Hints Offered On Saving Deer Meat; Hunting Should Be Fairly Good, Say Experts, Despite The Long Drouth

Between 30 and 40,000 legal deer normally are harvested in Texas yearly. Although weather conditions haven't been favorable for deer, R. E. Challenger, wildlife conservation specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says hunting this year should be fairly good.

The specialist counsels hunters to observe rules of safety not while traveling to hunting areas, but especially while hunting. Most hunting accidents, he adds, can be prevented.

Taking care of the kill is listed by Challenger as a highlight of the deer hunting trip. He says experienced hunters go prepared. Minimum equipment comprises a good hunting knife, 15 to 20 feet of very small rope or sash cord, a pad of clean white cloth, and a deer sack seven or eight feet long of lightweight unbleached domestic. Of course, he adds, each hunter will use the type of gun best suited to the section in which he is hunting.

Proper care of the meat begins immediately after the kill. A good job of bleeding improves its keeping and quality. Next, he says, field dress the carcass by removing all viscera and use the clean cloth to wipe the body cavity dry. Then slip the deer sack over the carcass and tie it securely around the base of the antlers to prevent damage from flies or other insects. The carcass should be hung in the shade of a tree or placed in a shady spot on the ground until it is taken into camp. In camp the carcass should be hung in a cool place with the chest cavity open to facilitate cooling. If the animal was badly shot up, especially in the abdomen, it may be necessary to rinse out the body cavity. When this is done, Challenger says to wipe out the cavity and keep the carcass dry from then on.

He says the carcass should be hung outside during the night and if the day time temperature is warm, it should be wrapped in blankets or tarps and placed in the shade. He doesn't advise tying the deer on the fender for the trip home unless the weather is cool or the trip is made at night. It's better, he says, to get the meat away from the hot car motor and out of the sun.

Now for saving the meat after it reaches the home. The faster, and a good means of preservation is freezing. The shoulder, neck and lower portion of the ribs, when boned, make good sausage. Grind the meat and use three parts deer meat to one of pork back fat. For a drier product, he says, make it four to one. Season with one and a third cups of salt and three-fourths cup black pepper to 50 pounds of meat. Sage may be added, if desired.

For curing the thicker, plumper muscles, he likes to use one and a half pounds of salt, a quarter pound of sugar and an ounce of salt peter dissolved in one gallon of water. Weigh the meat in the container so it will be fully covered with the brine. For best results leave the meat in the brine for two days for each pound of meat per piece and do the drying at temperatures of 36 to 38 degrees F. The meat may be eaten at once or smoked and held for later use.

Regardless of how the meat is preserved, Challenger says, save it.

Refrigeration of the meat is preserved, Challenger says, save it.

Old Fashioned Ribbon Cane Is Now Available

At this season of the year, the sugar cane begins to ripen. In the old days, this was a busy time in the bottom lands where the best sugar cane is grown. Everyone was busy hand-cutting and stripping the leaves from the ripened sugar cane; it was a familiar sight to see the old-fashioned mills, powered by mules, crushing the juice.

Evaporating this juice to make the old-fashioned, highly prized ribbon cane syrup was indeed an art—many said it had become a lost art. And they had reason to think so—especially since the last war when production of cane on small farms decreased materially. Now most sugar cane is mechanically harvested and used for production of sugar in the large commercial mills of Louisiana and Florida.

Back in Civil War days, the people of Eastland County looked forward to cane grinding time. They knew it meant ribbon cane flavored syrup for their hot breads and biscuits.

Now, after many years of experiment, the packers of Brer Rabbit Syrup have been able to recapture this highly-prized ribbon cane flavor. The new Brer Rabbit Syrup is so like "country syrup" that most folks declare it must have been made from ribbon cane.

