense, this week released figures on industry and military installations to back up his and other civil defense officials' pleas for preparedness now. The figures were prepared by the Texas Employment Commission, and they indicate that this state would be a priority target in an atomic war.

As far as industry and non-farm employment in general are concerned, McGill noted, Texas ranks among the top states in the nation.

AROUND—

(Continued From Page 1) We fell out of our chair when the collector asked what we were talking about. He explained that if we didn't have the money we sure could not pay, but we need not fear the prison. He told us that the government operated on the grand old plan—a dollar down and the balance like we wanted it. In time we paid off the debt, and got to liking the collector so well, that we now number him with our best of friends.

Then today we got another refund from the City Water Department. Two thin dimes came over carrying a refund notice. This time we are not going to spend the two dimes, but will hold them until we know we are safe. The thing that really gets us though is how they ever figured the account down to this fine point. We probably got a teaspoonful of water that didn't cause the meter to register. Another thing we have learned is that the meter reader did not know. If you will draw your water slowly the meter will do likewise. It's these fast turning meters that run your water bill in a hurry.

Texan Is New Head Of Polled Hereford Group

John Trenfield of Follett, Texas was named president of the American Polled Hereford Association at the annual business meeting in Tulsa, Okla. Trenfield succeeds A. B. Freeman, New Orleans, La., the retiring president. R. A. Halbert of Miller, Mo., was selected as the new vice-president, succeeding Trenfield.

In the election of directors three new names were added to the board, bringing the total directorate to 12 members. Each of the members represents a different district or zone. A year ago it was decided at the business meeting in Louisville, Ky., to divide the entire country into 12 districts, with members in each district to elect a director, each to serve a four-year term.

The three new members of the board include: F. L. Robinson, Kearney, Neb.; J. E. Lambert, Darlington, Ala. and John N. Brown, Louisville, Ky. Continuing as directors are: A. B. Freeman, New Orleans, La.;

Hobo Party And Scavenger Hunt

Saturday night, 7 p.m. the Ed Hooker residence, 903 South Hal-bryan will be the scene of Hobo Party and Scavenger hunt. This is the monthly social for Zeta Pi, Eta Sigma Phi Sorority and Mmes. Roland Phillips, Don Doyle and Edie Hooker are the hostesses. The husbands are included and this means real fun in Hobo costumes, a prize for the "best dressed" couple and plenty of good food!

Ranger Clubs Are Hosts At County Meeting

Mrs. Bill Tucker of Cheaney presided at the Saturday afternoon meeting of the County Federation of Womens Clubs when members met in Ranger at the Community Club House. Miss Mildred Daniels, county Home Demonstration Agent, reported on the Achievement Day program held recently in Eastland and Mrs. Tucker reported on the national H.D.C. convention held in North Carolina.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Tucker presided at the silver coffee service during the "Coffee." The table was laid with an imported cloth and centered with an arrangement of chrysanthemums.

Those attending were Mrs. Alice B. Jones and Louise Weber, both of Rising Star, Mrs. Tucker of Cheaney, Mrs. Claude Stubblefield of Carbon and Miss Daniels of Eastland. Rangerites attending were Mmes. James P. Morris, A. W. Brazda, Pete Brashier, A. L. Rainwater, E. R. Green, A. N. Larson, Lynn Robbins, H. L. Coody, J. W. Elder, Jr., M. H. Hagaman, A. Benefit Dance Legion Hall

On Wednesday Night Nov. 19th 8:30, Zeke Williams Band will be on hand at the Local American Legion Hall to furnish music for dancing, proceeds going to a floor building fund for Lake side Country Club.

The floor repair job is a project of the Ladies Auxiliary and never let it be said that these ladies lack spirit and energy to get things done. Both Locker and Pro shop floors are in bad shape and it is a big undertaking and very necessary.

Three years ago the Club was started and since that time many "out of towners" have "laved" the golf course and visited Eastland that otherwise would not have stooped in our city. Several large tournaments have brought in the crowds and given many local people the amusement at home that they are entitled to. The Auxiliary are on their toes in this civic enterprise and solicit your interest in their projects. They ask that you take this opportunity to enjoy an evening's entertainment with your friends and neighbors.

Presentation Of Senior Rings

Nov. 22nd, 7:30 p.m. the Senior Class will be presented their class rings. The ceremony will take place in the high school gym and great plans are in the making for one of the highlights of the season for the seniors. Miss Verna Johnson with her usual enthusiasm for the class is sponsor and with the full co-operation of all the mothers expects this to be one of the best attended affairs of the school year. The public is cordially invited to attend. The senior mothers assisting Miss Johnson are Mrs. D. E. Webb, general chairman, Mmes. Herbert Weaver, Sidney Roff, E. K. Henderson, James Watson, Betty Grimes are the committee with Mrs. Webb, All Senior Mothers are helping.

Elaine Condley Of Abilene To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Condley, former residents of Eastland have announced the marriage of their daughter, Elaine for Nov. 26th in St. Paul Methodist Church in Abilene, 7 o'clock in the evening. The prospective bridegroom is Bill Dixon, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dixon of Demopolis, Ala.

Eastland friends of the Condley's wish the young couple many years of happiness and prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Dabney, Jr., and sons, of Lubbock, were in Eastland and Ft. Worth over the week end.

Stitch and Chatter Thanksgiving Party

The Stitch and Chatter Club celebrated Thanksgiving with a full evening of fun and good food for members and family at the home of the Gene Hayne's Nov. 15th at 7:30 p.m.

The festive board banked with richly colored fall flowers and yellow candles in copper holders reflected Thanksgiving to the fullest. Wide eyed children scanning the smoking turkey and red cranberries, spiced red apples and pumpkin pie were as much a part of the picture as the decor and grownups displayed appetites as a just credit to the hosts.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Robinson, Guyrene and Betty, Mrs. Wells Dalton, Barbara and Sue, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Upchurch and Gary, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Fillabom, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C.
