

There are types of work that are pleasant and types that are not so pleasant. But there is a least one type that should be classed along with other abominations —that is dish-washing.

We have been living for quite a number of years, and we have our first person to meet, who will admit they enjoy washing dishes When the wife wishes to punis us, all she has to do is merely suggest that we "do the dishes."

Women despise this heart-break ing chore, though some of then compelled to undergo this or deal three times each day and every since they said, "I will." I women would think about "dish washing" we doubt if there would ever be another wedding. They managed to get the word "obey' deleted, so why not do something about the dishes?

Dishes, dishes, dishes, and all of them dirty most all the time. It's dishes that make a 30-year-old woman look as though she might be 100. At a party mother car not be happy, for she knows that after all the fun and food, there will be the dishes. We have seen them burst into tears at the mere thought of having the dishes to do.

Who could enjoy a banquet if he had to do his own dishes? Ther think of mother, who has all of to do in lonely silence, after a law against it. Yes, friend "wifey" is especially sweet-when she is doing your dishes. Do you suppose it would break your back you volunteered a little assis tance? At least you could furnish a little company.

We abhor dirty dishes, and so does mother, but we seldom do anything about it. These dishes are detestable and loathsome. We hate them and never lose an opportunity to tell how shamefully vile they really are. And yet a lot of us go through life without a second thought. We take it for granted that mother will "wash those dishes." At times we feel just a little "cheap", but not cheap enough to do the dishes. We may be filled with remorse, but not full enough.

Why have dishes anyway? Why not paper plates? Why not a family food trough operated on "a la hog style"? Obviously, a device which we use o frequently cannot always be handled with a great amount of ceremony and red tape. There simplyq isn't time for extended formalities upon every occasion in which a contract comes into being. Yet, to many people, the mere nention of the word "contract" rings visions of lengthy docuents, written in legal terms nany syllables, and executed with laborate ceremony. While this picture does not ap-

The main thing each of us needs to know is when our words and actions will serve to create a conract. Knowing this, we are in a position to weigh and determine the advisabilit. of gong ahead. We can consider our ability to go through with all of the obligations imposed upon us by the prospect-ve contract and ponder the consejuences of possible inability to neet those obligations. In next week's column, the esentials of making a contract will be discussed.