Lighter and milder than ever, Brer Rabbit Syrup is perfect for table use—for hot cakes, biscuits, pancakes and waffles. This new fine energy food is now available with the familiar Brer Rabbit Label (Brown Label - light and

Watchman Saves Starving Dogs
An Athens, Texas, night watchman is a dog's best friend.
As Brownie Gilliam makes his nightly watching rounds, he often is followed by a whole pack of dogs of varying sizes and varieties.
It started three years ago when Gilliam first took a night watchman's job at Athens and, on his first round, discovered an abandoned puppy shivering in a doorway.
Brownie fed the dog and next day found it a home. Since then, he has "adopted" scores of abandoned dogs whose fate, otherwise, might be death from starvation. Athens restaurants and food markets donate food and bones to the night watchman to feed his charges.
Many of the dogs are reluctant to leave Gilliam and sometimes return to walk the rounds with him again and again before they settle down in their new homes.

EVERYTHING'S O.K. IT'S A BOY!

Nation's Fire Losses for 1951—
... are way up according to report of National Board of Fire Underwriters just released. Three quarter billion dollars went up in smoke, an increase of 12.3%, and more than 11,000 persons lost their lives. The causes are listed as about the same as previous years with careless use of matches and smoking accounting for 27%. Misuse of electricity, overheated chimneys and flues, lightning, spontaneous combustion and explosions are others in order.

Christopher TV Programs Gain In Popularity

More than 7,000,000 persons each week view the new 15-minute television program presented weekly by the Christophers on 63 stations from coast to coast.

On TV since mid-September, the Christopher presentations are filmed and made available without cost to the stations. The programs, entitled "What One Person Can Do", feature anecdotes which show what an individual can do with God's help to change the world for the better.

These real-life stories are related by Father James Keller, M. M., founder and director of the Christophers. He also conducts discussions with leading personalities and celebrities, who contribute their time and talent to the program.

Christopher films are made in New York and in Hollywood and then are shipped out to the TV stations each week from the Christopher headquarters at 18 East 48th Street, in New York City. At the present time, 59 out of a total of 65 areas in the country where TV coverage now extends present the Christopher quarter-hour weekly series. In Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit and Omaha two stations feature the Christopher program.

Christopher TV Programs Gain In Popularity

Christopher movie a week for television is $3,500. A unique feature of this Christopher television project is that no collections, appeals or fund-raising drives are conducted to cover the expense of producing the weekly films. All contributions are completely voluntary and unsolicited. The $53,000 to cover the cost of the first 16 films was spontaneously provided, mainly in small amounts, by Christopher friends throughout the country. It is hoped to make 52 films a year under this same policy.

Air time is donated by the individual stations as a public service. It is estimated that cost of the time for the 63-station network would exceed $750,000 a year.

Prior to launching the TV series this fall, the Christophers had made four 30-minute films which have been shown to groups throughout the country as well as in the program.

Martha Dorcas Have Guests

The Martha Dorcas Class of the First Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. C. W. Huffman Wednesday, 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. C. W. Young as co-hostess.

Mrs. Frank Castleberry, president conducted the short business meeting, reports from all appointed committee's were read.

Mrs. Young, accompanied by Mrs. Turner Collic at the piano opened the meeting with the hymn "Count Your Blessings."

Mrs. J. A. Doyle brought a Thanksgiving devotional titled "The Grateful Heart" with scripture—32nd verse of 92 Psalm. Mrs. B. O. Harrell led the prayer.

Mrs. Hoffman introduced Mrs. J. Morris, honored guest from Ranger who reviewed the book, "The Giant", by Edna Ferber, in a most entertaining manner.

The house was beautifully decorated throughout with fall colors; autumn leaves and fruit. The coffee table arrangement in the informal sitting room was a pair of handsome cocks with persimmons in their beaks surrounded with a harvest of persimmons and brightly colored leaves. Arrangements of chrysanthemums were in the living room where the guests were greeted.

The tea table was a bower of gold and bronze mums. Open faced sandwiches, cheese sticks and gingerbread turkeys were the attractive cookies. Mrs. Frank Castleberry served from the handsome tea service the following guests: Mmes. T. M. Collic, Claud Boles, Ora B. Jones, P. L. Lilley, Jess Harbin, J. C. Whitley, E. M. Grimes, C. B.
